GENERAL BULLER

General Buller has told his story of the telegram to General White, which it has been said advised the latter to surrender. After the failure to cross the Tugela at Colenso, General Buller advised General White of the situation, told him it would be a month before another attempt could be made, suggested that it might be necessary to surrender Ladysmith, and advised as to the terms that should be demanded. The Tugela advance was made on December 15, up to which time Ladysmith was understood to be fully provisioned. General Buller's suggestion of surrender was based on the idea that the town would be starved out before he could reach it. He under-estimated the determination and capacity of the garrison, as he seems also to have under-estimated the strength and courage of his own command. After Spion Kop and Vaal Krantz General Roberts had, in effect, to order him to again essay the task, even though it would cost, as he said, some ten thousand men. General Buller's personal courage has been too often tested and proved to doubt that he would personally dare anything in the way of duty. If he feared aught it was the crazy criticism of the English press, which had shrieked over the loss of ten guns and a regiment at the Tugela as if it was an army that had been destroyed. It was a weakness that might or might not have had grave results had not Lord Roberts' sterner stuff shown itself. Lord Roberts, however, who knew all that General Buller had to face, and all that he had done, who left him in charge of a difficult part of the campaign after Paardeberg and Ladysmith, and who consulted with him after the occupation of Pretoria, evidently thinks him fit to command an army corps at home, else he would no thave such command, and no one can better judge than Lord Roberts. And no one will think less of the man who, without compulsion, has told the story of what he sent to General White, knowing that if Ladysmith surrendered the blame would be laid on him, and not on his subordinate, and that the publication of the facts will increase the respect in which General White's work is held, by ordinary as well as military critics.

DISPOSING OF ANARCHISTS

New York, Oct. 17.—The approaching execution by electricity of the assassin of President McKinley recalls the punishment meted out to some of the men who killed rulers in the Old World.

The murderer of Selim III of Turkey was publicly impaled. Those who did to death his immediate successor, Mustapha IV, were slowly starved to death, suffering barbarous tortures meanwhile. As late as the year 1831 the two assassins of Count Capo d'Istria, President of Greece, were immured in narrow brick vaults built round them up to their chins, and were kept supplied with food in this species of torture until they died.

Strangely awful was the punishment meted out to one, at least, among those implicated in the murder of the late Shah of Persia, the illustrious Nasr-ed-Din. He was encased in wet plaster of paris, which, on setting, slowly but surely crushed him to death. The assassins of his no less illustrious predecessor, Aga-Mohammed Khan, were (at least, some of them) immersed in huge caldrons of water, which were slowly brought to the boiling point.

"Damiens' bed of steel" has become a synonym for extreme mental or physical anguish, unrelieved by even temporary respite. The phrase was first used by Goldsmith in "The Traveler." Damiens was the man who attempted the life of Louis XV of France. He was interned in the Bastile tortured by day, and, by night for several days, and was eventually torn to pieces by four young horses after being publicly subjected to the most appalling torments. This terrible punishment was avowedly modeled on the lines of that meted out to Ravaillac, who murdered Henry IV.

Very dramatic was the fate which overtook the nihilist who assassinated the Czar Alexander II. He failed to leap back with sufficient after throwing his bomb and himself perished in the resultant explosion. Five of his accomplices, of whom one was a woman, were executed, while the sixth—reprieved after sentence—is to-day expiating her share in the plot by lifelong solitary confinement in the fortress prison of St Peter and St Paul.

This lifelong solitary immurement, is, by the way, a sufficiently terrible punishment. Bresci, who killed King Humbert of Italy last year, preferred to die in his cell by his own hand rather than endure it. Passanante, who attempted the life of the same monarch as far back as the year 1878 and who was consigned by his judges to a similar death in life, destroyed himself in a fit of hopeless frenzy.

Only a few years ago a young and beautiful Russian girl, a student at one of the leading universities, set fire to her bed of straw in the dungeon wherein she was confined and so perished miserably. She had been interned silently, secretly, at dead of night, by order of the chief of the secret police on a charge of conspiring against the life of the Czar.

Why Catarrhozone Cures Catarrh.

goes to every affected part and kills the germs that keep up the diseased condition. Catarrhozone never irritates but stimulates the mucous lining of the nose, throat and lungs to normal action, and keeps the nasal passages free from offensive discharges. Catarrhozone contains no dangerous drugs or opiates, and is delightfully pleasant and simple to use. Catarrhozone is an absolutely certain cure for any form of Catarrh and sells for dollar at druggists, small size 25c. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston Ont.

"Don't Speak

To the motorman," is a sign to be seen on the front platform of many cars. It requires all his thought, all his energy and all his strength to pilot his car through crowded streets. The strain tells on him, and some when he gets "rattled" and has an accident. The surest way to sustain the physical strength and nervous force required by the motorman or railroad man is to keep the stomach in a condition of sound health. When the stomach becomes "weak," food is imperfectly digested and the body is deprived of its necessary nourishment. The nerves are "unstrung" and the body is weakened. The timely use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery when the stomach is "weak" will re-establish the body in vigorous health. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, nourishes the nerves and purifies the blood.

"I suffered for four years with pain in my stomach so that at times I couldn't work nor eat," writes Mr. Frank Smith, of Granite, Chaffee Co., Colo. "I wrote to you about my sickness and was told to use your medicine, which I did with good results. I only used four bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I must say that I am entirely cured, and feel like a new man, and I can highly recommend your medicine to any sufferer."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE LADY ELLEN MINE.

S ORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

He pressed his fingers against his throbbing temples and closed his eyes a moment. Then he staggered to the door of his cabin, and, leaning against the casing, looked yearningly down the gulch at the two straggling rows of black, unpainted buildings. To the north the foothills stretched away through the dusk in undulating barrenness to the grim, gray mountains; to the east old hoary-headed Pike pierced the clouds, and over the distant valley hung the mists of evening. But to George Morrison the magnificent scenery made no appeal. For he was hungry—God, he was hungry! His face was brown and thin; his cheek bones seemed almost to protrude through his flesh; his eyes were so deeply sunken that a second glance was necessary to tell that they were gray. His hair was long and unkempt; his beard was straggling. His jaws were square and his lips pressed together, denoting the iron will and indomitable courage of the man.

As he looked down upon the settlement he riveted his gaze upon one building that squatted upon the west side of the gulch, its square front and wooden awning proclaiming it a store.

A man was sitting on a box under the awning smoking a pipe. A large black dog lay curled up at his feet.

Morrison watched him a few moments, then he pulled the rim of his hat down over his eyes and started down the path leading to the main street of the village. His head ached, he was dizzy and his knees were weak and trembling, but he threw his shoulders back and walked as erect and as rapidly as possible.

As he neared the store his resolution seemed to flag and he slackened his pace. He saw the man on the box enter the building and a moment later return with several pieces of meat which he tossed to the dog.

When he reached the store at last Morrison's courage forsook him and he walked slowly past. But the hunger under his belt made him pause and turn suddenly to the man on the box.

"Mr. Chatfield," he said, "I would like to get a pound of bacon. I—I hate to ask for more credit, but——"

Chatfield frowned.

"Can't let you have it," he said gruffly. "Can't let you have another thing until you pay what you already owe me."

Morrison's face flushed, then paled, and he leaned heavily against a post. For three days he had not tasted food; for three days his pride had kept him from asking for additional credit when his immediate prospects were so poor. The man on the box did not know that. Perhaps it would have made no difference if he had.

Morrison staggered a few steps toward his home. Then he turned suddenly and looked almost appealingly at Chatfield. There was a mist in his eyes and a numbness in his fingers.

"Could you not let me have a little bacon, Mr. Chatfield?" he said. "Just a few slices? I have not a bite of food in the shanty, and — and — God, Chatfield, I am so hungry!"

The storekeeper glanced at him and a smile curled his lips—a cruel smile.

"D—n it, no" he said; "not a single slice. I haven't a mite of faith in your old hole in the ground. If you think there's gold in that tunnel you're diggin', why in h—l don't you get some feller to grub-stake yer? That's the way to do things, Morrison."

"I've tried, Chatfield," the other answered, "but they are all like you. They don't believe there is any yaller in the hill. I thought—"

He ceased speaking, for a young woman coming noiselessly down the road behind him touched him playfully on the elbow. He turned suddenly and his face flushed as his eyes met hers.

"Did I frighten you?" she laughed.

He removed his hat awkwardly. There was kindness in her voice, and he struggled fiercely with a lump in his throat.

"No, Miss Ellen," he replied, smiling grimly; "that is, not very much."

She laughed again and passed into the store. The proprietor arose from his seat and followed her, and Morrison stood watching the girl's trim figure.

Then his glance fell upon the dog. The animal, having gorged himself on the juicy steak tossed to him by his master, lay asleep by the roadside. One piece of the meat, untouched, lay in the dust and the buffalo grass.

The man glanced sharply in the direction of the store; then pulling a soiled bandana from his pocket he dropped it upon the meat and quickly stooping picked it up and shoved it into his pocket. Then he hastened up the path toward his cabin.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon Morrison lay down his pick and shovel, crawled out of the hole he was boring in Acorn hill, and reeling down to his cabin threw himself on his bunk on the floor.

His strength was gone, his muscles refused to longer keep up the battle for gold. His head whirled, his vision was uncertain, his tongue was thick and coated, his eyes burned and there was fever in his veins.

He fell at once into a stupor from which he was finally aroused by a downpour of rain upon the roof. The dampness in the air somewhat revived him.

He got upon his feet finally and was staggering to the door to close it when a woman, dashing in out of the storm, almost fell into his arms.

"Why, Miss Ellen," he cried, and grasped the door knob in time to keep from falling.

The woman laughed and shook the moisture from her garments.

"Been over to the Last Chance camp with their washing and got caught in the rain," she said. Then noticing Morrison's pale face she grew sober.

"Why, Mr. Morrison," she cried, "what's the matter? You are sick."

He made an attempt to laugh.

"It's nothing—much," he replied. "I got overheated at work, I guess."

He let go his hold on the door and started across the room, but reeled and must have fallen, but the girl caught his arm and assisted him to a chair. Then she got some water in a basin and bathed his forehead and temples.

"Why, you have a fever," she said. "I will go for a doctor."

He caught her by the arm.

"No! No!" he cried. "Don't do that. Please don't do that, Miss Ellen. I will be better soon."

"How weak you are," she said. "Let me make you some coffee."

She paid no attention to his efforts to stop her, but hastening into the adjoining room built a fire in the cracked stove and put on some water to boil. Then she pulled back the curtains that concealed the rough shelving in one corner of the room.

Morrison heard her moving the empty pans and dishes about and his face flushed.

"Mr. Morrison," she called presently, "where do you keep your coffee; where do you keep everything? I never saw such a poor housekeeper as you," she added gayly.

But Morrison did not reply, so she walked to the opening between the two rooms and looked at him. He was sitting with his elbows on his knees, resting his face in his hands and gazing down at the floor.

In silence she stood and watched him for a moment and in that moment she read the truth in his emaciated face. He glanced up at her and saw the tears spring to her eyes.

"Don't, Miss Ellen," he begged.

The girl advanced and laid her hand upon his bowed head.

"I am sorry," she said. "I—I did not mean to—to find out. But I know now and I'm going to get—we're going to have supper together."

He raised his face to hers and attempted to speak, but she put her hand playfully over his mouth.

"Now you just keep quiet," she said. "I'm going to have my way, and if you won't let me I'll—" she laughed. "I guess I'll box your ears."

The rain had ceased as suddenly as it had commenced and as the girl hurried down the path the sunshine was falling over hill and mountain and valley like a benediction. When she returned, her arms loaded with provisions, Morrison was still sitting with his face in his hands.

"Miss Ellen," he began, "I cannot—"

"Look here," she replied, "if you get delirious again I will go for a doctor."

An hour later he sat in the door of his cabin and watched her as she tripped merrily down the path. There was still a mist in his eye, but already he could feel the throb of new life in his veins.

"God bless her," he whispered. "God bless her!"

Lying on his side in the narrow tunnel under Acorn hill Morrison grasped his pick in eagerness to renew his attack upon the rock that barred his way. His quarters were close and hot, but he cared not, for his stomach was full and his muscles were strong once more.

With the memory of Miss Ellen's face before him and a song upon his lips he buried the sharp point of the implement in the breast of the flaky rock. Then, bearing his weight upon the end of the handle, he pried loose a great piece of stone.

The next moment he was alternately singing, laughing and shouting. For before him in a well of solid rock a great golden artery lay bared — a broad, dark brown, almost black, thread from which smaller threads radiated in all directions. 'Twas the mother lode of the district—wealth beyond computing!

In his great joy the man pressed his lips against the precious substance, then fell upon his face and sobbed, as only a strong man can sob. What matter now his weeks of toil and suffering, his days of hunger and starvation? He had found gold—gold as pure as ever was dug from earth or rock. But—he had come so nigh to death.

"God bless her," he cried. "God bless the girl."

Then he raised his eyes again to the vein of gold.

"The Lady Ellen mine," he shouted, exultantly; "the Lady Ellen mine."

"But, Mr. Morrison," she said seriously, "I am only a poor girl, only the daughter of a washerwoman. I am not the one a gold king should choose for a bride."

"But I love you," he replied, holding out his hands to her. "I love you and I need you, for I am such a poor housekeeper."

She laughed and placed her hands in his, and he stooped and kissed her.

"Lady Ellen, mine," he whispered tenderly, a great happiness in his voice.

THE WAR

London, Oct. 16.—With all sources of war news except what may trickle through the official dispatches sealed up owing to martial law at Cape Town, the discussion which has been growing daily in the London papers, promises soon to revolutionize public sentiment regarding the war.

General Sir Redvers Buller's bombastic speech on Saturday is regarded as the mere preliminary rumble of the coming thunder storm.

His close personal friendship with the King gives weight to his words, even greater than as spoken by the former commander-in-chief of the South African army. A week ago Arnold White, the foremost spokesman in England of the reform element in the navy, demanded, in articles over his own signature, that the King should ask for the withdrawal of the Salisbury ministry. This article was copied and quoted in many papers, some even the hidebound supporters of the Tory government. The "Man-in-the-street," whom Mr. Balfour credited with better judgment in these matters than the combined ministry, wonders what it all means. Sentiments which a year ago would have been denounced as pro-Boer, are now openly advocated in the strongest jingo papers. Public opinion was never in such a chaotic condition. Could a Gladstone arise to stir up the country as during the historic Bulgarian atrocity campaign, England would be ablaze with indignation within a week.

"Where are all the Boers coming from?" is a question heard a dozen times a day. If the official reports of the killed and prisoners are trustworthy the entire male population of the two republics was wiped out long ago.

An answer to this question came from one lately returned from South Africa, which is given exactly as it was stated: "Have you noticed how many are reported missing after every skirmish? Some of these return to the ranks, but many don't. No; the Boers don't keep prisoners, and are not yet accused of murdering them."

"This means that many are missing from the English ranks and prefer to stay among the Boers. Besides these there have been hundreds, probably thousands, of desertions of dissipated 'Tommies,' who, besides being underpaid and ill fed, are treated worse than slaves by arrogant officers and compelled to do menial work with savage Kaffirs, even envying them the privilege they enjoy of running off at their own sweet will when they don't choose to work.

"This accounts in a large degree for the facility of the Boer commandoes in walking through the British cordons whenever they please. It is the easiest thing in the world for a few former 'Tommies,' acting as scouts, on meeting a British outpost, to give a false description of the troops following and pass themselves off as British and so escape in the darkness.

"Of course there is no means of verifying the actual number of such desertions, but it was learned, on what I have reason to regard as excellent authority in Cape Town, that the total would more than account for all the reinforcements sent out for many months."

The dragging on of the war has been attributed to the natural difficulties of the country or the inefficiency of the British army. Now appears a continental expert, M. Jean de Bloch, who pronounces these explanations inadequate. In his opinion the prolongation of hostilities is the inevitable outcome of the changed conditions of modern warfare. He holds that any conflict on the continent of Europe today would be inconclusive. In short, it is his belief that South Africa has so demonstrated the futility of war, and that no sane nation hereafter can appeal to arms. The views of M. de Bloch, who is credited with having persuaded the Czar to call the Peace Congress, are set forth in the current number of the Contemporary Review.

M. de Bloch points out that the South African campaign is the first in which perfected firearms and smokeless powder have been used on a large scale. It is also the first in which the efficiency of trained soldiers has been tested against resourceful volunteers. The climate of South Africa M. de Bloch pronounces as salubrious as that of any European country. Its topographical difficulties he believes have been magnified. If Northern Natal be excepted the scene of the operations is flatter than most Europe. Besides, the British suffered as severely in the level regions as among the hills. The great extent of the theater of war instead of being a detriment to England this writer regards as a signal advantage such as European powers never enjoy in contests on the continent. The concentration of men on a small area tends to cause disease and greatly increases the difficulty of providing food.

The alleged superior marksmanship of the Boers M. de Bloch does not credit. He cites the opinion of the United States attache that they were bad marksmen when shooting at military distances. This judgment, he believes, is impartial and correct. The British artillerists have been severely criticised, but the Russian critic regards this point as ill taken as the others. They were efficient, he believes, and certainly far excelled the Boer artillerymen in numbers and power. Their superiority was greater than any European nation can hope to have over its antagonist. The lesson of South Africa is that artillery is practically useless against an intrenched enemy. Only on one occasion did the fire of heavy guns cause severe loss to the enemy or force him to disclose his position. Yet the artillery force of the assailants was from four to twenty times as great as that of the assailed in almost every instance. The occasion referred to was at Spion Kop, where the British were huddled on a hill top without shelter. Cavalry M. de Bloch regards as of even less use than artillery. He quotes Colonel Henderson, director of the intelligence department of Lord Roberts' staff, as saying: "Cavalry—armed, trained and equipped as is the cavalry of the European continent—is as obsolete as the Crusaders."

Having shown the inefficiency of artillery and cavalry, M. de Bloch turns to trained infantry. South Africa, he believes, has refuted all arguments in favor of conscription. It was the Canadians who made the final attack before the surrender of Cronje. Civilians defended Mafeking and Kimberley, against forces larger than those that attacked Ladysmith. Colonel Henderson said: "Our officers learned in South Africa that what they had practiced in peace was utterly unsuited to the Mauser swept battlefield. On hardly a single occasion was the usage of the maneuver ground adhered to." The point is that morale, intelligence, initiative count more than drill. These qualities are conspicuously weak in conscript armies and M. de Bloch predicts that conscription will soon become obsolete.

Everybody admits that warfare has been revolutionized by the introduction of the modern rifle. M. de Bloch's conclusions as to the military lessons of the war will find much readier acceptance than his general deductions about the disappearance of the conscript system and finally of war itself.

BRITISH ANNOYED BY VENEZUELANS

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Oct. 16.—Particulars have been received by the British authorities in this colony relative to what is contended to be an act of unjustifiable interference on the part of the Venezuelan authorities with British commerce in the Gulf of Paria, and which may probably lead to another rupture in the diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Venezuela.

For the second time within the last few months President Castro of Venezuela has given offence to the British Government, because one of his gunboats interfered with sailing craft in British waters and the rights of British subjects in British territory.

Trinidad is in close proximity to the Republic, and the waters of the Gulf of Paria wash the shores of both this island and Venezuela.

The schooner Pastora cleared at the Trinidad custom house for Guira, on the opposite shore of the Gulf of Paria, with a cargo of provisions on August 21st last. The craft sailed the following day for her destination, but on account of the rough weather the Pastora with other vessels had to put into the Bay of Patos for shelter.

As the sea continued to rise it was deemed advisable that, in order to lighten the vessel, her freight should be discharged temporarily until the storm had passed. On the morning of August 23, while these vessels were lying at Patos, the Venezuelan gunboat Totumo arrived at Patos and her officers seized the Pastora and several small boats, together with all the goods that were on shore.

GOODS WERE SOLD.

As soon as the weather moderated she took the seized craft and the goods to Guiria, where there is a Venezuelan custom house, and sold them. It is alleged that the officers of the Totumo told the captains and crews of the seized craft to say nothing about the place at which the seizure was made, Patos being a British island, and asked them to say that the seizures were made in Venezuelan waters. But most of the crews were British subjects and the goods seized were partly owned by British subjects, also some of the craft owned or partly owned by subjects of Great Britain.

The Venezuelan authorities contend that the action of the captain of the Venezuelan gunboat was justified because it was to prevent smuggling and that, from information they had, the Pastora took certain goods from Trinidad that were not included in her customs papers, and these goods were tobacco and cigars. They also assert that the Pastora landed the tobacco and cigars at Patos, where there were several Venezuelan open boats waiting to receive them, and that the Tortumo's officers actually watched the transfer of these goods.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1901.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.

New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1866, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis; but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1893, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Miss Susie M. Latimer and Rev. A. W. Coone, S. T. L.

Napanee Beaver: A quiet wedding was celebrated Wednesday afternoon in the Western Methodist church, the contracting parties being Rev. A. W. Coone, S. T. L., and Miss Susie May Latimer, daughter of Mr. Wm. Latimer, of Thomas street. The officiating clergyman was Rev. J. A. McCamus, of Lakefield, and brother-in-law of the groom, while Rev. S. T. Bartlett assisted in the ceremony. Only a few of the bride's more intimate friends were present at the wedding. Many more who have held the young couple in high esteem would have attended had they not understood that the proceedings were not open to all. The groom was attended by Mr. Fred Hooper, while Miss Maud Garrison waited on the bride. Both ladies were attired in dark blue travelling suits.

The newly married couple left on the 4.30 train for the west. Their immediate destination was Toronto; but after a few days' visit to other places they proceed to Manilla, where the groom's mother resides. Here a reception will be tendered them, and they will reach their field of work sometime during the ensuing week. Mr. Coone is a well known young minister of the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference and is stationed on the Plainfield circuit, residing at Bowd-ley. Mrs. Coone has for years been an active worker in the choir, Sunday School and Epworth Leagues of the Western Methodist church, and is in every sense a fitting helpmate to her husband in the work of the pastorate. Their many friends join in wishing them a long and happy life together.

An Impartial Mother Cow

John R. Cowan, of town, has a kodak picture of a cow, suckling a calf and a pig at the same time. The pig in question had become somewhat famous as a stealer of fresh milk, and so, an amateur photographer, watched for a chance to take a snapshot at the porker while in the act. He drove the cow up to where the calf was tied to a fence, and the pig lost no time in getting into position, though somewhat afraid of the calf. As the pig is only a mere shoat, a pail was set on the ground for him to rest his forefeet on while getting his share of the milk. As soon as the group was in proper position the picture was taken.

OFFICIALS IN TOWN.

Cereal Company's Directors Are Here—Looking Over the Work.

There arrived here yesterday morning, accompanied by Senator Cox, a number of directors of the American Cereal Company. The party includes President H. P. Crowell, Treasurer Robert Stuart, Assistant-Manager F. Pleasants, Traffic Manager L. Richards, and Mr. George H. Cormack, manager of the works at Rockford, Ill., where the Company constructs its own machinery.

The visit was for the purpose of inspecting the progress of the work on the buildings which are in course of erection.

Satisfaction was expressed with the work, and Mr. Bogue was complimented on the superior workmanship. The buildings will be completed as rapidly as possible.

The Price of Cheese

The price of cheese is gradually sinking and is now below nine cents. What downward figure it will reach is not known but the price has been gradually dropping for some time. We learn from one source that the reason is from the "turnipy" cheese with which the market is being glutted with at present. When will the farmers learn that it is to their advantage to keep the cows out of the turnip patch until the factory closes and after that so long as they sell butter to customers? Never until they pay the shot in poor prices several times, and we doubt if some will then.

THE DUKE'S ENGLISH.

Peterborough Cocknays Will Now Drop Their Affectation.

The visit of the Duke of Cornwall has given certain Canadians a severe jolt. The average Canadian speaks good English. But there are many Canadians who have been cultivating a style of speech which they imagine to be the style of the upper classes in England. The irreverent have called it the "blawsted" style, and have made merry about it. But the Canadian victim of the fad travely stuck to it until the arrival of the Duke. When the Duke replied to the first address the Canadians of the "blawsted" style were amazed to discover that he spoke English very much as it is spoken by the ordinary Canadian—that he spoke ordinary, plain, every-day English without frills, without accent, without nonsense. We do not know what the result will be, but we hope that it will result in the dropping of the nonsensical imitation of the Lord Dundreary variety of Englishmen — a variety that exists principally on the American stage, and which is not unknown in Peterborough.

The Stomach's "Weal or Woe!"—The stomach is the centre from which, from the standpoint of health, flows "weal or woe." A healthy stomach means perfect digestion—perfect digestion means strong and steady nerve centres—strong nerve centres mean good circulation, rich blood and good health. South American Nervine makes and keeps the stomach right.—50

C. P. R. Employes

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has put aside $250,000 as the beginning of a pension fund for its employes. This sum, though large in itself, is by no means excessive when the extent of the purposes of the fund is considered. There are over 28,000 men employed. Particulars of the regulations of the fund are not made public; perhaps they are not yet arranged. But the fact above announced will serve to give the men a new interest in the company and will tend to make the loyal ones even more loyal. It is, besides, a benevolent application of means to an end worthy in itself.

BUTTER AND NOT CHEESE

Strong Circular to Dairymen Regarding Butter.

Yesterday the Times received the following circular from the Montreal Butter and Cheese Association, with a request to publish it in these columns. The letter speaks for itself:

Montreal, October 15th, 1901.

To Dairymen of Canada,

Gentlemen,—At a general meeting of this Association held on the 14th inst., it was resolved to issue a circular to the Dairymen of Canada, strongly advising them to turn their attention to butter more generally, and to discontinue the manufacture of cheese entirely after 1st November, for the following reasons:—

1st. That fodder cheese hurts the consumption, thus diminishing the demand for grass goods and lowering its price.

2nd. That the outlet for cheese is limited, and everything depends on the quality to induce a large consumption.

3rd. That the consumption of cheese is not increasing, but diminishing, while the consumption of finest creamery butter is rapidly growing.

4th. That the price of butter is higher on an average all the year round than cheese, for the finest qualities.

5th. That the manufacture of butter is more profitable than cheese, not only in the comparative price, but in that the farm stock and the land are better sustained.

6th. That in order to maintain high prices, there must be a continuous supply of finest butter, and as the flow of milk is lessening now, it is most urgent that the quantity should be kept up as much as possible, and to divert the milk from cheese to this article is the only way to keep up the supply.

Butter should be shipped fresh weekly to command the best price.

I am, Gentlemen, yours truly,
J. STANLEY COOK, Secretary.

GENERAL NOTES.

It is recommended that all factories be fitted up so as to make either cheese or butter.

Cheese should be held three weeks at a temperature of 60 degrees to ensure proper curing. Serious complications continue to come of cheese being shipped much too green.

Packages both of cheese and butter are still made of much too thin wood.

Rising in Spain Grows

Madrid, Oct. 17.—An extraordinary meeting of the cabinet was held today, under the presidency of the queen regent, to consider the outbreaks in Seville and elsewhere.

Fresh disturbances are reported at Seville. A mob that was storming the convent of St. Savior was dispersed by troops, but not until the door of the convent had been burned.

Martial law will probably be extended to other towns where revolutionary disorders are occurring.

THE SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY

REPORT OF A BERLIN DELEGATION TO MICHIGAN.

Interesting Information for Those Interested in Growing Sugar Beets in Peterborough County and District.

A representative of the Berlin News-Record visited Michigan in company with the delegation sent to examine the beet sugar industry there. The delegation consisted of Messrs. S. J. Williams, H. L. Janzen, Berlin; T. S. Shantz and L. Kochler, of Waterloo township, and the News-Record representative. These extracts are taken from the report submitted:

Mr. W. C. Penoyer, who has large beet sugar interests in Michigan, being president of one company and director of another, very kindly accompanied us and answered with good grace the hundred and one questions launched at him. He said that there was no place in Ontario better suited for a sugar factory than North Waterloo. This he was prepared to say after going over the ground personally. The site at Berlin has a number of disadvantages, and the town should possess another railway.

There are six sugar factories in operation there within a radius of 13 miles, and several under construction. Since their advent the city has built 170 miles of stone road for the benefit of beet growers, obtaining the stone at the bay shore.

After viewing the sugar plant and its wonders, the yeomen were anxious to interview the farmers to learn from them whether sugar beets are a profitable crop and likely to be a permanent industry. The first farmer questioned was Edward Nithtschke, He formerly lived near Ottawa, Ont. and said: "I live ten miles from Bay City, on a forty-acre farm. I have been growing beets for four years. I never knew a farmer who began the growing of beets to give it up. The first year I put in 1 1-2 acres. The second year, three acres, the third year four, and this year six acres. I find that I can cultivate the six acres of beets as easily as I did the one and a half acres the first year. Last year my beets averaged 15 tons to the acre and 14 to 16 per cent. in sugar. Lots o' growers get 20 tons to the acre. When I say mine averaged 15 tons to the acre, I mean I was paid for 15 tons after the tare had been deducted. The tare ran from 2 to 5 per cent.

It is easy to raise sugar beets now. We were green the first year. A man will thin two acres in a day and a half. I employ no outside help. I and my two sons, aged 19 and 12 respectively, handled the six acres. I estimate the whole cost of raising the beets to be not over $25 an acre this includes all labor and rent of lands. Last year my crop of beets averaged $64 an acre. I sowed the seed in rows, two feet apart.

The price of farm lands have gone up since the sugar beet was introduced. I paid $25 an acre eight years ago for my land, or $1000. Now I can secure $75 an acre for it. Without sugar beet the farmers of this country could not pay the interest on their mortgages.

Since we began raising sugar beets the prices of other farm products have risen.

The second farmer spoken to, lived 15 miles from Bay City, and was in a hurry. He said he had a 40-acre farm and raised 5 acres of beets. If he lived nearer he would grow 15.

The deputation was fortunate in meeting Mr. J. Gilbert, the king beet grower of Michigan. Mr. Gilbert is Bay City's milk inspector. He has had over 1,000 acres of beets this year, and has already contracted for 2,300 acres for next year, and if possible will obtain 3,000 acres. He rents all this land and pays men to look after it. He has 200 acres within the city limits. His profits on this year's acreage is expected to total $15,000.

Speaking to us, he said: "The big secret in raising sugar beets is to keep them clean. I have found a tout of clover per acre a good preparatory fertiliser for beets. If the land is not right I do not rent. If I get ten tons of beets from an acre I am satisfied. My yield runs from 8 to 15 tons and the average is 12. My beets averaged 14 per cent. last year. I engage men, women, boys and girls to do the cleaning and thinning. I pay teamsters $3 a day. Each of my foremen has charge of from 150 to 200 acres of beets.

"Wheat or oat stubble is good for beet crop. I plow sod in the fall and disk it in the spring. Stubble should be manured well now and turned down either now or in the spring. Corn stubble is all right for beets, but there is more trouble handling it.

"Beets require thorough working, and should be thinned when two inches high. On rich land have them seven inches apart, using five-inch hoes in thinning. The earlier you can get into the beets the better It does not hurt the beets to thin them when they are small, but it does when they are large.

"Ashes make the greatest fertiliser for beets there is. Use lots of seed. This year early beets were not as good as late. Beets will stand more punishment than any other root. A horse may step on them and not kill them. If I can get the help I sow early and twenty acre plots at a time. I prefer a clay loam soil. Don't like sandy ground. I had eight acres of sand upon which I put ten loads of leached ashes per acre. It turned out fairly 15 tons. Beets require a lot of potash. Distillery manure would be all right as a fertiliser for beets. Some of the land I rented this year has been under crop for the second time. I would not attempt to use it a third time.

"If I had but 20 acres of land I would not hesitate to put it all in beets for the first year. Had I a 150-acre farm, I would sow 100 acres of beets the first year and raise grain on the other 50 acres. The second year I would put in beets on the 50 acres of grain and 50 acres meadow, using seed grain and getting clover; cut clover one year and then turning it down. This rotation crop could be kept up for years and I venture to say that at the end of 20 years you would have a better farm than at the outset and have made money. Beet sugar is an agricultural industry. The sugar factory is the same as a flouring mill."

Mr. W. C. Penoyer told us he had 400 acres of beets for which he rented land and hired help to cultivate it. His office boy, who is 22 years old, along with his brother, aged 19, rented 50 acres of beets and hired their own help. They will clear $1,500 on the speculation. Mr. Penoyer knew of a hardware man, who had 100 acres last year and has 150 acres this. All rented land and worked by hired help. This man will clear over $30 an acre last year. A Ray City barber has ten acres of beets this year.

FIFTY TONS OF ROCK FELL ON WORKMEN

Terrible Disaster in the Rapid Transit Tunnel in NeW York.

THREE DEAD BODIES TAKEN FROM SHAFT.

Many Others of the Forty Have Probably Been Crushed or Suffocated in the Wreck.

New York, Oct. 18.—Fifty tons of rock caved in the Rapid Transit tunnel at 197th street and Broadway to-day, carrying death to an undetermined number of the forty men who were at work far down below the surface in the burrow. The known dead are: Peter O'Hara, aged 60; Daniel Kelleher, aged 40; Luigi Danise, aged 25, and Patrick Madden, foreman. Many of the others were imprisoned in a small chamber of the excavation, and their fate will not be known until the rescuers, who are digging toward them reach the point where they are entombed. They are 600 feet south of the great shaft at the intersection of 197th street and Broadway and 110 feet underground, and it is feared that a majority of them have been either crushed or suffocated to death.

MANY DISTRESSING SCENES.

The cave-in occurred at 9.45 o'clock and its cause and the responsibility for the deadly results can scarcely be determined until there has been an official inquiry. An alarm brought ambulances and police reserves to the spot, and co-operating with McCabe Brothers, the contractors, rescue work began at once. On the heels of the police, and doctors, came a great crowd, as there were many relatives and friends of the men in the broken tunnel below. They were hysterical women, and crying children, and the scene at the mouth of the shaft was extremely pathetic. The bodies of O'Hara, Kelleher and Daniz were quickly brought to the surface and identified. That of Foreman Madden was found pinned down by tons of broken rock. Both of the McCabe brothers descended into the shaft and made an examination of the break.

They were unable to explain the disaster. They said it was the west side of the tunnel work that had collapsed, and that it seemed on inspection to consisted of solid rock and to have been very firm. The cave-in did not extend to the surface.

A further investigation by engineers and the workmen sent down into the shaft showed that fifteen drillers had escaped, having been on the northern side of the rock. It was estimated by some of the engineers that there was air enough in the cavern to keep the men alive for several hours. This necessitated getting at them very quickly.

ARRESTED THE FOREMAN.

The police arrested Owen Bly, who was foreman of the section of the tunnel which caved in. They would not say that they planned to arrest any of the other men in charge of the work. The McCabe Bros., after an examination of the books and consultation with the foreman, stated that there were thirteen men shut off—injured or killed. Four were dead, any way, one injured, and the rest were under or behind the rock. The opinion was expressed that the cave-in had resulted from the loosening of rock by the blasting last night.

ASSASSIN NOT IN COLLAPSE

Letters, Fruits and Flowers, but He Does Not Get Them

Albany, Oct. 18.—Superintendent of State Prisons Cornelius V. Collins has returned from Auburn, where he had an interview with the murderer of President McKinley. The assassin is not in a state of collapse, as has been reported. He told the Superintendent he knew he would have to die, and within a short period. He expressed no fear as to the electrocution, but said he would not like to be taken outside of the prison. He fears the people would kill him.

Several thousand letters addressed to the assassin have reached the prison, but none has been delivered to him. All the letters have been destroyed, and the murderer has not been permitted to receive the fruits and flowers sent him.

Superintendent Collins is now making preparations for the execution. To-day an invitation was sent to Secretary of State Hay to designate an official representative of the Government to witness the electrocution. Only twenty-six persons will see the assassin die. Warden Mead, of Auburn Prison, has referred to Superintendent Collins more than a thousand requests for passes as witnesses. Mr. Collins will name the twenty-six men.

Another Chance for Canadians

Ottawa, Oct. 18. — Wolverhampton, England, has invited Canada to exhibit at the coming international Exhibition there, and the matter is now under the consideration of the Government. Wolverhampton is one of the great seats of the steel and metal industries of the Midlands, in the midst of a dense population of some four or five million souls. The opportunity is a good one to make the industrial interests of Great Britain better acquainted with Canada's mineral and other resources, especially raw materials largely used in manufacturing of all kinds.

Plaintiff Gets $3,000

Sarnia, Oct. 18.—In the Middleton vs. Wilkinson breach of promise case the jury awarded the plaintiff $3,000.

TO MAKE DYNAMITE

Clergue Will Establish Large Soap Works at the Soo to get Glycerine From Sub Lyes for Dynamite

Mr. Robert Smith has returned from a visit to the "Soo," and was struck with the wonderful possibilities of the country up there. He says it is the place for a young man to go, and adds that he wishes he was 20 years younger himself. The Clergue enterprises are vast, and have some thousands of men on their pay rolls.

Mr. Smith had an interview with Mr. Clergue's head chemist, and that gentleman told him that they contemplated establishing large soap works in connection with their alkali plant. This enterprise will be principally to get the glycerine from the sub-lyes, which is the base of the giant powder and dynamite, so much used in mining districts. There is a great deal of money in dynamite and such explosives. Clergue stops at nothing where there is money to be made.

"Will the soap works affect your business?" Mr. Smith was asked.

"Oh, eventually it will," he replied. "By a system of gradual grinding they will get control of our business, and by and by one man or syndicate will own all the soap factories in the country the same as other lines."

Mr. Smith, who is a well known traveller, is spending a few days in town, visiting relatives.

Found Dead Standing Up

Chicago, October 18.—Leaning against a wall in her room, Mrs. Mary Strake, 71 years old, was found dead early yesterday morning, and because of circumstances which surround the case, the police of the Hinman street station will make an investigation. The woman when found was black and blue in the face, but her son and relatives say that she had been a sufferer from heart disease.

LETTER DELIVERED UNDER REVOLVER

How the Brigands Who Captured Miss Stone Reached Her Friends.

New York, Oct. 18.—Mary Haskell, daughter of Henry C. Haskell of the Samakov mission, cables to the Journal and Advertiser the following details concerning the receipt of the communication received from Miss Stone since her death-like captivity. My father and the whole family had long been asleep when a bandit bearing a letter knocked repeatedly at my bedroom window. Replying to the question, 'what do you want?' the brigand handed a letter through the half-opened window, concealing his face and figure. I urged him for information. He showed me an enormous revolver, saying: 'If you look in my face or make any trouble I will blow your brains upon the opposite wall.' He then directed me to give the letter immediately to Dr. Haskell, saying if the contents should be disclosed to any except those mentioned my father and his family would be put to death. Again warning me not to look upon his face under penalty of being shot, the well-dressed brigand departed. The letter was addressed to my father. Upon the envelope were the words, 'To be delivered at once.'

"I tore open the letter and found a letter for Treasurer Peet, and one for my father, asking him to deliver the letter. I opened the letter because I thought it a blackmailing epistle similar to those sent to other members of the mission demanding that money be placed at certain remote places upon fixed dates under penalty of death. Both letters were written in Bulgarian."

PAYMENT OF RANSOM.

New York, Oct. 18.—The representative at Samakov of the Journal and Advertiser cables that paper as follows: "It is learned that Mme. Bakhutiow, wife of the Russian diplomatic agent at Sofia, formerly Miss Beal of Washington, has begun energetic work on behalf of Miss Stone, and the strong attitude taken by the German diplomatic agent because of the murder of a German traveller may hasten the authorities to bring about Miss Stone's release. The Bulgarian authorities are working hard to prevent the ransom from being paid on Bulgarian soil. Hence Dr. Haskell is likely to get another letter requesting payment of the ransom on Turkish territory."

London, Oct. 18.—The Globe this afternoon says that it fears the safety of Miss Ellen M. Stone is seriously compromised by the attitude of Consul-General Dickinson in refusing to pay the ransom and in demanding that Bulgaria arrest the leaders of the Macedonian Committee as the real authors of the missionary's abduction. The paper says the situation contains all the factors of a grave international complication, and threatens to assume importance far beyond the personality of any individual missionary.

BOTHA'S FORCE IS DISSOLVED.

Boer General Leaves His Men to Escape as Best They Can

THE BRITISH INCLOSING BOERS

Main Interest of the Operations in South Africa Centres Around Pongolabosce—Refugee Camp Figures.

New York, October 18.—From Newcastle, Natal, a correspondent of the Times sends a despatch which says that a large number of Boers are near Pongolabosce and Slangapies, while a commando of 500 holds a position south east of Piet Retief.

Commandant General Botha has dissolved his force, which numbered 2,000, and has left his men to escape as best they can. He himself, with a few followers, has gone north through a small unguarded space near Piet Retief.

The main interest of the moment, says the despatch, centres in the operations around Pongolabosce, where the British are grandually inclosing the Boers.

REFUGEE CAMP FIGURES.

London, Oct. 18.—Returns from the refugee camps in South Africa for September show a total white population of 109,418; deaths among the whites, 2,411, of which 1,964 were children. The colored population is shown to be 28,494, among whom there were 301 deaths during the month.

Threatened to Kill

New York, Oct. 18.—Peter Damato, an Italian stonecutter, who last night shot and killed Stella Mela, his sweetheart, and then turned his revolver upon himself, died to-day at Fordham hospital. The girl, who was quite attractive, grew tired of Damato and went out with other men. He became very jealous and yesterday morning told her he would kill her before six o'clock in the evening. He appeared shortly before six and kept his word.

He Touched a Hand

A young man had an experience recently which he will not soon forget. A short time ago the lad, who resides with his parents on Stewart street, was rummaging about the premises, and during his period of explorations found his way into the attic of the house. Upon arriving there he discovered that he had no matches but decided to "have a look" around, irrespective of the handicap. He placed his hand on a projecting ledge and walked along for a short distance, when suddenly he stopped. His hand came in contact with another. He quickly made his way down to mother earth again, but told no one of his experience. He waited until his father came home and told him all about it. Father and son then went to investigate. Upon reaching the place the father felt for the hand and pulled out a well-preserved wooden arm, with hand and glove attached. The article which had caused all the concern had probably been in use years ago and was placed away for safe-keeping.

A True Brain Food

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by clearness and strength of mind. Not that it goes directly to the brain, that were foolish. The true brain food must be carried by rich, red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to brain, but the stomach and assimilative organs. No remedy yet discovered, possesses the marvellous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferrozone does not stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation, giving new strength to the health, it sends a stream of red vitalizing blood to the brain. Thus it is a true brain food. Ferrozone is sold by Ormond & Walsh.

ENTIRE FLEET OF BOATS DESTROYED

Detroit Club Lose Their Boats, and Valuable Trophies.

THE LOSS PLACED AT 38,000.

Club's New Launch Among the Property Destroyed—Championship Banners are Also Gone.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 18.—The Detroit Boat Club, with contents, including boats, banners and other trophies, was destroyed by fire last night, entailing a loss to the club of about $38,000, partially covered by $22,000 insurance. Trainer James Rice and Mrs. Rice, who occupied the building, saved hardly enough clothing to cover themselves. Among other things burned were the championship banners won by the Detroit Boat Club crews in the National, Northwestern and Canadian regattas of past three seasons, the banners won by the doubles for the championship of America, and a number of cups and tokens of victories. The club's entire fleet of boats was destroyed with the exception of two. The fleet comprised 34 club canoes and about 15 canoes owned by private parties, five boats, four doubles, four pairs, twelve singles including the new one built last season for Trainer Rice, one 16-oared barge, one 8-oared barge, two 4-oared barges and the club's new launch. In the aggregate valued at $18,000. The yacht Sirocco was also destroyed. Defective electric wiring probably caused the fire.

makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes in one night. Polson's Nerviline gives a complete knockout to pain in the back, for it penetrates through the tissues, takes out the soreness and pain, invigorates tired muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nerviline cures quickly because it is stronger, more penetrating, more highly pain subduing than any other remedy. Don't suffer another minute, get Nerviline quick, and rub it in, for sure as you were born it will cure you. 25c.

BOERS GET GLORY FROM THE PRESS

German Newspapers Have no Good Word for British

A VERY HOSTILE ATTITUDE

No Regard for the Truth in Dealing With British and the Boers

The London Times Makes Severe Comments—How England is Belittled in the Eyes of the World

London, Oct. 19.—The London Times says that the German Press has hastened, as usual, to exult in the news of the British reverses. They would have shown more prudence had they not been quite so precipitate, but hatred such as the great majority of German newspapers have consistently exhibited towards us through this contest is not easy to restrain. The comments of these journals have revealed very closely the real nature of German sympathy with the Boers. It consists of two elements, mixed in widely different proportions. Some Germans, who have little knowledge of the events which forced the war upon us, really believe the great pro-Boer legend. They look upon the Boers as a small and primitive people, fighting for this national existence and for the Republican liberties, to which many Germans are theoretically attached, against a grasping and aggressive State, anxious to despoil and oppress them. Germans of this class naturally feel the warmest admiration for the Boers and the deepest indignation against us, and both feelings are to the honour of their hearts, if not of their heads. But this class is only an insignificant fraction of the German pro-Boer party. The real strength of that party lies, not in the men who believe in but in the men who wilfully and deliberately fabricate and propagate it, well knowing it to be false. It is not generous regard for the weak, or love of freedom, or honest anger against wrong which animates them. Envy of England's splendid history, of her wealth, her commerce, her colonial and maritime greatness abroad and her success in uniting the amplest Parliamentary liberty with unbroken order at home, is the motive which leads them to gloat over her misfortunes, to grieve at her successes, to egg on her enemies, and to prophesy her downfall. The fact is patent to anybody who has paid attention to the tone of the German press, great and small, since the outbreak of the war. But there are other channels, not accessible to the public, which demonstrate it even more conclusively than the boorish abuse, the clumsy calumnies, and the malignant invective showered upon us in the German newspapers of all shades of opinion. The private letters from Germans which have reached us daily for the past two years afford convincing proof of the true import of German pro-Boer sentiment. The language of coarse and scurrilous invective in which most of them are couched, although often penned by men of apparently good position and education, discloses a hatred of this country which is really amazing, particularly in a people which has received many benefits from us in the past, at some of the most critical moments of its history. We deeply and honestly deplore the existence of this feeling, but we cannot ignore it with impunity. It is an "object" fact, as the Germans themselves say, and a fact which we are bound to take into account in considering our international position and the steps we should adopt to uphold it.

DETEST BRITISH NAME.

The blind and unreasonable detestation of the English name, which is the true root of pro-Boer sentiment and pro-Boer agitation in Germany, is not we are happy to say, universal amongst the German people, though no rank and no condition are exempt from it. We have the pleasure of being able to publish to-day a translation of a letter we have received from a lieutenant-colonel on the active list in the German army, which he has been provoked to write by a recent outburst of "hatred and hysterical indignation" in the Kreuz Zeitung, perhaps the most prominent organ of the military and aristocratic party in Prussia. Our correspondent explains that he sends his letter to us, and not to the journal in which the attacks on England, to which he replies, have appeared, because he is satisfied that, if he sent it to that journal, it would not be published. The papers that calumniate this country do not want to tell the truth, and they accordingly suppress, if we may credit this German officer, letters in which unpalatable truths are contained. Our correspondent collects a few samples of the silly falsehoods which, as he alleges, the "Conservative and Orthodox" organ has been uttering against the army whose aid enabled Prussia to shake off

THE YOKE OF NAPOLEON.

He declines to refute them, because he says, after twenty-three months, he has "grown fairly hardened to this daily screaming," and he suggests that it is the business of the English press to deal with such controversialists. On this point we cannot agree with him. The responsible English press has been hardened to this screaming from the first. It has noted the fact as an indication of the abiding temper of modern Germany towards this country, and it will not allow that lesson to be lightly forgotten; but it has something better to do than to refute untruths which it despises. On another subject our correspondent makes a valuable and welcome contribution to a discussion which has been carried on in this country, as well as in Germany. He has no patience with the accusation that we employ "methods of barbarism" against the Boers. He tells the Kreuz Zeitung and its fellows very plainly that, if the French had resorted to the same tactics as the Boers, the Germans would not have hesitated to inflict the severest forms of punishment, even death, in order to insure the safety of their own forces and of their lines of communication. He quotes an extract from his own notebook in proof of his assertion. He points out, finally, the broad distinction between this war and regular wars, which the pro-Boers everywhere seek to evade. Most wars are decided by regular military operations between regular armies. In South Africa we have to deal with an un-uniformed population, which we can hardly bring to a stand-up fight, but which habitually indulges in bushranging propensities and not infrequently in treachery "often amounting to actual crime."

TEN AMERICANS KILLED 6 WOUNDED

Five Hundred Boleros Attack a Detachment Of U.S. Infantry

OVER 100 INSURGENTS KILLED

Reinforcements Hurried up and Routed Insurgents—Gen. Smith Going to the Scene Doings of the New Ameer.

Manila, Oct. 18.—Five hundred boleros attacked a detachment of forty-six men of the Ninth Infantry at Bangajon, on the Gandara River, Island of Samar, to-day, killing ten and wounding six. The remainder of the company arrived on the scene in time to prevent further slaughter and routed the enemy, killing over a hundred of them. It is believed that the enemy only retired for reinforcements. As soon as the news was received at Cathalogan two gunboats were despatched. General Smith going in person to the scene.

DOINGS OF THE NEW AMEER.

London, Oct. 18.—The Simla correspondent of The Times confirms the previous announcement that after taking the oath as Ameer at a great Durbar in Cabul, October 9, Habib Ullah announced the appointment of his brother, Nasr Ullah to all the offices which he held under the late Ameer; Mohammed Umar, to the head of the revenue department, and Aminullah, head of the Department of Justice.

Child Burned in Night Gown

Toronto, Oct. 18.

A shocking accident occurred this morning in the house of W. G. Reid, 156 Gladstone avenue, a moulder in Bertram's Engine Works. Frank, aged six years, in company with a younger child, had just come downstairs to the kitchen, and were left alone for a few moments in their nightdresses, while their mother went upstairs. The smaller child picked up a match that had fallen from the match holder, struck it and then threw it down. The flame came in contact with Frank's nightgown, which was soon in a blaze. The children screamed and the mother hurried down stairs. The gown was then blazing as high as the child's waist. She at once, with difficulty, smothered the fire, and in doing so had her both hands badly burned. Dr. Spence was called in, and found that the unfortunate child was terribly burned about the legs and body. The little sufferer was at once removed to the Sick Children's Hospital, but is not expected to live through the day.

Standish, Mich., Oct. 18.—A young son, aged 10, of Frank Allen, postmaster at Saganing, near here, pointed a revolver at his brother, aged 8, and shot him through the heart, killing him instantly. The boys had been quarrelling over a trivial matter.

THIS COW ATE $135.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—A cow which ate a lot of bank bills was slaughtered by a farmer near Ottawa and the fragments of the bills were taken from its stomach and brought to the Bank of Ottawa. The clerks found the fragments of bills worth $135.

MOTHER TO THE RESCUE.

Windsor, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Robert Mason, of Merlin, mother of Frank J. Wigle, the defaulting express agent at McGregor Junction, has made good the amount taken by him when he fled.

PROTECTION FOR LIFE.

Kingston, Jamica, Oct. 18.—The Governor, Sir Augustus Hemming, has received official despatches from the British agent at Bocas del Toro, for this Government and the British Government asking protection for life and property and also demanding compensation for lives and properties destroyed by the Colombian forces.

FIRE AT LEAMINGTON.

Leamington, Ont., Oct. 18.—Fire broke out in the Wigle House about 4 o'clock this morning. The twelve rooms of the hotel were all occupied, but all the guests escaped without severe injuries. The two stories of the building were completely gutted, with all contents, including in some cases the personal property of boarders and servants. The building and contents are insured for $4,000. The damage is thought to be about $3,000.

Russian Regiments Mobilizing

London, Oct. 18.—There are indications that everything is not as tranquil in Afghanistan as the despatches from India would seem to indicate. The Russian War Office is mobilizing all the Cossack regiments in the Ural, Oreburg, and Semiretchensk districts, and the troops in the Caucasus district have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness.

Weather Notes

[illegible]—To-day: Fresh southerly and westerly winds, fair and a little warmer.

[illegible] frosts occurred this morning throughout Ontario and Quebec. The weather turned quite warm during yesterday in the Northwest Territories and the prospects are favorable for somewhat warmer weather in Ontario and Quebec during to-day and Sunday. THE BOERS HAVE FLED TO THE MOUNTAINS

On the Approach of the British in the Orange River Colony.

SCHEMING IN HOLLAND TO HELP BURGHERS.

European Boer Feeling—Boers May Come to Canada—Women Live in Caves.

Pretoria, Oct. 17.—The British columns are operating continuously in the Orange River Colony, and several small successes have lately been reported. When located by the British reconnoitring parties the small commandos of Boer raiders, as a rule, leave everything and gallop off to the hills, or retire for a short period to return by unfrequented paths through the bush veldt and harass the movements of the British by sniping tactics. Columns operating in the southeastern part of the country found the farms deserted. The burghers are hiding in the mountains.

Twenty prisoners and two hundred refugees have been gathered in at Kroonstadt, and General De Lisle took fifteen prisoners and a large number of cattle during the march to this place.

In the Villiersdorp district Generals Rawlinson and Remington are working in conjunction. They have captured a considerable quantity of wagons, rifles and live stock and a few prisoners.

Five extra trucks have been allotted by the railway authorities for the conveyance of frozen meat to Bloemfontein.

WOULD PARALYZE SHIPPING.

London, Oct. 17.—The Brussels correspondent of The Times says that there is a movement on foot among the Dutch laboring classes to try to paralyze the British shipping trade and thus compel her to grant independence to the Boers.

The idea is to issue notices to the dock laborers of Belgium, France and Holland, calling on them to refuse to work for British ships. The merchants are also to be asked not to ship freight by British vessels. It is thought that if this were done the British shipowners would compel the Government to relent. The workmen do not seem to know, remarks the correspondent, that half the carrying trade of the world is in British hands.

SWAM RIVER UNDER FIRE.

Klerksdorp, Oct. 17.—Colonel Byng, who returned to this place with his column recently, bringing in thirty-six prisoners and 325 refugees, reports that a detachment of Yeomanry swam the Vaal river recently, wearing nothing but their bandoliers, and surrounded and captured the prisoners.

Yeomanry and Mounted Infantry had an engagement with a commando near Jammersburg Drift recently. The majority of the Boers were clad in khaki and every man had two or three horses.

MAY EMIGRATE.

London, Oct. 17.—The Times correspondent says that it was noticeable that the word "independence" was not mentioned throughout the recent interview between Viljoen and Sir Bindon Blood. Viljoen, it is said, expressed the opinion that many of the Boers, on the conclusion of the war, would emigrate probably to Canada or Australia. They would not object to British rule, he said, but were averse to settling down side by side in the altered circumstances with the colonials they had known in Republican days.

TOOK REFUGE IN CAVES.

London, Oct. 17.—Reuter's correspondent says that a British column under Elliott, operating along the northern border recently, discovered a large number of Boers hiding in caves among the ridges. Twenty-five women were found in caves so high in the mountains that the British soldiers were unable to assist them to get out. They had been hauled up by the Boers with ropes.

REBEL FORCES ARE ROUTED.

Insurgent and Government Troops Killed in Colombia Fight.

Colon, Columbia, October 19.—News has been received here that the government forces defeated the insurgents recently at Panonome, killing a large number. Panonome is now in the hands of the government. The government loss in the engagement was forty killed and wounded, among the latter being Colonel Navia.

By a recent decree all import duties in this department were doubled, ad valorem duties now being 20 per cent.

A Shooting Accident.

A shooting accident occurred on Thursday by which Lawrence Maguire, the young son of Mr. A. S. Maguire, McDonnel street, was accidentally shot by a lad named Goldey. The revolver was of a very small calibre, which the boys had been playing with. Fortunately, the bullet entered a fleshy part of Maguire's thigh, and the wound is not considered dangerous.

SEE AGUINALDO, THEN SAIL.

American Senators Touring Philippines Take Transport for Home.

Manila, Oct. 19.—The party of senators and representatives that has been visiting the Philippine islands left here to-day for home on the United States transport Sheridan. Before leaving, the members of the party had an interview with Aguinaldo, who said the original outbreak of hostilities was a surprise to him and that his efforts to maintain the truce were unavailing.

The civil and military authorities are having Sixto Lopez closely watched at Hong Kong, as they consider his arrival there to be a source of danger. The Philippine commission has passed an act prohibiting any suspect from landing on the islands unless he takes the oath of allegiance.

The typhoon which has just swept over Manila was the worst experienced in twenty years. Much damage was done to the smaller shipping and many natives lost their lives.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 19 1901

LONG OR SHORT WARS

Japan is reported to be preparing for a war with Russia for the ownership of Corea, the Japanese feeling that they have no room for proper expansion on their group of islands. Perhaps they may be persuaded to postpone the commencement of operations until the United States get through with the unpleasantness in the Philippines and Great Britain shall have rounded up the last of the Boers. Some time ago, the world was informed that the wars of the future would be short, sharp and decisive, because there had been such great improvements in the weapons of destruction that a long war would be impossible; also the expense of war under modern conditions would be so great that no nation could afford to keep a great army in the field more than a few months. Such things as the Thirty Years' War, in which the principal states were involved from 1618 to 1648, the Seven Years' War which extended to the four quarters of the globe between 1756 and 1763; the War of the American Revolution which lasted from 1775 to 1783, the conflict between France and the monarchical powers of Europe, which was kept up with slight intermission from 1792 to 1815, or even the Civil War in the United States, which began in 1861 and ended 1865, could never occur again. Had not Germany whipped Austria in seven weeks, and humiliated France in seven months? And, if such things were possible thirty years ago, how could there be a long war at the end of the nineteenth century?

Events in South Africa have shown that there was an error in the calculation. Britain has the men, the money and the ships, and the Government has had the backing of public opinion, while no foreign power has cared or dared to interfere on behalf of the Boers. Still the war in South Africa has lasted more than two years, and though the end may come suddenly, it cannot be said to be yet actually in sight. The taxpayers are still grumbling, and the Government is willing to allow Lord Kitchener every latitude in order that he may bring the enemy into subjection. It would be good for the world to have a long period of peace after Britain and the United States complete the unpleasant jobs they now have in hand. But if they must fight to show their might we do not know any spot on earth where the fighting can be carried on with less annoyance to Europe and America, than on that far-away Asiatic peninsula, Corea. For two centuries Russia has been regarded as a menace to Europe, and if the Japanese can divert the energies of the great Bear, Germany, Austria and Britain can watch the spectacle with complacency.

TWO WORLDS AND THEIR CHILDREN

The trolley car which had been dashing along toward Chicago stopped suddenly, held upon a suburban street corner by the inevitable coal wagon with a tendency to break down. Franklin Atherton gazed idly at the earnest group of Salvation Army workers on the other side of the street. Suddenly in a momentary cessation of the ponderous drumbeats a clear, sweet feminine voice faltered out softly:

"Ah! I have sighed to rest me
Deep in the quiet grave."

The rest of the words were surprising Salvation Army adaptations of the most characteristic type. But Franklin Atherton never heard them. With a bound he had reached the side of the singer—the girl whom he would have asked to become his wife long ago but that he feared to face poverty with her. He had not seen her for nearly two years.

"Margaret! How came you with these people?"

The girl looked at him gravely.

"When your world—the world which was mine also until my father died and left me penniless—found no time or space or attention for me I turned to the world in which men and women work instead of play. Not knowing how to work, I went hungry. When I was homeless and seeking death because no other course seemed open the Salvation Army workers found me. They saved my life and soul. Now I am trying to save others.

The gong of the trolley clanged out at the moment. It seemed like a summons to another world.

"Margaret!" The words seemed drawn from him. "Leave this life, for God's sake! Come with me!"

"As your wife, Franklin?"

The flicker of doubt and uncertainty in his eyes was so short-lived that few would have seen it. But the girl turned away as though she had suffered a blow.

"No—dear," she answered. "Not now You are not strong enough to take me just yet. But," she called after him as he sprang aboard the trolley, "we may meet again sometime. When we do, perhaps—"

But he was gone.

Three years later Franklin Atherton had also disappeared from the world which had once known him. Excessive haste to be rich, the gambling fever, an unlucky speculation, these were the successive steps by which he had reached starvation and despair. For a man of his temperament all things seemed ended. He was heading for the river when there smote upon his jaded ear the sound of a flagellated drum, the clear note of a silver trumpet. Then, as he listened instinctively: "Ah! I have sighed to rest me

It was no dream. It was not the result of a fevered imagination. The voice was unmistakable, the intonation quite beyond question. His manhood left him suddenly, and he sank down upon the curbstone sobbing. The clear, sweet voice came nearer. A gentle hand was laid upon his arm.

"What is the matter, my brother? What can we do to help you?"

Soft, hurrying footsteps followed him into the shadow, darkened side street, to which he hastened. Again the gentle hand was laid upon his arm.

"It's no use, Margaret. Do you suppose I'll be cad enough to let you help me after the treatment you have received at my hand? God bless you—good-by."

The girl made no immediate answer—in words.

Turning, she beckoned to the blue-coated co-worker who had followed her from the lighter street.

"This is a very dear friend of mine, Lieutenant Caldwell," she told him with a voice which shook a little from varied emotions, but with eyes which shone and sparkled, "and he is in trouble, in need of assistance. I know I can trust you to do all that you can for him, for my sake as well as for the sake of—the man who is going to be my husband some day."

"Margaret!"

The man was humbled as neither poverty, slights, hunger, cold nor raggedness had been potent to humble him. But there was no bitterness in the humility with which he kissed her fingers there in the darkened street.

"Margaret, you are an angel and I will be worthy of you. I swear it. I will be your husband some day—if the good Lord and yourself will allow it—but I'll be a man first, by God!"

And the quiet stars, looking down impressively on the flagellated drum and the throbbing hearts of the men and women around it, saw and knew somehow that a new soul had been born.

The fact that all women suffer during the birth-hour leads a great many women to accept a degree of suffering which is altogether unnecessary. Sometimes it is hours, sometimes days before the struggle is over. No medicine can absolutely eliminate pain from this time of travail, but Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can and does make the baby's advent practically painless. It acts upon the organs of maternity, giving them strength and elasticity. It produces physical comfort and mental cheerfulness. It is an effective tonic, giving the mother abundant nutrition for her child.

"I believe I owe my life to Dr. Pierce's remedies, and have long felt it my duty to acknowledge the benefit I received from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Pleasant Pellets,'" says Mrs. Maria O. Haysel, writing from Brookland, D. C. "Six years ago, after the birth of one of my children, I was left in a weak, run-down condition. My health seemed utterly gone. Life was a burden. I doctored with three different physicians and got no relief. I began to get worse, and to add to the complications, I suffered terribly from constipation. I chanced to see one of your advertisements and concluded to try the above remedies. I commenced to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Pleasant Pellets,' and began to improve right away, and continued improving and gaining in strength. I cannot express the relief, it was so great. Seven months later my little daughter was born without much trouble. I feel that I would never have been able to endure my confinement only for the help due solely to Dr. Pierce's medicines. She was a fine, healthy child, and the only one I have ever been able to nurse."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

THE SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY

A representative of the Berlin News-Record visited Michigan in company with the delegation sent to examine the beet sugar industry there. The delegation consisted of Messrs. S. J. Williams, H. L. Jansen, Berlin; T. S. Shantz and L. Koehler, of Waterloo township, and the News-Record representative. These extracts are taken from the report submitted:

Mr. W. C. Penoyer, who has large beet sugar interests in Michigan, being president of one company and director of another, very kindly accompanied us, and answered with good grace the hundred and one questions launched at him. He said that there was no place in Ontario better suited for a sugar factory than North Waterloo. This he was prepared to say after going over the ground personally. The site at Berlin has a number of advantages, and the town should possess another railway.

There are six sugar factories in operation there within a radius of 13 miles, and several under construction. Since their advent the city has built 170 miles of stone road for the benefit of beet growers, obtaining the stone at the bay shore.

After viewing the sugar plant and its wonders, the yeomen were anxious to interview the farmers to learn from them whether sugar beets are a profitable crop and likely to be a permanent industry. The first farmer questioned was Edward Nithtuchke, He formerly lived near Ottawa, Ont, and said: "I live ten miles from Bay City, on a forty-acre farm. I have been growing beets for four years. I never knew a farmer who began the growing of beets to give it up. The first year I put in 1 1-2 acres. The second year, three acres, the third year four, and this year six acres. I find that I can cultivate the six acres of beets as easily as I did the one and a half acres the first year. Last year my beets averaged 15 tons to the acre and 14 to 16 per cent. in sugar. Lots of growers get 20 tons to the acre. When I say mine averaged 15 tons to the acre, I mean I was paid for 15 tons after the tare had been deducted. The tare ran from 2 to 5 per cent.

It is easy to raise sugar beets now. We were green the first year. A man will thin two acres in a day and a half. I employ no outside help. I and my two sons, aged 19 and 12 respectively, handled the six acres. I estimate the whole cost of raising the beets to be not over $35 an acre that includes all labor and rent of lands. Last year my crop of beets averaged $64 an acre. I sowed the seed in rows, two feet apart.

The price of farm lands have gone up since the sugar beet was introduced. I paid $25 an acre eight years ago for my land, or $1000. Now I can secure $75 an acre for it. Without sugar beet the farmers of this country could not pay the interest on their mortgages.

Since we began raising sugar beets the prices of other farm products have risen.

The second farmer spoken to, lived 15 miles from Bay City, and was in a hurry. He said he had a 40-acre farm and raised 6 acres of beets. If he lived nearer he would grow 15.

The deputation was fortunate in meeting Mr. J. Gilbert, the king beet grower of Michigan. Mr. Gilbert is Bay City's milk inspector. He has had over 1,000 acres of beets this year, and has already contracted for 2,200 acres for next year, and if possible will obtain 3,000 acres. He rents all this land and pays men to look after it. He has 280 acres within the city limits. His profits on this year's acreage is expected to total $16,000.

Speaking to us, he said: "The big secret in raising sugar beets is to keep them clean. I have found a ton of clover per acre a good preparatory fertilizer for beets. If the land is not right I do not rent. If I get ten tons of beets from an acre I am satisfied. My yield runs from 8 to 18 tons and the average is 12. My beets averaged 14 per cent. last year. I engage men, women, boys and girls to do the cleaning and thinning. I pay teamsters $3 a day. Each of my foremen has charge of from 150 to 200 acres of beets.

"Wheat or oat stubble is good for beet crop. I plow sod in the fall and disk it in the spring. Stubble should be manured well now and turned down either now or in the spring. Corn stubble is all right for beets, but there is more trouble handling it.

"Beets require thorough working, and should be thinned when two inches high. On rich land have them seven inches apart, using five-inch hoes in thinning. The earlier you can get into the beets the better it does not hurt the beets to thin them when they are small, but it does when they are large.

"Ashes make the greatest fertilizer for beets there is. Use lots of seed. This year early beets were not as good as late. Beets will stand more punishment than any other root. A horse may step on them and not kill them. If I can get the help I sow early and twenty acre plots at a time. I prefer a clay loam soil. Don't like sandy ground. I had eight acres of sand upon which I put ten loads of leached ashes per acre. It turned out fairly 15 tons. Beets require a lot of potash. Distillery manure would be all right as a fertilizer for beets. Some of the land I rented this year has been under crop for the second time. I would not attempt to use it a third time.

"If I had but 20 acres of land I would not hesitate to put it all in beets for the first year. Had I a 150-acre farm, I would sow 100 acres of beets the first year and raise grain on the other 50 acres. The second year I would put in beets on the 50 acres of grain and 50 acres meadow, using seed grain and getting clover; cut clover one year and then turning it down. This rotation crop could be kept up for years and I venture to say that at the end of 20 years you would have a better farm than at the outset and have made money. Beet sugar is an agricultural industry. The sugar factory is the same as a flouring mill."

Mr. W. C. Penoyer told us he had 400 acres of beets for which he rented land and hired help to cultivate it. His office boy, who is 22 years old, along with his brother, aged 19, rented 50 acres of beets and hired their own help. They will clear $1,500 on the speculation. Mr. Penoyer know of a hardware man, who had 100 acres last year and has 170 acres this. All rented land and worked by hired help. This man will clear over $30 an acre last year. a Bay City barber has ten acres of beets this year.

Rising in Spain Grows

Madrid, Oct. 17.—An extraordinary meeting of the cabinet was held today, under the presidency of the queen regent, to consider the outbreaks in Seville and elsewhere.

NEWS OF INTEREST OVER THE BORDER

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 17.—Felix Liebach, known in musical circles as Baron Von Liebach, was arrested today on the charge of bigamy. He has been in this country about ten years, and, it is claimed, left a wife and son in England. Last June he married Mrs. Frona R. Hale, of this city. Recently the woman who says she married the Baron in England came here, having heard of the second marriage. Liebach had been patronized by the influential people of Montreal and Burlington. For several weeks he has been at Springfield, Mass. Madam Ing Liebach, who claims to be the first wife, is a native of Christiania.

FATHER AND TWO SONS PERISH IN A MINE.

Connellsville, Pa., Oct. 17.— Three lives went out in a little air shaft only two feet in diameter and twenty feet deep, but filled with deathly black damp, at the mines of the Juniata Coke Co., near Juniataville. The dead are:—John Gilland, a miner, aged 60 years, and his two sons, James and Winfield, aged 11 and 15 years respectively. All three bodies were rescued, but in the effort John Nicholson, mine foreman at Juniataville, and John Baker, a mine fire boss, were seriously overcome by black damp.

EVIDENTLY A MURDER.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Charles Crockett, 37 years old, died last night in the Provident Hospital, under circumstances that led the police to believe he was murdered. In company with others, it is said, he spent several hours gambling, and left for home with his winnings. He was found on the street unconscious, and died without being able to tell who were his assailants. When found his money was missing. Thirty suspects were arrested, and in the room of one was found a hatchet which the police believe was the weapon used in the murder.

TROUBLE BETWEEN UNIONS

New York, Oct. 14.—The misunderstanding between the International Association of Machinists and the Amalgamated Society of Engineers led to an exchange of words between the representatives of the two bodies at a recent meeting of the Central Federated union. The Amalgamated Society of Engineers has its headquarters in England, and has only a branch organization in this country. The trouble grows out of the failure, it is alleged, of the Amalgamated Society, which has a number of machinists in its ranks, to co-operate with the International Association of Machinists during strikes. The Amalgamated Society was suspended by the building trades section of the central body last week, for failing to strike in sympathy with the machinists. George H. Warner, delegate to the International Association started hostilities by demanding that the action of the building trades section be sustained. The whole question was finally referred to the affiliated unions for a vote.

TWO MEN DROWNED

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 17 — Louis Dowd, of Binghamton, a plumber, walked into Rondout Creek yesterday, and was drowned. A few hours later Thomas Cassavagan rolled into the creek from the steamer Mary Powell while asleep, and was drowned.

UNKIND AND UNCALLED FOR.

New York, Oct. 17.—Il. Movimento an Italian paper published in Paterson, N. J., makes the statement that scores of Italians have been discharged from the silk mills in that city since the assassination of the President, because of their nationality. The paper strongly protests, and declares that there was nothing in common between the Italians and McKinley's slayer.

BITUMINOUS COAL OPTIONS

Columbus, Ohio, Oct 17.—The Columbus State Journal says:—The bituminous coal deal in this district is rapidly being consummated. Options in Ohio and Indiana are rapidly being secured by the people promoting the scheme. Jackson & Wellstone, one of the largest firms in the city, are the latest to give options. The options expire December 1. W. H. Teatheart, of Chicago, secured them. He was acting for New York men, who will finance the deal. The interests behind the commission are said to be those of J. Pierpont Morgan. It will take not less than $6,000,000.

THE SCHLEY INVESTIGATION

Washington, Oct 17.—Captain Francis A. Cook was the first new witness called before the Schley court of inquiry to-day. He was called by the Navy Department, but as he also is on Admiral Schley's list of witnesses, he was considered, like Lieut.-Commander Hodgson and Lieut. Doyle, a witness for both sides of the controversy. During the war with Spain Captain Cook was commander of the flagship Brooklyn and Admiral Schley's chief of staff, thus occupying the same relative position to Admiral Schley that Captain Chadwick occupied to Admiral Sampson. His appearance on the stand, therefore, created considerable interest, and his testimony was listened to attentively. Other witnesses summoned by the Department for the day were Lieut.-Commander William F. Fullam, who was on the New Orleans during the Santiago campaign, and Lieut. Jos. Beal, who was on the scout ship Harvard, and who volunteered to go ashore and ascertain whether the Spanish fleet under Cervera was in the harbor of Santiago. These are the last witnesses which Judge Advocate Lemley expects to call for the present, and when they shall have completed their testimony he will "rest." A number of Admiral Schley's witnesses were in attendance about the court room today. It was expected that his first witness would be the Cuban pilot, Edward Nunez, and that he would be followed by Commander Mason, who was executive officer on board the Brooklyn during the Santiago campaign; by Lieut.-Commander Griffin and Lieuts. McCauley and Webster. All of these were present in the court room before the beginning of the day's proceedings.

OBSERVATORY AT SITKA.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The coast and geodetic survey has established a magnetic observatory at Sitka, Alaska, and is constructing another at Honolulu, Hawaii, to co-operate with the British and German governments in investigating problems of the magnetic force and needle variations throughout the world. This is in connection with British and German expeditions for the South Pole as planned long ago formulated. It is expected to determine whether all magnetic disturbances and phenomena are subject to a common and world-wide cause or are of a local character.

MARRIAGE REFORMS IN U. S.

New York, Oct. 17.—A London despatch quotes the London Times as commenting editorially on the discussion regarding the marriage and divorce question by the convention of the Protestant Episcopal church at San Francisco. The London Times says it sympathizes with the bishops in the difficulties which they and the clergy through out America have to encounter. The condition of the marriage law is a subject whereon enlightened Americans, however confident of their institutions they may be, speak despondently, though they may just retort to criticisms that the marriage laws in England are not above reproach. The most obvious reforms in America, says the London Times, would be to pass a national law on the subject but apart from the constitutional impediments in the way of such a step, the condition of public opinion does not encourage such legislation. Twenty-five years hence another Protestant Episcopal convention may be debating the same problem, with no clearer prospect of its solution than exists at present.

CONTEMPTIBLE EXTORTION.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 17. — The following statement was made last night by E.N. Huggins, attorney for R. F. Wolfe, president of the Wolfe Bros.' Shoe Co., of this city, and also president of the National Shoe Co., with headquarters in Boston:—"At 18 years of age, R. F. Wolfe, president of the Wolfe Bros.' Shoe Co., of this city, was sent to the penitentiary in another State on the charge of assault with intent to kill. When released he determined to overcome the cloud that always surrounded the victims of the penal code and came to Columbus penniless. His success since is a matter of general knowledge. The story of his early trouble was known to a few, some of them, knowing all the facts and circumstances, gave him in the noblest way their friendship and support. Others saw in his necessity a means of extortion and oppression. As Mr. Wolfe's prosperity has increased, threats of exposure have multiplied, and have at last become intolerable. Knowing all the facts, and being his attorney, I have advised him to make this statement to the public. He knows that the world exacts a further penalty from those it has punished, but he authorizes this statement that he may be forever a free man." Mr. Wolfe was living at Spencer, Ind., at the time of the offence. It appears that he became involved in a quarrel with a friend, and in an encounter which followed, the latter was worsted. Wolfe was arrested, and while in jail attempted to escape, making an assault upon the latter. For this assault he was indicted, and sentenced to five years in prison, which he served, gaining all the time allowed by law for good behavior. The secret of Mr. Wolfe's early life was known to but few of his more intimate associates, and to the public it is a surprise. Mr. Wolfe is one of the most respected citizens of Columbus, and enjoys the confidence and good will of business men generally.

Advice to Churches

Hastings Star: Two much caution cannot be taken by churches in the choice of strangers to fill the positions at times made vacant in church offices. It is noticeable in many cases that a stranger is picked on to fill some responsible position in a church society who makes a good fellow of himself on his first appearance but in the end it is found out he has only an axe to grind. Over a year ago a young man visited our town and installed a reading institution. His pleasant ways and fine voice won him way into a local church choir on a Sunday evening. At the Norwood fair last week he had a different song, something like this, "Come on boys! bound to win! 3 to 1 on the black, 2 to 1 on the green, even money on the red! round goes the wheel!" He had an axe to grind. At a quite recent date a man as a witness at court swore in a boisterous way to an act which he should be ashamed of, and the act was com-

Selection of New Ameer

London, Oct. 17.—It is reported that when Abdur Rahman realized the serious nature of his illness he summoned his family, the leading statesmen of the kingdom and the chief priests. Then he spoke to them as follows in a feeble voice: "When a king becomes old and infirm and he nears his end he always desires to nominate his successor. I wish to have my successor chosen now. Consider among yourselves whom you believe to be fit to succeed me and name him to me."

His auditors unanimously declared for Habibulla, who was immediately invested with the State sword and belt, the Afghan precious stones, and a volume containing the Ameer's will and instructions for the administration of the country.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing) or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases having been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1900.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1900.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which aborts every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1900.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

DAYTON.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No one who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1866, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1900.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and almost successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1900.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis; but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANSEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent.
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

SURRENDERING LIFE INSURANCE

It is superficially held to be praiseworthy that the regular life insurance companies stand ready to grant what are sometimes called "generous" surrender values to their policy holders. But it is still open to doubt if any undue encouragement should be held out to policy holders to renounce their insurance, no matter what the stress of circumstances may afterward urge.

Life insurance is fundamentally and mainly for the protection of the family, and it would seem the part of wisdom to make it difficult rather than easy for an insurant ever to surrender his policy. The policy once given up the protection is, of course, gone, and often forever, for the man who sells his life insurance policy or borrows money on it does not usually reinsure again. The money raised by the surrender or loan goes, and then he finds it difficult either to take a new policy or to repay the amount borrowed.

There is a legal and just surrender rate to which policy holders are entitled, and this is sometimes set forth in the contract. But the insured man should rarely be encouraged to avail himself of its privileges, while any tendency to make it still easier for him by giving ample surrender rates is threatening alike to his family's welfare and the true principles of life insurance.

As for any "generosity" in this respect, that is a sad misnomer. Life insurance rightly conducted is a matter of justice, equity and business fair dealing, in which generosity can play no part.

The policy holder is not asked to be generous, and the company cannot be. It is certainly anything but a generous spirit that prompts a policy holder, no matter how much he thinks he needs the money, to sacrifice the financial safety of his family by surrendering his contract, and there can be no generosity on the company side in encouraging him in the lamentable act.

RUSSIAN FAMINE

The impending famine in Russia is expected to be most appalling and widespread. The crop failure in the province of Viatka embraces every district and all grains and grasses. The indispensable requirement of the province is 18,000,000 poods of grain and fodder annually, and the harvest this year supplied seventeen per cent. less than this minimum. Of its districts, 11, with a population of 1,500,000, are in desperate straits. The Zemstvo voted 50,000 roubles and ordered a detailed inquiry into the condition of all localities as a basis for a loan. The Ministry of Railways has decided to contribute to the relief work by hastening the surveys and estimates for the St. Petersburg-Vologda-Viatka and the Bologoye-Pskov-Zedlitz railways, so that a part of the population of the adjacent provinces may be employed this winter in clearing the right of way, collecting stone and preparing ties and bridge materials. All the provincial assemblies and governors of provinces, which have had bad crops are studying the question of providing labor by means of public works, particularly roads. Among the governments which will suffer most from famine this year is Kherson, where there were crop failures in some districts in 1899 and 1900 also. The lack of horses, which the peasants were forced to sell on account of want of fodder, has resulted in the addition of 15 per cent. to the number of proprietors who are forced to let their holdings and become hired laborers.

One could almost imagine the Duke cabling to a very exalted personage: "We have met the Boers, and we are theirs."

The Duke of Cornwall and York is only going to stay in Newfoundland a few hours. The chances are that he will not be there long enough to witness a change of Government.

—Mr. John Belcher came up to Chemong on Wednesday to see if the new bridge was in the right place.

—We understand Peterborough Council intend to sell the box stall which is at present over the market scales. Perhaps Mr. Brownell would buy it for our Bridgenorth towns, as it might be large enough to cover part of them.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Pope and family accompanied by Miss Scott of Chemong road, left on Wednesday morning for Buffalo.

—Mr. J. H. Mann is confined to his room through injuries received in a runaway. While driving a span of colts they became frightened and ran away. Mr. Mann was thrown under the wagon and dragged some distance before giving up the reins. Moreover he escaped without any serious injury.

Young Mothers

Stand in special need of help while the baby is being nursed. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only strengthens the woman for motherhood and makes the birth hour practically painless, but it increases the nutritive secretions on which the child is fed. It soothes the nerves, encourages the appetite and rapidly restores the mother to robust health. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," neither opium, cocaine, nor any other narcotic.

"I wish to let you know the great benefit my wife derived through taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mr. Robert Harden, of Brandon, Manitoba, Box 236. "It was a case of childbirth. We had heard so much of it that my wife decided to try it. (I may say my wife is thirty-three and this was her first child.) She commenced to take 'Favorite Prescription' five months before her child was born. We have a fine, healthy girl, and we believe that this was mainly owing to the 'Favorite Prescription' taken faithfully according to directions. We shall certainly recommend it wherever we can."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets put the bowels in a healthy condition.

ABUSE OF THE BRITISH

London, Oct. 19.—The London Times says that the German Press has hastened, as usual, to exult in the news of the British reverses. They would have shown more prudence had they not been quite so precipitate, but hatred such as the great majority of German newspapers have consistently exhibited towards us through this contest is not easy to restrain. The comments of these journals have revealed very closely the real nature of German sympathy with the Boers. It consists of two elements, mixed in widely different proportions. Some Germans, who have little knowledge of the events which forced the war upon us, really believe the great pro-Boer legend. They look upon the Boers as a small and primitive people, fighting for this national existence and for the Republican liberties, to which many Germans are theoretically attached, against a grasping and aggressive State, anxious to despoil and oppress them. Germans of this class naturally feel the warmest admiration for the Boers and the deepest indignation against us, and both feelings are to the honour of their hearts, if not of their heads. But this class is only an insignificant fraction of the German pro-Boer party. The real strength of that party lies, not in the men who believe in but in the men who wilfully and deliberately fabricate and propagate it, well knowing it to be false. It is not generous regard for the weak, or love of freedom, or honest anger against wrong which animates them. Envy of England's splendid history, of her wealth, her commerce, her colonial and maritime greatness abroad and her success in uniting the amplest Parliamentary liberty with unbroken order at home, is the motive which leads them to gloat over her misfortunes, to grieve at her successes, to egg on her enemies, and to prophesy her downfall. The fact is patent to anybody who has paid attention to the tone of the German press, great and small, since the outbreak of the war. But there are other channels, not accessible to the public, which demonstrate it even more conclusively than the boorish abuse, the clumsy calumnies, and the malignant invective showered upon us in the German newspapers of all shades of opinion. The private letters from Germans which have reached us daily for the past two years afford convincing proof of the true import of German pro-Boer sentiment. The language of coarse and scurrilous invective in which most of them are couched, although often penned by men of apparently good position and education, discloses a hatred of this country which is really amazing, particularly in a people which has received many benefits from us in the past, at some of the most critical moments of its history. We deeply and honestly deplore the existence of this feeling, but we cannot ignore it with impunity. It is an "object" fact, as the Germans themselves say, and a fact which we are bound to take into account in considering our international position and the steps we should adopt to uphold it.

THE PRO-BOER LEGEND.

DETEST BRITISH NAME.

The blind and unreasonable detestation of the English name, which is the true root of pro-Boer sentiment and pro-Boer agitation in Germany, is not we are happy to say, universal amongst the German people, though no rank and no condition are exempt from it. We have the pleasure of being able to publish to day a translation of a letter we have received from a lieutenant-colonel on the active list in the German army, which he has been provoked to write by a recent outburst of "hatred and hysterical indignation" in the Kreuz Zeitung, perhaps the most prominent organ of the military and aristocratic party in Prussia. Our correspondent explains that he sends his letter to us, and not to the journal in which the attacks on England to which he replies, have appeared, because he is satisfied that, if he sent it to that journal, it would not be published. The papers that calumniate this country do not want to tell the truth, and they accordingly suppress, if we may credit this German officer, letters in which unpalatable truths are contained. Our correspondent collects a few samples of the silly falsehoods which, as he alleges, the "Conservative and Orthodox" organ has been uttering against the army whose aid enabled Prussia to shake off

THE YOKE OF NAPOLEON.

He declines to refute them, because he says, after twenty-three months, he has "grown fairly hardened to this daily screaming," and he suggests that it is the business of the English press to deal with such controversialists. On this point we cannot agree with him. The responsible English press has been hardened to this screaming from the first. It has noted the fact as an indication of the abiding temper of modern Germany towards this country, and it will not allow that lesson to be lightly forgotten; but it has something better to do than to refute untruths which it despises. On another subject our correspondent makes a valuable and welcome contribution to a discussion which has been carried on in this country as well as in Germany. He has no patience with the accusation that we employ "methods of barbarism" against the Boers. He tells the Kreuz Zeitung and its fellows very plainly that, if the French had resorted to the same tactics as the Boers, the Germans would not have hesitated to inflict the severest forms of punishment, even death, in order to ensure the safety of their own forces and of their lines of communication. He quotes an extract from his own notebook in proof of his assertion. He points out, finally, the broad distinction between this war and regular wars, which the pro-Boers everywhere seek to evade. Most wars are decided by regular military operations between regular armies. In South Africa we have to deal with an un-uniformed population, which we can hardly bring to a stand-up fight, but which habitually indulges in bushranging propensities and not infrequently in treachery "often amounting to actual crime."

Russian Regiments Mobilizing

London, Oct. 18.—There are indications that everything is not so tranquil in Afghanistan as the despatches from India would seem to indicate. The Russian War Office is mobilizing all the Cossack regiments in the Ural, Oreburg, and Semiretchensk districts, and the troops in the Caucasus district have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness.

You will make no mistake when you go to G. E. Whiten's for your photos. He has taken first prize whenever he showed his work in Peterborough and Toronto. Studio, 188 Hunter Street, sign of the golden [illegible].

BOTHA'S FORCE IS DISSOLVED.

New York, October 18.—From Newcastle, Natal, a correspondent of the Times sends a despatch which says that a large number of Boers are near Pongolabosco and Slangapies, while a commando of 500 holds a position south east of Piet Retief.

Commandant General Botha has dissolved his force, which numbered 2,000, and has left his men to escape as best they can. He himself, with a few followers, has gone north through a small unguarded space near Piet Retief.

The main interest of the moment, says the despatch, centres in the operations around Pongolabosco, where the British are gradually inclosing the Boers.

REFUGEE CAMP FIGURES.

London, Oct. 18.—Returns from the refugee camps in South Africa for September show a total white population of 109,418; deaths among the whites, 2,411, of which 1,964 were children. The colored population is shown to be [illegible], among whom there were 391 deaths during the month.

ENTIRE FLEET OF BOATS DESTROYED

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 18.—The Detroit Boat Club, with contents, including boats, banners and other trophies, was destroyed by fire last night, entailing a loss to the club of about $38,000, partially covered by $24,000 insurance. Trainer James Rice and Mrs. Rice, who occupied the building, saved hardly enough clothing to cover themselves. Among other things burned were the championship banners won by the Detroit Boat Club crews in the National, Northwestern and Canadian regattas of past three seasons, the banners won by the doubles for the championship of America, and a number of cups and tokens of victories. The club's entire fleet of boats was destroyed with the exception of two. The fleet comprised 34 club canoes and about 12 canoes owned by private parties, five fours, four doubles, four pairs, twelve singles including the new one built last season for Trainer Rice, one 18-oared barge, one 6-oared barge, two 4-oared barges and the club's new launch, in the aggregate valued at $40,000. The yacht Sirocco was also destroyed. Defective electric wiring probably caused the fire.

He Touched a Hand

A young man had an experience recently which he will not soon forget. A short time ago the lad, who resides with his parents on Stewart street, was rummaging about the premises, and during his period of explorations found his way into the attic of the house. Upon arriving there he discovered that he had no matches but decided to "have a look" around, irrespective of the handicap. He placed his hand on a projecting ledge and walked along for a short distance, when suddenly he stopped. His hand came in contact with another. He quickly made his way down to mother earth again, but told no one of his experience. He waited until his father came home and told him all about it. Father and son then went to investigate. Upon reaching the place the father felt for the hand and pulled out a well-preserved wooden arm, with hand and glove attached. The article which had caused all the concern had probably been in use years ago and was placed away for safe-keeping.

A True Brain Food

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by clearness and strength of mind. Not that it goes directly to the brain, that were foolish. The true brain food must be carried by rich, red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to brain, but the stomach and assimilative organs. No remedy yet discovered, possesses the marvellous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferrozone does not stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation, giving new strength to the health, it sends a stream of red vitalizing blood to the brain. Thus it is a true brain food. Ferrozone is sold by Ormond & Walsh.

THE CASE OF MISS STONE

New York, Oct. 18.—Mary Haskell, daughter of Henry C. Haskell of the Samakov mission, cables to the Journal and Advertiser the following details concerning the receipt of the communication received from Miss Stone since her [illegible] capacity. My father and the whole family had long been asleep when a bandit bearing a letter knocked repeatedly at my bedroom window. Replying to the question, 'what do you want?' the brigand handed a letter through the half-opened window, concealing his face and figure. I urged him for information. He showed me an enormous revolver, saying: 'If you look in my face or make any trouble I will blow your brains upon the opposite wall.' He then directed me to give the letter immediately to Dr. Haskell, saying if the contents should be disclosed to any except those mentioned my father and his family would be put to death. Again warning me not to look upon his face under penalty of being shot, the well-dressed brigand departed. The letter was addressed to my father. Upon the envelope were the words, 'To be delivered at once.'

"I tore open the letter and found a letter for Treasurer Peet, and one for my father, asking him to deliver the letter. I opened the letter because I thought it a blackmailing epistle similar to those sent to other members of the mission demanding that money be placed at certain remote places upon fixed dates under penalty of death. Both letters were written in Bulgarian."

PAYMENT OF RANSOM.

New York, Oct. 18.—The representative at Samakov of the Journal and Advertiser cables that paper as follows: "It is learned that Mme. Bakhmetew, wife of the Russian diplomatic agent at Sofia, formerly Miss Beal of Washington, has begun energetic work on behalf of Miss Stone, and the strong attitude taken by the German diplomatic agent because of the murder of a German traveller may hasten the authorities to bring about Miss Stone's release. The Bulgarian authorities are working hard to prevent the ransom from being paid on Bulgarian soil. Hence Dr. Haskell is likely to get another letter requesting payment of the ransom on Turkish territory."

London, Oct. 18.—The Globe this afternoon says that it fears the safety of Miss Ellen M. Stone is seriously compromised by the attitude of Consul-General Dickinson in refusing to pay the ransom and in demanding that Bulgaria arrest the leaders of the Macedonia Committee as the real authors of the missionary's abduction. The paper says the situation contains all the factors of a grave international complication, and threatens to assume importance far beyond the personality of any individual missionary.

Manila, Oct. 18.—Five hundred bolomen attacked a detachment of forty-six men of the Ninth Infantry at Bangajon, on the Gandara River, Island of Samar, to-day, killing ten and wounding six. The remainder of the company arrived on the scene in time to prevent further slaughter and routed the enemy, killing over a hundred of them. It is believed that the enemy only retired for reinforcements. As soon as the news was received at Catbalogan two gunboats were despatched, General Smith going in person to the scene.

London, Oct. 18.—The Simla correspondent of The Times confirms the previous announcement that after taking the oath as Ameer at a great Durbar in Cabul, October 9, Habib Ullah announced the appointment of his brother, Mar Ullah to all the offices which he held under the late Ameer; Mohammed Umar, to the head of the revenue department, and Aminullah, head of the Department of Justice.

Toronto, Oct. 18.

A shocking accident occurred this morning in the house of W. G. Reid, 156 Gladstone avenue, a moulder in Bertram's Engine Works. Frank, aged six years, in company with a younger child, had just come downstairs to the kitchen, and were left alone for a few moments in their nightdresses, while their mother went upstairs. The smaller child picked up a match that had fallen from the match holder, struck it and then threw it down. The flame came in contact with Frank's nightgown, which was soon in a blaze. The children screamed and the mother hurried down stairs. The gown was then blazing as high as the child's waist. She at once, with difficulty, smothered the fire, and in doing so had her both hands badly burned. Dr. Spence was called in, and found that the unfortunate child was terribly burned about the legs and body. The little sufferer was at once removed to the Sick Children's Hospital, but is not expected to live through the day.

SHOT HIS BROTHER.

Standish, Mich., Oct. 18.—A young son, aged 12, of Frank Allen, postmaster at Maganing, near here, pointed a revolver at his brother, aged 5, and shot him through the heart, killing him instantly. The boys had been quarrelling over a trivial matter.

THIS COW ATE $135.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—A cow which ate a lot of bank bills was slaughtered by a farmer near Ottawa and the fragments of the bills were taken from its stomach and brought to the Bank of Ottawa. The clerks found the fragments of bills worth $135.

MOTHER TO THE RESCUE.

Windsor, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Robert Mason, of Merlin, mother of Frank J. Wigle, the defaulting express agent at McGregor Junction, has made good the amount taken by him when he fled.

PROTECTION FOR LIFE.

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 18.—The Governor, Sir Augustus Hemming, has received official despatches from the British agent at Bocas del Toro, for this Government and the British Government asking protection for life and property and also demanding compensation for lives and properties destroyed by the Colombian forces.

FIRE AT LEAMINGTON.

Leamington, Ont., Oct. 18.—Fire broke out in the Wigle House about 4 o'clock this morning. The twelve rooms of the hotel were all occupied, but all the guests escaped without severe injuries. The two stories of the building were completely gutted, with all contents, including in some cases the personal property of boarders and servants. The building and contents are insured for $4,000. The damage is thought to be about $3,000.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing) or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: 'I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.'

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.
Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 8, [illegible].

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and valuable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June, New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and intention of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence more or less in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

RATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1865, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.
CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.
PABST BREWING CO.
J. E. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.
ARTEMAS WARD.
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.
Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1900.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.
S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent.
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

MRS. A. L. DAVIS HONORED.

She is the Recipient of an Address and Valuable Presents

At the regular practice of the Charlotte Street Church, held at the residence of Mrs. A. L. Davis on Friday evening, advantage was taken of it to present Mrs. Davis, the honorary president, with a mark of esteem and appreciation for her services on behalf of the choir, it being the 20th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Davis. Accompanying the address, as a proof of their esteem, the members presented to Mrs. Davis a very handsome Bugamera vase and a beautiful palm and jardiniere. Mr. Fred Smith made the presentation, and Mr. T. J. Main, President of the choir, read the address.

Mrs. Davis, in expressing her thanks, spoke also for Mr. Davis, and in suitable language told how much she appreciated the gifts.

NEVER DREAMED

That Coffee Caused the Trouble.

"How to stop the use of coffee was a question.

The doctor told me I had a coffee liver.

I knew I was a wreck, physically and nervously, but I never dreamed that coffee was the cause of the trouble. I could not drink milk, and tea was as bad for me as coffee.

Hot water was nauseating. I therefore turned to Postum Food Coffee, got a package and made it according to directions and found it just the thing I needed.

Husband had no faith in it, so I made coffee for him and Postum for myself. For three years I used Postum and the change it has wrought is wonderful.

Instead of being thin, sallow, nervous, weak and miserable, I am plump, with clear complexion, pink cheeks, and seem to have the endurance and vitality of a young woman of twenty, although I am twice that age. Husband, after seeing the change Postum has made, finally asked me not to make coffee for him any more, as he preferred Postum. It has been a Godsend to our family." Myra J. Tuller, 1023 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

THE TAX RATE SPEAKS

Written by the P. D. of This Great Family Journal.

I must admit I've grown this year—
And why? Some have demanded,
Like Mud Lake bridge, the heat I fear
Has made me so expanded.

If this can't be, then I must turn,
And thank the City Fathers,
Who nourished me so well I learn.
My sire the taxes gathers.

If I'm immense; you ought to see
My pal, the new sidewalks,
He is a giant, strong and free,
And verses while he talks.

Our sponsors of the town don't care,
If we're extraordinary.
The growth is mutual, some declare,
In things pecuniary.

The fear I have now shivers me
And makes me loudly shout,
Electors eyes at last do see
And sure will bounce me out!

A NEW COMPANY

The American Cereal Company is no More—A New Company

It appears that there has been a change in the matter of the Cereal Company, which is so extensively building in Peterborough. The stock of the Company as well as that of the Peterborough Hydraulic Company has been absorbed by the Quaker Oats Company, which is practically the same concern.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed, and it is hoped that substantial progress may be made with the brickwork before the frost sets in. Indeed, work will be proceeded with during the winter months.

Baird, of the Samakov mission has returned from Bonscom and Dubnayer without having found the slightest trace of the brigands or Miss Stone, although he went thither at the request of the Turkish Minister in the hope of opening negotiations with the captors. FEAR SPIRIT OF CZOLGOSZ Spiritualists Say That Killing of Assassin Will Prove Calamitous.

Rochester, N.Y., Oct. 20.—Rochester Spiritualists are not in favor of electrocuting Czolgosz. They claim his spirit will return after death, and that if this poor miserable, trembling weakling is hurled into the spirit world in his present state of mind who knows how many times he will come back and tempt other weaklings to commit crimes. A leading spiritualist said to-day: "Now, don't misunderstand me, I am not an anarchist and have no use for such vermin, but Czolgosz should be imprisoned for life, and that is what we Spiritualists are striving to bring about, and by so doing protect other spirits."

The Stomach's "Weal or Woe"—The stomach is the centre from which, from the standpoint of health, flows "weal or woe." A healthy stomach means perfect digestion—perfect digestion means strong and steady nerves, strong nerve centres mean good circulation, rich blood and good health. ORILLIA'S LIGHTING RATES.

When New Power System is in Operation The New Rate Will be Four Fifths of a Cent Per Hour for a 16 c p Lamp

Orillia Times: The question of 8 c.p. incandescent lights and meter rates for houses, when the new power is installed, was raised at the October meeting of Town Council by a letter from a citizen, who asked information on the subject, and after a brief discussion the whole matter was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, with instructions to consider the advisability of a meter system tariff for residences, but for all lighting, and if such be the case, why not adopt it and abolish the flat rate entirely. The only argument that can be used in favor of the flat rate is that consumers have voted for the project on that basis, as per given schedule at the time the question was before the public, and to change it now would be a breach of faith. The easiest way to overcome that difficulty is for the town now to make the meter rate so low that no one will want the flat system. Under the proposed new contracts the meter rate is four-fifths of a cent per hour per 16 c.p. lamps, and that the flat rate, carefully figured out, anywhere from one-half to one-fourth of that amount.

Given a minimum meter rate and the flat rate as per the new schedule, the consumer will very quickly figure out which will be most profitable for him, and install accordingly. It is only fair that the rate for residences should be lower than that for stores, as at present, and proposed. In the one case it is a matter of business, and in the other convenience and luxury, and it is to the town's interest to have as many lights installed in dwellings as possible. The meter system, too, would do away with all trouble regarding the question of current for domestic appliances, such as heating irons, cooking utensils, etc. Unquestionably it is the proper system, and a very low rate would net the town a greater revenue that could be possible under any other circumstances.

THE END OF A ROMANCE

The Mysterious Hero Turns Out to Be a Detective.

At a large wedding reception recently the attention of a couple of girls was attracted to a rather fine looking man, whose prematurely gray hair and clear cut features combined in giving him a distinguished appearance.

"I see him at nearly every large wedding I go to," said one. "I wonder who he can be. I've asked lots of people, and nobody seems to know. Yet he seems to be invited everywhere."

"Yes, I've noticed him, too," said the other girl. "While he apparently goes to all the big weddings, he doesn't seem to know anybody; or, at least, I've never seen him talking to anybody. He's such an interesting looking man, too. I'd love to meet him. He looks like a man who had lived and—and suffered."

A young man standing near, who couldn't help overhearing this conversation, laughed.

"Perhaps I can throw some light upon the identity of your mysterious hero," he said.

"Do you know him?" exclaimed both girls in the same breath.

"Well, I can't say that I exactly know him," replied the young man; "but I know who he is. He's a private detective. Perhaps you have noticed that he never strays far away from the tables on which the presents are displayed. That's what he's there for—to watch them. You know there are social highwaymen in—"

"Let's go down stairs and get some claret cup," interrupted one of the girls.—Pearson's Weekly.

Sceptic and Believer.

A young man who looked as if he might be about twenty-five years old was sitting in the waiting room of the depot. On his knee was a year-old baby. Presently the baby began to cry, and the awkwardness and helplessness of the young man were so marked as to attract general attention.

At this point one of the waiting passengers, a fat and amiable looking man, crossed the room and sat down by the distressed baby tender.

"A young woman gave you that baby to hold while she went to see about her baggage, didn't she?"

"Yes."

"Well, now, I knew it as soon as I saw you. You expect her back, I suppose?"

"Of course."

"Ha! Ha! You are looking for her every minute, ain't you?"

"I think she'll come back."

"Ha! Ha! Excuse me, but I can't help laughing. A woman once played the same trick on me. I was in Chicago. You're caught, young man. She took you for a hayseed."

"Oh, she'll come back!" answered the young man as he looked anxiously around.

"She will, eh? Ha! Ha! Ha! What makes you think so?"

"Why, because she's my wife, and this is our first baby."

"Oh—um—I see!" muttered the fat man, and he was in such haste to get back to the other side of the room that he nearly fell over a passing pug dog.—Buffalo Enquirer.

Were Men of Few Words

There is a little settlement of New Hampshire people in Kiowa county, Colorado. Among other things they brought with them the New Hampshire aversion to using any more words in conversation than are absolutely necessary. Two of them met on the road recently, and indulged in the following dialogue:

"Mornin', Si."
"Mornin', Josh."
"What'd you give your horse for bots?"
"Turpentine."
"Mornin'."
"Mornin'."

A few days later the men met again, and Josh the way a hard luck story was told in mighty few words:

"Mornin', Si."
"Mornin', Josh."
"What'd you say you gave your horse for bots?"
"Turpentine."
"Killed mine."
"Mine, too."
"Mornin'."
"Mornin'."

Threatened to Kill

New York, Oct. 18.—Peter Damato, an Italian stonecutter, who last night shot and killed Stella Mola, his sweetheart, and then turned his revolver upon himself, died to-day at Fordham hospital. The girl, who was quite attractive, grew tired of Damato and went out with other men. He became very jealous and yesterday morning told her he would kill her before six o'clock in the evening. He appeared shortly before six and kept his word.

VICTORY FOR PETERBOROUGH.

Peterborough's Rugby Team Win a Closely Contested Game Saturday by Score of 7 to 5

It was not with the supremest confidence that the boys who constitute the local rugby XV. went up to the oval on Saturday, for it was very apparent that Ottawa was strong, to say that east, and out to win if possible. They had on their team seven of the famous Rough Riders, who have won the championship of Canada for the last three years, while the rest had the advantage of being trained in all the tactics and fine points of the game. They certainly were a fine, athletic looking team, and some of the Peterborough supporters after looking at them would turn to one of the home players with the cheering announcement: "Well, you are up against it."

The game started pretty well on time. Peterborough won the toss and decided to take advantage of the wind which was blowing a small hurricane. Ottawa kicked off, and Peterborough soon had them on the defensive, but could not get possession of the ball and the game was a succession of scrimmages at Ottawa's 35 yard line, Ottawa attempting to keep possession of the ball and thus prevent Peterborough from scoring while they had the wind. This they did to perfection, for they had a very strong scrimmage. However, the home team got the ball at last, and Burnham punted over the line, and Rickey, who played a splendid game all through, followed up very fast and forced Hutton to rouge. Peterborough 1, Ottawa, 0. Close play followed for a while, till a foul scrimmage by Ottawa gave Peterborough a free kick, which Burnham punted over the line. Crowley was right under the ball all the way, and when Ottawa attempted to relieve with a kick he blocked it and the ball bounded over to Graham, who secured a try. Burnham converted. Peterborough, 7, Ottawa, 0. Half time was called shortly after.

In the second half it was Peterborough's turn to play on the defensive, and although Ottawa still kept possession of the ball, the superb tackling of the Peterborough wings prevented them from gaining much ground. The ball was in Peterborough's quarter nearly all the time, but the best Ottawa could do was to score single points by kicking over the line, when Peterborough would be forced to rouge. This they did four times, and the game ended 7-4 in Peterborough's favor, leaving them winners on the two games, 7-5, as last Saturday Ottawa won 1-0.

Individual mention of the Peterborough players would be invidious, as every man did his duty, and although some plays are spectacular, they may not be of more value than the consistent hard work done by others. Exceptions might be made in the cases of McPherson, who played a very sure game, and by rouging with judgement saved what looked like sure tries, while by a couple of brilliant runs relieved the congestion in magnificent style; of Burnham, who played a sure, steady game, and of Crowley, whom the Ottawa men thought needed three men to mark him. We might mention all the rest, but the best we can say is that every man was in his place and did what was necessary.

The Ottawa men were very much pleased with the treatment they received at the hands of the home team.

Bed-ridden 15 years.—"If anybody wants a written guarantee from me personally as to my wonderful cure from rheumatism by South American Rheumatic Cure I will be the gladdest woman in the world to give it," says Mrs. John Beaumont, of Elora. THIRTEEN VACANCIES IN THE COMMONS

The Number of Bye-Elections to be Held at Any Early Date

WILL THE CONSERVATIVES FIGHT

The Latest News from Ottawa—The House to Meet in February—Clarke Wallace's Name With the Thirteen.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—Curiously enough the association of Clarke Wallace's name with the number thirteen was maintained even to his death. He was one of the "noble 13" who voted against the Jesuit estates bill. His death made the thirteenth vacancy in the house of commons.

The constituencies now unrepresented are: Addington, West Durham, West Hastings, Kingston, Beauce, Laval L'Islet, St. James' division of Montreal, York, N.B., Lisgar, Man., Terrebonne or Maisonneuve, Queen's P.E.I., and West York. It is pretty well settled that these by-elections will be brought on before another session of parliament. Indeed, the voters' lists for all thirteen constituencies are either practically completed or can be made ready in a week or two. It is quite possible that upon the premier's return to the Capital the date for these by-elections will be decided at one of the first cabinet councils.

There are also three vacancies in the senate, but these will not be filled until after the by-elections.

Col. the Hon M. Aylmer, adjut.-general, is at present in Melbourne, Que., at the bedside of his father, whose death is hourly looked for. The adjutant-general will in all probability return to Ottawa as Lord Aylmer, being the eldest son of the dying baron. Sir Adolphus Aylmer, who is the seventh baron of the name. The first baron was a distinguished naval officer in the reign of James II. The present Lord Aylmer succeeded his cousin in 1858, and is in his 87th year.

Mr. Bureau, M.P., is in the city on business with the departments.

But for the strenuous objections of the bar of the Northwest territories to the appointment of Mr. Bruneau to the territorial bench in succession to the late Judge Rouleau, the county of Hochelaga would doubtless be to-day among the constituencies unrepresented in the commons. It is current talk that it is not Mr. Bruneau himself, but his friends who are so strenuously urging his appointment to the vacant judgeship.

Lt.Col. Vidal, deputy adjutant general will leave on Nov. 2nd for Europe and will spend a couple of months at Cherbourg for the benefit of his health. Lt.-Col. Vidal will first pay a visit to Paris.

PLEADS CAUSE OF BURGHERS.

General O'Beirne Hopes for Intervention through the President.

Washington, Oct. 22.—General O'Beirne, special representative of the boer republic in the United States, called on President Roosevelt to-day. It remained in the audience room but a short time. Before calling the chief executive's attention to the boer cause in any manner General O'Beirne will take it up with Secretary Hay.

The late President McKinley did not formally recognize General O'Beirne as the representative of the boer government and such information as was laid before him was done informally. It is presumed, therefore, that Secretary Hay will continue this attitude. General O'Beirne will, therefore, first go over the situation informally with the secretary of state with a view to having the facts presented to the president in the hope that the United States government will take some step to bring a settlement of the war in South Africa. General O'Beirne hopes that this will come in the form of a tender of the good offices of the United States or an expression of a desire that hostilities cease. He will begin his conferences with Secretary Hay shortly.

A TARIFF FOR BRITAIN

BRITISH CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE ACT IN THE MATTER

There Will Soon be a Policy of Protection Introduced by one or the Other of the Parties

London, Oct. 22.The British people have lost much of their old admiration for free trade. They see that it works out advantageously for foreign rivals, and as the other nations of the world steadily increase their protective duties, so that there is now not a single foreign market into which British goods can enter freely, a feeling of irritation and annoyance is almost inevitable. We question whether, if it were possible to start afresh, with our present experience as a guide, it would be possible to induce the people of this country to adopt free trade in any form. But no one can ever make quite a fresh start. Every person has to bear the consequences of his past actions, and nations in this respect are in the same position as individuals. Since the principal of free trade was deliberately adopted after many years of anxious discussion, a condition of things has grown up which would make it almost impossible to return to protection even if the nation desired it, when at present it does not. Every persons who advocates a departure from the principle of free trade is met at the very threshold of his argument by the fact that it is impossible to tax manufactured articles without at the same time taxing food, and we do not think that any person now living is likely to see a time when this will be possible. Whether we like it or not, we shall have to go on fighting hostile tariffs with free imports.

The struggle is not quite an equal one, and if the British people are to be successful in it, they will have to display a very high degree of intelligence, enterprise, and industry. But the past history of the country shows plainly that hostile tarrifs can be fought successfully, and, so far as we can see, there is no reason why this should not continue to be the case.

OBJECTS TO BEING SET FREE.

Aguinaldo Prefers to Stay in Prison for the Present.

Manila, Oct. 22.—Aguinaldo has written to the lawyer who is trying to get him free on a writ of habeas corpus objecting to it, saying that he prefers to remain a prisoner while one compatriot is in jail "suffering for the Filipino cause and an infinity of Filipinos are deprived of the liberty they long to have."

The Senators and Representatives who have been visiting the Philippine Islands left to-day for home on the transport Sheridan. Before leaving they had an interview with Aguinaldo, but he was reticent. He said the original outbreak of hostilities was a surprise to him, and that his efforts to maintain the truce were unavailing.

London, Oct. 22.—The Americans have practically subdued the insurgents in the Philippines," said Chairman John Howard Gwythier, of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, at to-day's meeting of shareholders. "Order is slowly evolving out of the chaos, and the natives, feeling that peace can be relied upon, are resuming their ordinary avocations."

Manila, Oct. 22.—The typhoon which has just swept over Manila is the worst in twenty years. Much damage was done and many natives lost their lives.

CHINESE COURT'S JOURNEY

Magistrate Near Tungwan Degraded Because Rains Made Roads Bad.

Pekin, Oct 22.—Reports of the court's journey are received daily. A Magistrate near Tungwan, where the court stopped for three days, was degraded because the roads, owing to heavy rains, were unfit for travel.

Mr. Nichols of the Christian Herald left to-day for Shensi to verify the reports of famine there and to determine the need of further relief. If additional aid is not required he will decide whether it is feasible to establish refuges for future famine sufferers. He means to utilize for this purpose the funds collected for the famine sufferers. Prince Ching says that famine is still prevalent. It is understood here that the corps have greatly relieved the situation. No complaints have been received. It is reported that officials are stealing from the funds already sent.

B Battery of the Royal Horse Artillery will sail from Taku for India to-day. The Third Bombay Cavalry will sail at the end of the month, and the Twelfth Battery of Royal Field Artillery will leave on Nov. 3.

Determined to Die

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 21.—Late last night Robert Nichol, who was in the hospital receiving treatment for the effects of attempted suicide on Saturday night, made another violent attempt to end his life. He jumped from his bed in the hospital ward, knocked down the man who was watching him and jumped from a window to the ground, some twenty feet beneath. Severely injured by his fall, he was unable to get away before being caught and taken back to his room. His chances of recovery are all gone and his condition is critical.

BURGLARS BORED TUNNEL

SPENT A WEEK DIGGING UNDER CHICAGO POST OFFICE.

And Got $400,000 Worth of Stamps, But Missed $300,000 in Cash—No Clue to Burglars

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Burglars last niht stole $40,000 worth of stamps from the Chicago post office, and escaped without leaving the slightest clue. A tunnel, which had taken a week or more to complete, was run from the rear of the building, and a hole was then drilled through the steel bottom of the wholesale stamp vault. There were 27 small holes around the square plate cut out, and some of the drilling looked several days old. The stamp vault was only six feet away from the cashier's vault, which contained over $300,000 in cash. The latter had evidently been the objective point.

LEGISLATURE TO MEET EARLY.

Will be Called to Meet in January Said Hon Geo. W. Ross.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—The Provincial Legislature will meet early in January. The announcement was made by Premier Ross this morning. It was almost a complete surprise to the Opposition, which had been counting upon an election before a session. Why the Opposition leaders were so confident of an election is not clear, for none of the usual preparations for an election have been made throughout the Province, and there has been none of that stir about the Liberal headquarters which betokens a campaign on the topis. Premier Ross, in announcing the matter this morning, did so as briefly as possible.

"It is our intention to have a session early in January," he said. "The Mail is barking up the wrong tree this morning when it predicts an earlier session of the House. The Mail's article was evidently inspired by the publication of the financial statement of the Province for the past nine months. There is nothing significant in the compilation of such a statement, as the Mail endeavors to convey. A statement is prepared every month of the state of the finances. Such a statement has been prepared for the last two or three years. It is for the use of the several departments and is not usually given out. No significance should be attached to it. There will be no session before January."

Prisoners Escape

Newburgh, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Charles Maroni, aged 30, and Frank Hand, aged 21, escaped from the infirmary of the Matteawan State Hospital for Insane Criminals about midnight. They made a saw from a piece of steel from a shoe, and sawed out the bars of an infirmary window. They were gone two hours before the escape was discovered. Maroni was serving thirty years for murderous assault. Hand was transferred from the Elmira Reformatory, where he was sentenced for 5 years for burglary.

THE WILY BOERS ARE AGAIN ELUSIVE

Botha and His Men Flit About Like Showery Day Shadows

CANADIANS TAKE A LAAGER

Rumors of De Wet's Death—Are Boer Lawyers Eligible for London Bar?—Kruger's Private Wire.

London, Oct. 21.—Lord Kitchener's immediate objective is the capture of Commandant General Botha, and the British columns are making special efforts to attain that end. So far the British operations have apparently been somewhat unsuccessful. Botha's column has broken up into small sections, and has resumed the old style of guerilla warfare, dodging round the country with incredible swiftness and eluding the British mobile columns.

The rebels in Cape Colony are acting independently of the northern forces. They seem to be incapable of serious fighting, as they seldom meet the British, but content themselves with looting operations.

BOERS TURNING BRITISH.

New York, Oct. 21.—Speciall despatches to the Sun indicate that one hundred and twenty-five burghers in the neighborhood of Bloemfontein recently took the oath of allegiance to the British Crown.

A number of Boer lawyers having applied for permission to practise at the English bar, a committee of the Four Inns of Court has been appointed to determine whether the legal status of some of the applicants is that of an alien, an alien enemy, a rebel, a traitor or a British subject.

BOER LAAGER TAKEN.

Pretoria, Oct. 21.—A Boer laager near Balmoral was recently surprised and captured by a force of Canadian scouts. The burghers fled after a short fight, in which two Canadians were killed, and an officer and two men wounded. The Canadian scouts referred to is a body of men commanded by Major "Charley" Ross, the famous Alberta rough rider, who succeeded to the command of Howard's Scouts after the death of Gatling Gun Howard. The present corps contains very few Canadians.

KRUGER'S PRIVATE WIRE.

London, Oct. 21.—A Brussels despatch to The Daily Mail says that Mr. Kruger has received information to the effect that fifteen thousand Afrikanders have been secretly armed by the Boers within the last three months, and that the greater part of Cape Colony is in open rebellion.

IS DE WET DEAD?

Durban, Natal, Oct. 21.—Nothing has been heard of De Wet of late and in many quarters it is inferred that the Boer leader is dead. In a letter to a friend a prominent Boer in Pretoria, deploring the lack of surgical aid in the Boer force, said: "De Wet, for example, suffered the most terrible agony before he died. He was wounded in the shoulder by a splinter from a shell, and the wound gangrened owing to its being dressed with dirty rags."

Five Boers taken prisoners at different times referred to De Wet's death, but could give no particulars relating to it. Against these reports is the statement of Piet De Villiers, the field cornet recently taken prisoner in the north-eastern part of the Orange River Colony, who said that on the morning of his capture he took breakfast with Gen. De Wet.

SERVED WITH THE BOERS.

HOW THE BRITISH TREAT THEIR PRISONERS OF WAR

A Man Who Fought with the Burghers was in Eight Engagements and was Finally Captured.

New York, Oct. 22.

Karl Aiple, who came to this city one week ago from Germany, is full of interesting reminiscences of the Boer war. Aiple, whose English is anything but good, spent four years in South Africa, where he went from Germany in search of an elusive fortune in the diamond fields. At the time of the declaration of war with England, h enlisted in a German regiment, under German officers, and served with the Boers for a period of one year, during which time he engaged in eight battles, being wounded in the chest at Mafeking and in the head at Bloemfontein. He was made a prisoner at the former place, and asserts that while no actually brutal treatment was accorded him or his fellow prisoners, they were made to suffer certain hardships.

The Boers who were captured by the British, he asserts, with the exception of those who were known to be spies, have been accorded the treatment decreed by civilization, as the due to a prisoner of war in an enlightened age. There have been times, he asserts, when the Boers have made captures, and, feeling their inability to properly feed them, they have left them pants and shirts and set them free to find their way back to their own lines.

He thinks the war will drag along for some months yet, but it is a hopeless one for the Boers.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 21.—The Church Missionary Society has received mail reports showing that the bubonic plague is ravaging Foo Chow and vicinity. Fifteen hundred cases of the disease are reported daily and for a couple of weeks upwards of a thousand coffins have been carried out of the city gates each day.

THE MAN FOR GALWAY.

London, Oct. 21.—The Nationalists of Galway have elected Arthur Lynch to contest the vacancy in the House of Commons. Mr. Lynch served as a colonel in the 2nd Irish Brigade with the Boers, operating in Natal under Gen. Botha, and afterwards in the Orange River Colony. When Pretoria fell Mr. Lynch returned to France, where he remains. He will doubtless be arrested if he returns to Ireland.

SIR ARCHIBALD L. SMITH DEAD.

London, Oct. 21.—Sir Archibald Levin Smith, who recently resigned the post of Master of the Rolls on account of ill-health died last night in Morayshire, Scotland. He had rowed thrice with Cambridge against Oxford. He was born in 1836.

THE LEADERS BANISHED.

Pretoria, Oct. 21.—Twelve more Boer leaders, including Commandant Scheepers, whose capture was announced on August 12, have been permanently banished from South Africa.

RELEASED FROM KILMAIN

Dublin, Oct. 21.—Patrick A. McHugh, member of Parliament for the North Division of Leitrim, who was sentenced April 23 to six months' imprisonment as a first-class misdemeanant for publishing in his paper, The Sligo Champion, seditious libels calculated to interfere with the administration of justice, was released from Kilmainham jail to-day. Mr. McHugh was accorded an enthusiastic reception by a large crowd of people. The Lord Mayor of Dublin, Sir Thos. D. Pile, a numerous deputation from Sligo, and John O'Dowd, member for South Sligo, and John O'Donnell, member for South Mayo, were among those who welcomed him to liberty. Mr. McHugh drove in the Lord Mayor's carriage, followed by a long procession of carriages, to a hotel where a luncheon was given in his honor. Mr. McHugh will sail for New York with John Redmond and John O'Donnell on the steamer Majestic, which leaves Queenstown Thursday.

REBELS LOSE HEAVILY.

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 21.—Letters received here from Panama, say the Colombian rebels lost heavily in a battle near that place last Tuesday. The rebels are concentrating in a camp in the neighborhood, and both sides are preparing for a clash, which, it is expected, will largely determine the fate of the revolution.

A NEW STEEL COMPANY.

Pittsburg, Oct. 19.—The Post says: A new independent steel corporation that is shortly to be ready to enter the market in competition with the United States Steel Corporation has been formed in Pittsburg. The new concern is known as the Everson Steel Corporation. The general offices of the company are at present located in Pittsburg, and much interest has been aroused in local steel circles over the outcome of the enterprise. The new company is incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, and has a capital of $2,000,000. A site for the extensive plant that is to be built has been optioned along the Ohio River not far from Pittsburg. Within ten months it is proposed to have mill buildings costing $645,000 completed and 1,000 men employed.

A WHITE MAN'S COUNTRY.

Washington, Oct. 19. — President Roosevelt's action in entertaining Booker T. Washington, the President of Tuskegee Institute, at dinner last evening has caused comment among Southerners here. There is but one similar instance within recollection when persons of colored blood dined at the White House. That was when Queen Liliuokalani visited this country to resist the proposed annexation of the Hawaiian Islands, and was entertained at dinner by President Cleveland.

The Commercial-Appeal, of Memphis Tenn., under the caption of "A White Man's Country," discussing the entertainment of Booker Washington at the White House, says:

"This is a white man's country. It will continue to be such as long as clean blood flows through the veins of white people. The negro is entitled to his rights under the law, and the men who stand for white supremacy are the strongest advocates of granting him those rights. But beyond that they will not go. The example of president or potentate cannot change their views. President Roosevelt has committed a blunder that is worse than a crime, and no atonement or future act of his can remove the self-imprinted stigma."

No Increase in Death Rate

London, Oct. 22.—There has been a marked decrease, as might naturally be expected, in the death rate from wounds and disease in the British army during the second year of the war in South Africa. Hospital service has been greatly improved, and the death rate of officers has been much reduced, since the latter have learned some of the bitter lessons taught by modern rifles in the hands of Boer marksmen. During 1899-1900 the death rate per 1,000 of officers killed was 71.46, and of officers who died of disease 29.60, a total of 100.97. In 1900-1901 the percentage of killed was only 31.94, and of deaths from disease 55.03, a total of 86.97. In the Franco-Prussian war the percentage of officers killed was 63.5 and of deaths from disease 3.9. The rate of deaths from disease, 15.03, is practically the normal rate prevailing in the British army in foreign service in times of peace. The percentage of mortality among the rank and file has also been reduced in a marked degree. In 1899-1900 the total percentage of deaths from wounds and disease was 54.63 and in 1900-1901, 31.46. In the first year the losses among officers were excessive, owing to their reckless self-exposure and their failure to adopt ordinary precautions. The figures again show that in battle the risk of the officer is almost double that of the private soldier.

NISSEN HAS LOST THE FOOL-KILLER

Daring Navigator Had a Seven Hour Struggle in Niagara Pool

HE LEAPED FROM THE DECK.

Narrowly Escaped Death in the Torrent—No Trace of the Abandoned Craft Has Yet Been Found.

Niagara Falls, Oct. 21.—After having successfully braved the terrors of the lower Niagara rapids in his "Fool-Killer" and succeeded in cruising about in the whirlpool, Peter Nissen came very near losing his life Thursday in his further attempts to reach the center of the maelstrom.

From noon until night the daring navigator was tossed about at the mercy of the awful currents of the whirlpool. It was only by the merest chance that he came out with his life, and at that h ehad to abandon his boat and jump when the first opportunity presented itself. Nissen says that it was by a very narrow margin that he escaped the furies of the pool.

Nissen went down to the whirlpool as usual Thursday morning, intending to get up steam in the Fool Killer and go to the center of the whirlpool for soundings. He started out and seemed to be making fairly good progress. Encouraged by his success he guided the little craft closer and closer to the center until finally at 12.10 o'clock he became conscious of the fact that he could not well control the boat. The force of water was too much and in a short timehe was entirely at the mercy of the torrent. Nothing that he could do seemed to have any visible effect, and he was carried at the wills of the currents around and around. Nissen fought bravely against the awful odds and wearily the hours dragged by. Several times the boat in its circuitous ramblings approached the shore, but it would be suddenly veered off and carried out again towards the center. All this time Nissen was a prisoner. Try as he might, he could make no appreciable progress, and as the afternoon wore away and the gorge began to grow dark it was a battle for life. The endurance of the man was remarkable and his courage never flagged. He knew that there was then no chance of getting the boat ashore, and eagerly he watched the rocks along the bank for a favorable chance to abandon the craft and save himself. Finally at 7.30 o'clock fortune favored the imperilled man, and as the boat in one of its turns came close to the shore he leaped from the deck and landed in a few feet of water. He was nearly exhausted, but managed to clamber ashore. He has not got any trace of his boat.

Just a Cold in the Head

lowed by another cold, or some extra exposure, is liable to result in Nasal Catarrh. Unless a radical cure is obtained, the Throat, Bronchial tubes and finally the lungs become affected. Nothing cures colds so quickly and pleasantly as Catarrhozone. The Inspector of Mines for Nova Scotia, Mr. Neville, says: "Catarrhozone is the best remedy I have ever used. It cured me of Catarrh of the Head and Throat, and I am pleased to recommend such a satisfactory remedy." Catarrhozone a safeguard against Colds, Coughs and Catarrh. It can be used while at work, in the church, theatre, or street cars. Simply inhale Catarrhozone and it cures. Price $1.00. Small size, 25 cents, Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

HUNTRESS RODE ASTRIDE

A New York Society Woman Participates in Fox Hunt.

Hempstead, L.I., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Thos. Hitchcock, jr., again gave a practical demonstration Saturday of the advantages of riding astride to hounds. She was the only woman who rode in the fox hunt of the Meadow Brook Club, and she put into effect the idea of safety in the saddle which she has often advocated.

Several times she took difficult jumps that men in the party had refused, and her riding on such occasions was easy and graceful. She took every fence and was among the first at the finish.

Killed on Eve of His Return

Toronto, Oct. 21.—A few days ago John Brown, a printer, of No. 6 Lippincott street, received a letter from his son, Walter Brown, a trooper in Bethune's Mounted Infantry, that the writer would soon leave South Africa for home. In the letter was a list of presents which he intended to bring the younger members of the family. This morning Mr. Brown received word from the War Office, England, that his son had been killed in action at Steffelberg on September 12th.

The deceased was about twenty years of age, and had been around the world in his travels, leaving home when he was about 15 years of age. Mrs. E. S. Williams of 1 Smith street, is his sister.

The Japs for War.

Chicago Oct. 22Dr. Nicholas Senn, professor of surgery of the University of Chicago, who was a passenger on the America Maru, and who recently paid a visit to Siberia and Japan, after a thorough study of both countries, has concluded that a war is pending between Russia and Japan. He says that the war clouds are rapidly darkening the peaceful horizon of the Orient, and that when the war between these Powers does break out it will be terrible. He said.—

"While I was in Japan I noticed on every hand that the Japanese were making preparations for war with Russia, and they made no secret of it. The Japanese are loyal to the core. Coolies, merchants and princes are all preparing for the struggle, and they will all loosen their purse strings and give their money to purchase supplies when the right time comes. I think that when the war does break out it will be the bloodiest in the history of the world, as they are both great nations in point of numbers, and they will fight with modern and improved arms.

"The cause of the trouble is no secret in Japan. It wants Corea. Japan is not large enough for the Japanese. The population is too great, and if it were to secure Corea it could flood Corea with its surplus population. Russia practically holds Manchuria, and Japan does not intend letting this nation extend its influence to Corea if this condition can be prevented. Hence the preparations for war."

Poisoned by Cloves

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 21.—Miss Anna Van Zuiden, 20 years old, likes cloves, and ate a large quantity of them on Friday. She was awakened in the night by a feeling of suffocation. A physician found her lips and tongue burned blue and her pulse going up, while her extremities were cold and powerless. She rapidly grew worse, despite his efforts, and he called two other physicians in consultation. The girl was eventually saved by administering oxygen. The only explanation the doctors could give for the attack was that cloves contain one of the phenol or coal tar compounds, the action of which is similar to that of carbolic acid.

NO ARMY REFORM IS YET IN SIGHT

Lessons of the Boer War Not Taken to Heart

ARMY REFORM DEMANDED

And Must Come, Even if Many Years are Consumed in Agitation

The Boer Resistance a World Wonder—Is the End of the War in Sight?—The War in Its Third Year.

London, Oct. 22.—The war is now nearly a month on its third year of existence, and people are wondering how much longer it will last. The resistance of the Boers is certainly remarkable, and that so many are still in the field is due to two things: 1st, the ignorance of the rank and file of the burghers, and, 2nd, the foreign element, including colonial rebels, that are constantly joining the Boer forces.

Public apprehension respecting the King's health may not be groundless, but it is at least premature. The King is not believed to be seriously indisposed by those who have access to the court or are in touch with diplomatic circles. At the same time it is probable that he has been nervous and apprehensive respecting his throat ailment, and that the physicians have found it difficult to reassure him. It is also said that the insurance companies are not willing to take additional risks on his life. This is not an idle rumor, but a statement made by an insurance expert who has the best facilities for learning the facts in the case. There is much irresponsible talk about the King's failing health, but it may be attributed mainly to the despondency prevailing in England since the outbreak of the Boer war. Diogenes with his lamp would find it easier to discover in the streets of London an honest man than a hopeful one.

The resumption of Boer operations on a large scale in two remote fields has brought the government under the fire of political guerrillas. The ministers are reproached for taking holidays, neglecting their work and accepting with credulous facility assurances from their civil and military advisers that everything is going well in South Africa. Mr. Brodrick has been constantly at the war office, and he has a passion for work and red-tape. He has not made a single flourish or reassuring reference to the war since he succeeded Lord Lansdowne. The croakers can hardly find fault with him for taking too favorable a view of the progress of the war; nor is it reasonable for them to infer that the ministers, by holding private councils, could have forestalled General Botha's raid in Zululand.

Botha and Delarey have concealed their purposes and made effective demonstrations a fortnight after the expiration of the time limit of Lord Kitchener's proclamation, and a similar raid by Generals De Wet and Steyn may be expected daily as an ironical reminder that the war which the Aldershot tacticians imagined would be a holiday parade has entered upon its third year. Criticism of Lord Kitchener, Lord Milner and the ministers for lack of foresight in forecasting Boer activity is futile. The Boer remains at the end as he was at the beginning of the war, a unique adversary with terrible persistence, who succeeds in reversing every tradition of military experience and brings to naught every prediction and calculation.

If the Liberals were united and not demoralized, there would be destructive criticism in the place of guerilla attacks upon Lord Kitchener, Lord Milner, Mr. Brodrick, and Mr. Chamberlain. As it is, there is ineffective faultfinding by the press, and nothing is accomplished. The military staff is reproached for not following up the shattered columns of Botha and Delarey after their defeats and bluntly told that what it is doing is neither war nor business. There is a widespread feeling of dissatisfaction in regard to the conduct of the war, but the Unionist press, while reflecting it, cannot perform the functions of a well organized opposition. Mr. Kipling is more effective when he condemns with fine irony the acceptance of imaginary army corps and imaginary generals as serious additions to the national defenses and interprets the recent appointment of Sir Redvers Buller, Sir Evelyn Wood and the Duke of Connaught as evidence that the army machine has been hauled back into the old ruts of impotence, pretence and collapse. There has been an outburst of public impatience over the conduct of officers who take pianos and kitchen ranges with them when they are chasing the Boers, and there is a well founded conviction that incompetent generals have been protected by social influence and the Aldershot gang.

But neither the ministry nor the war office is influenced by the present conditions of criticism. General Buller has been attacked with great vehemence, but has not even taken the trouble to conceal his contempt for the newspaper warriors. The genuine reformers in the army [illegible] the outlook for a radical reorganization hopeless. They say that the army has learned to fight under new conditions of warfare, but that martinets of Pall Mall and Aldershot cannot forget traditions and red-tape. Some of them assert that royalty alone can bring about a permanent reform, and are hoping for the appointment of the Duke of Connaught as commander-in-chief.

SYDNEY'S LOSS ABOUT $500,000

Greatest Conflagration in the History of the Eastern City

A COAL OIL LAMP UPSET

Waterworks System was in Poor Condition for Fighting a Fire—Statement of Affairs.

Sydney, N.S., Oct. 21.—The greatest conflagration in the history of Sydney occurred on Saturday afternoon. Property valued at about $500,000 was destroyed, the insurance amounting to about $210,000. The fire was caused by the overturning of a coal oil lamp. A break in the waterpipe in the center of the town had occurred during the day and there was little water to fight the flames. The fire spread rapidly from building to building and from street to street, and for a while it looked as if the whole town was doomed. The firemen strove desperately, but the task was beyond them. No sooner did they make headway at one point than the fire gained on them in other quarters.

Eight thousand feet of hose were in use, and the local firemen had the assistance of the brigades from Glace Bay and North Sydney. Mr. J. H. Means, superintendent of the blast furnaces, was on hand with thirty negroes from the furnaces, and the service they rendered will not soon be forgotten by the citizens of Sydney. Mr. J. F. Wyssemann, architect of the Steel Company, secured a large quantity of dynamite, and with the assistance of some employees of the works used it to good effect. Shortly before six o'clock the conflagration seemed to cling around the corner of Pitt and Charlotte streets, and a determined effort was made to keep it there. It was then quite dark, and myriads of sparks floating about in the air lent a fascination to the scene. Several nearby buildings were ignited, but in every case the firemen were on hand and saved them.

Weather Notes

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 23 1901

THE TREATMENT OF TRAITORS

While not questioning the legal right of Great Britain to inflict the death penalty upon traitors in Cape Colony, the New York Times seriously questions the expediency of adopting such extreme measures. Our New York contemporary contends that a South African burgher whether in a British colony or in one of the late Dutch republics, regards himself as much more a Boer than an English subject, and has greater sympathy with a Boer in another country than with a British fellow subject in his own. For this reason the Times arrives at the conclusion that every prisoner who is put to death for alleged treason by the British in South Africa will be regarded as a martyr by his compatriots in all parts of the country, and that the Boers will enforce their reprisals when opportunity offers, and will also treasure up, if possible, more intense bitterness against England than they at present entertain.

Now, no doubt all this has been thought of and fully considered by Lord Kitchener, Sir Alfred Milner and others who in a lesser degree are responsible for the direction of affairs in South Africa. The gravity of the situation must be fully realized by them. As we have already seen, the authorities were exceedingly loth to put drastic measures into practice, and they have shown more consideration for the hostile burghers, whether owning allegiance to the British crown or otherwise, than has been the rule in dealing with their enemies when at war, in fact they have carried their policy of mercy and conciliation so far that they are accused of cowardice and pusillanimity by the very people whose wrath they are endeavoring to appease, while English prisoners in their hands have in many instances been wantonly shot in cold blood, Boer prisoners taken by the English have invariably been treated with consideration, and the wives and families of the prisoners and even of the men who are still in arms against England, are provided for as well as [illegible] and in many places better than are our own soldiers. This is all right and as it should be, and this humane policy will no doubt be persisted in as long as [illegible] every provocation, but we submit that when subjects voluntarily renew their oath of allegiance, and then those are in like conditions engaged in them, as many have done time and again, to betray England and aid and abet the enemy, it would be the height of stupidity to refrain from meting out to such traitors a traitor's death.

The problem of dealing with the Boers after the war is over may and probably will prove to be a very complicated question, but it will not be made easier by showing timidity; or fear of acting in a resolute manner when occasion demands it, according to the rules and well understood principles of so-called civilized warfare.

WARRIORS' DIET

Cape Town, Oct. 18.—Within a few weeks' time the grim reality will have to be faced of a whole country almost entirely denuded of its fresh meat supply and its breeding stock, says a correspondent.

It is only recently that the country has been awakened to the certainty that when the war is over, South Africa north of the Orange River, will be a country which to all intents and purposes will carry scarcely any stock available for food.

I have made exhaustive inquiries in high official quarters upon this matter, and I am assured that at the present rate of denudation it is impossible that the stock can hold out more than a very few weeks longer.

Earlier in the war the military authorities kept and herded all or most of the sheep and cattle captured from the enemy, reserving the stock for the use of the army, and so supplying the troops when in camp and on the march with fresh beef and mutton. Naturally this involved the employment of a small army of men to act as cattle rangers and guards, and the area required in a barren country for the herding and grazing of flocks of from 10,000 to 50,000 sheep and herds of cattle from 2,000 to 10,000 strong was enormous. It was no wonder that on very many occasions the Boers got back their own, while the trekking of the flocks and herds from place to place seriously impeded the mobility of our "flying" columns.

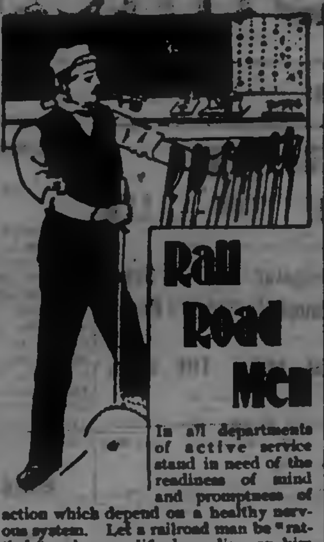
Latterly the military have adopted another method of dealing with the difficulty. They now, in a great measure slaughter all the stock they capture, and so render it impossible that the stock captured from the enemy can revert to the former owner. I am assured that the killing is wholesale, and that no time is lost over the business. I have been told of instances where a column capturing 15,000 sheep have literally slaughtered the whole on the veldt.

Naturally a very large proportion of the stock thus taken from the enemy is in a shockingly impoverished condition. I am informed that the bulk of the meat is actually black when dressed, and that the troops are very chary of consuming it. Still, needs must when necessity in the shape of a military order drives, and so Tommy has to make the best of leathern steaks, and stringy mutton.

There is, however, another side to this question. South Africa is being converted into a bleak and hopeless wilderness. There are supplies in Basutoland and the Transkeian territories, but it must be borne in mind that the natives never sell their cattle.

The tenacity with which a native holds to his stock was shown a few weeks ago when a commission was sent to Basutoland to purchase three Basuto ponies for the children of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York as presents from the children of Capetown. No money could tempt the Basutos to part with their ponies, and it was only by bartering some fine cattle that the natives would let the ponies go. It is the same with the natives of the Transkeian territories.

To add to our troubles, rinderpest is spreading among the military cattle in the eastern parts of the colony.



In all departments of active service stand in need of the readiness of mind and promptness of action which depend on a healthy nervous system. Let a railroad man be "rattled," and every life depending on him is in danger. A great many railroad men have found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a valuable tonic for the overstrained nervous system. It builds up the body, purifies the blood, nourishes the nerves, and induces a healthy appetite and refreshing sleep.

"I suffered for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed several physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. Popplewell, of Eureka Springs, Carroll Co., Ark. "I felt that there was no help for me; could not retain food on my stomach; had vertigo and would fall helpless to the floor. Two years ago I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets,' and improved from the start. After taking twelve bottles of the 'Discovery' I was able to do light work, and have been improving ever since."

AN ANGEL'S FLIRTATION

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

"One of them thar angel-faced women that I wouldn't trust across a bill o' beans."

"Why mother!"

"You needn't look at me, Elviry. I've lived a few years longer'n you. Good to look at as sugar cake and nothin' to 'em inside. I hain't lived for nothin'.

The farmer took his pipe out of his mouth at the kitchen door.

"Her money's just as good as anyone's for boardin'. My 'sperience 's been that the chiny doll kind ain't big feeders. Let 'er alone, mother, an' she won't bother you."

Mrs. Sweetwell sniffed dangerously.

"Nuff said then. Elviry, write 'em a note an' say yer paw 'll be glad to have 'em come. I'll bake an' stew an' broil fur'em, but I won't warrant 'em."

"And I'll help you," said Elvira, gently, "and some day the mortgage will be paid."

The farmer looked up gratefully.

"It won't be two years if all goes well, Elviry."

"Lots o' things can happen in two years," broke in his wife, "and Elviry hain't strong."

But the boarders came, a prim middle-aged lady much given to library books and magazines, her invalid sister, who crocheted and made lace for amusement, and the Angel, i.e., Miss Fieda Watson, tall, cool, fair and with a contemplative expression that might have been borrowed from one of Raphael's cherubim. The boarders were given the best rooms, upstairs and down. The wide front portico was turned into an outdoor sitting-room for them and Miss Fieda improvised awnings out of bed ticking and rearranged the old furniture.

It transformed the really picturesque old farmhouse it drove the owners to the rear. It kept the women busy from morning till night. The Watsons paid well, but were fastidious. They were used to servants and expected some attention. After the first day or two Elvira found that she had no time to array herself in neat and pretty garments toward evening and too tired to care. When the day's work seemed finished she was glad to sit on the kitchen porch and cool off before she climbed up to her dormer-windowed room for a much needed sleep.

In the meantime Miss Fieda, unconscious enough, wore her dainty white gowns, swung in the hammock and read novels. In two or three days the novelty was past, and then she grew a trifle restless. At home she had her Sunday school class, her church work, her social settlement interest, her own friends. Miss Fieda was an almost flawless creature, according to the rector, who only saw her when she had put on her halo and posed in becoming attitudes.

In four days Miss Fieda was bored. It was the absence of excitement, and excitement included the presence of the male.

Miss Fieda was a flirt, and it was perfectly natural to her to pose and raise her blue eyes to an appreciative pair of masculine orbs. Her mother felt relieved here. Her daughter's tendencies had occasioned her several bad scenes during the last three years. But here—why, here she was safe.

Miss Fieda had hardly noticed the presence of Elvira, probably because she wore a dark print gown and a sunbonnet most of the time. She felt herself a superior being, and would not have thought of such a thing as finding a pretty face or figure under that disguising costume. The truly miserable one was the farmer's wife. Her heart was wrapped in dreams of a less toilsome future for Elvira, and now she was only a drudge for the sake of a few dollars.

One night the two sat on the steps until late. The dormer rooms above were very hot. The mother placed her hands on the girl's uncovered curls.

"Don't you work on Sunday."

"Oh, yes, mother."

"But there'll surely be some of them young men out here. I heard to-day that the squire's son will be at home and them two college chums with him that you all had such a good time with last summer."

Elvira's eyes filled with sudden tears in the darkness.

"Last summer and this one are not the same. It makes a difference having boarders around. Where could I have any company? Seems like their money had bought up the whole house and all our time and everything."

She spoke with bitterness. The iron entered the mother's soul.

"Maybe you give up too easy. S'pose you dress up and just go and sit out there where you've the best right. Play the organ and sing and chirk up."

"And leave you to do all the work," broke in Elvira. "I cannot see it that way, mother. Maybe if the mortgage ever gets paid I can hold up my head."

On Sunday morning Elvira came down to find a neighbor woman in the kitchen with her mother.

"You go along upstairs and get on your church fixin's said her mother, grimly. "Nance is going to help me to-day."

Before she was ready, her heart beating happily, a cavalcade came up the avenue, three good horses wet with sweat, three young men in summer array and with joyous shouts and laughter.

Miss Fieda in a becoming negligee was reclining in her hammock. This direct dispensation of Providence in the shape of men all dismounted and came in merrily.

"Where are you, Vi? Oh, we see you!"

But it was Miss Fieda who rose gracefully. There were apologies and questions for Miss Sweetwell.

Miss Fieda did not even know there was a Miss Sweetwell.

"O—um—er—I suppose that's the girl here. I never have noticed her. Shall I inquire?"

The best looking of the trio looked at her strangely.

"It is Mr. Sweetwell's daughter. Never mind. I'll just go in and see for myself. I'm at home here."

He strode off through the long hall. At the foot of the stairs he met Elvira, small, fresh, dimpled and pink-cheeked.

"Vi! We're back once more. Now for a good old time again. Get on your riding skirt. We're going to New Harmony. Who's your angel on the porch?"

"Summer boarder," replied Elvira, a little tersely. "City people. But come in and see mother. She heard you were coming home and told me."

Mrs. Sweetwell shook hands with Bertrand Wells heartily. They had understood each other from the time he used to steal away on his pony and seek the farm. She looked at him anxiously.

"Who's with you?"

"Sanderson and John Richards."

"Look after Vi, will you? She's been slavin' along with me to help her paw ol'er the farm. It's right, but it's hard on both of us."

Bertrand bit his lips.

"That will never make any difference with Richards, I'm sure."

But he looked grave when he saw that John Richards had forgotten Vi's coming in listening to Miss Fieda's utterances.

"Look out for little Vi?" he thought, with set teeth, "yes, I guess I will."

Miss Fieda stared at the dainty little figure on the spirited horse, curls flying and cheeks aflame.

"Is that the girl that's been doing our rooms?" she said languidly to Mr. Richards. "I really thought she was the servant. Her color is positively startling, isn't it? Oh, you know her, do you? Well, I suppose you will return here this afternoon. It is a pleasure to meet someone."

In the late afternoon Bertrand chanced to see Elvira's brown eyes wander from the grove where they were sitting toward the front portico. Richards and Sanderson were sitting beside the hammock and the tea table. It struck him that there was a new look in the girl's eyes.

"A penny for your thoughts," he said, gently.

There was something almost holy in her gaze at him.

"We learn to know the false from the true," she said, clearly, "as mother has learned, by bitter lessons. You know he and I corresponded all last year."

He nodded, not trusting himself to speak.

"I believed he was genuine until to-day. Now I never can believe in him—or be satisfied. Of course, to men she is an angel—in looks and temper—but she is neither kind nor true. It is right for me to do all I can for mother—it is duty, honor—and the very hardness of it has opened my eyes, Bert."

"I think he will get enough of a flirtation with an angel," said Bertrand, cautiously. "Then he will return, I am sure. Don't worry."

Elvira blushed.

"Pa would say something about being second fiddle," she laughed. "No Bertrand, I hurt you last year by choosing him. I am sure. I was blind. We will never mistake each other again. Let the angel have her flirtations—that is, if you can forgive my mistake."

ITEMS OF INTEREST

OAKVILLE GIRL DISAPPEARS.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19.—Mystery surrounds the disappearance of Miss Laura Doty, a young and beautiful girl of Oakville, Ont. Her brother-in-law, Rev. W. E. Kerr, of Amherstburg, came to Detroit yesterday morning to discover, if possible, some clue to her whereabouts.

Miss Doty had been visiting at the Kerr home, and on Monday last the minister brought her to Detroit and put her on board a Grand Trunk train to return to her home.

When Miss Doty did not reach Oakville at the expected time, her mother waited for a day and then telegraphed to find if her daughter had left Amherstburg. Possible places along the line were queried, but the girl seems to have dropped from sight.

DIED IN HIS CHAIR.

London, Oct. 21.—Mr. John Kincaid died very suddenly while sitting in his bedroom.

Mr. William Miller, a well known resident of London Township, died yesterday at the homestead, where he was born 66 years ago.

SUPPRESSING SMALLPOX.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—The outlook is more hopeful as to the suppression of smallpox in Ottawa. No fresh cases were reported at the health office to-day.

ITALIANS WANT A CHURCH.

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 21.—The Italian colony is talking of building a church, and getting a priest from Italy to preside over the services. Rev. Father Primeau says there is very little likelihood of the scheme being carried through, as there is only one Italian priest now in Canada, he being obtained by the Montreal colony with great difficulty.

DUKE WILL VISIT KING.

London, Oct. 21.—The Duke of New Orleans will come from Copenhagen to visit King Edward and Queen Alexandra.

FRENCHMEN WERE DEFEATED.

Paris, Oct. 21.—Reports have been received here of a French reverse in West Africa. The natives of the Ivory Coast Colony have revolted. The French commander, Gen. Combes, with 1,100 men, has had several fights with the rebels. He has lost 70 killed and 200 wounded.

THE POPE IS NOT ILL.

Rome, Oct. 20.—The recent reports in regard to the Pope's alleged ill-health are flatly contradicted here. He is in perfect health, and holds audiences regularly. He received a number of cardinals and prefects to-day.

—It is altogether likely that St. Andrew's Day will be celebrated this year by an entertainment in the opera house, in which Prof. Sheets' class of little Highland lassies will take part.

REVIEW OF THE WAR

London, Oct. 21.—On October 11 1899, the seizure of a train from Ladysmith by the Orange Free States forces marked the beginning of hostilities in South Africa. Two days before, on October 9 President Kruger had made the demand that all British troops on the Transvaal border should be at once withdrawn, that all British reinforcements that had arrived since June 1 should be removed, and that troops on the sea should not be landed in South Africa. Five o'clock on Oct. 11 was the hour fixed for Great Britain's acceptance of the ultimatum, and there was no time of grace given.

The Orange Free State, which was not interested in the cause of the quarrel with the Transvaal, at once threw in its lot with its Dutch-speaking neighbor, and there was a sympathetic rising of the Dutch farmers in the northern and western parts of Cape Colony. Instead of the Transvaal alone there was nearly the whole of the Dutch districts of South Africa to fight. And they were prepared to fight. The burghers had the best of rifles, supplies of ammunition that have lasted them for two years, and heavy guns equal to the best in the world of their calibre. By October 15 to the west of the Boer States, had been besieged. Newcastle and Charlestown, in Northern Natal, to the east, had been occupied, and invading commandoes were threatening Cape Colony to the south. A sharp engagement at Talana Hill, though it resulted in the beating back of the Boer attack, showed that it was not practicable to hold the advance position at Dundee, and retirement on Ladysmith was resolved on. To make this possible the Boer intercepting force was engaged by Gen. French, and Yule brought his men into Ladysmith, which was invested by Gen. Joubert and shelled by Oct. 30. The effect on public opinion in Great Britain was aggravated by the loss at Nicholson's Nek of No. 10 mountain battery and a detachment of the Gloucestershire Regiment and the Royal Irish Fusiliers, and when, on November 2, communication with Ladysmith was cut off, the gravity of the situation began to dawn on those who had too lightly regarded the task the nation had undertaken. Gen. Buller, arriving at Cape Town, found that he was most needed in Natal, and personally undertook the duty of leaving Gen. Methuen the task of raising the siege of Kimberley and Mafeking. Methuen attacked and drove back the Boer forces at Belmont, Enslin and Modder River, but at Magersfontein, on December 12, was checked in a night attack, in which Gen. Wauchope was killed, and a thousand casualties sustained. On December 15 the unfortunate affair of the Tugela occurred. In an attempt to advance to the relief of Ladysmith, Gen. Buller's forces were stopped, ten guns were lost, and about 1,100 men were killed, wounded or captured. A few days before Gen. Gatacre had made an assault on a Boer position at Stormberg, Cape Colony, and lost heavily, being forced to retire, leaving his dead and wounded on the field.

In two months over 6,000 British soldiers had fallen or been captured. Three important positions—Ladysmith Kimberley and Mafeking — were besieged, Natal and Cape Colony were in partial occupation of the enemy, and Great Britain understood that she was confronted by the hardest military task she had undertaken since 1815. Lord Roberts was sent out, with Lord Kitchener as his chief of staff, more troops were hurried to the scene of strife; new corps created and despatched; and an effort proportionate to the work was put forth. On Jan. 10 Lord Roberts landed at Cape Town. On March 13 he was in occupation of Bloemfontein, having relieved Kimberley, compelled the surrender of Cronje at Paardeberg on Feb. 27. and swept aside the other Boer commandants who tried to check him. Buller, after winning and having to abandon Kop and Vaal Krantz, got troops into Ladysmith on February 28. Mafeking was relieved on May 17-18; on May 24 Lord Roberts' advance entered Transvaal territory; on May 31 he was in Johannesberg and on June 5 Pretoria, from which President Kruger had fled, was in British possession. By this time Buller had reoccupied the neck of Natal, and the first great period of the war was ended.

MILLIONS VOTED FOR THE SERVICE

There has been much fighting since. As a result of one series of engagements over 2,000 of Prinsloo's commandoes were forced to surrender in the Orange River Colony. Kitchener was engaged with a force of 7,000 men under De Wet in the western Transvaal, Belfast, in the eastern engagements. The Boers won some successes, and the British losses have been steadily growing. But no matter what the result of the isolated fights the whole effect has been to weaken the Boers. It is long since they had a government, and their large bodies of troops can hardly be called armies. They are being worn down, losing a dozen one day and a hundred another. They have a country to rove through, not thickly populated, but three out of four of whose white inhabitants are their friends, giving them food, comfort and information, and denying the latter to the British. But they are always losing, by dozens in minor engagements, by hundreds when they venture on attacks, such as they made on Fort Itala and Moedwell. Railway communication is maintained throughout all the colonies. Industrial operations are increasing at Johannesberg. Influential men of Boer stock are proclaiming that it is madness to longer continue a struggle the end of which was not in doubt even after the Tugela repulse. The end will not be yet awhile. The irregular manner of fighting the Boers have adopted may enable them to make raids for months yet; but whether these months will be few or many will make no difference to the British. The proclamation of martial law in Cape Colony is neither a sign of weakness nor a cause of anxiety. It means, on the face of things, that the best, because the speediest, means will now be applied to the cases of men who from the beginning of the war were taking advantage of the liberty secured them by British institutions to harm British interests.

age is thought to be about 23,000.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories, the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1899.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

• • • • •

The directory question is one which affects every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1886, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong." but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and almost successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the great stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis; but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANSEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent.
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the Times of our Constitutional treatment curing Cancer, is established beyond question. We have plenty on fyle. There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost useless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his left cheek was almost eaten off with the disease, plasters aggravated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of matter that looked like Coffee grounds, Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

—The time for tendering for No. 5 Dam expired yesterday. It is said the only tender put in was by the Otonabee Power Co.

—A short time ago she ordered the printer to make her some "dawnce cawds." The duke intervened, and yesterday she called and asked for her "dance cards."

—Mayor Denne is in favor of having a Peterborough Old Boy's demonstration on Dominion Day. What's the matter with the King's birthday? It's not so hot in November, and the boys would have an excuse for taking something warm occasionally.

—Orillia is now discussing the question whether the incandescent light service for residences shall be charged on a flat rate or by metre. The original proposition that the people voted on in securing the lighting plant was for a flat rate, and now some want a metre rate.

—The shareholders of the Parry Sound Copper Mining Company recently sold a large interest in the mines to a United States syndicate for $2,500,000 cash. This will be bad news for some Peterborough capitalists who were offered stock in the company a few years ago at a very low figure.

The King's Birthday.

Saturday, November 9, is a statutory holiday, being the birth of our sovereign, King Edward. We have yet to hear of any preparations for properly celebrating the day. The Times respectfully calls the attention of Mayor Denne to the matter, that some action may be taken before it is too late.

St. Andrew's Night

An effort is being made to have St. Andrew's Day observed this year by an entertainment. It falls on Saturday, Nov. 30, but the entertainment will probably be held on the previous evening. The matter is now under consideration by the officers of St. Andrew's Society.

A Good Season

Mr. John Thompson, manager of the saw mills at Lakefield, owned by the Dickson Company, was in town over Sunday with his family.

To the Times Mr. Thompson said that this season's cut was the largest on record for the mill. The yard was so full of lumber that there was room for no more. During the season there was no break in the machinery worth speaking about.

The company propose to get out about the same quantity of logs this winter as heretofore. The camps are now in full operation.

POLICE COURT DOINGS

Two Boys Charged with Stealing Brass—They Attempted to Sell It.

Two boys, both aged about 13 years were arraigned and pleaded guilty before Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday on a charge of having stolen brass from the street railway barns. The lads had taken the brass to Stevens, the Ashburnham junk dealer, who telephoned the police, and afterwards took the stuff to the Canadian General Electric Co's offices. Investigations resulted in the discovery as to where and how the boys came by the brass. One of them was allowed to go on suspended sentence, and the other was remanded for a week.

A little girl was also charged with having stolen wearing apparel from the residence of Mr. Adam Davidson. She pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence.

A Barnardo Home girl was also in court of a charge of insanity. She came to Canada in 1896, and recently has been out at service in Bobcaygeon. She returned by stage on Saturday, and subsequently has been conducting herself as one mentally affected. She was committed to gaol and the necessary steps will probably be taken to have her admitted to the asylum.

YOUNG'S POINT

—The steamers are now engaged in towing.

—The Majestic had a big season's business—the best in the history of the boat. She began as soon as the ice was out, (about April 19) and will quit when it freezes up—about middle November.

—The hunters are getting ready for the chase. The party of which Commodore P. P. Young, C. Young and W. E. Brooks are the head, will go to their old grounds in Silver Lake, which is only a short distance from the Gold Lake party. Indeed it is said that this accounts for the great precautions which are taken by Commodore Young's party to keep their buttermilk tank securely locked and guarded.

—The electric plant is now being installed in the power house.

—The local hotels had a fine season's trade.

—There were 300 lockages more during the month of July 1901 than for the same month in 1900.

OBITUARY

A CITIZEN TRAPPED

The Way a Fellow's Chums Got Even With Him

The following was told the Times yesterday: A certain young man went to Toronto to get married, and a couple of his chums concluded to put up a joke on him. About an hour later he left Peterborough, one of the young men rushed to the telegraph office and sent off this despatch:

"Chief of Police, Toronto, Ont.: Man coming on train No. 6, tall, well dressed, frock coat, silk hat, side whiskers. Escaped lunatic. Hold! Beware, therefore beware! Strange case. Will say name S——. Mistake. Thinks he is ——, Delusion. Escort to home of friends at No.— Euclid avenue."

This message reached its destination long before train No. 6 reached Toronto, so that when Mr. S—— alighted it was to walk straight into the custody of three detectives. They would listen to no words of reason, but escorted him out to the house on Euclid avenue, the home of his intended bride.

A SCOT NOT WANTED

Reason Why the Bank of England Never Employed a Scotchman.

Is it true that a Scotchman can never be employed in the Bank of England, London? A gentleman who has travelled in England and Scotland a number of times said a few things the other night at the Snowden House, which might be of interest to the readers of The Times. They are printed as his views, and, of course, anybody who wants to fire back at him is perfectly welcome to do so. He said:

"No Scotchman has ever been employed in the Bank of England either as a clerk or in any subordinate capacity, for the reason that the English controllers of the bank believe that if they once admitted a Scot to the bank he would eventually control its affairs. In fact, it may be said, going in another direction, that no Hebrew can make a livelihood in Scotland for the reason that the Scot is quite as acute in financial and commercial matters as the Hebrew, and even more so. This statement may be a little hazy, but what I wish to say to you is this, that the controllers of the Bank of England would not admit a Scot to any place in the bank any more than they would a Hebrew for the reason that the Scot and the Hebrew would eventually control this great bulwark of English finance."

NEW RAILWAY SIDINGS.

A by-law to authorize the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Company to construct two additional sidings across Hunter street, passed its several readings.

This by-law provides that in the construction of said sidings as little interruption of public traffic shall occur as possible, and that the Company shall furnish protection to the public against accident, should an increase of travel warrant same.

GRANOLITHIC BY-LAW.

A by-law to authorize the execution of a contract with Francis Lawless for the construction of a sidewalk on the west side of Reid street, between Charlotte and Simcoe streets, passed its several readings.

CLOSING OF MILL STREET.

Ald. Best moved, seconded by Ald. Corkery,—That there be published the necessary notice of the Council's intention to pass a by-law authorizing the closing of Mill street and the opening of a new street in lieu thereof; meeting at which said by-law is to be passed to be held on December 2nd next.—Carried.

Ald. Best moved, seconded by Ald. Corkery,—That the Town Engineer be instructed to establish the grade of the new street to be opened in lieu of Mill street.—Carried.

Ald. Best moved, seconded by Ald. Corkery,—That the new street to be opened in lieu of Mill street be stoned and rolled not later than July 1st next.—Carried.

$30 FOR JURORS.

Ald. Roger moved, seconded by Ald. Rush,—That the treasurer be authorized to pay the selection of jurors $30.—Carried.

EXTENSION OF WATER MAIN.

Mr. Alex. Rutherford asked Council for an extension of the water main down Rubidge street, about 125 feet from King.—Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

A request by the Cordage Company for a hydrant at the corner of Perry and Bethune streets, was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee with power to act.

Council then adjourned.

A MATCH TRICK.

Good Many People in England Are Puzzled Over It.

HERE is a match trick which just now is puzzling a good many people in England. "A" says to "B": Here are twenty-five matches. Now let each of us take away, in rotation, not more than three at a time. You may begin. Whoever gets the last match loses."

"All right," says "B," I'll begin."

And now they take them away as follows:

"B"....... 1 2 3 2 3 3

"A"....... 3 1 2 1 1 3

This makes twenty-four, so that the last match falls to "B." It will be seen that "A" each time takes away a number of matches which, added to those taken by "B," makes four, and as twenty-five is one in excess of a multiple of four "B" cannot help losing.

But the latter does not know it, plays again, loses again, and makes "A" begin.

"A" begins:

"B"....... 3 1 2 3 1

This makes twenty-four, and "B" loses. "A" simply operates so that as soon as possible the number of matches from which "B" has to take shows one in addition to a multiple of four, and from then on again takes away a number, which, added to those taken by "B," makes four. Of course, the total number of matches is not restricted to twenty-five. It may be 29, 37, 73, 101, etc., but must always be one in excess of a multiple of four.

Birds Intelligence.

During the early part of the summer of 1835, a pair of water-hens built their nest by the margin of the ornamental pond at Bell's Hill, a piece of water of considerable extent, and ordinarily fed by a spring from the height above, but into which the contents of another large pond can occasionally be admitted.

This was done while the female was sitting; and as the nest had been built when the water level stood low, the sudden influx of this large body of water from the second pond caused a rise of several inches, so as to threaten the speedy immersion and consequent destruction of the eggs. This the birds seem to have been aware of, and they immediately took precautions against so imminent a danger; for when the gardener, seeing the sudden rise of the water, went to look after the nest, expecting to find it covered and the eggs destroyed, or at least forsaken by the hen, he observed, while at a distance, both birds busily engaged about the brink where the nest was placed; and when near enough he clearly perceived that they were adding, with all possible dispatch, fresh materials to raise the fabric beyond the level of the increased contents of the pond; and that the eggs had by some means been removed from the nest by the birds, and were then lying upon the grass about a foot or more from the margin of the water.

He watched them for some time, and saw the nest rapidly increase in height; but I regret to add that he did not remain long enough, fearing he might create alarm, to witness the interesting act of replacing the eggs, which must have been effected shortly after; for, upon his return in less than an hour, he found the hen quietly sitting upon them in the newly raised nest.

In a few days the young were hatched, and soon quitted the nest and took to the water. The nest was shown to me shortly afterwards, and I could then plainly discern the formation of the new with the older part of the fabric.

Tea Party That Was Upset.

Two little girls sat together under a big tree, with their dollies beside them, writes Lyn Lovett in Brooklyn Eagle.

"Ruthie," said one little girl, "let's have a tea party and invite Rover and the dolls."

"Goody," cried the other girl; and then they both jumped up and ran to ask mamma what they might have for their party.

Mamma said: "White tea and slices of bread and jelly and some nice sponge cake."

So Ruthie carried out her table and set it under the tree, and Mabel brought her new tea set and spread the table. Then they sat the dollies around on chairs and told Rover that he must be good, and not bark, or he could not come to the party.

At last, when everything was ready, the party began. Mabel poured the tea out of the fat little tea pot and Ruthie put in the sugar very carefully. Each dollie had her cup and saucer and the little mother made believe that their children were eating. Rover would not sit on a chair, so he lay down beside Ruthie and watched for his share of the party.

And oh, how good the bread and jelly tasted under the big tree, and the sponge cake! But what was the mater with the tea?

First Mabel took a sip and made a face, and then Ruthie took a sip and made a face, and they all looked at each other. Then Mabel took a big drink and choked and coughed and dropped her cup, and Ruthie jumped up in a hurry to pound her on the back and she tripped over Rover and fell and upset table and dollies and all! And there was a big squirming heap of girls and dollies and dog and table and dishes.

Then the two little girls picked themselves up and looked at each other and both said: "Salt!"

"Mamma made a mistake and gave us salt 'stead of sugar," said Mabel, and Ruth looked at the upset "party" and was ready to cry.

But mamma had seen it all and she came running to pick up the table and felt Ruthie and Mabel all over and asked if any bones were broken. Then everybody laughed and mamma brought some more tea and cake and jelly and the party began again, and this time there was really sugar in the tea!

EX-PRESIDENT KRUGER IS OPPOSED TO RETALIATION ON THE BRITISH

He Rejects Proposal to Shoot a British Officer for Every Boer Executed by Kitchener

Lord Kitchener on His Progress Hints That He is in Need of Well Trained Mounted Men

New York, Oct. 22.—The Vienna correspondent of The London Times and The New York Times quotes the Pester Lloyd, which says it learns from the Hague that Mr. Kruger, Dr. Leyds, and Messrs. Wessels, Wolmarans and Fischer have held a council of war, at Villa Caracasa, to consider what answer is to be made by the Boers to the executions in South Africa. There is said to be no doubt among the Boer leaders that diplomatic protests are inadequate. All present at the meeting except Mr. Kruger, says the report, advised immediate reprisals, that for every Boer prisoner executed a captured British officer be shot. Mr. Kruger opposed this plan, on the ground that he did not wish to give the campaign the character of a war between savages, although it had already become a war of extermination.

London, Oct. 21.—Lord Kitchener has forwarded to the War Office, detailing the recent movements of the mobile British columns. Botha's force, the Commander-in-Chief says, has been driven from the Vryheid district toward Ermelo after an unsuccessful attempt to raid Natal. The inference to be drawn from the wording of the report is that Lord Kitchener is sorely in need of more mounted men.

It is understood that King Edward desires to see the termination of hostilities before his coronation, and desires to consult Prime Minister Salisbury as to the advisability of pursuing a more vigorous plicy.

Since October 12, 25 Boers have been killed and 18 wounded, 190 prisoners have been taken, and there have been 50 surrenders. The columns also captured 141 rifles, 6,125 rounds of small ammunition, and many horses, cattle and wagons.

AID FROM EUROPE.

London, Oct. 22.—Several morning papers publish European despatches to the effect that the Boers are being substantially assisted by continental agencies. According to the Standard's Moscow correspondent the Boer agents are securing remounts from the peasants in Southern Russia.

BEFORE THE WAR.

London, Oct. 22.—A Durban despatch says that a letter dated September 29, 1899, has been found in the house of General Emmett, a brother-in-law of Botha, stating that the burgher lists of the two republics showed a strength of 80,000 men. The letter goes on to suggest the nature of treatment to be accorded to the Cape Colonists should the Transvaal be victorious.

KRUGER SHELVED.

London, Oct. 21.—Reuter's Brussels correspondent says that Kruger's health is in such a poor condition that the executive power is now entrusted largely to the Boer delegates, of whom Wolmarans is the leading spirit. Mr. Kruger is now looked upon as a revered and venerable chief, whose advice, however valuable it may be, is not necessary for the guidance of Boer affairs.

KITCHENER A HANGMAN.

London, Oct. 22.—The Vaterland, a Vienna religious journal, under the heading of "Kitchener the Hangman," says that the British commander-in-chief, despairing of being able to conquer the Boers by honest warfare, has had recourse to brutality. The seed sown, says the Vaterland, will produce a harvest of blood, and none can blame the Boer leaders if they make reprisals too dreadful even for contemplation.

THE OAKVILLE GIRL HAS BEEN FOUND

Had Been Living in London with Man Named Jack Mason.

WAS ARRESTED BY THE POLICE

The Girl Cried Bitterly—Jack Mason a Married Man—Miss Doty to be Taken Home.

London, Oct. 22.—The local detectives this morning found Miss Irene Doty, the Oakville girl, who has been missing for over a week, and who it was feared had met with foul play. The girl left her brother-in-law, Rev. Mr. Kerr, of Amherstburg, ten days ago, supposedly for home. Instead, however, of returning to her widowed mother, she alighted from the train at London, being met here by Jack Mason, a former Oakville resident and a married man forty years of age. She seems to have been infatuated with Mason and went with him to the Western Hotel, where they lived as man and wife, although Mason refused to register. The hotel man became suspicious, the girl never appearing in public except after dark and he gave the information to the officers who arrested the runaway girl and her partner. The girl cried bitterly. Mason formerly kept a gents' furnishing store at St. Thomas, where his wife is understood to be living. The girl's friends have been notified, and will take her home. With them will rest the prosecution of Mason.

DUKE OF NORFOLK TO WED.

Second Wife for the Rich British Peer, Now 54 Years Old.

London, Oct. 22.—The Candid Friend to-day announces that the Duke of Norfolk is to marry Lady Alice Fitzwilliam, who recently became a Catholic.

Lady Alice Mary Fitzwilliam is a daughter of Earl Fitzwilliam. She was born in 1849. The Duke of Norfolk was born in 1847. He married, in 1877, Lady Flora Abney-Hastings, who died in 1887. He has one son living, the Earl of Arundel and Surrey, who was born in 1879.

The Duke of Norfolk is a staunch Catholic and aroused much criticism in England a few years ago by sending a message to the pope, saying he hoped the time would come soon when the pope's temporal power would be restored. The duke is very wealthy and is the fourteenth of the Norfolk line. He is very careless of his personal appearance. No one meeting him would take him for other than a very ordinary man—a tradesman or mechanic, perhaps. He, by virtue of the security of his title, is the marshal of England, and at all royal functions of a public character acts as marshal of the day. A woman of the nobility had a house near Arundel, and when she and her family were removing to London the duke contemplated buying the place as a house for a member of his family. One morning she was in her room shortly after breakfast when a servant came up to tell her that a messenger had called from the castle. "Where is he?" she asked. "Oh, he's in the hall, ma'am." Knowing the duke's habits of activity in the country she had some misgivings and hurried downstairs to find the earl-marshal of England sitting patiently on a hall chair, with his hat in his hands. She She overwhelmed him with apologies, of course, but the duke was amused and laughingly said that he delighted in an appearance which protected him from attentions which would make his life burdensome.

OFFICIAL MOURNING.

The Period Past and the Flag is at Mast Head on U. S. Government Buildings.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The period of official mourning for the late president ended at midnight last night and this morning the flags on the White House and all public buildings in Washington were raised to the tops of their staffs. Prof. Feddor De Martens, a permanent member of the counsel of the foreign office of Russia, called upon the president to-day. He was presented by Chief Justice Fuller, who will give a dinner in his honor this evening. Prof. De Martens was one of Russia's representatives at The Hague conference. He is understood to be urging a meeting of the court of arbitration, which has never assembled.

OUR WESTERN HERITAGE

MR. HAULTAIN'S SCHEME FOR ANOTHER PROVINCE

Objections Thereto Stated by the M. P. for Saskatchewan—The Peace River Section and its Resources—Bank Circulation

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—Within the past few weeks the question of forming the Northwest territories into a province has been actively raised by the territorial premier, Mr. Haultain and those associated with him. They have made visits to Ottawa to discuss the matter with the Dominion authorities and have striven not altogether unsuccessfully to creat the impression that the whole west desired to obtain provincial status without delay. It appears, however, that this impression largely fails to correspond with the facts. Mr T. O. Davis, M.P., for Saskatchewan, who is now in the city, and who is an uncompromising supporter of the Laurier administration, has some remarks to offer which show that he is not exactly an enthusiast on the subject.

"In my opinion," says Mr. Davis, "if the west is to be given provincial status, there should be two provinces instead of one. The dividing line should be the southern boundary of Saskatchewan, extended to the boundaries of Manitoba and British Columbia. I cannot agree with the proposal to make one province of the territories, which is what Mr. Haultain is understood to be advocating.

"There are many reasons for my view. In the first place we must look to the future. Such a province would have over 300,000 square miles of land capable of supporting population. In course of time, and no long time either, its representation in the Dominion parliament would become so large that it would be the dominating force in the confederation. It would in fact be so powerful that it could do as it liked. The Dominion authorities would be unable to disallow the laws enacted by the legislature of such a province. This would create a situation which might easily become a national danger and which would certainly be extremely distasteful to the smaller provinces.

"But the country is too large and its interests are too diverse for one province. The southern part wants to become a province because it has reached a point where increased revenues and increased borrowing powers are thought necessary to its rapid development. Their ambition in this respect is very natural and commendable. But in the northern portion, taking the dividing line where I mention, the situation is different. There, the need of provincial status is not yet felt and the people are willing to wait for another ten years if necessary.

"At the same time the people in the northern section while they do not yet want to become a province would not refuse, if it were thrust upon them, but in that event they might ask that Athabaska be included with them. Such an arrangement would relieve the Dominion from the necessity of forming a regular territorial government in Athabaska, a necessity which under present circumstances will soon have to be faced.

WAS DRIVEN FROM PLACE OF BUSINESS.

W. H. Brooking, a Paardeberg Hero, is Almost an Exile

WOULD REFORM STEVESTON

Enemies Wrote an Anonymous Letter and Finally Burned Him Out—Strange Experiences.

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—Mr. Sylvanus Brooking has received word that his son, W. H. Brooking, who is a justice of the peace at Steveston, B. C., is travelling in very hard luck at the fishing headquarters of the Pacific coast province. Young Mr. Brooking was in South Africa with the Canadian volunteers and was in the engagement at Paardeberg. He was taken with enteric fever in that country and returned to Canada about a year ago.

He was engaged in the drug business at Steveston was burned out last week, and it was said that the fire which destroyed his premises was of incendiary origin, having been started by people who were at enmity with the young man. Now it appears that he cannot go back to the town to live. In fact he is pratically an exile from the town as far as carrying on business is concerned. The story of his very hard luck is a strange one.

Mr. Brooking is not afraid, his father states, to return to the fishing town, where recently he has seen some very warm times. On the contrary, he is only too anxious to go back and do his duty as a justice of the peace. This, he cannot do, however, for the simple reason that no insurance company would cover his stock and no wholesale company under such circumstances will supply him with goods on the customary terms. The troubles date practically from the time that he received his appointment as justice of the peace. The firm stand that he took in connectin with certain acts of lawlessness earned him the undying enmity of certain persons. The first sign of trouble came in the form of an anonymous letter threatening Mr. Brooking with personal violence. This letter he nailed up in the post office with an invitation to the writer to come on. Mr. Brooking is a pretty husky young man, a fact with which the sneaking author of the unsigned communication was unquestionably aware, at any rate that threat was never made good. Failing to frighten their man by this method the attempts to burn him out began. The first two failed, but the third time the felon's torch was successfully applied, and Mr. Brooking returned from a visit to find his place of business a heap of smouldering ruins.

"Some men in the west have been making large claims as to what source of revenue the country would have as a province. Some of them, among whom I believe is Mr. Walter Scott M.P., go so far as to claim that the whole public domain should be handed over to the proposed new province, but this strikes me as unreasonable. It must be understood, however, that if the country is made into one province or two, they can't be run on wind and will require a substantial grant from the Dominion treasury; such a grant given, let us say, in lieu of the public land, might be accepted as satisfactory.

"My own idea, which I have urged thus far without avail, is that the territorial government could meet its needs by levying an annual tax on stock, giving such an exemption as would prevent the tax from falling on the ordinary farmer. As things stand now there are thousands of head of cattle and horses feeding on the public domain and not taxed. A reasonable levy on these would provide a considerable revenue which could be used for purposes of irrigation, this relieving the pressing necessity of the hour."

CHARTERED BANK.

The official September statement of the chartered banks in Canada shows the total liabilities of the banks as $441,047,769; total assets, $553,851,799. These banks have deposited with the Dominion government $2,569,918 to secure a total note circulation of $56,027,467. But as all the banks are responsible for the circulation of any one bank, the deposit is practically a guarantee for the redemption of the notes of and bank that may get into difficulty. As a matter of fact the notes of a bank in liquidation are really worth more than the notes of the most solvent bank in the country, inasmuch as they are entitled to bear interest from the day the bank's doors are closed till its affairs are legally straightened.

HUTIN SUGGESTS A BALLOON

A Scheme to Inspect the Panama Canal in an Airship.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Maurice Hutin, President of the Panama Canal Company, has laid before the Panama Canal Commission a unique scheme to inspect the route of the proposed waterway across the Isthmus by means of a balloon or flying machine. The earnestness with which he has discussed with the members of the Commission the feasibility of his plan has, it is said impressed several of them that he is thoroughly confident that the trip can be accomplished with entire success.

It is not thought likely, however, that the Commission as a body, will take Mr. Hutin's suggestion seriously or will consider for a moment the sending out of an inspection party in either a balloon, flying machine, or any other kind of an aerial vessel.

Mr. Hutin's airship theories are said to be the result of recent studies made in aerial navigation in France especially those achieved by M. Santos-Dumont. Mr. Hutin is just from Paris, where the flying machine craze is at its height. He is said to assert that a complete and proper idea and understanding of the canal route and the work already done on the waterway can be had only by a mid-air tour of the scene.

TROOPS FOR THE PHILIPPINES

Plans for Sending Reinforcements Under Consideration.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Plans for sending re-enforcements to the Philippines are now under consideration by the War Department. In all probability additional troops will leave the United States for Manila by December 1. To facilitate their transportation it has been decided to utilize the transport Crook, now at New York, and orders have been issued to get her in readiness for a voyage to the Philippines, leaving New York about December 1.

Orders have also been issued to recruiting officers in the East to prepare to go to Manila with the recruits on hand, and it is expected that several hundred can be assembled in New York within a few weeks. It has also been determined to order a regular battalion of infantry to New York to go on the Crook. Which organization the battalion will be taken from has not yet been decided.

It was learned this afternoon that in addition to these troops a regiment of either infantry or cavalry will be assembled at San Francisco and go to Manila on the transport Grant, which is now being held at San Francisco for that purpose. Two other vessels loaded with supplies will leave the Pacific Coast within the next month or two, one from Portland and the other from Seattle.

THE NEWSPAPER FIELD

How the Case is Put by an Esteemed Contemporary.

The following summary of conditions in the newspaper field is going the rounds of the sympathetic country press:

An editor works 365 1-4 days a year to get out 52 issues of a paper; that's Labor.

Once in a while somebody pays him a year's subscription; that's Capital.

Once in a while some son of a gun takes the paper for a year or two and vanishes without paying for it; that's Anarchy.

But later on justice will overtake the last named creature, for there is a place where he will get his just deserts; that's Hell.

Tribute to British Army

London, Oct. 22.—A letter from Johannesburg correspondent published in the Cologne Gazette is quoted by the Berlin correspondent of the Times. The letter highly praises the British troops in South Africa, and says:

"Of one thing every unprejudiced observer here is convinced. However severe may be the criticisms to which the British army is exposed in England, every impartial observer here knows that in the circumstances it has achieved all that could be achieved. It is doubtful if any other army could have done more. From a financial point of view any other nation would have succumbed to the strain of this war."

The correspondent also commends the Johannesburg police, saying they are equal in politeness to the police of London.

ROBBERY ON THE ROYAL YACHT.

A Gold Watch and Purse Disappear at Halifax

THE HOMECOMING RECEPTION

The Duke and Duchess Will be Given a Royal Welcome—Echoes of the Visit to Canada.

Halifax, Oct. 22.—On Sunday evening while the royal party was at dinner on the Ophir the quarters of Prince Alexander, of Teck, brother of the Duchess of Cornwall and York, were entered and a gold watch and a purse containing five sovereigns were stolen. The watch was valuable. It had been handed down through four generations and was a heirloom in the Teck family.

On going to his room after dinner Prince Alexander is reported to have discovered his loss. The theft was made known to the commissioner of Dominion police and detectives on board, and every effort made to trace the stolen articles, but without success. It was thought the watch and money might have been mislaid and would turn up. But this cannot be learned until the ship's arrival at Newfoundland. A large number of visitors were on board the yacht during the day.

ARRANGEMENTS IN ENGLAND.

London, Oct. 22.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York are due to arrive at Portsmouth on Nov. 1. It is desired to make the home-coming memorable in historical annals, since it marks the completion of the cementing of the Mother country with her colonial possessions. There will be a great naval display at Portsmouth, and it will undoubtedly be a magnificent sight. It is expected that the King and Queen, with the little princes Edward and Albert, will meet the Duke and Duchess at the premier naval port.

MANNED THE YARDS.

Halifax, Oct. 22.—As the royal yacht Ophir was getting ready to sail yesterday the sailors were ordered to man the yards on one of the warships moored at the dock. The Duke signalled the men to come down because of the cold. It was snowing and blowing hard.

MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY.

Sydney, Oct. 22.—Last night the Governor-General sent the following telegram to Mayor Crowe:

The Mayor of Sydney: I have just received the following message from H. M.S. Ophir: "The Duchess and I are distressed to hear of the disastrous fire at Sydney. Please express our sympathy with the sufferers. Trust no lives have been lost.

"(Signed) GEORGE."

To the Mayor of Sydney: "Her Excellency and I sincerely sympathize with the people of Sydney in the damage caused by the disastrous fire, which we trust may not be as heavy as at first feared.

"(Signed) MINTO."

BOERS BANISHED FROM SOUTH AFRICA

Leaders of the Lost Cause Without a Country.

HAS BOTHA SURRENDERED?

The Rumor of the Death of De Wet Gaining Belief.

A Boer Prisoner Repeats the Story of His Demise—Hot After Botha, Whose Capture May Take Place at Any Moment.

Pretoria, Oct. 24.—Twelve more Boer leaders, including Commandant Scheepers, whose capture was announced on October 12, have been permanently banished from South Africa.

IS DE WET DEAD?

London, Oct. 22.—The Daily News correspondent says that a prisoner belonging to De Wet's commando states that the General is dead. He was badly wounded and conducted to a rendezvous in the mountains where he passed away. This story is repeated in the Mail, and is generally believed. The fact that nothing has been heard of him for so long would point to its truth.

NO TRUTH IN THE STORY

Mr. Kruger has received a report from Schalkburger, that the greater part of Cape Colony is in open rebellion, says a despatch to the Daily Mail from Brussels, and that the Boers have armed 15,000 Afrikanders within the last three months.

There is not any truth in the story. While many joined the Boer forces, the number is very much exaggerated. The firm measures adopted by Kitchener, in hanging all rebels, is having a wholesome effect in preventing further rebellion.

HAS BOTHA BEEN CAPTURED?

London, Oct. 22.—The Mail's correspondent at Pretoria states that there is a rumor that Botha is in the hands of Kitchener. There is no doubt that British energies have been exerted to this end. It is said that after his retirement at Wakkerstroom he learned that the British columns had him surrounded. He at once dissolved his force into small bands, many of which have been captured, and others are in a fair way of capture. Botha, it is said, was the first to fall into the hands of the enemy.

ROBERTS AND BRODRICK.

There are some curious tales going about with respect to the relations between Lord Roberts and Mr. Brodrick. It is said that things are not moving as smoothly as they might be in Pall Mall, and that the Secretary for War is not receiving that support from the military side of the War Office which he is entitled to expect. Mr. Brodrick is certainly doing his best to introduce reforms in his department, but permanent officials are so powerful that a thorough reorganization is not to be expected. Not a few military men believe that Lord Kitchener is the only person really capable of tackling the serpent of red-tape, which strangles every attempt to run the War Office on business lines.

London, Oct. 22.—One of Kitchener's greatest difficulties in his South African campaign is the food supply. He has to feed not only the army, but the women and children in the concentration camps and practically the whole civilian population in the Transvaal and Orange River. And almost everything has to be carried in by rail, since the devastated country yields little. Now, according to a correspondent whose report the London Times prints prominently, the Boer commandos are able to wreck supply trains at their pleasure. That they do not absolutely cut off communications is explained in the following language, so extraordinary in its implications that one could scarcely credit it without apparent endorsement of a newspaper near the English Government:

"The Boers know perfectly well that a permanent damage to the railway communication would mean starvation for their wives and families. They also knew that the inmates of the concentration camps would be allowed to starve first, the army afterwards. There have been many cases during the last months of the war, when train wrecking commandos, while deliberately destroying the line in order to secure supplies of arms and ammunition for themselves, have allowed the supply trains, for the concentration camps to pass unmolested. In fact, certain sections of the line have been kept open by an arrangement—of course without official sanction—with the train wrecking commandos. It has been an understood condition between drivers and guards and the train wreckers that as long as certain supplies, such as coffee, sugar and flour were dropped at a certain convenient spot on the line should not be tampered with. And these burghers have never once broken faith when the conditions have been complied

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Copenhagen, Oct. 22.—Negitiations have been reopened between the four protecting powers with regard to the independence of Crete. King George of Greece had long conferences on the subject with the Czar and King Edward at Fredensburg, and the question is the principal object of his visit to Paris, from which city he will proceed to Vienna to discuss the matter. During his tour a year ago, Prince George of Greece, High Commissioner of Crete, although unable to obtain any support for his proposal for the annexation of the Island to Greece, secured the adhesion of the powers to a scheme of independence. But on his return to Crete he found that Russia was not ready to fulfill her promises. Now his father, who is regarded as a more astute diplomatist, has undertaken to pave the way, and later Prince George, will personally confer with the four powers concerned.

MEDALS FOR THE CORONATION.

London, Oct. 22.—Birmingham medalists are already busy in view of the coronation next year, and are producing medals to be worn in all parts of the world. It is estimated that over 10,000,000 medals will be made in Birmingham in the next six months. India has her special design now being made. Canada gave a die made in Birmingham is to strike most of her own medals, but Australia, New Zealand, and other parts of the Empire will depend chiefly upon the English—or German—manufacturers. The Germans have been in the field for some months with specimens which are being offered at a price below what the Birmingham maker can afford to quote. Small watch-pendant medallions, bearing on the obverse the head of the King and Queen and on the reverse the arms of England, can be purchased, wholesale at about 4s. a gross, or 3s. 6d below what the British dealer would ask. For the ten million or more medals to be turned out of the Birmingham workshops during the next six months, as many millions of suspenders will be required. Miles upon miles of tricolor ribbon will be requisitioned, and tons of pins and split-rings will also be made.

FORGED CERTIFICATE.

London, Oct. 22.—Marie Josephine Eastwick, the young Philadelphia woman who was committed October 1 in the Guild Hall Police Court for trial at the Old Bailey on a charge of having forged a railroad certificate to the value of £100,000, was arraigned to-day and pleaded guilty. Sentence was postponed to the next session of the court, in order to allow an examination to be made as to the prisoner's sanity.

The recorder somewhat demurred at the postponement of the sentence, pointing out that the question of the sanity of Miss Eastwick was one for the Home Secretary to decide after the imposition of the sentence. Counsel for the prisoner, however, urged that important evidence was coming from the United States, and that it was advisable that the whole history of Miss Eastwick should come before the court prior to the sentence being pronounced. The next session of the court will take place in December.

TRAINING THE GERMAN POLICE.

Berlin, Oct. 22.—The members of the Berlin police force are at present receiving expert practical instruction in the art of taking impressions of footsteps, the imprints ranging from those discernible in loose, sandy ground to those on hard and rocky soil. Bloodhounds have lately been much used by the Berlin police in tracking criminals, but with indifferent success.

THE AUTOMOBILE IN WAR.

Berlin, Oct. 22.—It is understood that the military authorities are very satisfied with the work by the automobiles during the recent manoeuvers. Seventeen automobiles were in use and all worked well. In case of war a large number would be bought, or "commandeered," for the generals in command and their aides-de-camp. Less satisfaction is expressed concerning the steam trolleys and for the conveyance of commissariat and ammunition. The roads were very bad and the tests unusually severe.

THE CANADIAN SCOUTS

The affair at Balmoral in which the Canadian scouts surprised a Boer laager, was a brilliant affair. The Canadians had two men killed and an officer and two men wounded.

The Boers, who appear to have a terror of the Canadians, fled after a short fight, leaving the victors in possession of considerable booty.

TO EXHIBIT THEIR CARS.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—The C.P.R. has decided to place the cars used by the Duke and Duchess on exhibition throughout Canada. Twenty-five cents admission will be charged, the proceeds to be given to the Protestant and Catholic Orphanages of the place where the exhibition takes place.

TORONTO MAN IN A BIG SWINDLE

Mr. and Mrs. Heimbold's Victims Number Over 300

THEY ARE MATRIMONIAL FAKIRS

Clipped Advertisements Calling for a Wife and Sent an Enticing Picture—Large Sums Received.

Rochester, N.Y., Oct. 22.—Postal authorities have just unearthed the biggest kind of a matrimonial swindle in this city, and have under arrest a man giving the name of Chris Warner and his wife Annie Warner as chief operators. Over 300 people matrimonially inclined have been victims and have contributed various sums to these fakirs. Warner and wife have used different names in every city visited. In Buffalo they were known as Warner, in Cleveland as Mr. and Mrs. Glosser, and in Toronto as Henry Reimbold and wife. In Rochester they received mail as G. Steadman and wife. Warner's real home is Amsterdam, N.Y., and his real name Christian Glossner. He and his wife kept a complete set of books, which gave a list of victims. Their plan was to clip advertisements from matrimonial papers and in case a wife, was wanted, Mrs. Warner would send an enticing picture, which was not her own likeness. She would receive various sums of money. The victim after sending the money never received another letter. Warner left Toronto and came to this city on September 5th; he was traced through mail being forwarded from Canada addressed "Henry Reimbold." Hundreds of photographs of pretty women were captured, and a complete outfit of matrimonial literature.

Population of New South Wales

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The Department of Trade and Commerce has received the first two bulletins of the census of New South Wales.

The total population is 1,358,943, namely, 712,896 males and 646,047 females. The Chinese number 10,074, of whom 677 are females.

The aborigines number 7,434, namely, 4,095 males and 3,340 females. The total number of dwellings is 271,216, of which 254,643 are inhabited, 15,020 uninhabited, and 1,548 being built. There are 14,013 other buildings.

In connection with Sydney, a curious fact is shown. The total population of Sydney and suburbs is 488,382, but of this only 111,804 belong to Sydney itself, the suburbs having 370,053 and shipping 6,520.

The Census Department has received returns showing the population of the electoral district of Yale and Cariboo to be 57,400. This does not include the separate district of Cariboo, the return for which in 1891 was 12,180.

Ontario Men Not so Plucky

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—The harvesters who came to Manitoba to help in the harvest fields continue to return east in spite of the abundance of work in the province. William Stitt, of the C.P.R., stated yesterday that the evident reason for this was the manner in which the threshers or farmers were using the men. It appears that the men are not given steady work, their pay is not as large as it might be, and Mr. Stitt thinks that the recent bad weather has discouraged a large number who did not appear to be getting rich fast enough to suit their ideas. The assistant general passenger agent also expressed the opinion that the Ontario immigrant was not as plucky as the Englishmen, and being so handy to their homes a slight inclemency in the weather scared them back.

She Kissed the Duke

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—An amusing incident occurred during the stay of the Duke and Duchess of York at Poplar Point, which evidently escaped the notice of the correspondents who accompanied the party. When the Duke returned to the railway station from the lake he was met by the Duchess who embraced her royal spouse affectionately. The greeting was scarcely over when a buxom woman, who was among the country folk assembled to see the party depart, bounced up to the Duke, caught him in her arms and planked a smacking kiss on his cheek. The Duchess laughed heartily, and the Duke seemed likewise to enjoy the experience immensely after he recovered from his amazement. The good lady explained that she just wished to have the distinction of having kissed the future King of England.

Will Win Trade or Lose Millions

London, Oct. 22.—Mr. J. B. Duke, leader of the American tobacco combination, who is at present in Live bination, who is at present in Liverpool, is reported to have said that he would capture the British trade within the next four years or lose a million tarling in the attempt. This challenge has been accepted by the foremost British manufacturers, who are mustering their forces as quickly as possible. Since the list of firms who have banded themselves together to fight the American invasion was published, the English combination has received several additional supporters. Other firms are expected to join in when the strugle has commenced in real earnest. For the present both sides seem to be playing a waiting game. The American invaders made a move when they granted a concession to retail tobacco firms encouraging them to stock with their brands, but English manufacturers regard it merely as a feint.

Weather Notes

Probs—To-day; Continued fine and not much change in temperature.

Moderately warm weather is fairly general throughout Canada. In Quebec and the Maritime Provinces a few showers have occurred, but elsewhere [illegible] weather prevails.

Gen. Sir Redvers Buller Has Been Relieved

London, Oct. 23, 4.30 a.m.

Sir Redvers Buller has been relieved of the command of the army corps in consequence of the speech he made Oct. 10, after the luncheon given in his honor by the King's Royal Rifles, dealing with his famous despatch to General White at Ladysmith. He has been placed on half pay and General French has been appointed to succeed him.

In the official announcement, the War Office says that the Commander-in-Chief, "after full consideration of all the circumstances and the explanation furnished," recommend that General Buller be relieved, which has been done.

N'Connel Gave Up $3,000

New York, Oct. 22.—Harry O'Connell, of 149 West 28th street, surrendered himself to the police to-day and gave up $3,000 which he said was part of the money stolen by Bank Messenger George Armitage on October 15 from the Bank of New Amsterdam. O'Connell said that after the robbery of Armitage by the woman there was still $3,500 left, which Armitage handed over to O'Connell to keep. O'Connell said he and the bank messenger went on a spree and spent $500 of the money. The remaining $3,000 he had kept. O'Connell was held for examination before a magistrate.

Insurrection in Samar

Washington, Oct. 22.—The Navy Department has received the following cablegram from Rear Admiral Rodgers: "Cavite, Oct. 22.—Active insurrection in Samar. New York leaves to-day with 300 marines to return to Basey and Balangiga to co-operate with army. Nearly all naval force concentrated on Samar patrol. Services Arethusa and Zafiro, two colliers, needed and being utilized. (Signed) RODGERS." Naval officers construe the despatch to mean that the New York will go first to Catbalogan and then to Basey and Balangiga, landing detachments of marines at each point.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 23 1901

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I luv a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 75 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M. P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. B. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bastow thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Baptie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above and a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

LEGISLATURE TO MEET EARLY.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—The Provincial Legislature will meet early in Januard. The announcement was made by Premier Ross this morning. It was almost a complete surprise to the Opposition, which had been counting upon an election before a session. Why the Opposition leaders were so confident of an election is not clear, for none of the usual preparations for an election have been made throughout the Province, and there has been none of that stir about the Liberal headquarters which betoken a campaign on the tapis. Premier Ross, in announcing the matter this morning, did so as briefly as possible.

"It is our intention to have a session early in January," he said. "The Mail is barking up the wrong tree this morning when it predicts an earlier session of the House. The Mail's article was evidently inspired by the publication of the financial statement of the Province for the past nine months. There is nothing significant in the compilation of such a statement, as the Mail endeavors to convey. A statement is prepared every month of the state of the finances. Such a statement has been prepared for the last two or three years. It is for the use of the several departments and is not usually given out. No significance should be attached to it. There will be no session before January."

CHINESE COURT'S JOURNEY

Pekin, Oct 22.—Reports of the court's journey are received daily. A Magistrate near Tungwan, where the court stopped for three days, was degraded because the roads, owing to heavy rains, were unfit for travel.

Mr. Nichols of the Christian Herald left to-day for Shensi to verify the reports of famine there and to determine the need of further relief. If additional aid is not required he will decide whether it is feasible to establish refuges for future famine sufferers. He means to utilize for this purpose the funds collected for the famine sufferers. Prince Ching says that famine is still prevalent. It is understood here that the corps have greatly relieved the situation. No complaints have been received. It is reported that officials are stealing from the funds already sent.

B Battery of the Royal Horse Artillery will sail from Taku for India to-day. The Third Bombay Cavalry will sail at the end of the month, and the Twelfth Battery of Royal Field Artillery will leave on Nov. 8.

STOPS THE COUGH AND WORKS OFF THE COLD

Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure, No Pay. Price 25 cents.

"Pain in the head and back" is a form of suffering with which so many women are familiar. Often this pain is associated with nervousness, sleeplessness and loss of appetite. The cause of such suffering is generally to be traced to derangement of the womanly function, or a diseased condition of the delicate womanly organs.

In such cases the action of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is marvelous in the prompt relief of pain and permanent cure of disease. It regulates the periodic function, dries disagreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It cures when all other means have been tried in vain.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

In a little over thirty years Dr. Pierce, assisted by his staff of nearly a score of physicians, has cured more than half a million women.

"I was a great sufferer for six years and doctored all the time with a number of different physicians, but did not receive any benefit," writes Mrs. George Sogden, of 641 Bonds Street, Saginaw (South), Mich. "One day as I was reading a paper I saw your advertisement, and, although I had given up all hope of ever getting better, thought I would write to you. When I received your letter, telling me what to do, I commenced to take your 'Favorite Prescription' and follow your advice. I have taken ten bottles in all, also five vials of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' Am now regular after having missed two years and suffered with pain in the head and back. I was so nervous, could not eat or sleep. Now I thank you for my recovery."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness.

IN THE MARYLAND HILLS.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

It was an early December twilight and snow, which had been rain an hour before, beat against the car windows and stuck there in large flakes. It followed the conductor in at the door in a steely gust, the girl in the third seat shivered and drew the imitation sables closer about her throat. Steve Patterson glanced from under the visor of his conductor's cap at his one lady passenger. She was not a pretty girl, according to Steve's standards. Her face was too small and pale under the shadow of her big hat. When she boarded the car two hours earlier there had been excited brightness in her eyes and a faint color in her cheeks. Now she leaned back against the seat, tired and inert, and there was a pathetic droop at the corners of her mouth. As she glanced up at him shyly Steve thought of a kitten that he had fished out of a horse pond years ago, and he smiled at the comparison as he passed on into the next car.

A little later he came back. The rattle and cracking of the train had stopped.

"Tunnel caved in ahead," he explained to the three men in the front of the car. Then he smiled reassuringly at his lady passenger.

"Tain't nothin' to be scared about, miss," he assured her, sitting down on the arm of the seat opposite. "Just means a-lyin' off here a spell—an' cultivatin' a-little patience," he added jocosely as the drummer swung himself out, growling as he went.

The girl smiled, but her eyes were somber.

"Do you reckon we'll get into Philadelphia on time?" she questioned timidly.

Steve shook his head.

"Couldn't make it before 10, miss, or 11 mebbe. It's a three-hour job, anyhow."

The girl's chin quivered.

"But what'll I do?" she demanded, with a catch in her voice. "Mebbe he won't wait! Mebbe he'll think I ain't comin'! I ain't used to travelin' alone!" and two tears dropped among the fuzzy tails of her collarette.

Steve smiled encouragingly.

"Don't you fret, miss. Your friends 'll wait," he assured her. "They won't take no chance of lettin' a little thing like you get in alone."

But she shook her head.

"I ain't got no friends there — but him," and a wave of color swept into her face.

Steve had a tender, conscientious heart. He leaned across and laid a large protecting hand on the arm of the opposite seat.

"Is it your brother that's goin' to meet you—or your uncle, mebbe?" he suggested.

She shook her head again. Then suddenly she lifted her wet, childish eyes.

"I'm—I'm running away to get married," she gasped in tremulous confession. "He said I'd get in at 7—an' we'd go straight to the preacher's, but now—oh! I wish I hadn't come!" and she buried her face in her muff.

Steve crossed over and sat down beside her. Elopements were no novelty to the young conductor; but this pale little girl of 17 or so was a different matter. He patted her slim shoulder with awkward gentleness.

"You tell me about it," he suggested, "an' mebbe I can help you. I lay off at Philadelphia myself."

After a little she poured out her story, an old one to Steve, but a new and romantic one to the little milliner's apprentice from Smithsburg. Her face brightened in the telling. Her innocent eyes sparkled and she spoke of her lover's fine clothes and city manners with a pretty air of conscious pride.

One Tessie Bickford, the milliner's "other help," figured largely in the romance. It was she who had arranged the clandestine meetings and had declared many times that "she'd like to see any step-paw meddlin' in her concerns an' sayin' who she should go with an' who she shouldn't!"

Steve knit his brow as he listened. How could he tell this innocent, unsophisticated little thing of other girls who had left their homes to meet lovers who were rich in promises or of women who haunted the city streets after nightfall—women with cold eyes that had once been soft and innocent and haggard cheeks under the pitiful mask of paint?

"Does your step-pa treat you bad?" he asked presently.

"No," she acknowledged, "he don't treat me bad. Sometimes he's right kind; but he hadn't ought to be bossin' me when he ain't my real paw! I'm tired of never bein' let to do things like other girls—an' maw takin' his side"—

"What do you s'pose your ma'll do when she finds you're gone?" Steve suggested.

The girl sighed.

"I reckon poor maw'll feel right bad," she confessed. "She's always made much o' me, maw has. He said he'd telegraph when we was married, but that'll be powerful late now. I reckon maw'll be wore out worryin'," and she looked at him with troubled eyes.

Steve nodded.

"I guess likely she will, miss," he assented gravely. "Mothers is dreadful hands to worry, 'specially when it's night comin' on an' the wind's blowin'," he added as a gust made the windows rattle.

"My mother was that kind," he went on presently, "an' it riles a-body sometimes, worryin' does; but it's mighty lonesome when there ain't anybody to care how late you come in—an' to keep the coffee-pot hot, mebbe, along with the scoldin. Sometimes mother's jawin' is mighty kindmeant!" and the big conductor sighed.

"I ain't much on advisin' folks," he continued awkwardly, "but it seems to me that a chap that'll coax a girl to run off an' leave her folks ain't actin' on the square, 'specially if he makes her do the runnin' alone an' risk missin' him in a big city. An' if a man ain't square, miss, no girl hadn't oughter trust him—not if he talks as beautiful as a phonograph an' dresses as fine as a tailor's dummy!"

Another passenger stamped out and the old man near the stove swore at the draft in a placid West Virginia drawl. Steve went forward to mend the fire and while he was gone the girl thought of many things. She recalled stories that had followed Tessie Bickford from Philadelphia—bits of gossip and innuendo, to which she had loyally shut her ears; and she thought of a neighbor's allusion to her fine lover as "one of that Bickford girl's shady friends." She wondered if what she had called love had been after all, only flattered vanity, and when Steve came back he found her sitting erect, clutching her bag.

"I'm goin back to-night if I have to walk!" she announced bravely. "I'm just tormented thinkin' about maw!" and she caught her breath with a sob.

Steve took out his watch.

"It's only two miles to Tylersville," he suggested practically, "an' you could catch the 7.10 on the other road an be home before 9. I guess I could see you over there without any danger of the train's runnin' away while I'm done," he added with cheerful jocularity.

They said very little as they splashed through the mud. Once the girl spoke.

"You've been awful good," she said gratefully, "an'," in an awed whisper, "I reckon the Lord must must a-made that tunnel cave in."

"I guess mebbe he did, miss," said Steve reverently, and then they plodded on through the wind and sleet.

Two hours later a thin, little woman opened a kitchen door and peered anxiously out into the darkness. She listened intently and then gave a sigh of relief at the sound of a step on a walk.

"Miss Green kep' you dreadful late, honey," she said, drawing the girl into the light and warmth. "My, but you're wet! I've been worryin' some—it's such a black night! Your paw 'lowed if you wasn't here by 9 he'd get into his gum boots an' go fetch you—spite o' his rheumatis. He sets a heap o' store by you, paw does!" she added wistfully. "There ain't a-many makes o' their own girls the way he always done o' you!"

The girl flushed.

"He's a heap kinder'n he'd oughter be," she sobbed. "Oh maw!" and she hid her face on the little woman's shoulder.

As Steve opened the door of his boarding house in Philadelphia a jangle of rag time music greeted him and shrill voices called to him from the little parlor, but he passed on and up the stairs, flinging a jocose excuse in the direction of the gaudy portieres.

"It's funny how a girl that ain't—well, not to say pretty—can make a fellow feel sometimes," he soliloquized, sitting on the edge of his iron bed. "I guess I'll lay off to Smithsburg next vacation. Mebbe a little Maryland air'll be good for my health," and he smiled happily as he pulled off his boots.

ARMY REFORM

London, Oct. 22.—The war is now nearly a month on the third year of existence, and people are wondering how much longer it will last. The resistance of the Boers is certainly remarkable, and that so many are still in the field is due to two things: 1st, the ignorance of the rank and file of the burghers, and, 2nd, the foreign element, including colonial rebels, that are constantly joining the Boer forces.

Public apprehension respecting the King's health may not be groundless, but it is at least premature. The King is not believed to be severely indisposed by those who have access to the court or are in touch with diplomatic circles. At the same time it is probable that he has been nervous and apprehensive respecting his throat ailment, and that the physicians have found it difficult to reassure him. It is also said that the insurance companies are not willing to take additional risks on his life. This is not an idle rumor, but a statement made by an insurance expert who has the best facilities for learning the facts in the case. There is much irresponsible talk about the King's failing health, but it may be attributed mainly to the despondency prevailing in England since the outbreak of the Boer war. Diogenes with his lamp would find it easier to discover in the streets of London an honest man than a hopeful one.

The resumption of Boer operations on a large scale in two remote fields has brought the government under the fire of political guerrillas. The ministers are reproached for taking holidays, neglecting their work and accepting with credulous facility assurances from their civil and military advisers that everything is going well in South Africa. Mr. Brodrick has been constantly at the war office, and he has a passion for work and redtape. He has not made a single sanguine or reassuring reference to the war since he succeeded Lord Lansdowne. The croakers can hardly find fault with him for taking too favorable a view of the progress of the war; nor is it reasonable for them to infer that the ministers, by holding private councils, could have forestalled General Botha's raid in Zululand.

Botha and Delarey have concealed their purposes and made effective demonstrations a fortnight after the expiration of the time limit of Lord Kitchener's proclamation, and a similar raid by Generals De Wet and Steyn may be expected daily as an ironical reminder that the war which the Aldershot tacticians imagined would be a holiday parade has entered upon its third year. Criticism of Lord Kitchener, Lord Milner and the ministers for lack of foresight in forecasting Boer activity is futile. The Boer remains at the end as he was at the beginning of the war, a unique adversary with terrible persistence, who succeeds in reversing every tradition of military experience and brings to naught every prediction and calculation.

If the Liberals were united and not demoralized, there would be destructive criticism in the place of guerilla attacks upon Lord Kitchener, Lord Milner, Mr. Brodrick, and Mr. Chamberlain. As it is, there is ineffective, cheap finding by the press, and nothing is accomplished. The military staff is reproached for not following up the shattered columns of Botha and Delarey after their defeats and bluntly told that what it is doing is neither war nor business. There is a widespread feeling of dissatisfaction in regard to the conduct of the war, but the Unionist press, while reflecting it, cannot perform the functions of a well organized opposition. Mr. Kipling is more effective when he condemns with fine irony the acceptance of imaginary army corps and imaginary generals as serious additions to the national defenses and interprets the recent appointment of Sir Redvers Buller, Sir Evelyn Wood and the Duke of Connaught as evidence that the army machine has been hauled back into the old ruts of impotence, pretense and collapse. There has been an outburst of public impatience over the conduct of officers who take pianos and kitchen ranges with them when they are chasing the Boers, and there is a well founded conviction that incompetent generals have been protected by social influence and the Aldershot gang.

But neither the ministry nor the war office is imperilled by the present conditions of criticism. General Buller has been attacked with great vehemence, but has not been taken the trouble to conceal his contempt for the newspaper warriors. The genuine reformers in the army consider the outlook for a radical reorganization hopeless. They say that the army has begun to fight under new conditions of warfare, but that martinets of Pall Mall and Aldershot cannot forget traditions and redtape. Some of them assert that royalty alone can bring about a permanent reform, and are hoping for the appointment of the Duke of Connaught as commander-in-chief.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 21.—The Church Missionary Society has received mail reports showing that the bubonic plague is ravaging Foo Chow and vicinity. Fifteen hundred cases of the disease are reported daily and for a couple of weeks upwards of a thousand coffins have been carried out of the city gates each day.

THE MAN FOR GALWAY.

London, Oct. 21.—The Nationalists of Galway have elected Arthur Lynch to contest the vacancy in the House of Commons. Mr. Lynch served as a colonel in the 2nd Irish Brigade with the Boers, operating in Natal under Gen. Botha, and afterwards in the Orange River Colony. When Pretoria fell Mr. Lynch returned to France, where he remains. He will doubtless be arrested if he returns to Ireland.

SIR ARCHIBALD L. SMITH DEAD.

London, Oct. 21.—Sir Archibald Levin Smith, who recently resigned the post of Master of the Rolls on account of ill-health died last night in Morayshire, Scotland. He had rowed thrice with Cambridge against Oxford. He was born in 1834.

THE LEADERS BANISHED.

Pretoria, Oct. 21.—Twelve more Boer leaders, including Commandant Scheepers, whose capture was announced on August 12, have been permanently banished from South Africa.

RELEASED FROM KILMAIN

Dublin, Oct. 21.—Patrick A. McHugh, member of Parliament for the North Division of Leitrim, who was sentenced April 23 to six months' imprisonment as a first-class misdemeanant for publishing in his paper, The Sligo Champion, seditious libels calculated to interfere with the administration of justice, was released from Kilmainham jail to-day. Mr. McHugh was accorded an enthusiastic reception by a large crowd of people. The Lord Mayor of Dublin, Sir Thos. D. Pile, a numerous deputation from Sligo, and John O'Dowd, member for South Sligo, and John O'Donnell, member for South Mayo, were among those who welcomed him to liberty. Mr. McHugh drove in the Lord Mayor's carriage, followed by a long procession of carriages, to a hotel where a luncheon was given in his honor. Mr. McHugh will sail for New York with John Redmond and John O'Donnell on the steamer Majestic, which leaves Queenstown Thursday.

REBELS LOSE HEAVILY.

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 21.—Letters received here from Panama, say the Colombian rebels lost heavily in a battle near that place last Tuesday. The rebels are concentrating in a camp in the neighborhood, and both sides are preparing for a clash, which, it is expected, will largely determine the fate of the revolution.

A NEW STEEL COMPANY.

Pittsburg, Oct. 19.—The Post says: A new independent steel corporation that is shortly to be ready to enter the market in competition with the United States Steel Corporation has been formed in Pittsburg. The new concern is known as the Everson Steel Corporation. The general offices of the company are at present located in Pittsburg, and much interest has been aroused in local steel circles over the outcome of the enterprise. The new company is incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, and has a capital of $1,000,000. A site for the extensive plant that is to be built has been optioned along the Ohio River not far from Pittsburg. Within ten months it is proposed to have mill buildings costing $545,000 completed and 1,000 men employed.

A WHITE MAN'S COUNTRY.

Washington, Oct. 19.—President Roosevelt's action in entertaining Booker T. Washington, the President of Tuskegee Institute, at dinner last evening has caused comment among Southerners here. There is but one similar instance within recollection when persons of colored blood dined at the White House. That was when Queen Liliuokalani visited this country to resist the proposed annexation of the Hawaiian Islands, and was entertained at dinner by President Cleveland.

The Commercial-Appeal, of Memphis Tenn., under the caption of "A White Man's Country," discussing the entertainment of Booker Washington at the White House, says:

"This is a white man's country. It will continue to be such as long as clean blood flows through the veins of white people. The negro is entitled to his rights under the law, and the men who stand for white supremacy are the strongest advocates of granting him these rights. But beyond that they will not go. The example of president or potentate cannot change their views. President Roosevelt has committed a blunder that is worse than a crime, and no atonement or future act of his can remove the self-imprinted stigma."

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing) or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial and did not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the disease having been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh, and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema same price. $10 will be paid for any case they will not permanently cure.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.

R. V. PIERCE, M.D.

President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1901.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for so securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1866, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.

New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and almost successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of limitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,

Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.

JOS. H. HANSEN,

Adv. Dept. Southern Railway

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease, plasters aggrivated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds, Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

Not a Relative

The Toronto Tory organ states that Mr. R. R. Hall is a brother-in-law of Hon. Mr. Stratton. This will be news to our readers. The idea is, we suppose, because he is Mr. Stratton's brother's partner he therefore is his brother-in-law. These are the kind of arguments that are being used in connection with No. 1 dam matter just now.

MR. BOGUE'S WORK.

He Has Taken Another Big Contract from the Cereal People

Mr. James Bogue, is a thorough mechanic, and knows his business. The fine work he has already done on the Cereal Company's buildings was mainly instrumental in assuring for him another big contract from the same concern. The contract which he is now engaged in is well under way, and will be completed before the new year.

The new contract which he has just taken is for the construction of the foundations of the big 500,000 bushel elevator in connection with the Quaker Oats Company's operations here. The building will be 65 x 160 in size, and 130 feet high and the contract calls for the completion of the foundations by January 1st. Mr. Bogue is evidently the right man in the right place.

Where Doctors do agree!—Physicians no longer consider it catering to "quackery" in recommending in practice so meritorious a remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Nervousness as South American Nervine. They realize that it is a step in advance in medical science and a sure and permanent cure for diseases of the stomach. It will cure you.—46

A HOME WEDDING.

Nuptials of Miss M. M. Brownlee and Mr. [A. T. Bishop

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at the residence of Mr. J. Brownlee, Chamberlain street, on Monday evening, when his charming daughter, Miss Magdalene Margaret, was united in marriage to Mr. A. T. Bishop, in the presence of a number of intimate friends.

The nupital knot was tied by Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's church. The bridesmaid was Miss Maggie Brownlee, sister of the bride, and the groomsman, Mr. Charles Jones.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding dinner was served.

The large number of beautiful wedding presents testified to the popularity of the bride.

Nuptials of Mr. A. B. Cunningham and Miss Maud Allin

Allin, was united in marriage to Mr. A. B. Cunningham, of the Canadian General Electric Works. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. O. Crossley, of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, in the presence of only a few intimate friends and relatives.

The bride was prettily attired in a dress of white organdie and was attended by her sister, Miss Annie, who was similarly attired. The groom was supported by Mr. Jack Milne. The newly married couple left on the afternoon train for New York and other points, and will, on their return take up their residence on Reid street. The Times joins in congratulations.

AN ARMY AFTER VENISON

More Than Six Thousand Licenses Have Been Issued Already.

Game Warden Tinsley says that Ontario can completely discount the mammoth moose head from the Kippewa district, Quebec.

"Why, the horns of the moose head the department sent to the Pan-American measured 67 inches, while the one they are blowing so much about down east measures only 63 1-2 inches," said Mr. Tinsley this morning." "And that big moose was killed within two hundred miles of Toronto, too. He was bagged at Powassan."

Already between five and six thousand deer licenses have been issued. The number of issues of deer licenses has been materially increased this year. Over two score special wardens have been sworn in to take charge of the deer camps in Northern Ontario this fall.

COFFEE DID IT

Would Have Been Fatal if Kept Up.

"Coffee! Oh how I did want it after the nervous strain of public work. Something warm to brace me up was all the breakfast I craved, but every time I drank it, I suffered the dying sensation that follows it with heart fluttering and throbbing of the throat and ears.

I had no strength to throw away in that way, so decided that hot water must do for me.

One morning I came to breakfast at the home of some friends in Pueblo, Colo. Just in time to see the Mother pouring some rich deep yellow coffee into mugs for the two little boys. One little chap had thrust his fingers in the mug and was licking them with such approving smacks. This opened the way for me to say, 'Are you not afraid of the effects of coffee on the little folks?' The mother explained that it was Postum Food Coffee made at Battle Creek, Michigan, and remarked, 'we think there is nothing like it.' Then she explained how the new coffee had weaned them away from the use of the old-fashioned coffee and tea because 'it is so wholesome.' I drank it there for the first time, and was delighted, not only with the delicious flavor, but the after satisfaction it gives. One day I was speaking with our family physician's wife about Postum, when her daughter remarked, 'Yes, Mamma, we are out of Postum, and I have used coffee for the last two mornings and it always brings the tired feeling and troubles my stomach and bowels, but Postum makes me feel all right.'

In one home they served Postum in such a way that it was tasteless. I have found that Postum boiled sometimes five minutes, and sometimes ten, is nothing more than spoiled water, but when it is made with two heaping teaspoonsful for each cup, and boiled fifteen or twenty minutes it becomes a tried and proven breakfast favorite, and for refreshment and wholesome nourishment, has no equal." ESTIMABLE LADY DEAD

Mrs. J. Frith Jeffers Passed to Her Reward on Sunday Night

The Belleville Intelligencer refers as follows to the death on Friday, of Mrs. J. Frith Jeffers, who had many close and warm friends in Peterborough:

"Many were the expressions of regret heard to-day when it became known that Mrs. J. Frith Jeffers had passed away. She had been seriously ill for some time and her demise was anticipated. At 10.30 last night she expired. Deceased, whose maiden name was Mary Adelaide Ketcheson, was a daughter of Mr. Elias C. Ketcheson, of the 1st concession of Sidney, where she was born 53 years ago. Some 29 years ago she was united in marriage to Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, during which period they have resided in Picton, Peterborough, London, Toronto and this city, coming here four years ago. Mrs. Jeffers was in every sense of the word a true Christian lady, having been for many years a member of the Methodist church. A husband, but no family survive. To Mr. Jeffers will be extended the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends and relatives.

"The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, and was numerously attended. The teachers and students of the Belleville Business College attended in a body. The religious services at the home of the deceased were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Crothers, assisted by Rev. J. H. Locke and Rev. Chas. E. McIntyre of Napanee. The bearers were Messrs W. R. Aylesworth, R. J. Graham, Wm. Johnston, F. E. O'Flynn, Chas. M. Reid and J. A. Tousaw.

"Amongst those in attendance from a distance were Mrs. Jeffers' sister, Mrs. (Rev. James) Graham, of Toronto; her brother and sister-in-law, Dr. Wellington Jeffers and Mrs. Jeffers, of Lindsay; a nephew, Rev. John W. Graham, Jr., pastor of Great Saint James Methodist church of Montreal, and Hon. Geo. A. and Mrs. Cox, of Toronto.

"The floral tributes from friends in the city and different parts of the province were many and beautiful."

Catarrh is a Germ Disease

Science, armed with the microscope, has established it a fact, and this conclusion renders obsolete the practice of treating Asthma, Catarrh and Bronchitis by stomach drugging, sprays snuffs, &c. Such treatments are an utter failure because they cannot penetrate the delicate air cells of the lungs, or permeate the air passages of the nose and bronchial tubes where the germs of Catarrh have their stronghold. Catarrhozone is the only certain remedy. It is inhaled by the mouth and after spreading through all the respiratory organs is exhaled through the nostrils. Catarrhozone kills the germs, heals the inflamed tissues, clears the head and throat in two minutes, and cures in a few hours Nothing is so effective, pleasant and simple as Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment $1.00. Small size, 25. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co. Kingston Ont.

FOR THE CHASE.

The Gold Lake Party Leaves on Saturday Next.

The members of the Gold Lake Hunting Club leave for the north on Saturday, and the woods in the neighborhood of Gold Lake will be a dangerous locality for man and beast during the stay of the party.

Mr. Arthur Blade has again been elected captain, and will adopt the rules which have been in force heretofore. The party will leave the Snowden House in several rigs, taking with them their canoes, provisions, guns, rifles, bludgeons, razors, and buttermilk. Their first stopping place will be at Buckhorn, where Mayor Eastwood will deliver an address of welcome from the top of the rock in front of the hotel, which will be replied to by Chief Snowden, in a well-regulated speech 27 feet long. Before these formalities take place, Eastwood will have the precaution of putting the key of the bar in his trousers pocket, so that no undue advantage be had by one member over another. It is only by such a well-regulated and pre-arranged system that the club owes its great success.

Two hours will be allowed for refreshments, when a start north will be made and the middle section of the journey covered. During the stay at Buckhorn several dog fights will be arranged to take place at convenient intervals and Mr. Tom Rutherford will play a comb solo on an instrument which has been in the family for 200 years.

Arriving at Gold Lake the party will at once embark for the lodge, several miles distant, where they will stay until Nov. 15.

TEACHERS' CONVENTION

Will Take Place Friday and Saturday in Norwood.

The annual convention of the teachers of Peterborough County will be held in Norwood next Friday and Saturday, October 25 and 26.

Not only teachers, but the general public, are welcome at these conventions. The convention promises to be interesting, successful, and well attended.

It opens at nine o'clock sharp each day.

Mr. Kindred, of Havelock, is President, and Mr. M. W. Matchett, of Ashburnham, is Secretary-Treasurer.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I luv a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 75 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. B. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bastow thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Baptie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that, in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

AUBURN EMPLOYEES PROTEST

They State Their Opinion in Regard to the Dan Spence Memorial

The Times has been requested to publish the following in regard to the "Dan Spence Memorial Fund:"

"We, as subscribers to the fund, wish to state the case from our point of view, and

First.—It was decided at a public meeting that the memorial should be an ambulance;

Second.—That the ambulance was to be presented to the town a free gift;

Third.—The town was to accept it and place the same in the fire hall or some other convenient place, and the town horses were to be used in drawing the ambulance wherever required free of expense to the citizens.

Now, Mr. Editor, it was upon this understanding that subscriptions were solicited and obtained, and nothing has occurred since to change the position.

Every one will allow that the way our sick people are carted around at present is a disgrace to the town. They are moved about in trucks, carts, lumber waggons, express vans, cabs and buggies, in fact, anything on wheels, it makes no difference whether it is small pox, diptheria, typhoid fever or broken limbs, the same cab after taking a patient to the hospital, perhaps with some infectious disease, will be used in drawing passengers to or from the railway stations. Accidents happening at any of our numerous factories, the unfortunate victim generally has to find his or her way the best way they can, be they men, women, boys or girls.

The fact that Aaron Comstock has bought an ambulance does not alter the case in any way. Mr. Comstock purchased an ambulance as a business investment, and his charge of $1 a trip is more money than the poor employees earning small wages can afford to pay.

Mr. Dumble and Mr. Fair, wealthy men, would no doubt in case of need use the Comstock outfit, but what we want is a free service for the benefit of the poor and our workingmen especially in cases of accidents at any of the different factories in town.

We have already protested against the money subscribed and paid by the Auburn Woolen Company's employees being diverted to any other purpose than that originally intended, and we propose to stand by that protest.

We are informed that $2000 will buy a suitable ambulance, and the fund is reported to be some $450. The additional money, we are sure, can easily be collected.

Mr. Williamson, the originator of the ambulance scheme, we feel confident, will see this matter brought to a successful issue.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor.

Signed on behalf of the Auburn Woolen Company employees.

WIFE WOULD MARRY OVER MAN'S COFFIN

Mrs. White Fairly Hated Husband and Could Marry Another Man

MRS. PARTRIDGE'S STORY.

What Mrs. White Said During Visit in Hamilton—Crown will try to Prove Arsenic Poisoning

Brantford, Oct. 23.—The trial of Josephine White, on a charge of poisoning her husband, which commenced yesterday before Chief Justice Meredith, continued to-day, the court room being crowded. The witnesses were called yesterday to prove that the relations between the husband and wife were not pleasant. The first witness this morning was Mrs. Partridge of Hamilton, cousin of the deceased White, and her evidence was the most sensational yet given. She said that at one time when Mrs. White was visiting her in Hamilton she said that she fairly hated her husband, that there was another man in Brantford whom she could marry; that such men as he did not die very soon, and that she would marry over his coffin.

CALLED HER NAMES.

The witness was subjected to a searching cross-examination by L. F. Heyd, K.C., and in this she admitted some things bearing on her regard for the White family. She said that Geo. White, a son of the deceased, and his wife had boarded with her in Hamilton. This White had made a remark which displeased her, and she was cool towards him after that. At a later time she repeated some gossip about the man to his wife. Mrs. White called her, the witness, a liar and a fool, and she had slapped her face. She knew that the prisoner had been separated from her husband at different times, but at any time that she visited them they seemed to be on good terms.

Dr. Marquis, the physician who was called to attend the deceased, White, and who also assisted in the post-mortem, gave part of his evidence this morning. He told of the condition of the patient when he arrived, and also of the effect that arsenic would have if it were administered day after day in quantities not sufficient to kill.

THE CROWN'S CASE.

It is expected that the case will last all week. The Crown is only about half through, and the defence will call a large number of witnesses. The Crown will endeavour to prove that the prisoner administered arsenic to her husband in small doses, so as to cause an illness during the few days preceding death, so as to make death from strychnine poisoning less suspicious. The defence will claim either that White, who had previously been suffering from la grippe, took the strychnine by mistake or that he followed out an intent, often expressed while despondent, of committing suicide.

IT ASTOUNDS SCIENTISTS.

NEW WIRELESS SYSTEM OF TELEGRAPHY

Ground is Used for Transmission—Sounds, Morse Dots and Power Carried—Tones Divided into 40,000 Varying Tones.

London, Oct. 24.—Scientific London stands astounded but deeply gratified at the results of experiments with the new system of wireless telegraph, as it may be called, although it is really much more than a mere transmission of telegraphic signals.

Sounds, as they are conveyed over the telephone circuits, are sent by this wonderful system, and, of great further importance, electrical power of high strength speeds to distant points and does its work just as well as if it were carried by the ordinary metallic circuits.

Indeed, the new system, known as the Armorli system, bears many points of superiority over that of Marconi, whom all honor as the pioneer, the Columbus of wireless communication. The invention is the joint work of Ariel Orling, a Swede, and J. T. Armstrong, an Englishman, who have been working without the blare of publicity's trumpets, until they have finally perfected their remarkable ideas, making actual facts of theories.

GROUND FOR TRANSMISSION.

The new invention does not use the air for transmission, as does that of Marconi. The electric waves are sent through the ground, and one charm is the simplicity and cheapness of the electrical installation. There are no tall masts, as are used at present, to hoist the sending and receiving points far into air, out of the reach of interference.

There can be no interference by the Armorli system. Mr. Armstrong has discovered that he can vary the pitch or tone in which the radiations are sent, much after the fashion of the quadruplex and duplex system in telegraphy, by which the electric currents are divided, and pass each other on one wire without interference.

There are 40,000 different tones, no one of which will conflict with another, so the chance of two tones of the same nature meeting and destroying one or both is reduced to one in 40,000.

Yesterday's experiments were made at the home of Mr. Armstrong in Buckinghamshire. The conditions were of the worst, since a heavy rain had fallen for 24 hours, and there was a thick fog enveloping everything. Nevertheless, the experiments were absolutely satisfactory to the experts invited to witness them.

OUTFIT CARRIED IN A MAN'S HANDS.

The entire outfit for either end of the work was readily carried in the hands of one man. A set was taken out to a field and a spike attached to each was stuck into the ground, 1,500 feet apart.

The apparatus for telephoning differs from that for telegraphing, but both occupy a small compass. That for the transmission of power will fill greater or less space, according to the amount of power required, but, in any case, it is remarkably small.

The experiments consisted in telephoning, in transmitting the ordinary Morse signals (dots and dashes), in maneuvering a torpedo in a small lake by the development of which feature it may be seen that the [illegible] [illegible] strongest of fortifications can be rendered useless; the lighting of a lamp in a house two miles and a half away by pressing a button, the extinguishing of the light by again pressing the button, and the exchanging of signals between ships. The torpedo was made to execute the strangest of evolutions at the will of the operator, and suggested by those who looked on.

It was agreed that the new system has a limitless field.

The inventors are not yet willing to give out the secrets of their work, to which no one can object, since, according to the expert electricians present, they have perfected the electrical triumph of all times to date.

Twin Babes Abandoned

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Two babies only a few minutes old were found lying in a pillow-case on Notre Dame street this morning at 4 o'clock. The infants are both girls. They were taken in by Mrs. Jean Baptiste Lafrance, and the whole neighborhood flocked to see the children. One was blue with the cold and may die. The police are looking for the mother.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 23.—The afternoon newspapers to-day agree that the dismissal of Gen. Buller from the command of the first Army Corps and placing him on half-pay was inevitable. It appears that the General was only officially notified of the decision late yesterday evening, the notification being delivered at his official residence at Aldershot by a special messenger from the War Office at about the same time as it was issued to the newspapers. This morning's army orders at Aldershot announce that General Buller has already given up his command.

JAPANESE LOAN OF $5,000,000.

Yokohama, Oct. 23.—The Treasury officials announce the issue of Exchequer bills to the amount of $5,000,000, repayable in ten months at 7 per cent. interest. Negotiations continue for the sale of the bonds abroad.

NOT A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Yokohama, Oct. 23.—The accident which caused the United States transport Sheridan, from Manila to San Francisco, with over 1,000 troops on board, to put into Nagasaki is not of a serious nature. Her tail shaft is damaged, and she will be docked for repairs.

EMPEROR AND BEGGAR GIRL.

Vienna, Oct. 23.—When the Emperor Francis Joseph was yesterday stepping into his carriage after visiting an exhibition, a little girl, very poorly clad, ran forward and stretched out a dirty piece of paper towards the monarch. Two detectives seized the girl and would have dragged her away but the Emperor interfered and told them to leave her alone. Then he beckoned to her to approach him, and took the paper from her hand. During the drive home the Emperor read the paper and ordered it to be attended to. It was a petition for aid for the aged grandmother of the little beggar-girl.

Paris, Oct. 23.—The special law concerning anarchists and the propagation of their principles, passed by M. Dupuy's Cabinet in 1894, and so vehemently denounced at the time by the present Minister of Commerce, received its first application yesterday, when Tailhade, the well known anarchist writer and poet, and M. Grandidier, the publisher of The Libertaire, were sentenced for the publication of an article during the Czar's stay in France, which contained an incitement to murder. The Act inflicts fines varying from one hundred francs to two thousand francs or orders imprisonment from three months to two years.

M. Emile Zola, the famous novelist, in his testimony at the trial said that he had a profound friendship for M. Tailhade, and he willingly came to the witness bar to pay him his tribute of admiration, for he was a writer who honored French literature. The article for which he was prosecuted should be read in its entirety. Some people might find that it was written in terms which could be considered as violent. As to himself, it was not for him to appreciate. But it must not be forgotten that M. Tailhade was above everything a poet, whose style was vivid and vibrating. And it was because his style was vibrating and picturesque that he might have raised fears in the minds of some people. In certain journals, which M. Zola did not hesitate to term organs of social poisoning, worse things were daily said, but the fear they inspired was less, because, not having the prestige of style, they were less read or remained unnoticed. M. Tailhade was especially prosecuted for his literature.

M. Zola, in reply to a question put by M. Albert Salmon, who was defending, added: "You ask me whether the articles of Laurent Tailhade can be dangerous on account of the influence they may exercise on the masses. Yes, Tailhade goes courageously to the people; but I do not think he is well understood by that same people, which wants to be educated up to him."

After further evidence had been given the court retired, and in an hour returned with a judgement by which extenuating circumstances were accorded Grandidier, and he was, therefore, only sentenced to six months' imprisonment and a fine of a thousand francs. M. Tailhade was sentenced to a similar fine, but with a year's imprisonment. Then followed a scene of extreme violence. The President's efforts to restore order proved unavailing and the court was finally cleared by the guards. M. Zola, on leaving the Palais de Justice, was greeted with cries of "Vive Zola!" a rather different reception from that accorded the great writer at previous exits from the law courts.

TRUTH OF MAFEKING TOLD BY E. NEILLY

War Correspondent Corrects Some Erroneous Impressions

MEN WERE ON STARVATION DIET

Killed Horses and Ate Them—No Supplies and Ammunition and the Garrison Could not have Walked 10 Miles

London, Oct. 23.—The siege of Mafeking began two years ago. It was raised on May 17, 1900, after lasting 216 days. On this second anniversary J. Emmerson Neilly, the well known war correspondent of the "Pall Mall Gazette," has deemed it a duty to correct some erroneous impressions held by a section of the public. It is stated: (1) That we could have held out for months longer; (2) that the relief found Mafeking a land flowing with milk and honey, even champagne being plentiful; (3) that in the end there was only a handful of Boers around us.

"In answer to the first I may say that with Baden-Powell's permission I always had access to the inventory of stores kept by Captain Ryan, the commissariat officer. In February Baden-Powell computed that we could hold out on very short commons until about May 15. Lord Roberts sent up to say that the nation would be served and he would be personally obliged if the town held out, and he trusted that we would not be driven to surrender before the date mentioned, when he hoped to relieve us.

SCRAPED HORSES' BONES.

"Day by day the Colonel consulted with Captain Ryan; day by day our small stock of Indian corn and colonial oats ran down. Not an ounce was lost, and the officers of the staff lived on the same starvation diet as the men in the trenches. We killed our horses and ate them. We only killed them when they became so weak from hunger that they could not stand. They had had little or no flesh on them; they were skinned, and the skin and bones were scraped so that the flesh we got was a slimy, stringy, minced-up, horrible mess. Six ounces of this and four of ghupatty was our daily dole. Before the relief the Boers descended upon our horses during a Sunday truce and reduced us to more terrible straits, and when towards sunset on May 17 the heaven-sent troops appeared on the horizon we had a little more than a week's supply left. There was no champagne in the town; there was no whiskey either; we bibulous folk had lived on Worcester sauce for a while. Jim Keeley—whose farm-house was burned down the other day—brought in three bottles of Scotch with the relief, and they were regarded as curiosities. We had a few horses, a couple of spans of trek oxen for transport work, and two or three cows, whose milk was required for the hospital patients and children. So much for the 'milk and honey.' That story was started, I believe, by some of the relieving force who hailed from Kimberley, and who were jealous of the name of Mafeking. If they saw supplies, these supplies were brought in by the convoy on the heels of the relief column.

"As regards the number of Boers around us, they started at eleven to one of us. As time went on we thinned them out, and the rows of white crosses in the graveyard showed how our force had been reached. The crammed hospitals and convalescent home, and the almost empty trenches, testified quite as eloquently to our weakness. A week before the relief Eloff made his dash, but we captured him and his commando, and from that on we had peace; for Snyman was afraid to shell us lest he should smash up his own friends; and a large portion of the men in his laagers ran away when they heard that Mahon was coming up country. It is said that we could have got out towards the end. We had no horses, no supplies, little ammunition, and the garrison was not in a condition to march ten miles. Even had the colonel decided to abandon the town, which would surely have been burned to the ground, he must have left his sick and women and children. What then? Kimberley was our nearest point; and Kimberley was a fortnight's march away. The man who says we could have cut our way out is silly. Yet even apparently sane men say we should have done it. Would that some of those men had been in the town and attempted to leave it—to hear the [illegible] whistling of a [illegible] about their ears. They would scarcely have repeated the attempt.

GREEN-EYED ENVY.

"Now, no successful commander has ever escaped the envy and malice of his less known, and perhaps less able, fellows. Baden-Powell is no exception. By the nation at large he is regarded at his true worth; it is otherwise with some people who have a bad attack of green-eye. I am not disposed to discuss this point very much. But let me say that in no other profession is there so much jealousy as in the army.

"In conclusion, when, on the hundredth day of the siege, the townspeople desired to present the Colonel with an address, he begged them to do nothing of the sort. They should wait for the end, and see if he deserved it. About the same time I eulogized him in a despatch which he saw with the press censor. He requested me not to praise him and in deference to his wish I tore up the letter. Later on, knowing that the public would wish for something about him, I wrote another despatch, which I took care he should not see. The General needs no apologist. I write only to show some gentlemen the character of the basis upon which some of their gossip rests."

NATAL IN OPEN REBELLION

THE WHOLE OF NATAL IN A STATE OF REBELLION

Stern Measures of Kitchener Having Little Effect—The War On as Much as It Ever Was.

New York, Oct. 23.—A despatch to the World states that the whole of Natal and Cape Colony is in a state of rebellion, and thousands of rebels have taken arms against the British. It is clear that if the commandoes can roam at will now, in defiance of all efforts to hem them in, there is no very evident reason why they may not be still able to do so ten years hence. The Boers appear to have practically inexhaustible supplies of ammunition secreted in all parts of the country, and the friendship of the population puts them above the need of a commissariat. What the Cubans accomplished with incomparably smaller means against an army of 180,000 Spaniards the more vigorous and better provided burghers may justly deem possible of achievement against Britain's quarter of a million troops. Meanwhile the moral influences in Great Britain opposed to the war will be at work, and, improbable as it may appear to be, the victory of the Boers is still a possibility worth striving after.

The ride of the Boers from the Orange River to the sea makes it clear beyond denial that a large portion of the Afrikander population is in revolt against Great Britain; for without the active help of the inhabitants of Cape Colony a burgher commando could not have dodged the enveloping columns of British troops and secured sustenance

Smallpox in Lumber Camps

New cases of smallpox continue to be reported to the Provincial Health Department from the lumber districts in the north, where the outbreak was so general last year. To-day two cases were reported from Massie, which had a case several weeks ago, and recently two other victims were reported from Korah Township, near Sault Ste. Marie.

The lumber companies, are however, displaying some vigilance, and are following out the instructions issued by the Provincial Board of Health. In the infected districts they have put up hospitals where patients are quarantined, and they are making the vaccination of all workmen who seek employment in the camps a matter of compulsion.

THE BOERS ESCAPE. HOW IT IS DONE

Lieut. Morrison Tells How to End the Struggle.

A CANADIAN ON THE WAR

A Returned South African Soldier's Plan to Beat the Boers.

He Would Keep in Touch with the Various Commandos and Run Them Down Without Giving Them a Chance to Take Breath.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Lieut. Morrison, the gallant returned South African artillery officer, writes as follows to the Citizen:

"The question is often asked by a mystified public, Why cannot the British follow up a Boer commando until the enemy is forced to fight or surrender? The question is a natural one. Day after day reports come in of the British getting in touch with such-an-such a commando in the heart of Cape Colony. There is no reason either as regards the mobility of the Boers or the nature of the country why this should be so, though both reasons have been alleged as the explanation. The Boers are not as mobile as the Indians of the west. They cannot live on less food and have not better horses. Yet the American cavalry have in campaign after campaign followed the Indians through the arid plains of Montana, Arizona and New Mexico and killed them off or forced them to surrender. In the Canadian Northwest campaign the Indians and halfbreeds retreated into the wooded country north of the Saskatchewan where they could elude pursuers or lay ambushes much more easily than the Boers can on the veldt, but the Canadian troops followed every band up and forced them to surrender. In both cases success lay in cutting loose from everything and keeping after the enemy, never losing touch until they were run to a standstill.

"Without discussing or comparing the British methods, here is a plan by which every commando now operating in South Africa could be wiped out seriatim: When a commando is located, put a thousand well mounted men on their trail (few commandoes number half that number) and let them follow that commando to a finish. Keep in touch during the day and at night send out plenty of scouts round the enemy's flanks to keep track of them if they slip away during the night, the scouts keeping near them and sending back reports before daylight and at intervals later on so that the main body can come up rapidly and resume the pursuit. Then let the main body keep in touch and keep them on the run. Two or three days and nights of that sort of thing will wear down any force. The Boers starting with worn horses and the pursuers with fresh, well-fed horses, there should be no question as to which will win out. If the Boer commando breaks up let the British divide and follow the isolated parties—it should then only be a question of hours.

"The trouble is that the British move with baggage when they should have none; that the British cavalry are unfitted for daring, individual scouting far out to the front and flanks. When they get in touch with a Boer commando they follow it until nightfall. Then they go into camp, post pickets and wait till morning, or sometimes advance with their whole force at night when the Boers take the alarm and slip away in the dark. The idea of keeping the main body in reserve for rapid day marching and employing a large number of individual scouts to quietly keep the enemy in observation during the night by prowling round his flanks and rear is not resorted to because probably they have not the men for such work.

"We believe that a thousand Canadian mounted troops of such material as the Strathcona Horse, given a free hand and good horses, would follow and ride down the [illegible] commando [illegible]

MASON SET FREE AFTER A LECTURE

MISS LAURA DOTY HAS MONEY

And Her Friends Believe That The Man Wanted to Gain Possession of It—Mrs. Doty Breaks Down.

London, Ont., Oct. 24.—John Mason, who eloped with Miss Laura I. Doty, was before the police magistrate this morning, and no information having been laid against him he was discharged.

The police magistrate pointed out to Mason the enormity of his crime, and told him if ever he were found guilty before him of any crime he would send him to the penitentiary for a long term and that the best thing he could do would be to leave the city at once.

Mason took the Court's advice and left for the East.

Mrs. Doty arrived in the city last night and broke down utterly when she met her daughter at the police station. The girl admitted having met Mason by prearrangement. Mason promised to take her to Chicago, where he would get a divorce from his wife and marry her. Miss Doty's friends believe Mason's object was to get possession of $1,000 which the girl has in the bank in her own right.

COMBINE IN GREAT BRITAIN

Iron and Steel Interests to be Amalgamated for their [illegible]

London, Oct. 23.—The press here bristles with paragraphs about the tobacco war between the American and British trusts. But a far more important movement, which has been in progress since the spring, escapes observation. This is the projected amalgamation of the British interests of the largest iron and steel manufacturers of the United Kingdom.

The British iron and steel interests are of tremendous magnitude, and the inertia of British conservatism has obstructed the application of the new principles of concentration of capital in industrial competition. Protracted negotiations have been required, but a combination is being arranged by a group of the largest iron and steel manufacturers of the north and south with the help of an American organizer. This combination will control the manufacture of rails in the United Kingdom, and will have a cash capital of £20,000,000, without a drop of water, and, when another group of large manufacturers of iron and steel, with whom negotiations are now in progress, is drawn in, the capital will be increased to £40,000,000.

CAUSE OF DEPRESSION.

The American organizer is John R. Bartlett, who effected, not long ago, a combination of the oil manufacturing trade, and won the confidence of a large group of English capitalists by his skill and practical intelligence in conducting the financial operations. He attributes the depression of the iron and steel trade to three general causes:

First, old machinery and old methods of doing business, with the lack of a systematic department for keeping those in the trade informed regarding the organization and methods of their principal competitors.

Secondly, injurious competition, by which manufacturers were bidding against one another in the purchase of supplies and the sale of their products, thereby increasing the cost of production and the expenses of management and marketing.

Thirdly, aggressive competition from the United States and Germany in home and foreign markets, for which British manufacturers were themselves to blame in allowing Americans and Germans to surpass them in technical skill and industrial organization.

OTHER COMBINATIONS.

The concentration of capital in the iron and steel trade will open the way for a similar movement among English mine owners, shipping lines, and textile trades. And even railways, which are now operating against one another and disappointing the expectations of shareholders, may ultimately be brought together on a common basis of self-interest.

NO MERCY TO REBELS

VIGOROUS AMERICAN PHILIPINE CAMPAIGN NOW ON

Many of the Insurgents Fleeing to Adjacent Islands Secret Service Men Fall on Another Plot for a Massacre.

Manila, Oct. 24.—Advices from Samar are to the effect that Gen. Hughes, commander of that district, and Gen. Smith, are carrying on a relentless campaign against the rebels there, and thousands of the insurgents are fleeing to the adjacent islands. Numerous columns of American troops are operating along the coast, while the work in the interior is being done by the Macabebes, the native scouts, whose work on the island of Luzon called forth so much praise from their American commanders. Col. Goodrell and 300 marines have sailed on the New York and Wampatuck to re-enforce the soldiers in Samar.

The troops there have evidently determined that the rebels will not take them unprepared again. They now constantly carry their rifles, and have them within reach even at meals and when they go to bed.

The Secret Service has frustrated a plot similar to the one that resulted last month in the killing of forty men of Company C, Ninth Infantry, at Balangiga, in the southern part of the island of Samar. Eighty of the conspirators were arrested.

It is not likely that the troops will take any more prisoners, as the war against the treacherous natives will be carried on without asking for or giving quarter.

The Philippine Commission are holding public meetings, which are attended by those interested in mining, for the purpose of preparing the wisest recommendations to be submitted to Congress relative to the mining industry.

Senor Reyes, a well-known editor of Madrid, is visiting here. He says he realizes that the rebellious natives are beaten. He believes that the Filipino junta at Hong Kong is the most active agitator against the Americans and that it is the chief source of the rebels' money supply. He criticises the Federal party here, as being overloaded with insincere officeseekers. He advocates Aguinaldo's release and his resumption of the leadership of the national party. Senor Reyes unreservedly praises the administration of the Philippine Commission.

Fiske Warren, the American anti-imperialist, who was forced to take the oath of allegiance before he was permitted to land here recently, announces that he is visiting the islands as an independent investigator, and states that he will not make his conclusions known until he returns to the United States. He says he admires Lopez as a second Rizal.

Forced to Admit Sex

Omaha, Oct. 23.—The exposure of William J. Wallace, a woman masquerading as a man, has brought to a happy termination the divorce case of Baker against Baker on trial in the County Court at Harrisburg, Neb. Mrs. Jeremy Baker introduced the petition asking separation on the ground that her husband's conduct has been harsh and cruel. In reply Mr. Baker offered a counter petition in which he accused his wife of infidelity, and named Wm. J. Wallace, a mail carrier, as co-respondent.

Mrs. Baker says that the specification contained the first inkling of the reason lying behind her husband's conduct toward her. She at once appealed to the letter carrier, who confessed her sex, and a reunion of the estranged couple followed. The revelation of Miss Wallace's sex has caused a commotion in the county, where she has been known as "Willie," and was looked upon as a somewhat dissipated young man.

The woman came to Harrisburg five years ago in company with Henry Reep and his wife, her supposed uncle and aunt. Reep was later appointed postmaster of an outlying hamlet and "Willie" secured the position of carrying the mail to the county seat twice each week. The supposed youth boasted of his conquests among the women along the route, and no suspicion of his sex was entertained. Miss Wallace refuses any explanation, but the truth of her confession is undoubted.

GREAT BRITAIN AND RUSSIA

EACH JEALOUSLY WATCHING ONE ANOTHER

Should Rebellion Break Out in Afghanistan—Outlook Not Re-Assuring—Difficulty With Tribesmen.

London, Oct. 24.—The course of events in the far east during the next few months will be guided by the attitude of the Russian Government. If the latter makes no move, the new Afghan Ameer may have some difficulty with the tribesmen, but with Lord Curzon behind him, should ultimately succeed in asserting his position. Afghanistan will then remain the united and powerful State which has gradually become under the late Ameer. If, however, Russian statesmen consider the present opportunity a favorable one for intervening in Afghan affairs and push forward Ishak as their candidate, the whole country will be thrown into a blaze. The Indian Government may think it necessary to afford Habibullah active assistance, in which case England and Russia would at once face each other as rivals. The situation in any case is a delicate one and will require statesmanship both at Simla and in London. Abdurrahman's death has come at an unlucky time for the Empire. The Boer war is in full blast. The people of India are bowed down under the burden of plague, poverty and famine. One point in our favor is the presence of Lord Curzon at Simla. Few Viceroys have shown the ability he has done during his term of office, and if any one can grapple successfully with the situation, Curzon may be trusted to do so. Both he and Lady Curzon have won golden opinions.

Gold Seeker Is Missing.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—J. W. Clayson left Moose Jaw, N.W.T., before Christmas last in company with two other persons from that locality, bound for the Yukon gold mining region. He has not been heard of since, and his relatives who reside at Midhurst, Ont., are anxious about him. They have been making inquiries in Ottawa.

THE MOLSONS BANK.

Forty-Sixth Annual Meeting Was Held Monday.

A SATISFACTORY REPORT

Of the Year's Workings Submitted to the Shareholders. The Retiring Directors Re-elected.

The forty-sixth annual general meeting of the Molsons Bank was held in the Board Room of that institution at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The President, Mr. W. Molson Macpherson, occupied the chair, and among those present were, Messrs. S. H. Ewing, Vice-President; J. P. Cleghorn, Samuel Finley, F. C. Henshaw, H. Markland Molson, W. M. Ramsay, directors; George Filer, A. G. Watson, John Crawford, J. Try-Davies, Hon. James O'Brien, James Wilson, S. W. Ewing, E. H. Copland, W. R. Miller, Charles E. Spragge, G. M. Kinghorn, G. W. Robinson, F. W. Molson, and Colon McCuaig.

The President, having called the meeting to order, requested Mr. A. D. Durnford to act as secretary, and after that gentleman had read the advertisement convening the meeting, the President named Messrs. J. Try-Davies and Charles E. Spragge to act as scrutineers.

REPORT OF DIRECTORS.

The General Manager, Mr. James Elliot, then read the annual report of the Directors, as follows:—

The Directors beg to submit the following report for the year ending the 30th September, 1901:—

The net earnings of the Bank, after making full provision for bad and doubtful debts amounted to $353,890.51, being equal to 14.45 per cent. on the Capital Account.

This has been distributed by two semi-annual dividends of 4 per cent., and a bonus of 1 per cent. Included in the expenditure of the year has been $15,364.62 for alterations and improvements in the premises at Montreal and elsewhere. The Directors are confident that the alterations completed during the year at Montreal will have the entire approval of the Shareholders, adding as they have done so materially to the appearance of the offices and the convenience of the public and officials of the Bank.

The Directors have been able to add $100,000 to the Reserve Fund, making its present total $2,150,000 and have carried forward $31,506.47, to the credit of Profit and Loss Account.

The Bank acquired during the past summer premises in Jacques Cartier Square in this city, where a branch has been opened, known as the Market and Harbor branch, offering all the usual banking facilities to the public.

As the growth of business at Valleyfield, Que., did not meet the expectations of the Board, the branch there has been closed.

All the branches of the Bank have been inspected during the year, and your Directors have pleasure in once again bearing testimony to the zeal and efficiency with which the work of the Bank is performed by the officials generally.

On behalf of the Directors.

W. MOLSON MACPHERSON,
President.

Montreal, 21st October, 1901.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXATION

The Ontario Commission for the investigation of Municipal Taxation is said to favor the abolition of taxes on personal property, and it is expected that a recommendation on that line will be made to the Legislature. The subject is now under discussion in Chicago, where somebody advanced the proposition that unproductive property should not be taxed, because the tax would have to come out of the yield of other property which is productive, or out of the income from personal service. Admitting that proposition for the sake of the argument, it does not follow that all productive property should be taxed. Goods on the shelves of the merchant may be called productive property, for he is supposed to realize a profit on their sale. But if they are taxed in his hands or at any time before he is paid for them, which may not be for months after they have left his hands, they are taxed before they have yielded him any profit—before they have produced him anything out of which a tax can be paid. And the same is true if they are taxed in the hands of the manufacturer before they are sold to the merchant. If they are taxed as productive property they may be taxed once in the hands of the material manufacturer, who makes a profit on them, a second time in the hands of the finished goods-manufacturer, who makes another profit on them; a third time in the hands of the wholesale merchant, who makes still another profit; a fourth time in the hands of the retail merchant, who makes a fourth profit, and then once a year, while they last, in the hands of the consumer, who is wearing them out and probably making no profit out of them. The tax may be collected on goods which will never be paid for, on account of the failure of the purchaser.

The manufacturer and merchant have to take account of these things. They must consider losses in making prices and they must mark up prices to meet every element of loss. If they are taxed on goods which they lose as well as those on which they realize a profit they must mark up the price on that account and charge over the taxes on bad debts as well as bad debts themselves upon the final consumers of the goods. Thus the taxation of goods in the hands of manufacturers and merchants adds in a cumulative way to the burdens which consumers ultimately have to bear. Consumers therefore have a cumulative interest in the abolition of such taxes. The interest of manufacturers and merchants lies in the same direction. It is to their advantage to clear their business calculations of all necessary complications and elements of uncertainties. Therefore manufacturers and merchants, as well as consumers should be moved by considerations of self-interest to unite in laboring for tax reform by the abolition of personal property taxes.

TROOPS FOR THE PHILIPPINES

Washington, Oct. 22.—Plans for sending re-enforcements to the Philippines are now under consideration by the War Department. In all probability additional troops will leave the United States for Manila by December 1. To facilitate their transportation it has been decided to utilize the transport Crook, now at New York, and orders have been issued to get her in readiness for a voyage to the Philippines, leaving New York about December 1.

Orders have also been issued to recruiting officers in the East to prepare to go to Manila with the recruits on hand, and it is expected that several hundred can be assembled in New York within a few weeks. It has also been determined to order a regular battalion of infantry to New York to go on the Crook. Which organization the battalion will be taken from has not yet been decided.

It was learned this afternoon that in addition to these troops a regiment of either infantry or cavalry will be assembled at San Francisco and go to Manila on the transport Grant, which is now being held at San Francisco for that purpose. Two other vessels loaded with supplies will leave the Pacific Coast within the next month or two, one from Portland and the other from Seattle.

TO EXHIBIT THEIR CARS.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—The C.P.R. has decided to place the cars used by the Duke and Duchess on exhibition throughout Canada. Twenty-five cents admission will be charged, the proceeds to be given to the Protestant and Catholic Orphanages of the place where the exhibition takes place.

Cooling Off.

The man who would sit on a cake of ice to cool off would be considered crazy. Yet it is a very common thing for a person heated by exercise to stand in a cool draught, just to cool off. This is the beginning of many a cough which ultimately involves the bronchial tract and the lungs.

For coughs in any stage there is no remedy so valuable as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures deep-seated, obstinate coughs, bronchitis, bleeding of the lungs, and like conditions which if neglected or unskillfully treated terminate in consumption.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good."

"I took a severe cold which settled in the bronchial tubes," writes Rev. Frank Hay, of Nortonville, Jefferson Co., Kansas. "After trying medicines labeled 'Sure Cure,' almost without number, I was led to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took two bottles and was cured, and have stayed cured.

"When I think of the great pain I had to endure, and the terrible cough I had, it seems almost a miracle that I was so soon relieved.

"That God may spare you many years and abundantly bless you is the prayer of your grateful friend."

THE MOLSONS BANK.

Forty-Sixth Annual Meeting Was Held Monday.

A SATISFACTORY REPORT

Of the Year's Workings Submitted to the Shareholders—The Retiring Directors Re-elected.

THE DISCUSSION.

The President then said:—

In submitting to you the result of the year's work, I do so with the greatest satisfaction, knowing that you will receive it with feelings of approval. The annual meeting of the Molsons Bank occurs when all predictions respecting our harvest have become an established fact. Our country for years depended upon its wheat crops, and prosperity or depression throughout the country was largely governed by it, but now our older provinces have become firmly established as dairy and farm producing provinces. Our cheese, butter, cattle and hay, continue to find ready markets in Great Britain; our hay and oats are being shipped in large quantities to South Africa, and our Canadian horses are being largely used as remounts for the British troops in South Africa. Consequently our trade returns for the year are of a most satisfactory character.

The water powers of Canada and our valuable spruce lands have attracted British and foreign capital, resulting in the very large manufacture of pulp and paper, and in addition to this, our pulpwood manufactured for the United States has become a considerable article of export, and has given employment to labor, and the carrying trade of the country has derived great benefit therefrom.

The employment of labor through all our manufacturing sections, as well as through our farming districts, has been very satisfactory, the labor market being strained to its fullest extent; consequently, our country offers great inducements to settlers.

The increased deposits in banks and financial institutions show how fully labor and capital have been employed and remunerated, the total amount now being over $400,000,000.

The province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories have been bountifully blessed with the finest harvest that our country has ever enjoyed, greatly benefiting the business of the whole Dominion.

As a result of such prosperity, our Bank has derived its full advantage, as our branches extend from Quebec to Vancouver, covering the whole country, and I am, therefore, enabled to place before you the handsome statement which shows 14.16 returns on our capital.

We are continually strengthening ourselves, and have added this year $100,000 to the Rest, which now stands at $2,150,000, or 86 per cent. of our capital; and have also increased our reserves by investing in bonds and securities, which now stand at $2,311,-447.

Feeling so sanguine of the continued good earnings of the bank, the Directors have decided to recommend that the dividend be paid 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, that is 9 per cent. annually, instead of 8 per cent., with a bonus of one per cent. as formerly. I am sure that such a change will meet with general approval.

The capital of the Bank has been employed to its fullest capacity, and the circulation has been kept to its fullest limit.

The Shareholders of the Bank have increased from 655 in 1900, to 747 in 1901, thus increasing the friends and supporters of the Bank.

The General Manager, Inspectors, Managers, and in fact, the whole staff of the bank, have been most zealous and efficient, and the pleasing statement now submitted is the outcome of their exertions.

I don't know that I have anything further to add. The year has been a most prosperous one. The country, from one end to the other, seems to be blessed with abundance, but we must safeguard against what must come sooner or later, for we cannot have good times always, and we feel it our duty to protect the Shareholders all we can. Any questions the Shareholders wish to ask I will be pleased to answer.

Mr. James Wilson spoke a few words concerning the admirable statement placed before the Shareholders, and remarked that in it he did not see any mention of the Pension Fund which it was last year decided to establish.

The General Manager—"We have not started it yet; but are still working at the idea. We have had insurance actuaries examining into certain data we gave them, and their opinions are more exacting than what we thought necessary. Probably we shall start the fund on January 1 next."

Mr. Wilson hoped that when the fund was established, it would be a contribution of the Bank itself, and not an assessment on the employes, because he thought it would make the Directors feel that when an official was leaving the employ of the institution, he did so without feeling that he had been paying into a fund from which he would never get any benefit.

The General Manager—"We have a certain fund set aside already for that purpose, but we found that it required more than we had expected. We shall have to make an assessment on the officers, but it won't be much, probably 3 per cent. of their salaries, and if one of them leaves before he is entitled to a pension, he will get back the whole, or nearly the whole, of what he has paid in, if he has behaved properly."

Mr. John Crawford took it for granted that the Directors would do what was right towards the officials of the Bank, for a more efficient, obliging and better lot of men was not to be found in the Dominion. He spoke of the financial statement as being exceedingly satisfactory, but expressed regret at the remarks of the President, that the Directors recommended a dividend of 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, instead of 4 per cent., and a bonus, equal to 9 per cent. in the year. He had hoped that there would have been no difficulty in initiating, next October, a 10 per cent. dividend. Speaking of deposits bearing interest, and amounting to over $12,000,000, he wished to know what profit the Bank made on them. He assumed that the maximum interest allowed by the Bank was 3 per cent.

The General Manager—"We have to keep a large amount of cash on hand idle, at all the thirty-eight branches. There are $1,000,000 of that cash lying in the vaults here, and in those of the different branches. We make a profit, but it is difficult to say how much; we pay 3 per cent. and lend at 6, but we cannot lend all we have."

Mr. Crawford—"There are $500,000 and odd with foreign agents; I presume it is the New York?"

The General Manager—"New York, Germany, France, etc."

In reply to further questions by Mr. Crawford, the General Manager said that the municipal, railway, public and other securities were principally railway bonds and British consols, of which latter the Bank had £40,000. There were very few municipal Canadian bonds, except first class ones. Our Bonds, amounting to about $2,400,000, were of such a class that on them money could be borrowed tomorrow either in London or New York.

The President—"We are pleased to hear Mr. Crawford's remarks in reference to the statement, and I cannot say we are astonished to hear him in reference to the dividend, as I have known what his ideas were. Our intention has always been to make the Rest equal to the Capital, and the Directors have steadily gone on in that direction; it gives greater security to the Shareholders. I think Mr. Crawford would be the last one to advise us to do anything which would weaken the security of the Shareholders. As things look at present, it does not seem as if it would be long before we shall be able to pay 10 per cent. dividend. If we could see three or four years ahead, and if the years were like some we have had in the past, the matter would be easy. But we cannot, and I think we must go on making the Rest equal to the Capital, and protect the Shareholders. I beg to move the adoption of the annual report."

The motion was seconded by Mr. S. H. Ewing, Vice-President, and was carried unanimously.

Mr. Crawford then moved: "That the thanks of the Shareholders are due and are hereby tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their valuable services to the Bank during the past year." He spoke of the infinite pleasure it afforded him to make the motion, and of the great confidence he felt in the Bank. The statement which had that day been submitted to the Shareholders showed how diligently and faithfully the Directors had applied themselves to the interests of the Bank. With the motion he also coupled the General Manager, Inspectors, Manager and officers.

The motion was seconded by Hon. James O'Brien, who expressed the opinion that the financial statement was a most satisfactory one, and hearty thanks were deserving those who had made the year so successful.

The motion having been unanimously concurred in, the President returned thanks, and said that, of course, the Directors and the officials should be linked together in the resolution. The Directors would be a very inefficient body without the Managers of the Bank. It was to them the Bank was indebted for the handsome statement which had been placed before the Shareholders, and which had been so approved by them.

Mr. S. H. Ewing also said a few words of thanks. He remarked that he felt it a great honor to be a Director of that Bank. He had been there for quite a number of years now, and he thought that he was safe in saying that the whole board did all it possibly could for the Bank. As to beginning to pay a 10 per cent. dividend at present. The Molsons Bank had always progressed, never gone back, had always increased its dividend, never decreased it and he thought that if it kept on paying 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, until the Rest amounted to $2,500,000, it could then safely go on paying a 10 per cent. dividend. He spoke of the diligence and close attention which the General Manager, Mr. Elliott, gave to the affairs of the Bank. Mr. Elliot had been with the bank 42 years, and he seemed part and parcel of the institution. To Mr. Elliot, to Mr. Durnford, the chief inspector, and to the whole staff the Bank was very much indebted. The staff was a splendid one.

Replying to Mr. Crawford, the President said that an attempt was made to break into the branch at Owen Sound, but it was unsuccessful, and therefore no loss was sustained. Three men were arrested, but so far nothing had been proved against them. The Bank had 38 branches, and there were four Inspectors. Mr. Durnford, the chief inspector, usually remained in Montreal.

Mr. Crawford wished to know if, in the Bank and its branches, there were any means, electrical or otherwise, of communicating with the outside, in the case of a hold-up.

The General Manager—"We have such electrical protection wherever it can be obtained."

The meeting then proceeded to the election of officers, and the scrutineers soon reported that the retiring Board had been re-elected, viz.:—Messrs. James P. Cleghorn, S. H. Ewing, Samuel Finley, F. C. Henshaw, H. Markland Molson, W. Molson Macpherson, W. M. Ramsay.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. W. Molson Macpherson was re-elected President, and Mr. S. H. Ewing Vice-President.

Tribute to British Army

London, Oct. 23.—A letter from Johannesburg correspondent published in the Cologne Gazette is quoted by the Berlin correspondent of the Times. The letter highly praises the British troops in South Africa, and says:

"Of one thing every unprejudiced observer here is convinced. However severe may be the criticisms to which the British army is exposed in England, every impartial observer here knows that in the circumstances it has achieved all that could be achieved. It is doubtful if any other army could have done more. From a financial point of view any other nation would have succumbed to the strain of this war."

The correspondent also commends the Johannesburg police, saying they are equal in politeness to the police of London.

OFFICIAL MOURNING.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The period of official mourning for the late president ended at midnight last night and this morning the flags on the White House and all public buildings in Washington were raised to the tops of their staffs. Prof. Fedder De Martens, a permanent member of the council of the foreign office of Russia, called upon the president to-day. He was presented by Chief Justice Fuller, who will give a dinner in his honor this evening. Prof. De Martens was one of Russia's representatives at The Hague conference. He is understood to be urging a meeting of the court of arbitration which has never assembled.

OUR WESTERN HERITAGE

MR. HAULTAIN'S SCHEME FOR ANOTHER PROVINCE

Objections Thereto Stated by the M.P. for Saskatchewan—The Peace River Section and its Resources—Bank Circulation

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—Within the past few weeks the question of forming the Northwest territories into a province has been actively raised by the territorial premier, Mr. Haultain and those associated with him. They have made visits to Ottawa to discuss the matter with the Dominion authorities and have striven not altogether unsuccessfully to creat the impression that the whole west desired to obtain provincial status without delay. It appears, however, that this impression largely fails to correspond with the facts. Mr T. O. Davis, M.P., for Saskatchewan, who is now in the city, and who is an uncompromising supporter of the Laurier administration, has some remarks to offer which show that he is not exactly an enthusiast on the subject.

"In my opinion," says Mr. Davis, "if the west is to be given provincial status, there should be two provinces instead of one. The dividing line should be the southern boundary of Saskatchewan, extended to the boundaries of Manitoba and British Columbia. I cannot agree with the proposal to make one province of the territories, which is what Mr. Haultain is understood to be advocating.

"There are many reasons for my view. In the first place we must look to the future. Such a province would have over 300,000 square miles of land capable of supporting population. In course of time, and no long time either, its representation in the Dominion parliament would become so large that it would be the dominating force in the confederation. It would in fact be so powerful that it could do as it liked. The Dominion authorities would be unable to disallow the laws enacted by the legislature of such a province. This would create a situation which might easily become a national danger and which would certainly be extremely distasteful to the smaller provinces.

"But the country is too large and its interests are too diverse for one province. The southern part wants to become a province because it has reached a point where increased revenue and increased borrowing powers are thought necessary to its rapid development. Their ambition in this respect is very natural and commendable. But in the northern portion, taking the dividing line where I mention, the situation is different. There, the need of provincial status is not yet felt and the people are willing to wait for another ten years if necessary.

"At the same time the people in the northern section while they do not yet want to become a province would not refuse, if it were thrust upon them, but in that event they might ask that Athabaska be included with them. Such an arrangement would relieve the Dominion from the necessity of forming a regular territorial government in Athabaska, a necessity which under present circumstances will soon have to be faced.

"Some men in the west have been making large claims as to what source of revenue the country would have as a province. Some of them, among whom I believe is Mr. Walter Scott M.P., go so far as to claim that the whole public domain should be handed over to the proposed new province, but this strikes me as unreasonable. It must be understood, however, that if the country is made into one province or two, they can't be run on wind and will require a substantial grant from the Dominion treasury; such a grant given, let us say, in lieu of the public land, might be accepted as satisfactory.

"My own idea, which I have urged thus far without avail, is that the territorial government could meet its needs by levying an annual tax on stock, giving such an exemption as would prevent the tax from falling on the ordinary farmer. As things stand now there are thousands of head of cattle and horses feeding on the public domain and not taxed. A reasonable levy on these would provide a considerable revenue which could be used for purposes of irrigation, this relieving the pressing necessity of the hour."

CHARTERED BANK.

The official September statement of the chartered banks in Canada shows the total liabilities of the banks as $441,947,760; total assets, $558,954,790. These banks have deposited with the Dominion government $2,568,912 to secure a total note circulation of $56,827,-497. But as all the banks are responsible for the circulation of any one bank, the deposit is practically a guarantee for the redemption of the notes of and bank that may get into difficulty. As a matter of fact the notes of a bank in liquidation are really worth more than the notes of the most solvent bank in the country, inasmuch as they are entitled to bear interest from the day the bank's doors are closed till its affairs are legally straightened.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Copenhagen, Oct. 22.—Negitiations have been reopened between the four protecting powers with regard to the independence of Crete. King George of Greece had long conferences on the subject with the Czar and King Edward at Fredensburg, and the question is the principal object of his visit to Paris, from which city he will proceed to Vienna to discuss the matter. During his tour a year ago, Prince George of Greece, High Commissioner of Crete, although unable to obtain any support for his proposal for the annexation of the island to Greece, secured the adhesion of the powers to a scheme of independence. But on his return to Crete he found that Russia was not ready to fulfill her promises. Now his father, who is regarded as a more astute diplomatist, has undertaken to pave the way, and later Prince George will personally confer with the four powers concerned.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we [illegible] no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is [illegible] Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 5, 1901.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interests of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.

New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

RATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1866, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELDER.
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1900.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,882 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis; but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HARRIS,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggravated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he had been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid damp feet, drink water abundantly, and always rely on Polson's Nerviline as an absolute reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than other remedies, its power over pain is simply beyond belief. Buy a large 25 cent bottle to-day, test it, and see if this is not so. Polson's Nerviline always cures rheumatism.

PETERBORO RIFLE ASSOCIATION

A SCIENTIFIC BREAKFAST

Rightly selected food will cure more than half the diseases. Try a scientific and healthy breakfast:—Fruit of some kind, preferably cooked; two soft-boiled eggs. Put two eggs in a tin pint cup of boiling water, cover and set off for nine minutes. Whites will then be the consistency of cream and most easily digested. One slice of bread with butter, cup of Postum Cereal Food coffee.

On that breakfast you can work like a horse and be perfectly nourished until noon. Your nervous troubles, heart palpitation, stomach and bowel troubles, kidney complaints and various other disorders will gradually disappear and firm solid health set in.

Why? You have probably been living on poorly selected food, that is food that does not contain the required elements the body needs. That sort of food, and coffee, is the direct or indirect cause of more than half the ills the human body acquires.

Grape-Nuts is a perfectly cooked food and both that and the Postum Food Coffee contain fine microscopic particles of phosphate of potash obtained in a natural way from the grains of the field and by scientific food experts incorporated into food and drink. That element joins with the albumen in food to make a gray matter, which is the filling of the brain cells and the nerve centers all over the human body.

A man or woman thus fed is scientifically fed and rapidly grows in vigor and vitality, and becomes capable of conducting successfully the affairs of life. To produce a perfect body and a money making brain, the body must have the right kind of food and the expert food specialist knows how to make it. That is Grape-Nuts and Postum Cereal Food Coffee, produced at the pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., at Battle Creek, Mich.

A PROGRESSIVE BANK

The Forty-Sixth Annual Statement of the Molsons Bank.

We take pleasure in presenting our readers with the report of the forty-sixth annual general meeting of the Molsons Bank, which took place at the head office of that institution in Montreal, on Monday last. Canada has just reason to feel proud of her financial institutions, which are amongst the best to be found in any land. They have long been regarded by financial men throughout the world as worthy of imitation and unbounded praise.

The Molsons Bank is one of the great financial factors that has helped to make Canada what she is today. The bank has always been progressive and prosperous, but no period in its history has been so marked with a forward movement as the year just closed. The capital of the bank is now $2,500,000, and, following out the conservative policy which has long been the aim of the management, the reserve fund has been added to until now it is within $350,000 of the total paid-up capital. At the meeting on Monday the president stated that it was the intention of the management to make the reserve equal to the capital, and this, judging from past earnings, should be accomplished in three years' time. The net earnings for the year ending September 30, 1901, amounted to $352,000, equal to 14.15 per cent. on the capital account. Out of this sum were distributed two semi-annual dividends of 4 per cent, and a bonus of 1 per cent. This left a clear $100,000 to be placed in the reserve, besides allowing ample funds for the alterations and improvements to the business premises owned by the bank and occupied by the main office and branches. The officers, directors and shareholders are certainly to be congratulated upon the magnificent showing which the bank has made.

Provincial Appointments

The following Provincial appointments are gazetted: William P. McEwan, Almonte, to be Local Registrar, Clerk of the County Court, and Registrar of Surrogate, in the County of Lanark, succeeding Charles Rice, deceased. Charles McCrea, Sudbury; James Frederick Edgar, Toronto, and David Eby, New Hamburg, to be notaries public in and for the Province of Ontario. P. J. Dowdall, Almonte, to be Clerk of the Sixth Division Court of the County of Lanark, succeeding W. P. McEwan, resigned. John Soeder, Preston, to be bailiff of the Second Division Court of the County of Waterloo, succeeding Peter Gillies, deceased.

APPLES A LIGHT CROP.

Fruit Instructor Lick of Oshawa in Town Yesterday.

Mr. Elmer Lick, inspector of fruit for Eastern Ontario, was in town yesterday and gave the Times a call. Mr. Lick is appointed by the Dominion Government, and is now making his annual rounds. He calls special attention to the following provisions of the Act:

4. Every person who, by himself or through the agency of another person, packs fruit in a closed package, intended for sale, shall cause the package to be marked in a plain and indelible manner, before it is taken from the premises where it is packed,—

(a.) with the initials of the Christian names, and the full surname and address of the packer;

(b.) with the name of the variety or varieties; and

(c.) with a designation of the grade of the fruit.

6. No person shall sell, or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale any fruit packed in a closed package, upon which package is marked any designation which represents such fruit as of finest, best or extra good quality, unless such fruit consist of well-grown specimens of one variety, sound, of nearly uniform size, of good colour for the variety, of normal shape and not less than ninety per cent free from scab, worm holes, bruises and other defects, and properly packed.

7. No person shall sell, or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in any package in which the faced or shown surface gives a false representation of the contents of such package; and it shall be considered a false representation when more than fifteen per cent of such fruit is substantially smaller in size than, or inferior in grade to, or different in variety from, the faced or shown surface of such package.

Mr. Lick says the apple crop is very light this year—being fully 60 per cent under that of last season. Other fruit crops are above the average. After transacting some business, Mr. Lick went over to see the lift lock before taking his departure.

Meeting of Rugby Club

A meeting of the executive committee of the Rugby club was held Tuesday evening in the office of President McWilliams. There were in attendance, besides the President, Messrs. H. H. Kenner, A. W. McPherson, Hal Burnham (Capt.); Dr. Scott, C. N. Patterson, C. G. Graham, Herb Wood, Dr. Vic McWilliams and R. S. Clarry. Matters pertaining to the annual dance were discussed, and a provisional dance committee, composed of Messrs. R. F. McWilliams, A. W. McPherson, Dr. Scott, Dr. McWilliams, H. Burnham and R. S. Clarry was chosen to make preliminary arrangements and report to the executive on Friday night. It is probable that the dance will take place on the evening of the 8th of November.

A committee, consisting of Messrs. H. R. H. Kenner and R. F. McWilliams was selected to confer with the executives of other sporting organizations in town in regard to the acquirement of suitable permanent athletic grounds.

C. P. R. PROPOSITION

Looking to the Opening Up of New Territory in the Rainy River District

Toronto, Oct. 23.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, in an interview with Premier Ross on Saturday, laid before him a project for opening up of the new territory tributary to Lac Seul, the long sinuous lake that for a hundred miles forms the boundary between the Rainy River district of Ontario and Keewatin. Sir Thomas proposes to build a branch twenty-one miles long from Dinorwic on the C.P.R. main line to Lake Minnietakie, on condition that the government of Ontario provided the necessary dams to make a navigable channel in the water between Minnietakie and Lac Seul. If this is done there will be over 100 miles of waterways opened up and vast spruce and pine forests tapped. A portion of the country is also well adapted to agriculture. The deputy minister of public works will at once make a report on the project.

Uncle Si on Physical Culture

The daily papers hev a heap tew say about yer health,
An' how tew build yer muscles up while build'n' up yer wealth;
They call it physical culture, good for skinny an' for fat,
An' they print a lot o' lectures by Professor This-or-That,
With pictures of the exercises he considers best.
For broadenin' of the shoulders an'
expandin' of the chest.

Now I ain't much on Injun clubs or weight machines an' sech—
I reckon if I tried 'em I'd be walk'n' on a crutch—
But I'll bet two bits, an' mebbe more that I've es good a wrist.
Es any physical culture man, an' jest
es tough a fist;
An' of any gent'll take me up, I'll bet thet my ol back
Kin hist es much es any livin' gol darn dumbbell crack.

Young man, ef you will throw them
weights an' Injun clubs away,
An' listen what yer Uncle Willyum
Scruggins's got tew say,
I'll tell yew from experience the things es you will find
The very best tew help along yer muscles an' yer mind,
Tew brighten up thet yeller eye, tew make that pale cheek red,
Tew pacify yer blood, tew clear yer conscience an' yer head.

The fust place, for the upper arm,
The biceps, I'll allow,
Is hard tew raise of you hev never exercised till now;
But all I've seen o' biceps I should argy, from the facts,
Thet the best thing for yer biceps
is the woodpile an' a axe,
I never seen the upper arm ez wouldnot in the end
Be better arter this yere exercise
I recommend.

The lower arm an' wrist develops
purty much the same
Es the biceps does, exceptin' there air many folks es claim
Thet, instead of a heavy axe, a little hatchet is the best
For bringin' out the wrist without a strain upon the chest;
An' the interestin' feature of it is thet when ye're through
A week o' work you've saved yer me a dollar bill or two.

Perhaps the most important of a city feller's frame.
Is his chest an' back an' shoulders an' the muscles on the same.
You ain't the slightest notion of the great amount o' brawn
Developin' from a conscientious mowin' of the lawn; a
An' it's jest es true es Scripter thet yer back an' shoulders grow
In proportion tew the area of standin' grass you mow.

Concernin' of the legs, it's rather waste o' time tew talk
Tew any man es doesn't know his legs wus made tew walk.
Keep away from cigarettes an' don't git gay with booze;
Remember beds wus made tew sleep
in; try an' never lose
Yer good eight hours o' slumber—make it ten if very tall—
An' don't forgit yer bathtub, chew yer food, an'—well, that's all.

Burglars Make a Haul

On Tuesday night Mr. Fred Clarke's fur store on George street was entered by burglars. When his assistant, Mr. Henderson, opened up early yesterday morning he found the place in a state of disorder. Furs were misplaced and there were other indications that some one had entered the store during the night. Mr. Clarke, the proprietor of the establishment, is in Toronto, and it will not be exactly known until his return what articles are missing, but it is believed that a lady's Persian Lamb coat is amongst the articles taken. The matter was reported to the police, but as yet there is no clue as to the guilty parties.

ANOTHER INDIAN FAMINE

The Grain Merchants of India Said to be to Blame.

London, Oct. 24.—Another famine is impending in India in the province of Gujerat. The immediate cause is a plague of rats, which have destroyed the young crops, that the Government tried to meet by rewards for a certain number of rats' tails. But India is one of the countries that you can never tell about, and the natives chose to regard the life of the rats as sacred and allowed them to live and grow fat. A despatch, however, declares that neither scarcity of rain nor plagues of rats nor locusts will account for the chronic recurrence of famine in India; that the real responsibility lies at the door of the vanyas, who are grain merchants, and are nearly all rich and many of them very rich. The poor farmer, whose crop has failed, comes to one of these men for help and gets it only on his own conditions, namely, that the whole of the next year's crop must be handed over, the vanya only undertaking to supply a little food in return and perhaps the seed for the following year, the crop of which will also belong to him. Thus the vanya hoards his grain year after year, and in the year of famine sells it at an exorbitant rate, while the poor man and his family die. The mass of the people are thus kept perpetually poor and in a year of famine they inevitably die unless Government relief comes. It is these remorseless speculators, and not natural causes, this account contends, that are at the bottom of India's trouble, and there will be no relief until they are curbed.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA.

Reaction Against Russia Set in Amongst the French People

London, Oct. 24.—A good idea of the reaction that is taking place among certain factions in France against the Russian alliance is found in an article recently published by Camille Pelletan, one of the leading members of the Chamber of Deputies, in which he brings a new charge against Russia; to wit, that Russia is slowly but surely destroying all hope of la revanche, not because she loves Germany, but because it suits her purpose to gratify her near neighbor even at the expense of her fond ally. Russia sent France to Kiel. It was Russia that made France an ally of Germany in the Chinese campaign. It was Russia that put French troops under the command of a German. Russia, argues M. Pelletan, gets a good deal out of Germany for her pains, and gives France absolutely nothing in return. The French Government seems to have considered that it was such an honor to have these noble friends that it was sufficiently recompensed for its sacrifices when they accepted invitations to dinner. Indeed, not long ago they were considered the greatest statesment who went furthest along this path of self-denial, and M. Pelletan tells a little story of a Yellow Book which was about to be issued by the Government, with a view of demonstrating that France had abandoned all her interests to Russia. It was only when some other politicians remonstrated strongly against it that its publication was suppressed. The whole drift of M. Pelletan's article is to the effect that France has given enough; that it is now time for her to make a stand and get something in return, and that alliances should mean something more than fetes and festivities.

DID LADY ROBERTS GET GENERAL BULLER'S HEAD

Botha Said to be Again at the Head of Large Boer Forces

TO GUARD THE BOERS---RAND MINING SUPPLIES

Lord Roberts and Mr. Brodrick Threatened to Resign if General Buller Was Kept On

New York, October 24.—The Herald's London cable says it is an open secret in military circles that Lady Roberts forced the dismissal of General Buller.

The story goes that she had been bitterly hostile to Gen. Buller ever since he refused to correct his Spion Kop despatches, and when Buller made his Westminster speech she saw and at once improved her opportunity. It is said she compelled Lord Roberts to go to the War Office and demand of Mr. Broderick that he issue an order for Buller's resignation.

When Buller refused to resign Lord Roberts and Mr. Broderick waited upon the King and laid before him the alternative of Buller's dismissal or their resignations. It was a distressing interview. At first the King refused point blank to countenance such drastic proceedings. His Majesty defended his old comrade right and left and declared such provocation as anonymous attacks was sufficient warrant for such an explosion on the part of the bluff old soldier, but Lord Roberts threatened to resign instanter unless a mandate was issued for Buller's decapitation. Mr. Broderick added his intention to relinquish the seals of the war office. The latter threat would not weigh for a moment with the King, but "Bobs" popularity is a different matter. His Majesty used every effort to induce the Commander-in-Chief to reconsider his determination. Only when he finally discovered that this was out of the question was the Royal consent reluctantly given to the order for dismissal.

London, Oct. 24.—The removal of Buller from the command of the First Army Corps has caused much discussion at the military clubs, and but for discipline would probably develop into a serious quarrel between the supporters of Roberts and Buller respectively. The people appear to be generally in favor of Buller, especially in Devonshire, the home of the Buller family. The Mayor of Exeter has called a public meeting to express confidence in Sir Redvers.

MINERS' DYNAMITE.

London, Oct. 25.—The Transvaal Dynamite Company, a German concern, which has extensive works in the hills east of Pretoria, has offered to supply the Rand mines with explosives at thirty shillings a case. This is under the price ruling before the outbreak of hostilities, and would mean a saving of about $2,250,000 a year.

ECHOS OF ITALA.

London, Oct. 24.—The Dundee correspondent of The Times has forwarded additional particulars of the Fort Itala engagement. He says that there was considerable hand to hand fighting during the conflict, Commandant Potgeiter being killed by Lieut. Lefroys with a revolver. The Boer force in that attack, exclusive of those engaged in the attack on Fort Prospect, was 1,800 or 2,000 men. The latest estimate of the Boers' loss is given as 128 killed and 270 wounded.

TO GUARD THE BOERS.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 24.—The Admiralty has ordered H. M. sloop Columbine to accompany the torpedo destroyer Quail to Bermuda, where she will assist in guarding the Boer prisoners. As a rule these vessels make their winter quarters in Halifax.

PIRATE PLUNGED INTO THE OCEAN

Released Himself from Shackles That Bound Him

WAS FIRED ON BY THE CAPTAIN

Occupants of Pirates Boat Which Rescued Him Brought to a Stop—An Exciting Robbery.

Vancouver, Oct. 24.—Capt. Dickson, a well known navigator of Hong Kong arrived at Yokohama a few days before the sailing of the Empress with the news of the successful capture and recapture of a West River pirate.

It appears that at Kamshuk, on the voyage down to Canton, one of the many Chinese passengers on board wished to disembark, but stoutly refused to allow the ship's Commodore to search his box.

The case looked very suspicious, and the Chinaman was detained till the enquiries had been made among the other passengers. It was found that the robber—for such he proved to be—had substituted another similar box containing nothing of value for the box of one of the passengers, which contained some costly articles. It was found also that the thief had accomplices on board, but these could not be detected among such a crowd.

The thief was placed under arrest, and ordered to place his hands behind, in order to be shackled. He refused to do this, but cheekily folded his arms across his chest. Capt. Dickson did not parley, but in a speedy and unceremonious manner stretched the rascal on deck and secured him with ropes to a post.

LOOSENED THE CORDS.

Order having been restored, and the robber apparently quite secure, the captain and his men proceeded about their ordinary avocations. Meantime the robber strugled and strained at the hemp, and, unexpectedly freeing himself, dashed past the armed guard and plunged into the water. The guard fired his revolver, but the shot went aside. The steamer was passing the salt junks, which lie just at the beginning of Canton at the time, and she was stopped. It was observed that a boat was waiting for the thief, manned, no doubt, by his accomplices. Capt. Dickson hailed a sampan and lowered two boats, taking command himself.

Seeing the pirate boat was leaving them behind, he called on the pirates to cease rowing. This they refused to do, and accordingly left no alternative but to fire.

The captain's shot was a splendid one, for it hit one of the oars of the pirate's boat, whereupon the pirates threw up their hands and resigned their accomplice to his fate. Capt. Dickson took the pirate on board again, and on his arrival at Canton handed him over to the British consul, who in turn, passed him over to the Chinese authorities to be dealt with.

Safe Crackers.

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—Martin, one of the safe-crackers, has confessed to the police how he and his comrade carried out the burglary of Bryson, Graham & Co.'s store. They entered through an opening in the sidewalk into the cellar and made their way into the store. He says he came to Ottawa about two months ago to get "the lay of the land." He was, he said, in legitimate business up to that time, and followed the race tracks. He experienced some hard luck and resorted to crime. This was his first offence in the safe-breaking line.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 24.—Reporting to the War Office, Lord Kitchener wires as follows:

Col. Campbell's column, operating near Slangapies, has recovered two guns which the Boers had captured at Scheeper's Nek.

SAILED FROM QUEENSTOWN.

Queenstown, Oct. 24.—Messrs. John E. Redmond, Patrick A. McHugh and Thomas O'Donnell, the Nationalist members of Parliament who are to visit the United States in behalf of the Irish cause, sailed for New York this morning on the steamer Majestic. They were given a great send-off.

TO PREVENT MORE SCANDAL.

London, Oct. 24.—As a result of recent scandals an important step has just been taken by the Bishop of London. For the future every resident, alien of French or Belgian nationality, who is a party to a marriage by banns with a British subject in the diocese of London, must produce a certificate from his Consul as proof that he has fulfilled all legal requirements necessary to ensure the validity of the marriage in his own country. Dr. Ingram further directs his clergy that if both parties are foreigners, or if one of them is of a nationality other than French or Belgian, or has no British domicile, the marriage must be invariably by license. No license, however, will be granted unless the chancellor of the diocese is satisfied that there has been compliance with all the conditions necessary to secure the validity of the marriage. Bishop Ingram's action is the result of concerted policy, and it is stated that similar instructions will be issued to the clergy in every diocese of the Anglican Church.

MOTOR OMNIBUS SERVICE.

London, Oct. 24.—Bromley, in Kent, is to have a service of motor omnibuses, and it is hoped in the near future to start a service for goods. The service is to be provided by the Bromley Autocar Company, Limited, which has been registered with an authorized capital of £7,500. Between Bromley and Croydon, a distance of seven miles, there is no railway service or other means of direct communication. In other directions an efficient service would do much to popularize the beautiful country round Hayes, Keston, and Westerham. It is also intended to bring fruit from different districts of Kent to the London markets by motor-car.

CANADIAN SOLDIERS ILL.

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—Cablegrams received yesterday make the following announcements regarding Canadian soldiers in South Africa. Trooper Timstead, formerly of Toronto, reported missing, has rejoined his regiment. G. H. Milne, of Qu'Appelle, N. W. T., is dangerously ill with enteric fever at Petrusburg. Trooper James B. D. Wolfe, S. A. C., of Ingersoll, Ont., is dangerously ill with enteric fever at Bloemfontein.

ENGLAND SEEKS NEW PREMIER

Balfour, Chamberlain and Duke of Devonshire Are Probabilities.

London, Oct. 23.—Premier Salisbury is expected back from his French country place by the end of the month and it can be stated as definitely as anything can be stated concerning the future that the subject of his resignation will be more seriously considered than it has been at any time previously, all rumors to the contrary notwithstanding."

The question now under consideration is whether or not the war is practically over and whether Arthur Balfour could be hoisted to the premier's chair without causing trouble with Mr. Chamberlain on the one hand and with the man in the street on the other. The opinion of the man in the street has been making itself felt of late more than Premier Salisbury would ever believe and that opinion is to the effect that if England is really going to end the war that entered upon its third year yesterday it will have to place at the helm somebody less inert and indifferent than any member of the Cecil family.

The man in the street has a great admiration for Mr. Chamberlain and seems to have a vague idea that if "Pushful Joe" were prime minister something or other would happen to the boers forthwith and also that the helplessness of England in the face of American competition would suddenly vanish, that the government would bestir itself in the far east and that everything would begin to hum. The cabinet, however, does not love the secretary and, according to the general view, is in favor of the mild, amiable, scholarly, aristocratic Mr. Balfour, who would let the other cabinet ministers alone.

The alternative between Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain is, of course the duke of Devonshire, one of the King's personal chums. But the noble duke is as indifferent as Lord Salisbury to the newly powerful man in the street and would be highly unpopular at a time when the conviction is rapidly growing that the government ought to "do something."

Kept a Blindman 40 Years.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—William Hunt died at Kimberley, South Africa, in 1897, and his estate was sold for $16,000 and the money forwarded to Canada.

J. H. Greenwood of Port Hope has a claim of $10,000 against the estate for forty years' keep of Hunt's blind brother, under an agreement with the deceased.

A motion was made before Mr. Justice Robertson at Osgoode Hall to-day on behalf of Greenwood to prevent distribution of the estate until his claim is satisfied.

The case was adjourned for a fortnight.

UPHOLDS THE SWORD.

Roosevelt Shows His Love of Military Display.

AIDS IN BRILLIANT UNIFORMS

First President Since Grant to Travel with Military Escort—Officers to Wear Uniform While on Duty.

Washington, Oct. 23.—When President Roosevelt started from the white house for the Pennsylvania station this afternoon he was accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou and his naval aid and brother-in-law, Commander Cowles. Commander Cowles was in full uniform and the uniform was perhaps the most gorgeous that has ever been seen in Washington. He carried a sword with a jeweled handle. The naval commander occupied the first seat of the president's carriage, facing the president Secretary Cortelyou Colonel Whitney, the president's military aid, will join the party in New Haven.

President Roosevelt is the first occupant of the white house since Grant's time who has started upon a semi-official journey accompanied by a military or naval aid. Indeed, he is the first president in nearly thirty years who has availed himself of his right as commander in chief of the army and navy to secure the services of officials of those branches of the government as his aides.

The late President McKinley, especially after the Spanish war, eschewed everything that had a military flavor, because he feared that unless he did so he would be accused of leaning toward militarism. President Roosevelt is not afraid of this accusation. On the contrary, he is encouraging the idea that his is a military administration. He is responsible for Secretary Root's order commanding all officers on duty at the war department to wear their uniforms during office hours. The president's departure from the traditions of his immediate predecessors is causing a great deal of gossip, but for the most part public men who have noticed it appear to think it is all right.

London Times Attacks Buller

London, Oct. 24.—General Buller's removal from the command of the First Army Corps has created genuine surprise at Aldershot. Most of the regimental officers there maintain that the punishment more than meets the crime.

A Times editorial says an opportunity to resign was given Sir Redvers, but he preferred dismissal. His choice only throws into stronger relief the amazing defects in judgement and in sense of military discipline marking his Westminster speech. That speech challenged judgement, flouted his superiors, who were Gen. Buller's shield, and trampled on discipline, which was his bulwark. The paper adds:—

"Gen. Buller has developed the defects of his qualities. His tenacity has become obstinacy, his masterful spirit has grown into insubordination and his self-reliance has blinded him to what was painfully obvious to others."

KITCHENER'S TASK AN ENORMOUS ONE

Ammunition That Will Last for Years.

ALL STORED IN THE HILLS

Determination to Use the Rope Instead of the Rifle.

It is the Only Means of Putting Down the Rebellion — A Probability That More Troops Will Be Necessary.

London, Oct. 25. — Dissatisfaction in England with the progress of the war appears to be steadily increasing, not because of the vaporings of the pestilent pro-Boers and the sickly sentimentalists, but because Lord Roberts and the members of the Government have nothing better to say to the people than that they must have patience. Considerable results were expected from the proclamation that went into effect on September 15, but instead another miscalculation has been recorded. Again it was expected that the declaration of martial law in Cape Colony would enable the authorities to check the growth of passive disaffection to active hostility and deter the Afrikanders from arming and taking the field, but the latest advices indicate that the rebels are becoming more numerous and unmanageable.

In their determination to use ropes as well as rifles in putting down the rebellion the authorities have undoubtedly been both wise and humane. Hard hitting is necessary in order to knock out an obstinate an enemy, and one object of prime importance is to block every possible channel of supply, both of ammunition and food, and of information as well. That there has been a steady and uninterrupted importation of ammunition seems certain. A British subject named Englehardt, who has seen a lot of service with the Boers, was recently reported by a reliable London paper to have stated that there is a sufficient quantity stored in the hills beyond the Limpopo to last five years, and that cases of ball cartridges and rifles were being continually landed at various places on the coast and taken [illegible] country without any single instance of capture by the British troops. That there has been constant interchange between Boer sympathizers in Cape Town and their friends in the field is similarly certain. It was a common saying in Cape Town that a man could not throw a stone in Adderley street without hitting a rebel, spies swaggering about in all public places. Under the circumstances the declaration of martial law was a step that was taken too tardily. The anxiety of Lord Milner to observe all the limitations imposed upon the representative of the Crown in a self-governing colony, and his deference to Ministers who were reluctant to sanction such strong measures, may be taken perhaps as an error of judgment. But in being over-scrupulous in sparing Dutch susceptibilities and in endeavoring to fulfil the terms of the constitution in their spirit as well as their letter, he showed himself to be an impartial and even-tempered statesman, whose self-restraint greatly increased the burdens imposed upon him. So we find that at the beginning of the third year of the war martial law reigns throughout South Africa. The best available information, which under the instrumentality of the censor is becoming rather meagre, is to the effect that between 15,000 and 20,000 rebels have entered Cape and that [illegible] faction is steadily increasing. What this means it is difficult, in fact impossible, to estimate. One thing certain is that Lord Kitchener has been denied nothing, and any request that he may make for further troops will be readily and speedily complied with. It may be true that, as the London Spectator avers, there is a growing popular discontent in England with the ruling caste, and especially with the War Office, where "ineptitude is veneered "with social privilege," but the nation is as determined as ever that so long as British supremacy in South Africa is challenged no sacrifice will be too great to firmly establish it.

In observing the progress of the campaign from this distance it is not easy to measure the progress that is being made. No news comes from the front either by telegraph or by mail that has not the stamp of the censor. We do know, however, that there are well-armed and desperate bands of Boers scattered all over South Africa, and that the slightest laxity in guarding the railway lines often results in disaster. The attrition of the Boer forces appears to be compensated by the accession of rebels, and the danger of a great rising of Cape Dutch seems to be more likely now than in some of the earlier periods of the conflict. The results of the operations are certainly insignificant in comparison with the number of troops employed—the British force numbering nearly a quarter of a million. An observant critic in a military paper is probably not far wrong in saying that "had the war "been waged from the first with re"lentless purpose, it would probably have "been over a year ago, to the saving "of thousands of lives now being sac"rificed to the supineness of a Gov"ernment which seemed to be as reckless "of the [illegible] by our troops "as [illegible] for the lives of the "enemy, and the comfort of their "wives and families." This is the [illegible] that now largely prevails in Britain. There has been not enough severity, and too much sentimentality. But with martial law and the proclamation of last month, a change may soon be noticeable. Lord Kitchener's [illegible] may be completed, [illegible] impossible to stop.

BEFORE THE WAR.

A Letter States That the Boers Had Eighty Thousand Men

London, Oct. 23.—A despatch from Durban states that The Maritzburg Times publishes a letter, dated September 29, 1899, written by Mr. Munnik, acting States Mining Engineer of the Transvaal, to the Boer General Emmett, a brother-in-law of Louis Botha, which has been picked up in Emmett's house, near Vryheid. It states that the burgher lists of the two republics showed 80,000 men. "So God protect poor Tommy Atkins, even if he send us twice that number." It goes on to say that the Government had drawn up a stringent confiscation law directed against the "treason-shouting contingent," of so strict a nature that, should the Transvaal prove victorious, all the State finances could be drawn from the share in the mining industry derived from the sequestration of their property.

Getting Ready for Execution

Albany, Oct. 24.—Warden Meade, of Auburn Prison, spent several hours yesterday in conference with Superintendent of State Prisons Cornelius V. Collins, arranging the details for carrying out the sentence of death imposed on Leon F. Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley. They went carefully over the 1,200 requests which have been received for invitation to the electrocution. There will be but 26 witnesses admitted, the law limiting the number. The prison physician will be assisted in the conduct of the autopsy by Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald, former president of the State Commission in Lunacy and one of the greatest experts on insanity in the country. There will also be a number of other physicians in attendance when the final mandate of the law is carried out.

Superintendent of State Prisons Collins is silent as to whom he will invite, but it is learned that the sheriff of Erie County, within whose jurisdiction the crime was committed, will receive an invitation.

Because of the small attendance that can be had under the statute there will be but a limited number of representatives of the press present. The details for the execution have been practically completed and, while the prison authorities guard with great secrecy all facts, it is believed that the execution will take place before 6 o'clock on the morning of October 28, or if everything cannot be gotten ready on that day, at a similar hour on the 29th. The work of selecting the jury to sign the death warrant of the murderer has been completed, but their names are withheld from publication. They will not be known until the morning of the electrocution.

ENGLAND'S NAVAL FORCE DECLINING

England Has Not That Pre-eminence Which She Had Formerly

THE IMPERIAL DEFENCE FUND

Col. Denison's Speech at Trinity Banquet—Convocation Considers the Election of a New Chancellor.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—A large and enthusiastic company of Trinity men sat round the festive board last evening at the annual convocation dinner. Mr. D. T. Symons, chairman of Convocation, presided, and proposed the toast of The King. The toast of the Duke and Duchess was received with a furore of applause.

In proposing the toast of "The Empire," Prof. Clark said that no power had thought less of personal aggrandisement in the wars it had undertaken and the actual accessions of territory which it had secured than Great Britain.

Mayor Howland was the first to respond to the toast. He was followed by Lieut.-Col. Denison, who said all would admit that the unity of the Empire was a matter of first importance to the whole race, but he wished to utter a word of warning. The Empire was dependent on other nations for its very food supply. The position of the Empire was not what it was years ago. Owing to the improvements in battleships and the increase of foreign navies, England did not possess the naval pre-eminence that formerly was hers. We were passing through a crisis in the career of the Empire, and few appreciated it. We in Canada had done a great deal to cement the Empire, but we should consider what more could be done. It was understood that at the coronation in June there would be a conference of Colonial Premiers. We should let the Government at Ottawa know that they had a united country behind them, ready to pay a duty of 5, 6, 8 or 10 per cent. on all foreign imports, to be placed with a similar duty from other parts of the Empire into an Imperial defence fund.

Panic in Cotton Trust

Montreal, Oct 24.—The shareholders of the Dominion Cotton Company have become panic-stricken, as evidenced by the further break in the price of the stock to-day on the Stock Exchange to 50, the lowest price at which the stock has ever sold.

For years the company has been paying 6 per cent. interest on the common stock, but the fear that it cannot do so any longer has caused hundreds of holders to throw their holdings over the board for whatever the stock would bring. Last year the stock sold above par, and, as there is something over $3,000,000 outstanding, it means a shrinkage of a million and a half in the value of the security in little more than a year.

Besides the common stock there is a million of preferred stock, which is reported to be held by the Bank of Montreal as security for a large loan. There is also a bond issue of $1,000,000 outstanding, the redemption of which was to commence in 1906, and to continue at the rate of $25,000 annually. The Dominion Cotton Company is the biggest industrial trust the Dominion has ever known, controlling nine of the largest mills in the country, at Montreal, Magog, Halifax, Moncton, Windsor, Ont., Brantford, and Kingston.

COULD NOT TRACE STRYCHNINE SALE

To Woman Charged With Dosing Husband to Death.

HE WAS DOUBLY POISONED

For Arsenic Was Also Found in His Stomach —Crown Closes Its Case in Murder Against Mrs. White.

Brantford, Oct. 24.—The trial of Mrs. Josephine White for the murder of her husband was continued yesterday, and consisted in the further presentation of the Crown's case. The evidence as to the possession upon the part of the accused of one poison before White's death, while his death was from an entirely different poison, was all the prosecution could offer. Dr. Ellis, the Provincial analyst, swore that on the first examination of the stomach and organs of the dead man he had found strychnine only. Another examination had resulted in finding traces of arsenic, which supports the Crown theory that Mrs. White administered small quantities of arsenic in preparation for the fatal dose of strychnine. No trace can be found on the poison books in Brantford drug stores of the sale of strychnine to Mrs. White. London and Hamilton drug stores were also searched without result.

Mrs. White is very anxious to go on the stand, but her counsel is not undertaking that responsibility. She has made the best of her prison life, and has fitted up her room and beautified it in many ways.

HER RECKLESS TALK.

Mrs. Partridge of Hamilton swore that Mrs. White had told her that she fairly hated her husband, and if he didn't die soon she would marry the Brantford man over her husband's coffin.

Dr. Marquis told of his attendance on the sick man at his death. He saw the symptoms were characteristic of poisoning when he was first called in, but he did not tell Mrs. White. In a post-mortem, held with Dr. Ellis, he found indications of the man having died from convulsions, but did not know from what cause. The symptoms of a cold described by White were such as might have bee produced by small doses of arsenic. Both Dr. Marquis and Dr. Ellis stated that strychnine could be administered without taste in solid food or candy, thereby eliminating the bitter taste of the drug.

Undertaker Pierce of Brantford told of his use of embalming fluid. Mr. Hay objected to the reception of this evidence on the ground that the liquid used by the undertaker might not be the same as the sample submitted to the analyist, and his Lordship ruled out the evidence. Mr. Heyd read authorities that when once the embalming fluid enters the body there is no chance of a conviction for arsenical poison.

FOUND ARSENIC.

Dr. Ellis made five or six tests of the stomach and liver of the dead man, and found arsenic in each. Dr. A. J. Johnston of Toronto was called, and corroborated the evidence describing the symptoms displayed the same as might be expected from arsenical and strychnine poisoning.

Two insurance agents were called with regard to the insurance proposals, and told of their dealings with Mr. and Mrs. White.

READ EVIDENCE OF MISSING WITNESS

Brantford, Oct. 24.—The trial of Mrs. Josephine White was continued this morning. Owing to the overcrowding in the court room yesterday the authorities allowed only the jurymen and witnesses inside the room. Mrs. White gives no sign of the ordeal through which she is passing, and displays a keen interest in the proceedings.

The Crown's case was concluded this forenoon, Mr. Anglin, the Crown prosecutor, stated that the evidence of Mary Irving, given at the Police Court hearing, be admitted. He said that the Crown had done everything in its power to find out her whereabouts, and that sufficient evidence had been adduced to show that she had gone to the United States.

Mr. Heyd, for the defence, argued against the admission of the evidence.

His Lordship ruled in favor of its admission, and it was read by Mr. A. J. Wilkes, K.C. Miss Irving's evidence was to the effect that Mrs. White had told her that she could cure her husband's drinking habits with a powder, but she did not say what that powder was. Miss Irving also said at the preliminary hearing that she believed Mrs. White would give her husband a powder for the purpose of murdering him.

Mr. Frank Merrill, druggist, gave evidence as to the appearance of strychnine in the water. He said that half a grain of it would cause no effervescence, and no discoloration of the water.

The evidence given by Mrs. White at the coroner's inquest was also read. This concluded the Crown's case, and the evidence for the defence is being heard. It is not likely that the trial will be concluded before to-morrow night.

KAISER'S SON MAY COME HERE

Plans for the German Crown Prince to Make a Tour of the World

Berlin, Oct. 25.—There is the best authority for stating that the question of the Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm making a visit to Canada and the United States was discussed recently by the Imperial household. It was not decided at the time and probably will not be until spring. There is some idea that the Crown Prince should make a tour of the world, which would of course, include America. The correspondent understands that Emperor William himself is very desirous of visiting America, but is prevented from doing so chiefly through the necessity of a regency during his absence.

Berlin to-day is covered with flags in honor of the forty-third birthday of the Empress.

Two Lives Lost in Fire.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 24.—Two lives were lost, one person was badly injured, and damage amounting to $1,500 resulted from a fire in this city early to-day. The dead are Mrs. Margaret White, aged 66, and Aldridge Snow, aged 23 years. Both were lodged with Mrs. Hayes, occupant of the building. She was badly burned in trying to rescue Mrs. White. Snow was a longshoreman. His home was in Ipswich, where he had a family. Mrs. White was an invalid and a widow. Mrs. Hayes, [illegible], will recover.

PETERBORO BOY'S LONG VOYAGE.

Wilfrid Staunton Visited Australia and South Sea Islands

TRIP OF OVER 30,000 MILES

Hawaii the Ideal "Island Paradise"—New Zealand the Switzerland of the Southern Hemisphere

Mr. Wilfred Staunton, son of Mr. Wm. Ab Staunton, has within the last eight months covered more ground and sea than, as a rule, falls to the lot of the average Peterborough boy. In a letter from San Francisco, dated Oct. 18, to James Tully, he says: Since seeing you last I have travelled close on thirty thousand miles. In the first place I took a trip to Skaguay on the ill-fated Islander. Then I signed on the Aorangi as a saloon waiter for Honolulu, Hawaiin Islands, and from thence to the New Hebrides, and next to Brisbane, Queensland, then to Sydney, N.S.W., Australia. I then signed as a saloon stewart on the Sierra for Auckland, New Zealand, and from there to the Fiji Islands, and then to Honolulu, and then back to San Francisco. The Hawaiian Islands have more to attract and fascinate from a traveller's standpoint than any place I have yet seen. Hawaii is indeed the ideal "Island Paradise"—a perpetual spring—sunshine, birds and flowers all the year! The celebrated volcano of Kilauea is the largest known active volcano in the world, its ever-living liquid lakes of fire are so easy of access that even ladies and children are frequently taken to the very brink. Samoa, in the Sandwich Islands, in the realization of the poet's dream of the "Land where it is always afternoon."

The charms and fascinations of the happy tropical life are there in abundance. Apia was the home of the illustrious author—the late Robert Louis Stevenson. New Zealand is the Switzerland of the southern hemisphere. Its "Southern Alps" are snow-capped the year round yet not far distant are the ever-boiling hot lakes, excelling even the Yellowstone in abundance, and in natural wonder.

King Edward's Birthday

Ottawa, Oct 24.—The Governor-General has received a cablegram to the effect that it is the King's wish that the usual birthday dinner in the colonies be given in 1901 and 1902 on 9th November. The Secretary of State for Canada has already intimated that November 9th will be a public holiday, and possibly a proclamation will be issued shortly making a formal announcement of the fact.

THEY ARE CALLING OUT THE VOLUNTEERS

Sensation Caused in Britain by a Premature Official Order

BILLS WERE POSTED TOO EARLY

They Order Every Volunteer in the Country to Hold Himself in Readiness to Report for Active Service.

London, Oct. 24.—An error committed by some of the provincial police has led to premature notice of the fact that the War Office contemplates the possible contingency of having to call out every volunteer in the country. The War Office has distributed to the police officers throughout the Kingdom, bills ordering all reservists, militia, Yeomen and volunteers to report themselves without delay to headquarters, with the view of active service. These bills are accompanied by letters ordering that the former be kept in a safe place until telegraphic orders to post them up are received. The police of Lancaster overlooked the letter and posted the bills, causing widespread perturbation.

Teck's Watch Was Not Stolen

Ottawa, Oct 24.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier returned to the Capital at half-past one this morning, and was at his office in the East block bright and early, looking extremely well after his long trip. He greatly enjoyed the novel experience he has been through, and is well pleased with the manner in which Canada received and entertained her royal guests.

DUKE OF TECK'S WATCH.

After all the fuss made about the reported theft of the Duke of Teck's valuable gold watch, the Duke has cabled here that the "ticker" is all right. It had not been lifted by any of the society swells, who had the run of the Ophir down at Halifax or any of the smaller fry, but was stowed away in one of the drawers, where the owner had in an absent-minded moment placed it.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 25 1901

ON A TECHNICALITY.

It was to be a clandestine meeting with Elaine. If Vincent thought of his duplicity at all he simply hugged himself for the inspiration of it. He was elated by the change in her attitude toward him since she imagined him to be the man who had curbed her frightened horse in the park.

Springing from the train he glanced up to the overhanging bluff, and saw her outlined against the autumn landscape, firm and erect upon her own Kitty, and leading the mare's riderless companion by the bridle. He hurried to her side, blushing crimson as he always did in her presence, with the thought of the lie he was acting heavy upon him.

In their greeting was the brevity of good fellowship. He swung into the saddle and she smiled at his strength and agility. Surely, she thought, if he were not her preserver he had been most wonderfully endowed to play the part. She was satisfied to believe in him, whatever the violent skepticism of her Aunt Buford.

She studied him as they rode along, but he was like the Sphinx, unreadable. Again she strove to draw him forth, regarding his gallant deed.

"What made you run away from us after your splendid conduct?" she questioned with true womanly persistancy in pursuing an intensely personal topic. He bantered her.

"There was no room for me upon your horse, was there? Besides, I did not stop the horse."

"Oh," she laughed gaily, believing in him anew, rejecting his disclaimer as he knew she would.

And yet—, she bit her lip with vexation. She wished that Vincent would avow the deed more earnestly. She wished the glory of his deed rested on something more substantial than the testimony of her younger and more romantic sister Evelyn. Moreover, she could not forget the persistent skepticism of her aunt, who openly branded Vincent as a fraud.

She tried to put her doubts aside. She scouted the notion that Vincent would stoop to false pretense. And yet—he smiled so oddly.

As though enraged by the lingering of autumn, long blasts of chilling wind swept down from the west and north, and proclaiming the reign of another shrieking and roaring among the hills, king throughout a conquered land. The gaunt remains of the wild flowers were beaten down upon the face of the fields by angry gusts of the tempest and flung quivering in one terrified direction. Across the ground, like routed armies, innumerable companies of dried leaves scurried madly before the fierce invader. The mournful trees bent low. At last the dusty road was mottled with rain drops, and in the air was the odor of moistened earth.

Elaine was riding ahead, and her pace was slow. Behind her Vincent marveled that she did not press her mare to a faster gait, for they were still far from a place of shelter.

On the brow of a sharp declivity she checked the restive Kitty. Below the country road wound tortuously until it joined acutely with a broad white pike. Vincent, overtaking her, was startled by the changed expression on her face. She raised her whip high in the air just as the black dome split, revealing a universe of fire. The crash of thunder and the cruel blows from Elaine's whip fell simultaneously, and the high-strung beast, rose upon her rear hoofs stationary, but a-tremble. The clean forelimbs hung motionless in the air.

Vincent cried out hoarsely, but Elaine again used the whip, and the gathering energies of the animal were released like the second bolt, which suddenly rent the bulging clouds with a streak of flame. Eluding him, the maddened mare plunged down the grade. A cry from Elaine was borne back to him. The mare was beyond her control.

Already Vincent had spurred on his steed in pursuit. The brave animal caught the man's spirit. It was a fearful risk, a pace like that among treacherous rocks, but he was overtaking her. Leaning further forward upon the rigid neck of his flying horse, straining the animal to the limit of its strength and speed, he saw only Elaine, thought only of Elaine.

In places the road was like a ruined staircase, the level pike beyond separated from the gully only by a low stone wall. Here Elaine would pay for her rashness with her life, unless she fell before they reached the wall, for the runaway would certainly leap to destruction.

Into the broad, white road the mare shot like a living projectile and made for the wall with the thunder of hoofs behind her. Taking the obstacle, she swerved from the force of equine habit

That was the moment!

Vincent's horse crashed upon the mare, and both animals reeled from the shock. The fugitive went over the wall—but Elaine was safe in the arms of Vincent. Her foot providentially slipped from the stirrup, but he was hard put to keep her from slipping to the ground.

He heard her murmur incoherently: "I did it on purpose—to see—if you actually would do it — and she—she really ran away. Oh, Vincent!" And thus they clung together while the deluge poured upon them.

"There they come at last," said Mrs. Buford, with satisfaction and retribution mingling in her tones. "He is a stupid impostor and he can not deny the proofs I now have."

Two rain-soaked figures mounted the steps and came into the house. Like an avenging angel, Mrs. Buford's barred their entrance to the library. In one hand she held a photograph, in the other an open letter.

"Mr. Vincent Merrill I believe you call yourself?"

"That is my name," was his proud reply.

"I may inform you, sir, that the detectives whom I employed to find the real savior of my niece declare that you are simply masquerading as the individual in this portrait." She drew herself up several inches. "The genuine hero turns out to be a poor denizen of the East Side suspected of some petty theft and anxious to avoid publicity through fear of the police. That is why we were unable to locate and properly reward him. My younger niece's unfortunate blunder has placed niece unfortunate blunder has placed Elaine in a most awkward predicament; in fact, she has been your dupe."

TEARFUL,

Trembling, frightened, she knows not why. Between her sobs she tells her husband of her misery. It is not enough for the husband to comfort the wife in this condition, she needs help. In those early days when the shadow of maternity first begins to fall upon the woman she is often nervous, sleepless, without appetite, and full of vague fears.

The help needed by women at this crisis is fully furnished by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It nourishes the nerves and so quiets them. It restores the appetite and induces refreshing sleep. It gives physical strength and mental buoyancy to meet the trial of motherhood, and makes the baby's advent practically painless.

"I will be very glad to say a few words for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. F. A. Douglas, of Mansonville, Brome Co., Que. "During the first four months when I looked for becoming a mother I suffered very much from nausea and vomiting, and I felt so terribly sick I could scarcely eat or drink anything. I tried all kinds of food. At this time I wrote to Dr. Pierce and he told me to get his 'Favorite Prescription' and a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I got a bottle of each and when I had taken them a few days I felt much better, and when I had taken hardly three parts of each bottle I felt well and could eat as well as any one, and could do my work without any trouble (I could not do anything before). I feel very thankful to Dr. Pierce for his medicine, and I tell all who tell me they are sick to get these medicines or write to Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the bowels.

Elaine gasped, but Mrs. Buford continued remorselessly:

"And now, Mr. Merrill, what have you to say for yourself?"

Vincent's glance fell to the floor, where water was oozing from his boots in muddy puddles.

"Well, to be perfectly frank, Mrs. Buford, we were caught in a frightful storm, and sought shelter at the Methodist parsonage, and—and while we were there we just thought we'd be married. That is all."

THE WAR.

London, Oct. 23.—The siege of Mafeking began two years ago. It was raised on May 17, 1900, after lasting 216 days. Upon this second anniversary J. Emmerson Neilly, the well known war correspondent of the "Pall Mall Gazette," has deemed it a duty to correct some erroneous impressions held by a section of the public. It is stated; (1) That we could have held out for months longer; (2) that the relief found Mafeking a land flowing with milk and honey, even champagne being plentiful; (3) that in the end there was only a handful of Boers around us.

"In answer to the first I may say that with Baden-Powell's permission I always had access to the inventory of stores kept by Captain Ryan, the commissariat officer. In February Baden-Powell computed that we could hold out on very short commons until about May 15. Lord Roberts sent up to say that the nation would be moved and he would be personally obliged if the town held out, and he trusted that we would not be driven to surrender before the date mentioned, when he hoped to relieve us.

"Day by day the Colonel consulted with Captain Ryan; day by day our small stock of Indian corn and colonial oats ran down. Not an ounce was lost, and the officers of the staff lived on the same starvation diet as the men in the trenches. We killed our horses and ate them. We only killed them when they became so weak from hunger that they could not stand. They had had little or no flesh on them; they were skinned, and the skin and bones were scraped so that the flesh we got was a slimy, stringy, minced-up, horrible mess. Six ounces of this and four of chupatty was our daily dole. Before the relief the Boers descended upon our horses during a Sunday truce and reduced us to more terrible straits, and when towards sunset on May 17 the heaven-sent troops appeared on the horizon we had a little more than a week's supply left. There was no champagne in the town; there was no whiskey either; we bibulous folk had lived on Worcester sauce for a while. Jim Keeley—how hose farm-house was burned down the other day—brought in three bottles of Scotch with the relief, and they were regarded as curiosities. We had a few horses, a couple of spans of trek oxen for transport work, and two or three cows, whose milk was required for the hospital patients and children. So much for the 'milk and honey.' That story was started, I believe, by some of the relieving force who hailed from Kimberley, and who were jealous of the name of Mafeking. If they saw supplies, these supplies were brought in by the convoy on the heels of the relief column.

"As regards the number of Boers around us, they started at eleven to one of us. As time went on we thinned them out, and the rows of white crosses in the graveyard showed how our force had been reached. The crammed hospitals and convalescent home, and the almost empty trenches, testified quite as eloquently to our weakness. A week before there Eloff made his dash, but we captured him and his commando, and from that on we had peace; for Snyman was afraid to shell us just as he should smash up his own friends; and a large portion of the men in his laagers ran away when they heard that Mahon was coming up country. It is said that we could have got out towards the end. We had no horses, no supplies, little ammunition, and the garrison was not in a condition to march ten miles. Even had the colonel decided to abandon the town, which would surely have been burned to the ground, he must have left his sick and women and children. What then? Kimberley was our nearest point, and Kimberley was a fortnight's march away. The man who says we could have cut our way out is silly. Yet even apparently sane men say we should have done it. Would that some of those men had been in the town and attempted to leave it—to hear the swishing and whistling of bullets about their ears. They would scarcely have repeated the attempt.

"Now, no successful commander has ever escaped the envy and spite of his less known, and perhaps less able, fellows. Baden-Powell is no exception. By the nation at large he is regarded at his true worth; it is otherwise with some people who have a bad attack of green-eye. I am not disposed to discuss this point very much. But let me say that in no other profession is there so much jealousy as in the army.

"In conclusion, when, on the hundreth day of the siege, the townspeople desired to present the Colonel with an address, he begged them to do nothing of the sort. They should wait for the end, and see if he deserved it. About the same time I eulogized him in a despatch which he saw with the press censor. He requested me not to praise him and in deference to his wish I tore up the letter. Later on, knowing that the public would wish for something about him, I wrote another despatch, which I took care he should not see. The General needs no apologist. I write only to show some gentlemen the character of the bases upon which some of their gossip rests."

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—Lieut. Morrison, the gallant returned South African artillery officer, writes as follows to the Citizen:

"The question is often asked by a mystified public, Why cannot the British follow up a Boer commando until the enemy is forced to fight or surrender? The question is a natural one. Day after day reports come in of the British getting in touch with such-and-such a commando in the heart of Cape Colony. There is no reason either as regards the mobility of the Boers or the nature of the country why this should be so, though both reasons have been alleged as the explanation. The Boers are not as mobile as the Indians of the west, they cannot live on less food and have not better horses. Yet the American cavalry have in campaign after campaign followed the Indians through the arid plains of Montana, Arizona and New Mexico and killed them off or forced them to surrender. In the Canadian Northwest campaign the Indians and halfbreeds retreated into the wooded country north of the Saskatchewan where they could elude pursuers or lay ambushes much more easily than the Boers can on the veldt, but the Canadian troops followed every band up and forced them to surrender. In both cases success lay in cutting loose from everything and keeping after the enemy, never losing touch until they were run to a standstill.

"Without discussing or comparing the British methods, here is a plan by which every commando now operating in South Africa could be wiped out seriatim: When a commando is located, put a thousand well mounted men on their trail (few commandoes number half that number) and let them follow that commando to a finish. Keep in touch during the day and at night send out plenty of scouts round the enemy's flanks to keep track of them if they slip away during the night, the scouts keeping near them and sending back reports before daylight and at intervals later on so that the main body can come up rapidly and resume the pursuit. Then let the main body keep in touch and keep them on the run. Two or three days and nights of that sort of thing will wear down any force. The Boers starting with worn horses and the pursuers with fresh, well-fed horses, there should be no question as to which will win out. If the Boer commando breaks up let the British divide and follow the isolated parties—it should then only be a question of hours.

"The trouble is that the British move with baggage when they should have none; that the British cavalry are unfitted for daring, individual scouting far out to the front and flanks. When they get in touch with a Boer commando they follow it until nightfall. Then they go into camp, post pickets and wait till morning, or sometimes advance with their whole force at night when the Boers take the alarm and slip away in the dark. The idea of keeping the main body in reserve for rapid day marching and employing a large number of individual scouts to quietly keep the enemy in observation during the night by prowling round his flanks and rear is not resorted to because probably they have not the men for such work.

"We believe that a thousand Canadian mounted troops of such material as the Strathcona Horse, given a free hand and good horses, would follow and ride down in succession any and every Boer commando now reported raiding through Cape Colony."

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 23.—The afternoon newspapers to-day agree that the dismissal of Gen. Buller from the command of the first Army Corps and placing him on half-pay was inevitable. It appears that the General was only officially notified of the decision late yesterday evening, the notification being delivered at his official residence at Aldershot by a special messenger from the War Office at about the same time as it was issued to the newspapers. This morning's army orders at Aldershot announce that General Buller has already given up his command.

JAPANESE LOAN OF $5,000,000.

Yokohama, Oct. 23.—The Treasury officials announce the issue of Exchequer bills to the amount of $5,000,000, repayable in ten months at 7 per cent. interest. Negotiations continue for the sale of the bonds abroad.

NOT A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Yokohama, Oct. 23.—The accident which caused the United States transport Sheridan, from Manila to San Francisco, with over 1,000 troops on board, to put into Nagasaki is not of a serious nature. Her tail shaft is damaged, and she will be docked for repairs.

EMPEROR AND BEGGAR GIRL.

Vienna, Oct. 23.—When the Emperor Francis Joseph was yesterday stepping into his carriage after visiting an exhibition, a little girl, very poorly clad, ran forward and stretched out a dirty piece of paper towards the monarch. Two detectives seized the girl and would have dragged her away but the Emperor interfered and told them to leave her alone. Then he beckoned to her to approach him, and took the paper from her hand. During the drive home the Emperor read the paper and ordered it to be attended to. It was a petition for aid for the aged grandmother of the little beggar-girl.

Paris, Oct. 23.—The special law concerning anarchists and the propogation of their principles, passed by M. Dupuy's Cabinet in 1894, and so vehemently denounced at the time by the present Minister of Commerce, received its first application yesterday, when Tailhade, the well known anarchist writer and poet, and M. Grandidier, the publisher of The Libertaire, were sentenced for the publication of an article during the Czar's stay in France, which contained an incitement to murder. The Act inflicts fines varying from one hundred francs to two thousand francs or orders imprisonment from three months to two years.

M. Emile Zola, the famous novelist, in his testimony at the trial said that he had a profound friendship for M. Tailhade, and he willingly came to the witness bar to pay him his tribute of admiration, for he was a writer who honored French literature. The article for which he was prosecuted should be read in its entirety. Some people might find that it was written in terms which could be considered as violent. As to himself, it was not for him to appreciate. But it must not be forgotten that M. Tailhade was above everything a poet, whose style was vivid and vibrating. And it was because his style was vibrating and picturesque that he might have raised fears in the minds of some people. In certain journals, which M. Zola did not hesitate to term organs of social poisoning, worse things were daily said, but the fear they inspired was less, because, not having the prestige of style, they were less read or remained unnoticed. M. Tailhade was especially prosecuted for his literature.

M. Zola, in reply to a question put by M. Albert Salmon, who was defending added: "You ask me whether the articles of Laurent Tailhade can be dangerous on account of the influence they may exercise on the masses. Yes, Tailhade goes courageously to the people; but I do not think he is well understood by that same people, which wants to be educated up to him."

After further evidence had been given the court retired, and in an hour returned with a judgement by which extenuating circumstances were accorded Grandidier, and he was, therefore, only sentenced to six months' imprisonment and a fine of a thousand francs. M. Tailhade was sentenced to a similar fine, but with a year's imprisonment. Then followed a scene of extreme violence. The President's efforts to restore order proved unavailing and the court was finally cleared by the guards. M. Zola, on leaving the Palais de Justice, was greeted with cries of "Vive Zola!" a rather different reception from that accorded the great writer at previous exits from the law courts.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid damp feet, drink water abundantly, and always rely on Polson's Nerviline as an absolute reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than other remedies, its power over pain is simply beyond belief. Buy a large 25 cent bottle to-day, test it, and see if this is not so. Polson's Nerviline always cures rheumatism.

THE MOLSONS BANK.

The forty-sixth annual general meeting of the Molsons Bank was held in the Board Room of that institution at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The President, Mr. W. Molson Macpherson, occupied the chair, and among those present were, Messrs. S. H. Ewing, Vice-President; J. P. Cleghorn, Samuel Finley, F. C. Henshaw, H. Markland Molson, W. M. Ramsay, directors; George Filer, A. G. Watson, John Crawford, J. Try-Davies, Hon. James O'Brien, James Wilson, S. W. Ewing, E. H. Copland, W. R. Miller, Charles E. Spragge, G. M. Kinghorn, G. W. Robinson, F. W. Molson, and Colin McCuaig.

The President, having called the meeting to order, requested Mr. A. D. Durnford to act as secretary, and after that gentleman had read the advertisement convening the meeting, the President named Messrs. J. Try-Davies and Charles E. Spragge to act as scrutineers.

REPORT OF DIRECTORS.

The General Manager, Mr. James Elliot, then read the annual report of the Directors, as follows:—

The Directors beg to submit the following report for the year ending the 30th September, 1901:—

The net earnings of the Bank, after making full provision for bad and doubtful debts amounted to $353,890.51, being equal to 14.15 per cent. on the Capital Account.

This has been distributed by two semi-annual dividends of 4 per cent., and a bonus of 1 per cent. Included in the expenditure of the year has been $15,364.62 for alterations and improvements in the premises at Montreal and elsewhere. The Directors are confident that the alterations completed during the year at Montreal will have the entire approval of the Shareholders, adding as they have done so materially to the appearance of the office and the convenience of the public and officials of the Bank.

The Directors have been able to add $100,000 to the Reserve Fund, making its present total $2,150,000 and have carried forward $31,506.47, to the credit of Profit and Loss Account.

The Bank acquired during the past summer premises in Jacques Cartier Square in this city, where a branch has been opened, known as the Market and Harbor branch, offering all the usual banking facilities to the public.

As the growth of business at Valleyfield, Que., did not meet the expectations of the Board, the branch there has been closed.

All the branches of the Bank have been inspected during the year, and your Directors, have pleasure in once again bearing testimony to the zeal and efficiency with which the work of the Bank is performed by the officials generally.

On behalf of the Directors.

W. MOLSON MACPHERSON
President.

THE DISCUSSION.

The President then said:—

In submitting to you the result of the year's work, I do so with the greatest satisfaction, knowing that you will receive it with feelings of approval. The annual meeting of the Molsons Bank occurs when all predictions respecting our harvest have become an established fact. Our country for years depended upon its wheat crops, and prosperity or depression throughout the country was largely governed by it, but now our older provinces have become firmly established as dairy and farm producing provinces. Our cheese, butter, cattle and hay, continue to find ready markets in Great Britain; our hay and oats are being shipped in large quantities to South Africa, and our Canadian horses are being largely used as remounts for the British troops in South Africa. Consequently our trade returns for the year are of a most satisfactory character.

The water powers of Canada and our valuable spruce lands have attracted British and foreign capital, resulting in the very large manufacture of pulp and paper, and in addition to this, our pulpwood manufactured for the United States has become a considerable article of export, and has given employment to labor, and the carrying trade of the country has derived great benefit therefrom.

The employment of labor through all our manufacturing sections, as well as through our farming districts, has been very satisfactory, the labor market being strained to its fullest extent; consequently, our country offers great inducements to settlers.

The increased deposits in banks and financial institutions show how fully labor and capital have been employed and remunerated, the total amount now being over $400,000,000.

The province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories have been bountifully blessed with the finest harvest that our country has ever enjoyed, greatly benefiting the business of the whole Dominion.

As a result of such prosperity, our Bank has derived its full advantages as our branches extend from Quebec to Vancouver, covering the whole country, and I am, therefore, enabled to place before you the handsome statement which shows 14.15 return on our capital.

We are continually strengthening ourselves, and have added this year $100,000 to the Rest, which now stands at $2,150,000, or 86 per cent. of our capital; and have also increased our reserves by investing in bonds and securities, which now stand at $2,211,447.

Feeling so sanguine of the continued good earnings of the bank, the Directors have decided to recommend that the dividend be paid 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, that is 9 per cent. annually, instead of 8 per cent., with a bonus of one per cent. as formerly. I am sure that such a change will meet with general approval.

The capital of the Bank has been employed to its fullest capacity, and the circulation has been kept to its fullest limit.

The Shareholders of the Bank have increased from 655 in 1900, to 747 in 1901, thus increasing the friends and supporters of the Bank.

The General Manager, Inspectors, Managers, and in fact, the whole staff of the bank, have been most zealous and efficient, and the pleasing statement now submitted is the outcome of their exertions.

I don't know that I have anything further to add. The year has been a most prosperous one. The country, from one end to the other, seems to be blessed with abundance, but we must safeguard against what must come sooner or later, for we cannot have good times always, and we feel it our duty to protect the Shareholders all we can. Any questions the Shareholders wish to ask I will be pleased to answer.

Mr. James Wilson spoke a few words concerning the admirable statement placed before the Shareholders, and remarked that in it he did not see any mention of the Pension Fund which it was last year decided to establish.

The General Manager—"We have not started it yet; but are still working at the idea. We have had insurance actuaries examining into certain data we gave them, and their opinions are more exacting than what we thought necessary. Probably we shall start the fund on January 1 next."

Mr. Wilson hoped that when the fund was established, it would be a contribution of the Bank itself, and not an assessment on the employes, because he thought it would make the Directors feel that when an offical was leaving the employ of the institution, he did so without feeling that he had been paying into a fund from which he would never get any benefit.

The General Manager—"We have a certain fund set aside already for that purpose, but we found that it required more than we had expected. We shall have to make an assessment on the officers, but it won't be much, probably 3 per cent. of their salaries, and if one of them leaves before he is entitled to a pension, he will get back the whole, or nearly the whole, of what he has paid in, if he has behaved properly."

Mr. John Crawford took it for granted that the Directors would do what was right towards the officials of the Bank, for a more efficient, obliging and better lot of men was not to be found in the Dominion. He spoke of the financial statement as being exceedingly satisfactory, but expressed regret at the remarks of the President, that the Directors recommended a dividend of 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, instead of 4 per cent., and a bonus, equal to 9 per cent. in the year. He had hoped that there would have been no difficulty in initiating, next October, a 10 per cent. dividend. Speaking of deposits bearing interest, and amounting to over $12,000,000, he wished to know what profit the Bank made on them. He assumed that the maximum interest allowed by the Bank was 3 per cent.

The General Manager—"We have to keep a large amount of cash on hand, idle, at all the thirty-eight branches. There are $1,500,000 of that cash lying in the vaults here, and in those of the different branches. We make a profit, but it is difficult to say how much; we pay 3 per cent. and lend at 6, but we cannot lend all we have."

Mr. Crawford—"There are $500,000 and odd with foreign agents; I presume it is the New York?"

The General Manager—"New York, Germany, France, etc.

In reply to further questions by Mr. Crawford, the General Manager said that the municipal, railway, public and other securities were principally railway bonds and British consols, of which latter the Bank had £40,000. There were very few municipal Canadian bonds, except first class ones. Our Bonds, amounting to about $2,100,000, were of such a class that on them money could be borrowed tomorrow either in London or New York.

The President—"We are pleased to hear Mr. Crawford's remarks in reference to the statement, and I cannot say we are astonished to hear him in reference to the dividend, as I have known what his ideas were. Our intention has always been to make the Rest equal to the Capital, and the Directors have steadily gone on in that direction; it gives greater security to the Shareholders. I think Mr. Crawford would be the last one to advise us to do anything which would weaken the security of the Shareholders. As things look at present, it does not seem as if it would be long before we shall be able to pay 10 per cent. dividend. If we could see three or four years ahead, and if the years were like some we have had in the past, the matter would be easy. But we cannot, and I think we must go on making the Rest equal to the Capital, and protect the Shareholders. I beg to move the adoption of the annual report."

The motion was seconded by Mr. S. H. Ewing, Vice-President, and was carried unanimously.

Mr. Crawford then moved: "That the thanks of the Shareholders are due and are hereby tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their valuable services to the Bank during the past year." He spoke of the infinite pleasure it afforded him to make the motion, and of the great confidence he felt in the Bank. The statement which had that day been submitted to the Shareholders showed how diligently and faithfully the Directors had applied themselves to the interests of the Bank. With the motion he also coupled the General Manager, Inspectors, Manager and officers.

The motion was seconded by Hon. James O'Brien, who expressed the opinion that the financial statement was a most satisfactory one, and hearty thanks were deserving those who had made the year so successful.

The motion having been unanimously concurred in, the President returned thanks, and said that, of course, the Directors and the officials should be linked together in the resolution. The Directors would be a very inefficient body without the Managers of the Bank. It was to them the Bank was indebted for the handsome statement which had been placed before the Shareholders, and which had been so approved by them.

Mr. S. H. Ewing also said a few words of thanks. He remarked that he felt it a great honor to be a Director of that Bank. He had been there for quite a number of years now, and he thought that he was safe in saying that the whole board did all it possibly could for the Bank. As to beginning to pay a 10 per cent. dividend at present. The Molsons Bank had always progressed, never gone back, had always increased its dividend, never decreased it and he thought that if it kept on paying 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, until the Rest amounted to $2,500,000, it could then safely go on paying a 10 per cent. dividend. He spoke of the diligence and close attention which the General Manager, Mr. Elliott, gave to the affairs of the Bank. Mr. Elliot had been with the bank 42 years, and he seemed part and parcel of the institution. To Mr. Elliot, to Mr. Durnford, the chief inspector, and to the whole staff the Bank was very much indebted. The staff was a splendid one.

Replying to Mr. Crawford, the President said that an attempt was made to break into the branch at Owen Sound, but it was unsuccessful, and therefore no loss was sustained. Three men were arrested, but so far nothing had been proved against them. The Bank had 38 branches, and there were four inspectors. Mr. Durnford, the chief inspector, usually remained in Montreal.

Mr. Crawford wished to know if, in the Bank and its branches, there were any means, electrical or otherwise, of communicating with the outside, in the case of a hold-up.

The General Manager—"We have such electrical protection wherever it can be obtained."

The meeting then proceeded to the election of officers, and the scrutineers soon reported that the retiring Board had been re-elected, viz.;—Messrs. James P. Cleghorn, S. H. Ewing, Samuel Finley, F. C. Henshaw, H. Markland Molson, W. Molson Macpherson, W. M. Ramsay.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. W. Molson Macpherson was re-elected President, and Mr. S. H. Ewing Vice-President.

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Miss Edith Scollie and Mr. Wm. C. Stewart.

A very pretty church wedding took place at St. Mark's, Otonabee, on Wednesday, when Miss Edith Scollie, neice of Mr. Robt. Scollie, and Mr. William C. Stewart, of Otonabee, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, and the church was very prettily decorated for the occasion.

The bride wore a pretty white silk blouse and grey silk skirt with coat and hat to match. She was assisted by Miss Kathleen Wilson. The groomsman was Mr. W. J. Scollie.

Miss Rose Greystock officiated at the organ and as the bridal party entered the church the strains of "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden" were heard, a wedding march being afterwards played.

A reception was afterwards held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Scollie, uncle and aunt of the bride, and a sumptuous wedding dejeuner was served. A large number of very handsome gifts were received.

FOWLER—TULLY.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized on Wednesday last, at the residence of Mr. David Tully, Smith, when his daughter, Miss Aggie, was united in marriage to Mr. W. G. Fowler, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Kannawin, of Omemee. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler left on the 5.45 G.T.R. train for their home in Toronto.

WAITE—HENDERSON.

The Lindsay Post makes the following reference to the marriage on Wednesday of Miss Jean Henderson, who formerly resided in Ashburnham, and was a frequent visitor in town:

"A very pretty wedding was solemnized this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Henderson, 11 Cambridge street, when their second daughter, Jean Mercer, was united in marriage to Arthur Hugh White. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Macmillan, pastor of St. Andrew's church, in the presence of a company of friends from Toronto, Hamilton, Cobourg, Peterborough and Lindsay. The bride looked charming, being prettily attired in white silk organdie. Her sister Miss Mabel Henderson, was bridesmaid and was dressed in yellow organdie, trimmed with black. The groom was supported by Mr. Claude Preston. After the usual congratulations had been extended to the happy couple the party sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner. The presents to the bride were numerous and costly, and indicated her popularity with her friends. The happy couple left on the 6 o'clock train for a honeymoon trip to Toronto, Buffalo and other places. On their return they will take up their residence in the house occupied by Mr. W. W. Jewett, York street. The bride's going away dress was a broad cloth tailor made suit, with grey toque to match."

WRITE YOUR IDEAS.

Readers of The Times Invited to Write for the Paper

The Times invites those men who have ideas that they care to share with the public to write to the editor letters expressing their views. The letters will be given place and discussion of the ideas invited.

There are plenty of men in this community who have capital ideas regarding matters of public importance and those men should not feel that they are denied the forum. It is a duty incumbent on the citizen to take his share of the burden carried by those who strive for the public welfare. Valuable ideas are lost every minute because those to whom they are born lack the assurance to make them public. Questions affecting the welfare of the public might be solved if the men who give them consideration would place their solutions before their fellows.

In its mission of attempting to solve problems of public importance The Times asks the benefit of the ideas or experiences of men who have either and can write them. Illustration is the best sort of argument and men who had experiences are in possession of capital quite as valuable as that possessed by those who have ideas.

Write to The Times. Let your words be few, let the subject matter be of public interest and The Times will see to the manner of presenting the communication. The Times is not in need of advice about how to run a newspaper—it hires men to do that. Pretaplasmic affinity may be a delightful subject for the speculative essayist but it would not interest the readers of a work-a-day newspaper. Avoid the abstruse and the abstract, and get to the point. All letters will receive careful consideration and given place according to their value.

In addition to being a business enterprise The Times is run for the people. It stands ready always to supply a forum for the private citizen.

THE POULTRY SHOW

Date of Exhibition Changed to January 21st 22nd and 23rd

At a meeting of the poultry association last night it was decided to change the date of the coming winter exhibition. The 28th, 29th and 30th January were originally fixed upon, but inasmuch as the County Council gave a grant of $25 to the association, it was decided to hold the show next winter, while the Council is in session so that members from a distance may have the opportunity of attending the exhibition. The show will take place on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the 21st, 22nd and 23rd January. The association decided have 100 permanent coops constructed.

INDIAN RIVER.

—Mr. Wm. Foster has returned from a trip to New Ontario. He reports settlers flocking in and things generally booming. He intends moving out next spring.

—Mr. A. Whibbs has opened up his new show-rooms, where he is exhibiting a full line of all kinds of implements, waggons and buggies.

—Mr. J. H. Brown shipped a carload of potatoes last week.

—Mr. John O. Fife is doing quite a business in insurance in the neighborhood lately.

—Several visitors from Coldsprings were in the village last week.

—The "taffy-pulls" have commenced again.

—Mr. Arthur Free paid a visit down east last week.

Scarcity of Men.

As an evidence of how scarce working men are, we might mention that when one of the town drivers wanted to get off for a day, a substitute could not be obtained. We learn that men are being imported to work on the different building contracts now under way in town.

A CORRECT ANSWER.

How a Little Pupil Answered a Serious Question.

Little Agnes is a regular attendant at the Peterborough George street Sunday school. The other day the teacher decided to have a general review of all the ground covered by the primary department. She started, very properly, at the beginning:

"Children," she said, "after Adam was created, how was Eve brought into the world?"

A half dozen hands went into the air.

"Willie Smith may answer," said the teacher.

"Made-outen-a-bone-from-Adam."

"Now, children, that is correct. And from what bone was woman created?"

There was an awful silence in the classroom. Finally little Agnes' hand was up like a shot.

"You may answer, Agnes."

Her decision came quickly.

"The jaw-bone," said she.

Departure of Mr. and Mrs. Rye.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewes Rye, and two daughters, who have for twelve years resided on a farm in North Monaghan, close to the town, left yesterday for British Columbia, where they will remain for the winter. They stop off at Toronto until Tuesday, the guests of Mr. Lewes Rye, jr., who was recently married to Miss Robinson. Mr. and Mrs. Rye, we are pleased to say, have almost completely recovered from the accident which befel them a short time ago, when they were thrown out of their buggy in front of the Snowden house. Mr. and Mrs. Rye and family will be greatly missed by their many friends in Peterborough, all of whom will join the Times in wishing them a safe journey and good luck.

THE ROSS GOVERNMENT.

Mr J. H. McClellan Thinks That It Will Be Sustained.

Mr. J. H. McClelland, in conversation with the Times yesterday, stated as his opinion that the present Ontario Government would again carry the country at the forthcoming provincial elections. Mr. McClelland says that in his travels he has gained considerable information regarding the political feeling throughout the country, and it all points to victory for the Liberals.

So far as this great family journal is concerned, it don't profess to know much about it, but of one thing it is assured, and that is, if present indications mean anything it points to the fact that we are on the eve of the hottest election ever known in this or any other country.

CLAIMS RICH GOLD FIND

Michigan Man Sends Glowing Reports from the Yukon

St. Joseph, Mich., Oct. 24.—Three years ago a syndicate was formed in this city to mine gold in the Yukon valley. A. A. Johnson was chosen chief operative and went to Alaska. News has been received that Johnson has struck a claim seventy-five feet deep and 300 feet wide averaging 25 cents to the pan. Johnson's claim at the head of Grouse river, it is claimed, is paying 40 cents to the pan. Johnson says the claims will produce from $150,000 to $200,000 a year.

A WEALTHY CHINAMAN

Returning to China to Enjoy His American Riches.

New York, Oct. 24.—Le Choup, perhaps the wealthiest man in New York's "Chinatown," is going back to China, to live out his old age in the luxury which can be purchased with the fortune he has amassed in this city, says the Tribune. He will leave next Monday for Canton with his wife and three children, born in this city. In China he has two other wives, whom he has not seen for five years. His mother, now eighty-four years old, is in poor health, and Lee wants to see her again before she dies. The fortune which Lee Choup is taking back to China is variously estimated at from $125,000 to $150,000. He got his start in Canada, when the Canadian Pacific Railroad was being built by carrying out some heavy contracts. Then he went to Portland, Oregon, and opened a small store. A number of years ago he came to New York and founded a Chinese trading firm which has become one of the largest in the Chinese quarter, and has a branch in Boston. He is sixty years old, and while his health is good, he is afraid of dying in a foreign land, and will not come back if he can help it.

DAVITT GIVES UP A TOUR

Irish Leader Not in Touch with Nationalists in America.

Boston, Oct. 25.—Friction has arisen between Michael Davitt and the other leaders of the United Irish league. Mr Davitt sailed for Europe last Sunday "on urgent private business," it was said. He will not be with Messrs. Redmond, McHugh and O'Donnell on their tour in this country. Mr. Davitt is reported to have been greatly surprised at the strength of the so-called "physical force" sentiment in this country.

Mr. Davitt has endeavored to be on friendly terms with every section of Irish nationalism in this country, but his popularity has not enabled him to reconcile the differences existing among the Irish nationalists here nor prevented his mission from being a financial failure.

WATERSPOUT ON THE LAKES

Steamer Alcbar Encounters the Phenomenon and Almost Founders.

St. Joseph Mich., Oct. 25.—The first waterspout in years on the east shore off Lake Michigan was sighted between South Haven and Saugatuck yesterday. Tons of water in the form of a round column shot up into the air fully fifty feet. The little steamer Alcbar, which operates between Saugatuck and South Haven, suddenly encountered the waterspout. Tons of water fell upon her decks and for a few minutes it was thought the boat would sink under the terrible pressure and weight of water. Several times the little craft swayed rail-deep on either side. The crew ran to the life-preservers, but the boat righted herself as the waterspout broke. No sea prevailed and the steamer continued on her journey to South Haven.

The very heavy tourist traffic, as well as the thousands of people who have visited the Buffalo Exposition this year over the lines of the Grand Trunk Railway System has naturally brought forth several very favorable criticisms regarding the management, equipment, and general excellence, of this railway. The General Officers are continually in receipt of letters from travellers praising the facilities that the Grand Trunk now offer on all their lines. Passengers as a rule, are not in the habit of informing railroad companies of the satisfactory features in connection with their service and unsolicited testimonials are therefore appreciated.

The following letter from a prominent broker of New York City has just been received at the general offices of the Grand Trunk in Montreal:—

"In July and August, in company with "four others, I greatly enjoyed a trip "over your road from Toronto to Portland. Aside from the charms of the "region through which we travelled, our "pleasure was very much enhanced by "the uniform courtesy and kind attention shown us by the employes of your "road, and especially those on the sleeping train from Toronto to Portland. "Our experience was so delightful that "I have persuaded several of my friends "to take the same trip.

"The only object of these lines is to "recognize merit where it is due."

Everywhere the Grand Trunk is known, nothing but high encomiums of praise are heard from those who patronize this up-to-date system.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid damp feet, drink water abundantly, and always rely on Polson's Nerviline as an absolute reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than other remedies, its power over pain is simply beyond belief. Buy a large 25 cent bottle to-day, test it, and see if this is not so. Polson's Nerviline always cures rheumatism.

FRAZERVILLE.

—Mrs. Richardson's return from her enjoyable visit seems to have so impressed Mr. Richardson that he took a turn at the wheel, or was it the erratic freak of that late train from Peterborough that impressed him with the need of a holiday. At all events both are now to be seen, "at the office," he having returned from the Pan.

—The usual crop of harvest wonders has been reaped this year, despite the fact that the general yield has been rather light. Among the most remarkable yields of the season was a crop, presumably of mangold wurtzels, raised on Mr. Wesley Whitfield's farm, where from less than a quarter of an acre was taken fourteen large loads, estimated to have averaged—well—about from 25 to 30 bushels to the load. Many of the roots weighed from 20 lbs to 24 lbs. Over 100 bushels to the acre is not bad.

—The potato and root harvest affected the attendance at school. The attendance so far this week is quite in excess of the corresponding period of last week.

—The warm days bring bright spots to cheeks that not a week ago sang out "It's cold," while the owner huddled along. Now we hear: "I wish it would rain."

—We learn that scarlet fever, diphtheria and whooping cough are near us.

COUNTY TEACHER'S ANNUAL CONVENTION

Very Interesting Meeting Which Will be Continued To-Day

A NUMBER OF CAPITAL PAPERS

Inspector Brown Took Up the Subject of "Difficult Words"—Was Followed by Others.

The annual convention of the teachers of Peterborough County opened in the Model School, Norwood, on Friday morning, Oct. 25, shortly after 9, the President, Mr. H. C. Kindred, Principal of Havelock Public School, occupying the chair.

After a few introductory remarks, he appointed a Nominating Committee, composed of Miss Mary Brighty, Miss Sara Hamilton, and Mr. James Brackenridge.

The members of the Executive Committee were made a committee on Resolutions, to report to the convention, on the "O.E.A. Resolutions."

Inspector Brown then took up the subject of "Difficult Words." In introducing new words to pupils, there are three stages. After dividing the word into syllables, have pupils spell and pronounce by syllables; then pronounce by syllables; then pronounce the whole word.

Pupils should learn the letters of the alphabet in order, so that they may be able to readily consult dictionaries and other books, the contents of which are arranged alphabetically.

Teachers were asked to not neglect the reading of the sketches of the authors at the beginning of each lesson in the Fourth Reader. They were usually in a style of composition different from that in the lesson itself.

Mr. Brown's address was listened to with attention and profit by those present.

At the close, he answered some questions asked by those present.

Mr. L. T. Lochhead, M.A., of Toronto, followed with an able address on "Reading and Ideal Readers."

He expressed himself as pleased to meet the teachers of Peterborough County, and stated that his one object was to raise oral reading to its proper plane as a science and as an art.

Reading is the natural expression of the true interpretation of thought. However, all may not interpret the thought in the same way.

By our present readers, a great deal of time must be spent in mastering mechanical and etymological difficulties connected with the spelling of words.

If we had ideal readers, showing the proper pronunciation of words, and then the students might devote more time to the proper expression of the thought.

Mr. Lochhead's address was a treat to those present. Afterwards it was discussed by Inspector Brown and others, who expressed themselves as being in accord with the ideas he presented. Mr. T. J. Wallace, Mr. J. Frappy and Mr. G. W. Maichett, took part in the discussion.

The following resolution was passed:

1st.—We, the teachers of Peterborough County, hereby approve of (a) having the syllables of the words in our school readers shown by slight spacing; (b) the accented vowels by heavy type; (c) the silent letters shown by outline or skeleton type; (d) the consonant powers and (e) the ordinary vowel sounds distinguished and related as illustrated by Lochhead's system of phonics.

2nd.—We also recommend that the readers be published (a) by the Educational Department; (b) with the co-operation of the teachers of the provinces, and (c) supplied direct to the secretary of each school at first cost for the pupils.

In the afternoon, the Vice-President, Mr. James Brackenridge, opened the session, and called upon Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.A. He gave a most interesting address on "The Life of Napoleon," tracing his career graphically from first to last. He held the rapt attention of those present from the beginning of his address.

A BIG FIRE RAGING IN PHILADELPHIA

Disastrous Fire in a Manufacturing Establishment

THEY LEAPED FROM LADDERS

Street Literally Piled Up with People who Had Jumped from Fire Escapes—Near Wanamaker's.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—A fierce fire is raging on Market street, between 12th and 13th streets, and it is feared heavy loss of life will be involved. The fire started at 10.30 a.m. in the nine-storey building occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., furniture and upholstering manufacturers. Although the structure was fireproof, it was filled from cellar to roof with highly inflammable material, and in a few minutes flames were bursting from every window, making it impossible for the firemen to assist those in the burning building. Hundreds of men and women were employed by the firm and a great many were killed and injured. Up to 11 o'clock eleven bodies have been removed to the morgue and it is certain that other were killed. The flames spread so quickly that nearly everybody who could get out was compelled to jump from the fire escapes in the rear, which fronts on a narrow street. When the firemen reached the scene this street was literally piled up with the bodies of people who who had jumped. Some were dead, others were dying. Lying on the fire escape at the fifth storey, in full view of thousands of spectators, was a body, roasted to a cinder, and other objects on the fire escape higher up were believed to be bodies. The fire is spreading eastward and has crossed Market street, where several big buildings are on fire, but the Fire Department hope to prevent these from being destroyed. Wanamaker's immense store is only a few hundred feet away, and the City Hall is close by, but the wind is blowing from a direction that will save these structures.

At about 11.30 o'clock the walls of the Hunt-Wilkinson building fell. This gave the firemen an opportunity to work on the other buildings that were ablaze, and at 12 o'clock the fire was believed to be under control. The wholesale and retail rubber warehouse of Lama, and Mulconroy, adjoining Hunt-Wilkinson and Company's building was on fire, but the flames could be confined to the upper stories. Stories, conflict as to the number of persons killed. Hunt, Wilkinson and Co. employed 300 people, mostly girls. The fire is believed to have started on the second floor of their building, where 15 persons were at work. It is not known whether any of these escaped. When the rear wall of the building fell a number of bodies were lying in the small street in the rear, variously estimated at from six to thirty, and they were covered with hundreds of tons of brick and twisted iron. The police say that twelve are known to have been killed, and they hesitate to estimate how many bodies are in the ruins. Dozens of streams of water are playing on the red hot ruins, and as soon as the men can get to work, hundreds of city employes will begin to search for bodies.

JUMPED TO LIFE NETS.

Eye-witnesses say the flames spread with remarkable rapidity. This, they say, was due to the fact that much naptha, varnish, excelsior and other highly inflammable material were used by the firm. Employes who started down the fire escapes in the rear of the building before the flames were visible from the street were compelled to jump before they had travelled two stories because of the flames breaking through the windows. The first firemen who arrived on the scene devoted their energies entirely to the work of rescue. Nets were spread in the front and rear of the building, and some who jumped were saved in this way. A woman jumped from one of the windows of the Market street front, but the smoke blinded her, and she missed the net, striking the pavement and dying instantly. In the rear a young girl who jumped from one of the top stories caught on the fire escape at the third storey, and the flames bursting from the window burned her body to a crisp in almost no time. Two men, one white and one colored, emerged from the fourth storey, and stood on the fire escape with the flames all around them. The white man danced up and down, and appeared to be bereft of his reason. The colored man stood for a few seconds and then jumped to his death below. The white man stood on the fire escape until he was overcome, and then fell to his death in the small street. There was no fire escape on the front of the building, and all employes rushed madly to the rear.

PAN-AMERICAN LOSSES.

The Stockholders Will Lose the $2,500,000 and the Contractors About $1,000,000

Buffalo, Oct. 25.—The decision of the directors to close the Pan-American Exposition on the night of Nov. 2 enables the accountants to make a fairly accurate estimate of the loss which the Pan-American will suffer. It will exceed $4,000,000. The stockholders will receive back nothing for the $2,500,000 which they put in. Contractors who built the exposition will lose $1,000,000, and the issue of $500,000 second mortgage bonds will be defaulted as well as 20 per cent. of the first mortgage bonds.

The banks acting as trustees for the first mortgage bonds have paid 50 per cent. to the holders out of the gate receipts and have on hand enough to pay 30 per cent. more. The contractors mean to fight the division of the money in court and will endeavor to establish liability for the debts on the part of the directors and stockholders. The act incorporating the Pan-American Exposition Company specifically states that the directors and stockholders shall not be liable and this, it is contended, is unconstitutional.

Rice's Return to Toronto

Toronto, Oct. 25.—With both hands and feet shackled, Fred Rice, the bank burglar, was brought back to Toronto yesterday afternoon to be tried for the murder of Constable Boyd. Rice was in charge of two sheriff's officers. He was driven to the jail in a cab and lodged in an isolated cell. A special guard of three county constables kept watch on the outside of the building all last night, and every precaution will be taken to prevent a possible attempt at rescue.

Rice weighs from ten to fifteen pounds more than when he went to Kingston penitentiary, and is confident of escaping conviction on the murder charge.

TO FIGHT BRITISH TRADE.

Dutch Campaign in Favor of Boers To Be Extended to New York.

Brussels, Oct. 25.—The workmen here after listening to the Dutch delegates from Amsterdam, adopted a resolution of sympathy with the movement recently started there against English shipping and goods. The movement was started in Amsterdam by Dutch sympathizers with the Boers, and committees were appointed to call dock laborers and others in Belgium and France to join in it.

Although the workmen adopted a resolution of sympathy the movement is apparently receiving no practical support as yet. The missions to go abroad to seek the support of foreign workmen have not yet started.

Antwerp, Oct. 25.—The promoters of the movement against British shipping as a protest against the Boer war say that they have sent missions to Ghent and French, German and American ports to urge co-operation. The expenses of the delegate are paid by the Dutch Transvaal fund.

Weary Brain Workers.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap's gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure—that's gone too. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid, your digestion needs a bracer too. Your blood requires Phosphorus and Iron that it may be formed readily. Now Ferrozone is a wonderful nerve bracer and blood maker. GENERAL BULLER MAKES STORMY SCENE WHEN ASKED TO RESIGN

GENERAL SIR REDVERS BULLER.

London, Oct. 25.—The leaders of the Liberal organization deny that any meeting of the Liberal leaders has been called, as cabled to the United States by a news agency, to consider the advisability of issuing a manifesto to the country calling on the Government to resign or call a special session of Parliament to discuss the Boer war, the dismissal of General Buller, and other matters. It is generally considered that the issuing of any Liberal manifesto would be merely taking a leaf out of Lord Kitchener's proclamation book, and would be attended by about the same result. An appeal to the Government to call an extra session of Parliament would merely cause amusement. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Mr. Asquith, and Sir William Vernon Harcourt are too old parliamentarians to employ any such futile means in attempting to achieve their ends. As for stirring up an agitation on the subject of Gen. Buller, it is undeniable that the Liberal leaders, in common with the majority of the sober-minded people, and most of the army officers, believe that the War Office acted correctly in retiring General Buller, though this does not prevent criticism of that matter's previous appointment to the command of the first army corps.

A MAKING PARTY CAPITAL.

The efforts made by several of the London daily newspapers to create a feeling in Gen. Buller's favor are patently due to their desire to make party capital, as these papers, previous to the action of the War Office, could scarcely say anything bad enough about the General for whom they have now taken up the cudgels. They have succeeded, however, in working up a certain amount of popular enthusiasm, which finds vent in music hall demonstrations wherever General Buller's name is mentioned. A great meeting of sympathy in Hyde Park is now under consideration, and there is talk of the presentation to the General of a sword of honor as a national tribute. In the west of England, where General Buller's home is situated, the feeling runs high. Frequent meetings have been held to denounce the Government's action.

LETTER FROM THE KING.

A representative of the Associated Press learns that General Buller, first of all, after delivering his speech (at the luncheon given in Westminster to those of their regiment who had taken part in the war in South Africa) which resulted in his retirement, received a personal letter from King Edward disapproving of his utterances and clearly intimating that his Majesty would be glad if General Buller would resign. Then the War Secretary, Mr. Brodrick, summoned General Buller, and point blank demanded his resignation. It was a stormy interview, ending with General Buller's flat refusal to resign. It is said that the General even then did not believe that the War Office would retire him. After the interview Mr. Brodrick went straight to King Edward in Scotland, and the result of his visit was the action which has now so stirred up the country.

MISS STONE SAID TO BE STILL ALIVE

Mr. Dickinson Charges Macedonian Committee with Complicity

THE BRIGANDS IN DISGUISE

But by Accident it was Seen That They Were in the Uniform of the Committee—They are Willing to Surrender.

New York, Oct. 25.—The fact that the brigands who kidnapped Miss Stone have permitted communications to be established is taken to mean that Miss Stone is alive and safe from harm, for the present at least, says the Sofia correspondent of the World. C. M. Dickinson, the diplomatic agent or envoy of the United States in Bulgaria, as well as Consul-General at Constantinople in an interview said:

"I have absolute proof of the complicity in the crime of some members of the Macedonian committee. The brigands who attacked Miss Stone's party were disguised in Turkish fez and cloak. But two of them threw back their cloaks during the attack, thus revealing the uniform of the Macedonian committee. They were recognized, too, as Bulgarians. Moreover, they spoke poor Turkish, but good Bulgarian and ate ham and bacon.

"The leading members of the Bulgarian Government agree, I believe, that the brigands are willing to surrender to the Bulgarian troops and that in this case there would be no danger to the captives' lives, but if they should be attacked by Turkish troops the brigands would fight to the last and then kill the captives. The Turkish troops are under orders not to attack the brigands even if they are fired upon.

DROVE A NEEDLE INTO HIS HEART

Quarrel Between Two Boys Ends in a Tragedy

ROW OF THE YOUNGER BOYS

Took Up the Quarrel of Their Little Brothers—Needle was First Plunged Into the Murderer's Thigh.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 25.—With a large basting needle, such as is used by tailors, David Bernstine, aged 18 years, stabbed seventeen year old Harry Himmelfarb to death last night. The younger brothers of the boys had had a childish quarrel. When the older boys met on the street near their homes they took up the quarrel of the little fellows, and Himmelfarb, who is a coatmaker, pulled from a half-finished coat he was carrying home a big basting needle. He plunged it into young Bernstine's thigh and ran. Bernstine, mad with pain, pursued him, and drawing the needle from his leg as he overtook his adversary, he held Himmelfarb with one hand, while with the other he drove the long needle into his heart, the boy dropping dead where he stood. Bernstine then fled to his home, where he was shortly afterwards arrested by the police.

BEFORE DAYLIGHT, MONDAY.

It is Understood That the Law Will Kill McKinley's Assassin.

Auburn, N.Y., Oct. 25.—It is understood that the execution of Czolgosz will take place in the Auburn, N. Y., penitentiary before six o'clock next Monday morning, or if everything is not then ready, at a similar hour on Tuesday. The details have been completed and are guarded with great secrecy at the prison.

Warden Meade has troubles of his own as the law allows but 26 witnesses and he has received 1200 requests. The prison physician will be assisted at the autopsy by Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald, regarded as New York's foremost insanity expert. Other physicians will be present, and but a limited number of press representatives will be allowed in the death chamber.

AN AMERICAN BORE THE UNION JACK

Formed a Procession of Himself and Flag

A RICH MAN PAYS A BET.

New Yorker Went Through the Heart of Montreal, Then Bought Refreshments—A Wealthy Millionaire.

Montreal, Oct. 25.—Yesterday afternoon at 3.30, with a banner flying, a procession marched solemnly up St. Helen street to Notre Dame, along to St. Peter, and then up St. James to the post office. Then, like the King of France, it solemnly marched back. On the way back the procession got very dry, and a licensed house of refreshment benefitted. The procession was headed by a man and a flag, it was closed by a man with a flag—it consisted of a man with a flag. In fact, Mr. J. R. Simon was the procession.

He is a wealthy silk dealer and importer of New York. It is said he is worth two million dollars or less, and his name is familiar throughout the silk world. Yesterday he was in the Corticelli silk agency here with half a dozen other local silk men and was drawn into a discussion regarding the Boer war; then into a wager, and he lost. What the wager was or, what he lost it is not necessary or discreet to tell, but fifteen minutes later, teamsters brakers, messenger boys and every one else on St. James street stopped to watch Mr. Simon and the Union Jack go by.

Mr. Simon is short, forty, florid and well dressed. He staggered a little when he saw the size of the flag he had to carry, and did not look pleased when he heard that he was to be accompanied by one of the party who was there to see that the meteor flag of England flew free over a wealthy citizen of the United States through the principal street of this patriotic city. The first shock over, he bravely shouldered his banner and set out. He started to walk on the sidewalk, but his guardian said: "You are not a common foot passenger. You are a procession, and processions are not allowed on the sidewalk here." So Mr. Simon got out in the center of the street, and "processed."

The flag and the color-bearer were given royal salutes all along the line of march. The first was from a teamster, who nearly drove over Mr. Simon and then asked if he thought he was the Royal Scots. A newsboy offered him "ten cents for der rag," and a bootblack offered to relieve him of his burden and march ahead of him with it. Some one said: "The bloomin' Dook is coming back," and at the post-office, Mr. Simon was severely eyed by three big policemen, which gave him more concern than any of the disparaging remarks he had heard.

When he returned to the Corticelli silk office he was welcomed by half a hundred wholesale men, who had been notified of the joke, and were on hand with tin horns and thirsts.

Mr. Simon said afterward it was a great honor to march beneath the Union Jack, but he did not think he would aim so high in the future.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 25.—A correspondent with Lord Methuen's division who has accompanied a detachment to Setlagoli, in Bechuanaland, sends interesting particulars from there, in which he says:

"We are now in Setlagoli, a small station of the Cape Police, situate about thirty-five miles south of Mafeking. We have rather a difficult task before us, and scarcely enough troops. It is to drive back into the Transvaal General Van Zyl and Commandant Vandermerwe, who have a following of about 600 Boers. At present our force is only 250 strong, with one field gun. The troops consist of seventy Yeomanry, all picked men from the 5th Battalion, which has seen some of the stiffest fighting that has taken place under Lord Methuen, twenty Cape Police, and a squadron of sixty Dutchmen. The last-named are commanded by an Irishman named Kelley. They formerly fought against the British, but, seeing the futility of further opposition, are now making common cause with our troops in putting down guerilla warfare.

"They brought their horses and Mausers with them; and their knowledge of this district is invaluable to our troops. Commandant Kelley is a born fighter, and inherits the military instincts of his countrymen. He has been engaged in farming operations at Monita, thirty miles from here. Unfortunately, his desertion of the Boer cause and espousal of the British has resulted in the destruction of his farm and home."

PRISONER COULD NOT STAND THE STRAIN

Mrs. White Broke Down at Cross Examination.

SHE CONTRADICTED WITNESSES

Crown Scores One Point of Importance in The Case, but the Court Had to be Adjourned Prematurely.

Brantford, Oct. 25.—At the trial of Mrs. White yesterday afternoon Chas. Dixon and Mrs. Chamberlain testified that White had said in their hearing that he wished he was dead and that they had seen the can of soda spoken of by Mrs. White on the table in the house on the day of White's death.

Bruce Chamberlain, a nephew of the deceased, said his uncle was despondent and drank heavily on pay days.

Hackett Hayden, a fellow employe of White's, said that he had given White some India Root pills for his blood, and they had made him sick at his stomach.

George, eldest son of the prisoner, said that the trouble between his father and mother was due to the former's drinking habits. He denied that his mother had said anything to him about life insurance.

Frank White, the other brother said that his father had told him he was tired of work and tired of life. His mother had discussed the life insurance with him a few minutes after the father's death.

MRS. WHITE'S EVIDENCE.

The court room was crowded to its capacity when Mrs. White was called to the stand. She was dressed in deep mourning, but appeared very sprightly and exceedingly anxious to testify. She told Mr. Boyd that after twenty-seven years of married life she had gone to jail and had spent six months there. She described the misery she had suffered from her husband's dissipated habits, and the trouble she had had in raising her two boys on the proceeds of sewing and keeping boarders. She swore that she never purchased strychnine, but had bought arsenic several times to kill bedbugs and mice. She admitted that she negotiated for insurance upon her husband's life, but she realized that the policy was worthless unless she had paid the first premium. Mr. Hendry had told her that it would be to her interest to pay the premiums, but she told him it was impossible, because she had not the money.

The evidence on cross-examination was made up of a series of contradictions. She denied the statements made by Mrs. Partridge, Mrs. Bush and Miss Irving, all of which were to the effect that Mrs. White had admitted that she hated her husband and hoped to be soon rid of him. All of these stories she attributed to the bad feeling that the women had for her. Her explanation of the fact that she sent for the insurance agent, Mr. Hendry, a few hours after her husband's death was that she wanted to talk to him about the stolen coins. She admitted that her husband was jealous of her, and was afraid that she would talk about him. There were many differences between the evidence given by her before the Police Magistrate and the story told to Mr. Boyd, and she explained these inaccuracies by saying that she was confused at the inquest. She admitted that she did not tell Dr. Marquis when her husband was dying that she had given him soda and water or that he had taken a seidlitz powder. Mr. Anglin was pressing the witness as to why she had not mentioned this to the doctor, and why she had not told of it at the preliminary examination, and the woman broke down and was helped from the stand. She became so ill that she gave way to hysteria.

THE LIGHT AND POWER CO.

The Quaker Oats Company Negotiating for Purchase

Yesterday Mr. Stuart and others representing the Quaker Oats Company met representatives of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, with a view to the purchase of the stock of the latter Company. There was nothing definite arrived at, the meeting being more for the purpose of an informal exchange of views which will lead up, it is expected, to a definite proposition. Hon. Senator Cox was in town, but did not attend the meeting.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 25 1901

SIR REDVERS BULLER'S TELEGRAM

Gen. Buller's recent speech to the Volunteers at Westminster, in which he avowed that he had suggested the surrender of Ladysmith to Sir George White, has cost him his command of the First British Army Corps. It was received by the British newspapers as proving his unfitness for the command. Sir Redvers' "V. C." prevented his civilian critics from accusing him of cowardice in suggesting the surrender of the beleaguered town; but every other characteristic unbecoming an officer and gentleman was ascribed to him. And now the War Office "after consideration of all the circumstances" of the speech, announces his retirement on half pay.

Gen. Buller's account of his telegram to Sir George White is this:

"The message I had to send to Sir George White was that I had made the attack, that I had failed, that I could not possibly make another attempt for a month, and then I was certain I could only do it by slow fighting, and not by rushing. That was the message I had to send, and I had to ask him certain questions.

"I wrote a telegram out and looked at it two or three times, and said, 'It is a mean thing to send a telegram like that. He is a gallant fellow. He will sit still to the end.'

"I was in command. Whatever responsibility there was there was mine, and I thought, 'Ought I not to give him some help, some assistance and some lead—something which, if it came to the last absolute moment, would have enabled him to say, "Well, after all, I have Sir Redvers Buller's (as my commander's) opinion in favor of this."'

"Therefore I 'squitchcocked' into the middle of the telegram a sentence in which I suggested that it would be necessary to abandon—to surrender—the garrison, what he should do when he surrendered, and how he should do it. I put it after one question he had to answer, and followed it with another question. I did not like to suggest to a man I believed to be a brave man and a good soldier—I did not like to suggest that he should do this, or that, or the other thing; but I stuck that into the thing simply because if he ever had to give up, it might be some sort of cover to a man whom I thought in much greater difficulty than I was myself."

This is a straightforward story enough and does not in itself argue any incompetency on [illegible] part. But the British papers [illegible] it as showing his utter unfitness for any command in the army. The Saturday Review says: "In other words, a Commander-in-Chief showed a silly schoolboy craving for the reputation of a 'good fellow,' when a national crisis demanded impersonal heroism." The Daily Mail says "The incident is exactly paralleled by Sir H. Parker's famous order at Copenhagen to Nelson to break off the battle and retire—an order which posterity has unsparingly condemned." The other papers are equally severe on Sir Redvers.

The telegram was sent on Dec. 16, 1899. Ladysmith had been invested by the Boers since Oct. 29. It lay in a hollow, commanded at long range by hills; the garrison consisted at first of 12,000 troops, including four regiments of cavalry, six field batteries, a mountain battery, a naval battery, and some colonial troops; but on Oct. 30, in a sortie, nearly an entire regiment of cavalry was captured, reducing Gen. White's force very appreciably, though at the same time diminishing the number of persons to be fed. Gen. Buller began his attempt to relieve the town early in November. It was marked for six weeks of continual British reverses; from Willow Grove, after driving the Boers from the high ground, Gen. Hildyard was compelled to retreat; sorties from the town dislodged the Boers at times, but at great cost to the defenders. Rations in the town were reduced about the middle of November, while enteric fever increased alarmingly. Finally, on Dec. 15, Gen. Buller attempted to cross the Tugela River at Colenso, and met with a crushing defeat, losing 10 per cent. of his entire force, and eleven field guns. It was the next day that he sent his telegram to Gen. White.

The leading British service paper, the Army and Navy Gazette, says of Buller's [illegible] "[illegible] has interpreted a 'little readily into a counsel of surrender. Sir Redvers Buller [illegible] that he so intended it, but he had a reason, and it is one to his infinite credit. He wished White to understand that if surrender became inevitable, he, the supreme chief, was prepared to accept the responsibility of it. Viewed in this light it was surely a chivalrous and a blameworthy act." It looks as if the British public, irritated at the non-conclusion of the war, had fastened on Sir Redvers as a scapegoat.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I [illegible] a [illegible] for two things—one is the crowd that is in him and the other is the space that air on him to [illegible] his crew with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to the burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 75 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gillon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. H. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bastow thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Eagle, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

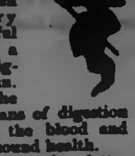
Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

SUPERSTITION

Has been responsible for much of human mortality. Men and women die by thousands in an Indian famine, not because of lack of food but because caste superstition prevents them from accepting it. Even in America there are still to be found those who believe that healing herbs lack virtue unless gathered during certain phases of the moon.

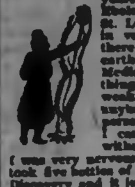
The great foe of superstition is science. Every year science increases the territory of the natural at the expense of the supernatural.



Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery achieves its successful cures because it is a scientific preparation originated by a scientific man. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies the blood and establishes the body in sound health.

As the writer of the following letter says, "It is the best thing for nervousness and for a weak run-down condition that anybody would want. It gives a person new life and new blood."

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol and is free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics.



"I must again send a few lines to you to let you know how I am getting along since taking the wonderful medicine which cured me two years ago," writes Miss Bertha Ebeler, of 1416 Benton Street, St. Louis, Mo. "I am still enjoying very good health and think there is not a better medicine on earth than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the best thing for nervousness and for a weak, run-down condition, that anybody would want. It gives a person new life and new blood. I can now work all day long without feeling the least bit tired. I was very nervous and weak last summer. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it just made me feel like a new person."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets stimulate the liver.

Dr. Agnew's Ointment Cures Piles.—Itching, Bleeding and Blind Piles. Comfort in one application. It cures in three to six nights. It cures all skin diseases in young and old. A remedy beyond compare, and it never fails. 35 cents.—93

ASLEEP ON THE RAIL.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

High Henry Dahrenberg was not a bad man. He was kind-hearted, honest and brave. He was one of the very best runners on the road. He was six feet seven, and might have been taller had he not stooped slightly. He was so high, Dugan said, that if ever he fell down it would kill him. He had a quick, nervous step and an apologetic smile unfortunately for himself and his friends, he had an uncontrollable temper. People said he lost it often Henry often wished he could lose it permanently. He was likely, when suddenly angered, to do things which caused him unhappy days and sleepless nights of regret.

But if a man said, calmly and dispassionately: "Henry, I don't care for you—I hate you for the long, hungry hound that you are. You delight to punish people and I think can climb all over your bent and bony frame—"

"Stop! Stop!" Henry would exclaim. "don't say another word." And he would prepare for the fall.

Having agreed to fight fair, Henry would not break his word, though his wrath might choke him.

On the eve of a Presidential election Henry entered a little hotel after a hard run with the general manager's special, and found a party of working men talking politics. When Henry had traced his long name in a long hand across the broad book that lay upon the counter a big Irishman strolled up, smote the page with his hand and yelled:

"Oi'm a Dimmycrat!"

"So'm I," said Henry. "Shake."

"Oi'm an Irishman."

"I'm not.

"Your a Dutchman!"

"Well," said Henry, smiling and blushing like a school girl, "I'm a Dutchman."

"An' Oi kin lick anny Duthman that walks."

"I ride most of the time."

"Thin Oi kin lick anny Dutchman that rides."

"Well, I guess that means me."

The night clerk came out from his little box and locked the door. Those who were to take the part of non-combatants began to pile the chairs up around the stove, which stood in the sawdust floor, and had just been fired up that day to take the November chill off the air.

It was understood that there should be no kicking nor biting, but that the fight would not necessarily end or even lag with a knock-down.

The men fought silently. When they had been at it 10 minutes, the Irishman was perfectly sober and Henry had recovered from the fatigue of a 200-mile run. Five minutes later, Henry lay under the Irishman, but holding both of his wrists.

"You're licked," says Henry.

"Oi know it. So're you."

"The more fool you."

The men tried to laugh, but they couldn't make much of a success of it, in view of the way their mouths were disarranged.

"Will we git up?"

"Just as you say."

Then Henry released the big blacksmith's wrists and they both got to their feet.

Henry was a sight to see, but the Irishman could not see him.

Noah, who fired for High Henry, was of another piece. He was meek and lowly, quiet as a Quaker, guileless and good. But Noah had one deplorable weakness. He could not stay awake. He was probably sound asleep though it was only 9.30 in the evening, when he went down to the bottom of the Gunnison river under the notorious No. 107 It would have come to the same thing in the end, asleep or awake, for you remember how the engine was cut off the train by a big boulder that shot down the mountain with the speed of a cannon ball.

Noah had gone to sleep on Henry two or three times, and Henry, being exact, even with himself, would stand no foolishness that might lead him into trouble. He had taken Noah by the neck once and had said, with his teeth set and his steel blue eyes flashing fire like a trolley wheel: "Noah, I like you. You are about the best fellow I ever saw, but darn you, if you ever go to sleep on this engine again, I'll break you in two."

Poor Noah was shaking like an aspen, for he knew how High Henry was tempered, and he promised never to nod again.

About 4 o'clock one morning they were coming down the mountain on freight. It was a warm spring morning, the frost had gone out of the earth and left the dumps and fills (the road was comparatively new), soft and springy. They had been on the road, doubling the hill, for 48 hours, and Noah was making the effort of his life to keep awake. The three brakemen were sitting at intervals along the top of the train, looking like black crows on a fence. The time-card gave them 2 hours and 30 minutes to make 20 miles, and all you hear is the clickety-click of the idle valves, the squeak and cry of the brake-shoes on the smoking wheels, and the low measured snore of the air pump, and that sound will put you to sleep like the patter of rain on a roof, or the sound of horses munching hay when you're lying in the hay mow Noah had nodded once or twice, and Henry once had yelled at him.

They had crawled down within five miles of the foot of the hill, when Noah broke the stillness: "Wope! Wope! Look out there—stop 'er—stop 'er." Henry hooked the engine over, put the air on full, screamed for brakes to warn the trainmen, and the 410 sat against the train as a mule sits back at a bad bridge—her wheels going round the other way and a flood of fire going out of her stack.

"Well?" said Henry, when they had come to a stop, "what is it?"

"I don't see nothin'," said Noah, peering through his window.

"Well, didn't you say stop?"

"I never said nothin'!"

"Noah, do you want to die?"

"No, sir!"

"S'matter, Henry?" shouted the head brakeman from the top of the train.

"I don't know. Did you see anything."

"No."

"Did you hear anything?"

"Yes—heard Noah yell to you to stop 'er."

"Come out o' there, Noah!"

"I won't come out, Henry, 'cause you'll kill me. I won't take a lickin' when I ain't done nothin'."

Henry passed his bony hand over his eyes as a man will when not quite sure of himself. He looked ahead where the headlight shone on the two thin threads of steel that turned three cars away and disappeared round a high rock. By this time Henry's wrath had cooled down and without another word he put the lever forward, released the air-brakes and the train moved forward again. When the big black engine got her nose round the curve, which was to Henry's side the engineer saw a great black gap in the track over which the rails sagged, holding the cross ties.

"Look out! Jump!" It was Henry's voice this time, and Noah, being wide awake, went out into the night. In the meantime the 410 was holding and straining against the heavy train that kept shoving her nearer and nearer to the gap that yawned in the grade.

At last she stopped with the soft earth oozing away under her pilot. She could not move the 15 loads that were behind her—that had climbed the hill with the help of two other engines; so there she had to stand until help came and pulled the cars back to a side track.

A little stream of clear water had been trickling down the mountain side for days and days and soaking into the grade. Finally the fill became mushy and when the two light engines that had helped Henry up the hill went by, they shook the grade and the mush slid out and down to the bottom of the gulch, 200 feet below.

When the trainmen and enginemen had come down, and stood at the edge of the break, little Tim Grady crossed himself.

"Noah, you dirty-face," said High Henry, "come here an' let me hug you."

London Times Attacks Buller

London, Oct. 24.—General Buller's removal from the command of the First Army Corps has created genuine surprise at Aldershot. Most of the regimental officers there maintain that the punishment more than meets the crime.

A Times editorial says an opportunity to resign was given Sir Redvers, but he preferred dismissal. His choice only throws into stronger relief the amazing defects in judgement and in sense of military discipline marking his Westminster speech. That speech challenged judgement, flouted his superiors, who were Gen. Buller's shield, and trampled on discipline, which was his bulwark. The paper adds:—

"Gen. Buller has developed the defects of his qualities. His tenacity has become obstinacy, his masterful spirit has grown into insubordination and his self-reliance has blinded him to what was painfully obvious to others."

—The annual meeting of the Thistle Curling Club will be held on Monday evening at eight o'clock, in the rink parlors. A full attendance of members is requested.

The very large number of people who visited the Buffalo Exposition this year over the lines of the Grand Trunk Railway System has naturally brought forth several very favorable criticisms regarding the management, equipment, and general excellence of this railway. The General Officers are continually in receipt of letters from travellers praising the facilities that the Grand Trunk now offer on all their lines. Passengers as a rule, are not in the habit of informing railroad companies of the satisfactory features in connection with their service and unsolicited testimonials are therefore appreciated.

The following letter from a prominent broker of New York City has just been received at the general offices of the Grand Trunk in Montreal:—

"In July and August, in company with "four others, I greatly enjoyed a trip "over your road from Toronto to Portland. Aside from the charms of the "region through which we travelled, our "pleasure was very much enhanced by "the uniform courtesy and kind attention shown us by the employes of your "road, and especially those on the morning train from Toronto to Portland. "Our experience was so delightful that "I have persuaded several of my friends "to take the same trip.

"The only object of these lines is to "recognize merit where it is due."

Everywhere the Grand Trunk is known, nothing but high encomiums of praise are heard from those who patronize this up-to-date system.

THE MOLSONS BANK.

The forty-sixth annual general meeting of the Molsons Bank was held in the Board Room of that institution at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The President, Mr. W. Molson Macpherson, occupied the chair, and among those present were, Messrs. S. H. Ewing, Vice-President; J. P. Cleghorn, Samuel Finley, F. C. Henshaw, H. Markland Molson, W. M. Ramsay, directors; George Filer, A. G. Watson, John Crawford, J. Try-Davies, Hon. James O'Brien, James Wilson, S. W. Ewing, E. H. Copland, W. R. Miller, Charles E. Spragge, G. M. Kinghorn, G. W. Robinson, F. W. Molson, and Colon McCuaig.

The President, having called the meeting to order, requested Mr. A. D. Durnford to act as secretary, and after that gentleman had read the advertisement convening the meeting, the President named Messrs. J. Try-Davies and Charles E. Spragge to act as scrutineers.

REPORT OF DIRECTORS.

The General Manager, Mr. James Elliot, then read the annual report of the Directors, as follows:—

The Directors beg to submit the following report for the year ending the 30th September, 1901:—

The net earnings of the Bank, after making full provision for bad and doubtful debts amounted to $353,[illegible], being equal to 14.15 per cent. on the Capital Account.

This has been distributed by two semi-annual dividends of 4 per cent., and a bonus of 1 per cent. Included in the expenditure of the year has been $15,364.62 for alterations and improvements in the premises at Montreal and elsewhere. The Directors are confident that the alterations completed during the year at Montreal will have the entire approval of the Shareholders, adding as they have done so materially to the appearance of the office and the convenience of the public and officials of the Bank.

The Directors have been able to add $100,000 to the Reserve Fund, making its present total $2,150,000 and are carried forward $31,506.47, to the credit of Profit and Loss Account.

The Bank acquired during the past summer premises in Jacques Cartier Square in this city, where a branch has been opened, known as the Market and Harbor branch, offering all the usual banking facilities to the public.

As the growth of business at Valleyfield, Que., did not meet the expectations of the Board, the branch there has been closed.

All the branches of the Bank have been inspected during the year, and your Directors, have pleasure in once again bearing testimony to the zeal and efficiency with which the work of the Bank is performed by the officials generally.

On behalf of the Directors.

W. MOLSON MACPHERSON
President.

Montreal, 21st October, 1901.

THE DISCUSSION.

The President then said:—

In submitting to you the result of the year's work, I do so with the greatest satisfaction, knowing that you will receive it with feelings of approval. The annual meeting of the Molsons Bank occurs when all predictions respecting our harvest have become an established fact. Our country for years depended upon its wheat crops, and prosperity or depression throughout the country was largely governed by it, but now our older provinces have become firmly established as dairy and farm producing provinces. Our cheese, butter, cattle and hay, continue to find ready markets in Great Britain; our hay and oats are being shipped in large quantities to South Africa, and our Canadian horses are being largely used as remounts for the British troops in South Africa. Consequently our trade returns for the year are of a most satisfactory character.

The water powers of Canada and our valuable spruce lands have attracted British and foreign capital, resulting in the very large manufacture of pulp and paper, and in addition to this, our pulpwood manufactured for the United States has become a considerable article of export, and has given employment to labor, and the carrying trade of the country has derived great benefit therefrom.

The employment of labor through all our manufacturing sections, as well as through our farming districts, has been very satisfactory, the labor market being strained to its fullest extent; consequently, our country offers great inducements to settlers.

The increased deposits in banks and financial institutions show how fully labor and capital have been employed and remunerated, the total amount now being over $400,000,000.

The province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories have been bountifully blessed with the finest harvest that our country has ever enjoyed, greatly benefiting the business of the whole Dominion.

As a result of such prosperity, our Bank has derived its full advantages as our branches extend from Quebec to Vancouver, covering the whole country, and I am, therefore, enabled to place before you the handsome statement which shows 14.15 return on our capital.

We are continually strengthening ourselves, and have added this year $100,000 to the Rest, which now stands at $2,150,000, or 86 per cent. of our capital; and have also increased our reserves by investing in bonds and securities, which now stand at $2,811,-467.

Feeling so sanguine of the country's [illegible] the Directors have decided to [illegible] the dividend [illegible] per cent. semi-annually, that is 9 per cent. annually, instead of 8 per cent., with a bonus of one per cent. as formerly. I am sure that such a change will meet with general approval.

The capital of the Bank has been employed to its fullest capacity, and the circulation has been kept to its fullest limit.

The Shareholders of the Bank have increased from 686 in 1900, to 747 in 1901, thus increasing the friends and supporters of the Bank.

The General Manager, Inspectors, Managers, and in fact, the whole staff of the bank, have been most zealous and efficient, and the pleasing statement now submitted is the outcome of their exertions.

I don't know that I have anything further to add. The year has been a most prosperous one. The country, from one end to the other, seems to be blessed with abundance, but we must safeguard against what must come sooner or later, for we cannot have [illegible] times always, and we deem it our duty to protect the Shareholders all we can. Any questions the Shareholders wish to ask I will be [illegible]

Mr. [illegible] Wilson [illegible] a few words concerning the admirable statement placed before the Shareholders, and remarked that if he did not see any mention of the Pension Fund which it was last year decided to establish.

The General Manager—"We have not started it yet; but are still working at the idea. We have had eminent actuaries examining into certain data we gave them, and their opinions are more exacting than what we thought necessary. Probably we shall start the fund on January 1 next."

Mr. Wilson hoped that when the fund was established, it would be a contribution of the Bank itself, and not an assessment on the employees, because he thought it would make the Directors feel that when an official was leaving the employ of the institution, he did so without feeling that he had been paying into a fund from which he would never get any benefit.

The General Manager—"We have a certain fund set aside already for that purpose, but we found that it required more than we had expected. We shall have to make an assessment on the officers, but it won't be much, probably 1/2 per cent. of their salaries, and if one of these leaves before he is entitled to a pension, he will get back the whole, or nearly the whole, of what he has paid in, if he has behaved properly."

Mr. John Crawford took it for granted that the Directors would do what was right towards the officials of the Bank, for a more efficient, obliging and better lot of men were not to be found in the Dominion. He spoke of the financial statement as being exceedingly satisfactory, but expressed regret at the remarks of the President, that the Directors recommended a dividend of 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, instead of 4 per cent., and a bonus, equal to 9 per cent. in the year He had hoped that there would have been no difficulty in initiating, next October, a 10 per cent. dividend. Speaking of deposits bearing interest, and amounting to over $12,000,000, he wished to know what profit the Bank made on them. He assumed that the maximum interest allowed by the Bank was 3 per cent.

The General Manager—"We have to keep a large amount of cash on hand, idle, at all the thirty-eight branches. There are $1,500,000 of that cash lying in the vaults here, and in those of the different branches. We make a profit, but it is difficult to say how much; we pay 3 per cent. and lend at 6, but we cannot lend all we have."

Mr. Crawford—"There are $500,000 and odd with foreign agents; I presume it is the New York?"

The General Manager—"New York, Germany, France, etc.

In reply to further questions by Mr. Crawford, the General Manager said that the municipal, railway, public and other securities were principally railway bonds and British consols, of which latter the Bank had £40,000 There were very few municipal Canadian bonds, except first class ones. Our Bonds, amounting to about $2,100,000, were of such a class that on them money could be borrowed tomorrow either in London or New York.

The President—"We are pleased to hear Mr. Crawford's remarks in reference to the statement, and I cannot say we are astonished to hear him in reference to the dividend, as I have known what his ideas were. Our intention has always been to make the Rest equal to the Capital, and the Directors have steadily gone on in that direction; it gives greater security to the Shareholders. I think Mr. Crawford would be the last one to advise us to do anything which would weaken the security of the Shareholders. As things look at present, it does not seem as if it would be long before we shall be able to pay 10 per cent. dividend. If we could see three or four years ahead, and if the years were like some we have had in the past, the matter would be easy. But we cannot, and I think we must go on making the Rest equal to the Capital, and protect the Shareholders. I beg to move the adoption of the annual report."

The motion was seconded by Mr. S. H. Ewing, Vice-President, and was carried unanimously.

Mr. Crawford then moved: "That the thanks of the Shareholders are due and are hereby tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their valuable services to the Bank during the past year." He spoke of the infinite pleasure it afforded him to make the motion, and of the great confidence he felt in the Bank. The statement which had that day been submitted to the Shareholders showed how diligently and faithfully the Directors had applied themselves to the interests of the Bank. With the motion he also coupled the General Manager, Inspectors, Manager and officers.

The motion was seconded by Hon. James O'Brien, who expressed the opinion that the financial statement was a most satisfactory one, and hearty thanks were deserving those who had made the year so successful.

The motion having been unanimously concurred in, the President returned thanks, and said that, of course, the Directors and the officials should be linked together in the resolution. The Directors would be a very insufficient body without the Managers of the Bank. It was to them the Bank was indebted for the handsome statement which had been placed before the Shareholders, and which had been so approved by them.

Mr. S. H. Ewing also said a few words of thanks. He remarked that he felt it a great honor to be a Director of that Bank. He had been there for quite a number of years now, and he thought that he was safe in saying that the whole board did all it possibly could for the Bank. As to beginning to pay a 10 per cent. dividend at present. The Molsons Bank had always progressed, never gone back, had always increased its dividend, never decreased it and he thought that if it kept on paying 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, until the Rest amounted to $2,500,000, it could then safely go on paying a 10 per cent. dividend. He spoke of the diligence and close attention which the General Manager, Mr. Elliott, gave to the affairs of the Bank. Mr. Elliot had been with the bank 42 years, and he seemed part and parcel of the institution. To Mr. Elliot, to Mr. Durnford, the chief inspector, and to the whole staff the Bank was very much indebted. The staff was a splendid one.

Replying to Mr. Crawford, the President said that an attempt was made to break into the branch at Owen Sound, but it was unsuccessful, and therefore no loss was sustained. Three men were arrested, but so far nothing had been proved against them. The Bank had 38 branches, and there were four inspectors. Mr. Durnford, the chief inspector, usually remained in Montreal.

Mr. Crawford wished to know if, in the Bank and its branches, there were any means, electrical or otherwise, of communicating with the outside, in the case of a hold-up.

The General Manager—"We have each electrical protection wherever it can be obtained."

The meeting then proceeded to the election of officers, and the scrutineers soon reported that the retiring Board had been re-elected, viz.:—Messrs. James P. Cleghorn, S. H. Ewing, Samuel Finley, F. C. Henshaw, H. Markland Molson, W. Molson Macpherson, W. M. Ramsay.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. W. Molson Macpherson was re-elected President, and Mr. S. H. Ewing Vice-President.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We have give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggrivated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he had been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

A BIG BOOM.

Peterborough One of the Big Boom Towns of the Dominion.

The big boom, so long looked for, is on, and Peterborough is enjoying a period of prosperity unequalled in its history. Every man who can work and wants to, is hustling. Laborers get from $1.50 per day up, while skilled mechanics, especially in the building lines, are paid higher wages.

The Quaker Oats Company will spend it is said, $1,000,000; the Cordage Company $100,000; the Otonabee Power Company, $50,000; the Canadian General Electric Company, $100,000.

In addition we have the works at the lift lock and the new government dam at the locks. A number of houses are also being constructed. The factories and machine shops are all working over time, and large sums are being spent in the construction of sewers.

Drugging Will Not Cure Catarrh.

This loathsome disease is caused by germs that invade the air passages of the head, throat and lungs, and can be cured only by inhalation of medicated air. Stomach medicines, atomizers, snuffs are ineffectual, because they fail to reach the cause of the trouble. Catarrhozone is successful because it is inhaled to every part of the breathing organs, and has power to kill the germ, heals the inflamed tissues and prevents droppings in the throat. Catarrhozone treats more than one thousand square feet of the mucous surface with every breath taken through the inhaler, and affords instant relief. It perfectly cures Catarrh, Asthma, and Bronchitis. Sold by Druggists. Two months' treatment. Price $1.00. Small size 25 cts., or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

HALLOWEEN

The Night When Mischievous Persons Get in Their Hard Work.

On Thursday next, Oct. 31st, the old vigil of All Hallows will be once more with us, when the small boy will enjoy himself in the dark. Hallowmas eve has always been the occasion of certain popular usages in Christian countries, such as the performance of spells by young people to discover their future partners for life, and certain fireside revelries, as cracking nuts or ducking for apples. Halloween is thought to be a night when witches, devils, and other mischief-making beings are all abroad on their baneful midnight errands; particularly the fairies are said on that night to hold a grand anniversary. But whatever the old ideas may be, one thing is sure now-a-days that the principal idea is more of a mischief making one, and sometimes amusing, while at other times annoying. Among the former class of jokes may be the transposition of a liquor dealers sign to the headquarters of the W. C. T. U., or the finding of small buildings from the backyards occupying prominent places on the front street with the signboard of a boarding house attached to them. While of the latter class such freaks as the finding of some buggy astride of the ridge of the barn roof, or the fence round some lot moved so as to stop up the proper exits and requiring several hours work to restore to former positions, may be very annoying to the owner. Boys will be boys, Halloween only comes once a year, and so long as fun is kept within bounds, no one will object.

QUIT WHITE BREAD

Could Not Get Strength From It.

An Episcopalian minister of Kilenville, N. Y., who is interested not only in the spiritual welfare of his congregation, but in their physical well-being also, says, "I can now do an immense amount of work and feel no fatigue, for the reason that I am using Grape-Nuts breakfast food and have quit coffee entirely and am using Postum Food Coffee.

Myself and family are all greatly improved in health. We have largely abandoned the use of white bread. Upwards of twenty-five persons have changed their diet, on my recommendation. It is gladly given, because I know, from personal experience, whereof I speak."

It is a well-known fact that white bread is almost entirely composed of starch and this is difficult of digestion by many people, particularly those who have weak intestinal digestion. The result of the use of much white bread is a lack of brain and nervous power to do mental work and it also creates intestinal troubles, because the excess of starch ferments in the intestines and makes the conditions right for the growth of microbes; whereas Grape-Nuts breakfast food contains the needed starch, but in a predigested form. That is, it is transformed into grape sugar in the process of manufacture, and delivered in the packages, ready cooked, and in such shape that it is immediately assimilated without hard work of the digestive organs.

The food also contains the delicate particles of phosphate of potash which, combined with albumen, is used by nature to make the gray matter that must be in the cells of the brain and the nerve centers throughout the body in order to give strength and ability to stand long and continuous work. Both the Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts are sold by all first-class grocers.

It is Doubtful

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Is the ruling monarch of England above the law, or, in other words, is he punishable for the committal of a crime.

ENQUIRER.

Reply,—In theory he is above the law. Whether, if the crime was heinous, he would be considered as above the law may be doubted.

What Is Needed.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—What is needed by our hockeyists, skaters, &c., is a new rink for hockey, with outside and inside ice; also a toboggan slide.

Now, this could be all combined to one at Riverside Park. The money could easily be raised, for everyone would become interested— hockeyists, skaters, and those fond of tobogganing.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor. I am, &c.

AN OLD SPORT.

Late Sewer Work

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Why is it, Mr. Times that so much sewer and granolithic work is being done in the fall? I was told by a prominent contractor that the price will have to be increased on account of the cold weather—that is, (a man who tenders will have to get more than if the work was being done in the summer.

Surely, Mr. Editor, if this is so, the Council are lax in not letting contracts at the proper season?

RATEPAYER.

No. 8 Dam

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The war still rages over the purchase of this dam. Hon. J. R. Stratton feels that his political life and character are dependent upon the issue. The Examiner is devoting column after column in reply to the attacks of a large number of Provincial newspapers. Was Mr. Stratton one of those who applied for the dam to the Dominion Government? The prospectus will shew. A members of the Board of Trade said the other evening that he had a copy in his pocket. If Mr. Stratton's name is in an authorized prospectus he is hopelessly in the soup. If not he has escaped like Gen. Botha. Let the Examiner state positively if Mr. Stratton's name is in the authorized prospectus. It has the game in its own hands if his name is not there. The gentleman, well known who said he had a copy of the authorized prospectus, and is a reliable citizen. His word carries weight, and will take a lot of contradicting. However we hope Mr. Stratton will clear himself successfully. I have no desire to see his career cut short in this unhappy way. Speak up! In the meantime, let every man remember that recent invention for the application of water power to the generation of electricity are the wonder of the age. They are too recent to be generally known. Farmers will in a few years plow, thresh and do most of their work by the unseen hand. The electrical millenium is surely at hand. If the claws of capitalists are kept off for a few years we shall be safe. Food and raiment will be for the asking. Poverty will practically disappear—that is, if the capitalists, the companies, the sworn trusts, the political schemers, etc., can not help it. Otherwise we shall be in for a new era of slavery and of paying tribute to the capitalistic shark. Shall we sell our inheritage for a paltry bribe?

FAIR PLAY.

THE STREET RAILWAY

The Report That It Had Been Sold is Totally Incorrect

The statement published in the Toronto World yesterday, to the effect that the Street Railway had been purchased by a Buffalo syndicate, is not correct.

The Times is authorized to state that no deal has been made or has any offer been received for the sale of the road.

It is understood that parties have been in town this week looking over the plant with a view to purchasing the road, but they have not communicated officially with the Railway Company.

THE REALM OF SPORT.

RUGBY.

The latest development in local Rugby Circles is:

1. There will be no game here to-day. Toronto has defaulted to Peterborough.

2. Peterborough has been ordered to play home and home games with London.

3. The annual Rugby dance has been declared off for the present. It will take place at the end of the Rugby season.

The regret that there will be no match to-day as was intended will be universal, and no one will feel it more keenly than the management of the Rugby Club.

The Peterborough Club had gone to considerable expense in advertising the game which was looked forward to with much enthusiasm.

Should Peterborough agree to play home and home games with London the first match will take place at London on Nov. 2nd, and the second game in Peterborough on Nov. 9th, the King's birthday. However, the locals consider that they are not being used any too well by the O.R.F.U. executive, and may refuse to play home and home games with the Westerners, as they consider the London team should play a sudden death game here. The Peterborough team, it will be remembered, played a sudden death game in London last year.

Peterborough's Big Day.

There will be great doings in Peterborough on the first of July next, if Mayor Deane's plan for its celebration reaches fullest development. He states that after the New Year apartments will be fitted up, and there the growth of a Peterborough Old Boys' re-union will be encouraged, nourished and brought to blossom, and on Dominion day will burst forth into a blaze of glory. A secretary will be appointed, and his duties will be to remain in the Old Boys' rooms during the day and give all assistance possible to the development of the project. An official programme, badges, souvenirs and the like are to be designed and procured and the proceeds of their sale applied to the expense of the demonstration. A capital programme of speedy events will be put on at the driving park as one of the features of the occasion.

MODERN FABLES.

By Our Junior Reporter.

Peter the First was living on the Fringe of Civilization, but he wanted to get away from it altogether. So he packed his whole Kit and Caboodle into a Schooner that had a Jug of Apple Jack hidden in the Straw.

This was in the Good Old Days when we had no Dog Parties, and the Millionaire was a Rare Bird.

Peter the First was a Poor White, but that Fact never depressed him as long as the Plug Tobacco held out. He kept his face toward the Setting Sun for many Days. Now and then the Sharp Crack of a Rifle would ring out on the Frosty Air and another Red Skin would bite the Dust. Peter was 500 miles from a Shower Bath and didn't give a Continental. His homespun Suit fit him too soon and the dust of the Trail through the Bush was in his Whiskers, but in those Day as Pioneer didn't travel on his Looks. Peter was a rootin-tootin' fightin' and shootin' Ruffian from the remote Head Waters of Bitter Creek. He didn't own such a thing as a Boiled Shirt and little did he suspect that some day his posterity would be playing Golf with Mr. Miles Hamilton and Jack Garvin.

Peter was an Empire Builder, but he did not know it. He headed for Upper Canada so that he could find plenty of Big Game and put in about two acres of Grain and not have to work.

At last he squatted on the Banks of a Stream where Fishing was good. He put up a log Shack and proposed to a broad faced Squaw, who gently but firmly gave him the Mitten. Bearing up under this Disappointment, he continued to pitch Horse Shoes, hooray for the British Lion and take Ague Medicine.

One day he snaked a Piece of Calico off of a passing Emigrant Wagon. When they were spliced by a Horse Doctor they could not foresee that this was the beginning of the House of Peter.

Soon after this he traded a Gallon of 40-Rod for 600 acres of Land, such as it was. The Steamboats came up the River and stopped at Peter's Landing. It was called Peter's Landing, not because of any desire to do Honor to the low-down Track, but because Peter was the whole Settlement. By and by there was a Row of Log Houses, called Main Street. Also a General Store. Then Peter's old Adversary, the Chills-and-Fever got a Half-Nelson Coil on him and he cashed in.

Peter the Second fell into the 600 Acres of Scrub Timber because he had been foolish enough to buy it from the Old Man. The Railroad came along and cut through it and then Peter's subdivision swang in with the Real Estate Boom. Peter the Second began to wear a Paper Collar on Sundays and he lived in a House that had a Bay Window on one side. His family wore boughten Clothes and played Croquet. About this time it was discovered that Peter the First had possessed wonderful Foresight. The Land he bought was now sprinkled with Frame Houses, Churches, Saloons and Drug Stores and was selling at so much a front Foot. Peter the Second was known as a Prominent Citizen, and became Director in a Bank. He put his Napkin around his Neck at the Table and got balled up on his Grammar but he was there with the Dough, so a good many Allowances were made. When the Governor-General came swinging around the Circle he put up at Peter's House and after that he was addressed as Hon. Peter, and at times his Wife compelled him to wear a Necktie. He switched from Cheroots to 10-cent Cigars and had a second Bay Window put on the House, and it was whispered around that Peter was throwing on a Heap of Dog.

When he finally shuffled, he had over two miles of Buggies and Carriages follow him to the Grave-Yard. The Bereaved Family put up a Marble Shaft as tall as a Smoke-Stack.

Peter the Third received a Collegiate Education and discovered a Family Crest. He learned that his Ancestors had fought with the Stuarts. But he didn't say anything about his Grandfather fighting with the Mosquitoes on the banks of the Otonabee. He had his Clothes made in Toronto, and used a Quart of Florida Water every day. He sprinkled the Rugs with it, being a Gentleman in every sense of the word. After building a House that cost ever so much he spent most of his time at the Oriental. The reason was that the Family could not find suitable Society in Peter-Borough. And where they went they did not find anything else.

The ordinary Plugs had to put on Smoked Glasses when they looked at the members of the Peter Family. Any one in Peter-Borough who was invited to Dine at the Big House was given such a Lift that he didn't touch anything but the High Spots for a week afterward.

One Day a Stranger in town saw all the people falling off the sidewalk and grovelling in the Dust before the August Presence of Peter the Third.

"Why does every one Kow-Tow to the Gentleman with the Aristocratic Features?" he asked.

"Sh-h-h!" said his Friend. He comes of a very Old Family."

THE TROUBLE IN SOUTH AFRICAN CONSTABULARY BEING LOOKED INTO

Peace in South Africa May Not be Soon—Lord Milner Makes a Visit to Natal

Says a Peaceful Settlement of the Difficulty in South Africa is not very Near

Had Luxurious Messes—Commanding Officers Not Allowed Army Canteens

Force Now Has 8,629 Men and About 241 Officers—a Burden on Tax Payers.

Peace in South Africa

Lord Alfred Milner, Governor of the Transvaal and British High Commissioner in South Africa, replying to an address from the corporation on October 26, said he hoped his visit to Natal would lead to a few tentative steps in the direction of his desire — "a peaceful and prosperous South Africa; one great community under the British Flag. But let us not count upon it coming in a hurry."

London, Oct. 26.— Perhaps the best answer yet vouchsafed to complaints from the rank and file of the South African Constabulary is the fact that among the candidates for enrolment who have recently applied to Major McLaren, the recruiting officer at Westminster, are many brothers and friends of men now serving with the South African Constabulary.

It is not denied that some cause for grumbling existed at one time, when about 2,000 men were at the front without any kits except the private property they had taken with them. Their uniform kits were on board the Tantallon Castle when she sank in Table Bay, and a delay of nearly two months occurred before the loss could be made good.

As to the establishment of "luxurious messes" in place of the army canteens, it is explained that this system was forced upon the commanding officer by revenue restrictions in the colonies, which denied to the South African Constabulary the privileges enjoyed in this respect by the regular troops.

Major-General Baden-Powell's police could not be served at a regimental canteen without infringing the revenue laws. Accordingly special canteens, or rather clubs, with grocery stores attached, were set up in each district, and it is claimed that the rank and file, as well as non-commissioned officers benefit by the arrangement, which will presently be self-supporting, and not a burden on the taxpayer.

FORCE NUMBERS 8,629.

At the end of August the South African Constabulary numbered 8,629 and places are being reserved for a thousand more men who may wish to join from the army when hostilities cease. There are 241 officers already appointed, and sixty men from the ranks are at present on probation with a chance of getting a commission at the end of six months.

It is a highly-paid force. The authorities hold, therefore, that much may be demanded from it, and they point to the good work already done in clearing hostile Boers from large tracts of country where absolute security now reigns.

Within these limits experimental farms are being cultivated, and men taught the system of agriculture best adapted to the country, the object being to make them useful colonists hereafter when they may pass into the reserve. The farms are also useful as convalescent homes for men and horses.

For the sick, we are informed, there are good hospitals, with an efficient medical and nursing staff. For the frugal, savings banks have been established where men may pay in money to draw out at any time most convenient to themselves.

Married men are paid at a higher rate than single men by 2s a day, as an inducement for them to bring out their wives and settle down ultimately as good colonists. Such are the official explanations.

Harvesting With Automobiles.

The cost of harvesting wheat on the Pacific coast has been so lessened by the use of automobiles, that a greater amount of the grain can be produced at the same actual expense than in the Argentine Republic, where labor costs only a fraction of a dollar a day. The large automobile traction engines, now used in California, are of fifty horse power, and are provided with driving wheels sixty inches in diameter. They do the plowing, planting and harvesting, in their proper seasons One traction engine performs the triple work of plowing, harrowing and planting, in one operation.

ERRING WIFE AND LOVER

THIRD AVENUE DOUBLE SHOOTING TRAGEDY

While the Woman Lay Dead Her Husband, Carrying Their Child, Was Seeking Her Night and Day.

New York, Oct. 28.—The identity of the woman who died with the young butcher clerk, Emil Schillinger, in the Raine slaw hotel at Seventy-sixth st. and Third Avenue, on Tuesday night, perhaps by his hand before his suicide, possibly by her own, was learned yesterday. She was Carrie Kadisch, a cigarmaker's wife, and the murder and suicide, or the double suicide, whichever it was, was the result of a mutual infatuation of the couple for each other and of the state of morbid sentimentality into which they had worked themselves.

That both were willing to die is beyond doubt. From a letter found on Schillinger's person, and presumably written by Mrs. Kadisch, it appears that the woman had worked herself up to a high pitch of morbid jealousy over some real or imaginary person who she thought was her rival. It also appeared from this letter that the two had planned suicide once before, and the writer expressed regret that they did not carry out their plan.

Schillinger worked for a butcher named Rottscher in the latter's shop at 349 East Sixty-fifth street and Mrs. Kadisch lived with her husband and four-year-old child across the way at No. 346. Schillinger's employer said that the woman came to his shop frequently and had long talks with the clerk, but that he, the employer, did not dream that things had come to so serious a pass with them. The woman's husband seems not to have had the remotest suspicion of his wife's infidelity. When she did not come home on Tuesday night he hunted for her till morning, hunted for her all day on Wednesday and Wednesday night, carrying their forlorn little child around with him most of the time and presenting so pathetic a spectacle that the neighbors were much touched.

As he was starting out yesterday morning to continue the search a woman in the house, where he lived told him about reading in the newspaper of the tragedy in the Seventy-sixth street hotel and the poor fellow, taking the child with him, went to the Morgue. There he learned the worst. He was sadly shaken by the blow, although he said little beyond telling the Morgue keeper that he would have his wife's body removed.

Schillinger's father, Mathias Schillinger, and his sister Emma went to the Coroner's office yesterday afternoon and there Emma started to read to the Coroner the letter the suicide had sent to his parents. But she broke down and could not go on. The letter in part pertained to the disposition of a legacy of some $2,000 into which young Schillinger had come recently. Schillinger's employer said that the young man had been sighing and crying about the shop a good deal of late. When spoken to about his low spirits he shook his head hinting darkly that all would soon be made known. So far as any of the neighbors knew, Kadisch and his wife lived happily. She was thirty years old. Schillinger was several years younger.

NEVER SAW A TRAIN.

A Hudson Bay Trader Who Never Saw the Cars Until a Few Days Ago.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—It is seldom that the occasion presents itself to meet a white man who has passed his entire life amidst the wilds of the forests and who visits civilization, as it is known in our twentieth century, for the first time. Such an occasion presented itself to a reporter to-day, when he met Mr. Miles Spencer, an agent for the Hudson Bay Company, who is spending a few days in the city.

Mr. Spencer, who is now 62 years of age, has spent 56 years in the districts east of James Bay. Till coming on his present trip he had never seen a railway train, and had never even dreamed of the possibility of such a means of conveyance as an electric car.

When asked how it had all impressed him, he answered that he really did not know what to make of it, but thought it was "mighty que-ar."

"And have conditions changed a great deal up in the Hudson Bay districts of late years, among the Indians and the Esquimaux?"

"In some ways most decidedly so, in others the different tribes still adhere to their old customs and traditions You see we never use money up there. The Indians and Esquimaux bring the furs and in return receive different kinds of merchandise. Counters are used and are known as a made beaver, each of which is worth about sixty cents;"

"What are the chief animals that are hunted now?"

"I should say the fox most of all, then the marten, beaver, otter, raindeer, and fishers. The silver fox fur is the most valuable and is sold at the posts for as much as thirty made beavers, or in Canadian money $18. This is considered an enormous figure, and yet it does not enable the native to purchase so much merchandise after all."

"What are they particularly anxious to get?"

"Oh, tobacco, to be sure. When an Esquimaux or an Indian gets say sixty marked beavers it is safe to say that he spends about fifty-nine on tobacco. The Esquimaux especially are awfully fond of it. The Esquimaux are not quite as numerous as formerly, and it is thought that this falling off is due most to the fact that for the past generation they have been adopting the use of English food. Formerly they never even cooked their meat, and certainly seemed to derive more benefit from it."

"Notwithstanding the fact that there are hundreds and hundreds of white settlers in the various districts, there is not a single school on the east side of James Bay, where I have lived. On this account, the children grow up without any education whatsoever, unless some missionary comes along. Most of the white men marry squaws, and I feel certain that such an unfortunate condition would not exist if the Canadian Government would only take the matter in hand."

"But will not the Hudson Bay Company do anything for the man they send out there?"

"Gracious, no. What they are after is furs, and the only question that interests them is to get as many as possible."

Ameer Consults Princess.

New York, Oct. 28.—It is reported from Peshawar, says a Simla despatch to The London Times and The New York Times, that Ameer Habib Ullah, following the counsel of his father, consults the mother of Umar Jan on all important state affairs. She is a royal princess, was the chief wife of Abdur Rahman, and enjoys much prestige, but she does not head any faction against Habib Ullah, as Umar Jan is only twelve years old.

The Cause of Nervous Headache.

This most distressing and common malady doubtless has its origin in some unbalanced condition of the nervous system. Probably the simplest, safest and most efficient remedy is Polson's Nerviline. Twenty drops in sweetened water gives immediate relief, and this treatment should be supplemented by bathing the region of pain with Nerviline. To say it acts quickly fails to express the result. Sold everywhere in large [illegible] bottles.

MURDER OF FARMER'S WIFE

KILLED WHILE DRIVING TO MEET HER DAUGHTER

Dragged from Her Carriage and Assaulted—Her Head Crushed With a Stone—A "Trusty" Convict Arrested.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Nancy Jane Folsom was murdered yesterday in the town of Boscawen, a sparsely settled farming community fifteen miles from this city. She was the wife of an industrious farmer. While driving from her home to the railroad station two miles away, to meet her daughter returning from a school in this city, she was waylaid, dragged from her carriage assaulted and murdered and left among the roadside bushes.

The daughter attends a business school in this city and for several weeks the mother has taken her to the station in the morning and met her again at night. The road from the Folsom home to the station is almost as wild as any in New Hampshire. There is not a house to break the loneliness of the drive. So dense is the foliage that it forms an archway over head for nearly the entire distance and has caused this cheerless belt of country to be known as "Cat Hole Road."

Mrs. Folsom was waylaid about half way from her home to the station. Her head was crushed in with a conical stone, which was found near the scene and was covered with blood. An inmate of the county house of correction, this institution being about a mile from the scene of the tragedy, has been placed under arrest. He is George Greenleaf, under a years' sentence for attempted rape. At the county institution, where most of the inmates are required to work, Greenleaf who has only one arm had light work. One of his duties was to drive the cows to pasture, taking a route over the road where the murder was committed. Footprints were found which the authorities say tally with those of Greenleaf. Blood was found upon his shoes and clothing. He was away from the country house from 1 o'clock until 4.45 yesterday afternoon, and the murder was committed about 4 o'clock.

Greenleaf comes of a family that has a bad record in the eyes of the law. A brother is now serving time in the county jail, having been convicted of assault. The preliminary hearing will be held in this city tomorrow morning.

CSOLGOSZ TO DIE TUESDAY.

Warden at Auburn Prison Fixes Date for Execution.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Leon F. Csolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley, will be electrocuted at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning at Auburn Prison. Warden Mead selected Tuesday so that final arrangements may be made Monday. He is following the general custom of the state prisons relative to electrocutions. The sentence of the court was that the execution of Csolgosz should take place during the week commencing Oct. 28, leaving to the warden full power to select the day. This latitude was given the warden to secure secrecy as to the time of execution and to guard against delay from accident, such as in 1898 caused a delay of an hour in an execution after the condemned man had been taken into the death chamber.

There have been twenty-six invitations issued and they are nontransferable. Each witness must present his invitation to the warden and be must be identified.

ACCUSATION OF BULGARIA.

Said To Be Responsible for Miss Stone's Abduction.

New York, Oct. 28.—A Washington despatch to the "Evening World" says: "The State Department is in possession of positive proof that the Bulgarian Government, wishing to wring Macedonia from the control of Turkey, planned with the Macedonian Committee to kidnap Miss Stone on Turkish territory, demand a heavy ransom for their captive, and thus create the impression that Sultan was trying to get back the money the United States had gotten from Turkey in the payment of the recent indemnity. Bulgaria will be called upon by the State Department for an explanation.

"The information before the department entirely exonerates the Turkish Government from any blame for the abduction.

"The information above outlined comes from Spencer Eddy, Secretary of the American Legation at Constantinople, and from Consul General Dickinson, and it is corroborated by a prominent missionaries who have been waiting to rescue Miss Stone."

It was said at the State Department this afternoon that nothing was known there of the matters contained in the despatch to the "Evening World." A high official said that nothing had been heard from the American officials in Turkey concerning the case of Miss Stone for three days past. The official declined to discuss the alleged responsibility of Bulgaria for the outrage and intimated that the 'World story was overdrawn and practically without authenticity.

LITTLE WAR IN WEST AFRICA.

British to Quell the Turbulent Aros and Other Tribes

London, Oct. 28.—According to the Daily Mail Great Britain is about to embark on another little war in West Africa.

Early in December a force of about 1,500 West Indian negro troops will be despatched to quell the turbulent Aros and other tribes in the neighborhood of Bendi. The area of operations will be between the Niger and Cross Rivers.

PETEBORO COUNTY TEACHERS MEET

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY SESSIONS

The Next Year's Meeting to be Held at Ashburnham—The Legislature for East Peterboro to be Interviewed

Mr. H. C. Kindred, one of the delegates to the O. E. A., then reported part of the recent session, held in Toronto, in April, 1901, and Mr. T. J. Wallace, the other delegate, followed with the balance of the report.

Mr. Close, of Norwood High School, gave a very able paper on "How to mount plants and insects." He explained how to collect these, and showed how they might be exchanged with other persons, and how botanical and entomological clubs effected exchanges.

A discussion on the O. E. A. Resolutions' followed. They were taken clause by clause, and either sanctioned or condemned.

This closed the Friday session, which was very profitable throughout.

CONCLUDING SESSION

Next year's meeting at Ashburnham.

Mr. T. J. Wallace and Miss M. M. Campbell were appointed to interview the local member of the Legislature for East Peterborough, to represent the claims of the teachers for a fair representation on the Educational Council. Miss Sara Hamilton and Mr. M. W. Matchett were also appointed to interview the member for West Peterborough.

The following officers were elected: President, J. Frappy; Vice-President, Miss Kirkpatrick; Sec.-Treas., M. W. Matchett, Box 621, Peterborough; Executive Committee, Misses Edgar, McLachlan, Courtney, and Hutchison, and Mr. James Weir; Auditors, Miss Erskine, and Miss Campbell; O. E. A. Delegates, Mr. T. J. "Sense Development in Primary Work" was the subject of a splendid paper by Miss Mildred Davidson, of Havelock Public School.

30,000 FOR A WIFE'S LOVE

S. A. Schmidt Must Pay That Sum to Albert C. Whitney.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—A verdict of 30,000 was given to-day against Sigmund A. Schmidt, a wholesale dry goods dealer of New York, in favor of Albert C. Whitney, employed in the bookkeeping department of the American Steel and Wire Company in Chicago for alienating the affections of Mrs. Whitney.

The verdict was given by a jury in Judge Bishop's court to-day, after brief testimony had been introduced by the plaintiff. Only one side of the case was heard, as Schmidt's attorney failed to appear for his client.

According to the testimony, introduced by Attorney W. V. Samuels, who represented Whitney, Mrs. Whitney and Schmidt had been on intimate terms for some time before the beginning of the action for damages against Schmidt, in November, 1898.

A BOER MEETING IN WASHINGTON

General Pearson Sent by Paul Kruger.

THE PURPOSE OF HIS VISIT

The Situation of the Boers Said To Be Very Pramising.

The Boers Claim to Have 27,000 Men in the Field—Money and Supplies Wanted.

Washington, Oct. 28.—An important conference in regard to the South African situation is to be held in this city tonight, the effects of which will be far reaching. The prospect for intervention in behalf of the South African Republics is understood to be now brighter than ever before, and it is believed that the meeting to take place here will be fraught with the greatest results. The conference will be held between Cornelius W. Van der Hoagt, the Boer representative at Washington, and Gen. Samuel Pearson, adjutant to the Boer General, Botha.

The latter has just returned from Holland, after a highly important conference with the South African authorities now in that country. He bears a message to Mr. Van der Hoagt from President Kruger.

General Pearson will arrive this afternoon from New York, where he has been for only a few days since returning from Holland. He endeavored to arrange a conference in New York with Mr. Van der Hoagt, but it could not be arranged. He then determined to come to Washington. He will remain here until it is necessary for him to go to New Orleans, where he has secured a temporary injunction preventing the exportation of mules for the use of the English army in South Africa. After seeing this matter safely through the courts he will return to this city, where his stay will probably be indefinite.

At the conference tonight matters affecting the liberty of the Boers will be considered. The situation in South Africa, according to the statement of Mr. Van der Hoagt, is now more promising than at any time previously, and he believes that the independence of the Boers will be obtained at no distant date. The various questions to be discussed, although their importance is well known, could not be learned, and will be kept secret until the time arrives for the Boer representatives in this country to act.

General Pearson has no errand either with President Roosevelt or the American State Department. The time is not yet ripe for the question to be again forcibly brought to the attention of this Government. It is possible that the time for such action is much nearer now than it has ever been before. It is not the intention of the representatives of the South African Republic to embarrass this Government, and any move calculated to bring about such a contingency will be carefully avoided.

General Pearson is one of the most interesting personalities brought into the public eye by the hostilities in South Africa. An Afrikander himself he has sacrificed everything for the cause which he represents, and which he has served since the outbreak of the war. His wife and children are now prisoners in a camp of detention in South Africa, and a few days ago he became the father of a baby, born a prisoner of war. He has been informed recently that his family is receiving better attention at the hands of the British than formerly.

In addition to being on the staff of General Botha, as adjutant, General Pearson had rendered active service to his country, often at the peril of his life. He is in this country now with a reward of $[illegible] on his head, and this sum will be gladly paid by the British for his deliverance into their hands dead or alive.

General Pearson has had complete charge of the destruction of railroads in South Africa, and it is due to his efforts that so much annoyance has been caused the English army. When he started upon this work he received from President Kruger general instructions, with directions to act upon his own resources. He followed his instructions to the letter.

His destruction of important railroads upon which the British army depended for transportation was the cause of the reward being offered for him. The situation soon became so critical as to make it necessary for him to fly from the country. At this time he was commissary general of the Boer army. He escaped over the border into Portuguese territory closely pursued by 5,000 British troops, and barely reached the vessel in time. The ship upon which he took passage flew the German flag and he was safe.

After going to Europe, he came to this country, and became engaged in an endeavor to break up the transportation of mules and horses from this country to South Africa for the use of the English army. He went to New Orleans, the principal point of shipment, and secured an injunction restraining the English agents from making further shipments The case is now pending, and will soon come up in the New Orleans courts. After attending to this matter, General Pearson went to Holland, where he has held important consultations with the Boer authorities gathered there.

Mr. Van der Hoagt said last night that the prospects in South Africa for Boer success were bright. The Boer force is about 27,000 men in the field, and although the British have about [illegible] a large portion of the troops is necessary to hold the towns and places in the possession of the English.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA.

A Conflict Inevitable—The Japs Like the Prospect.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—Captain A. J. Strong, of the 1st Bombay Lancers, passed through the city to-day on his way home from China. He speaks highly of the Canadian route from the east, and says it is much preferable to the Suez canal. When he left China the country was quiet and he thinks the trouble is over. He spent some time in Japan, and was greatly impressed with the progress everywhere visible there. The army and navy, he says, is being placed in a most efficient condition. Japanese naval officers are decidedly up to date in their methods, they are developing gunners who promise to be second to no others, and they speak most confidently of being able to whip Russia. The average Japanese officer considers a conflict with Russia inevitable and looks upon it with supreme complacency.

They are extremely friendly towards England and look upon us as their natural ally.

Captain Strong did not care to express an opinion of General Buller's dismissal beyond the fact that it would be greatly regretted in the Indian army, where he was looked upon as a fearless fighter, an officer who would never order a man to go where he would not go himself, and a sincere and devoted friend of the rank and file.

CHINA RICH IN COAL.

The Gold Deposits, However, Are of Little Value.

San Francisco, Oct. 28.—Herbert C. Hoover, a graduate of Stanford, '95, and now a mining expert in China for Bewick, Moreing & Co., of London, at a salary of $33,000 a year, has just arrived here from the Orient. In a talk about mining in China, he said:

"The popular idea that there are rich gold mines in Manchuria is all wrong. On behalf of a board of mines of the Chinese Government, I explored Chi-li, Shantung, and Shansi provinces, and found that all the ledges had been worked down to the water level. The Chinese will work $3, ore, as they are satisfied with wages that no American would work for. The whole country is dotted with dumps from mines which Chinese farmers have been working for a thousand years in intervals of their farm labor.

"But China is rich in coal, and the Chinese Engineering and Mining Company, an English concern, with a capital of £1,600,000, has just taken over Li Hung Chang's old coal field on the Gulf of Chili, a field thirty miles long by twelve miles wide. The company will make coke, and will bring that and coal by a line of twelve steamers to 'Frisco, and carry back cheap freights.

"They can lay down coke in 'Frisco, at $6 a ton.

"China has greater coal measures than any other country, both anthracite and bituminous, and her coal is worth far more than all her other minerals."

BAND OF BRIGANDS HAVE BEEN DISBANDED

Miss Stone and Companions Held by Three Desperadoes

CONFIDENT OF FINDING THEM

If Minister Sarakoff Could Send His Troops Across the Turkish Border He Would Have no Difficulty in the Matter

New York, Oct. 28.— Three reports, each corroborative of the others, have been received from widely different sources concerning the movements of the brigands who hold Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka captive, according to the Sofia, Bulgaria, correspondent of The World. One is that the band, which consisted of eighteen men, has been dissolved in the mountains near Jeltepe, and that fifteen of the members have returned to their homes. The remaining three members are said to have been made custodians of the prisoners, and it is claimed that they are holding them in the wooded recesses of Jeltepe, which is in turkish territory, about twenty miles into the mountains from the Bulgarian frontier. Another version of the situation is that because of the early and heavy fall of snow in the mountains the brigands with their prisoners have come down from the mountains and are now located near Navrokup, which is in the foothills of the mountains in which Jeltepe is located. The third comes from Constantinople and says that communication has been opened with the brigands from a point in Turkish territory.

STATEMENT AT SOFIA.

Minister or Interior Sarakoff, of Bulgaria, has made the following statement to the Sofia, Bulgaria, correspondent of The Journal and Advertiser concerning the case of Miss Stone: "If I could send my troops across the Turkish border I would find Miss Stone within two days. I have just received word from the commander of our troops that Miss Stone is not in Bulgarian territory. We have three military cordons moving toward the frontier, and on the frontier itself I have placed a military guard. If the brigands were on our territory the cordons would certainly find them. Our troops and those of Turkey are now searching in the Perin mountains, where, unlike Bulgaria proper, there are no villages and only a few scattered houses in the mountains. If my troops find the brigands we shall make short work of them."

Slowly Dying From Catarrh.

Thousands are in this terrible condition but don't realise their danger. If you have the slightest taint of Catarrh, would it not be wise to commence Catarrhozone treatment now and be perfectly cured in a short time? This pleasant remedy cures without the use of drugs, atomizers or snuffs. You inhale the medicated vapor which spreads to all parts of the breathing organs, kills the germs and heals the inflamed surfaces. Catarrhozone clears the throat and nose instantly, and never fails to cure the most obstinate catarrh, lung and throat troubles. A trial will demonstrate the value of Catarrhozone, which sells for $1.00, small size 25 cts, at Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston Ont.

BRITAIN'S RESERVES TO BE CALLED OUT

England Preparing for a Coup of Some Kind in the Near Future.

PRODUCE FOR SOUTH AFRICA

Reinforcements May Be Despatched to the Seat of War—Kitchener to be Supported.

London, Oct. 28.

It is reported here that 50,000 men will be despatched to South Africa as soon as transport arrangements can be made. The Morning Post states that the Government will give Kitchener sufficient reinforcements to bring the war to a speedy close.

CALLING OUT THE RESERVES.

An error committed by some of the provincial police has led to the premature leaking out of the fact that the War Office contemplates the possibility of having to call out every volunteer in the country. The War Office has distributed to the police offices, throughout the Kingdom bills ordering all reservists, militia, yeomen and volunteers to report themselves without delay to headquarters, with the view of active service.

These bills are accompanied by letters ordering that the bills be kept in a safe place until telegraphic orders to post them are received. The police of Lancaster overlooked the letter and posted the bills, causing widespread perturbation.

The Government is determined, at whatever cost, to put such additional forces in the field as will make short work of the Boers.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 28.

Shipments of produce for the Imperial army in South Africa are still increasing from Canada. Through Lord Strathcona's office in London the Minister of Agriculture has made arrangements whereby practically the whole of the oat crop available for export from Alberta, can be delivered in South Africa on account of the War Office. Hitherto the farmers of Alberta have found a market for their oats in British Columbia, but this year they will have over 1,000,000 bushels more than British Columbia can consume. Half a million bushels are to be shipped immediately and the remainder will be rushed forward as quickly as possible.

Fifteen thousand tons of hay are also to be shipped before the end of the month. In connection with these shipments eight more steamships for loading at St. John, N. B., in December have been chartered by the Agricultural Department.

British Eager to Dominate Commerce in Turkey and Levant

MERCHANTS TAUGHT METHODS

London Board of Trade is Schooling Manufacturers to Outwit Their Competitors—Native Drummers a Harm.

London, Oct. 28.—Bent on securing the first place for British trade in Asiatic Turkey and throughout the Levant, the commercial department of the Board of Trade has started a series of publications for the purpose of schooling British manufacturers and merchants in the methods necessary for the proposed achievement. The initial number, which appeared today, says:

"Since the attempt made by Germans and Americans to further their trade in the near East by means of sample-rooms and museums has proved a failure, now is the time for the British to act."

OUTLINES PLANS FOR TRADING

Space is given to a communication from His Majesty's Vice-Consul at Adana, Lieutenant-Colonel P. H. Massey in which he defines a scheme which he thinks will enable the traders of Great Britain to dominate the vast region between Italy and the Euphrates. The Vice-Consul's plan calls for the ousting of foreign commercial travelers and the elimination of the Levantine middleman.

"In order to capture the best markets of the Mediterranean," says Colonel Massey, "British merchants require reference offices in the principal cities, especially in Constantinople, through which quick communication may be carried on with their patrons. These offices should be manned by Englishmen, speaking the language of the several countries concerned. They should be prohibited from engaging in business themselves.

NATIVE DRUMMERS A HARM.

"They should compile and distribute catalogues and price lists, act as translators and interpreters, instruct drummers in the customs and requirements of the localities they intend to visit and otherwise promote intercourse between the British producer and the Levantine consumers. No more foreign traveling representatives should be employed and reference offices should completely supersede native middlemen."

The Vice-Consul admits that Levantine drummers work for 50 per cent. less than British, Germans or Americans, but he says they carry a dozen lines of goods and do justice to nobody.

Pope Cannot Live Long.

Rome, Oct. 28.—The Vatican officials are offended by an article that appeared in the Paris Eclair, which declared that a coadjutor to the Pope was necessary owing to the decrepitude of the Pope, which places him absolutely under the influence of Cardinal Rampolla, the Papal Secretary of State Nevertheless, it is rumored that the Pope will never again be able to perform any independent act, and that his life is preserved solely by Dr. Lapponi's extraordinary care of [illegible] is said that his Holiness is [illegible] to continued fainting fits.

THE MABEE INCIDENT

Charles R. Mabee has been trying to exploit the coming Provincial elections for both parties in turn, with the usual result. He wrote a campaign sheet which he offered for Mr. Whitney's approval, but as it contained a personal attack on Premier Ross, Mr. Whitney would not endorse it. Mabee then went over to the Grits and wrote campaign literature against Mr. Whitney, and in the Globe of Saturday he was welcomed as a deserter from the Conservative camp. It seems Mabee wrote a letter to a Toronto evening paper on Conservative Club paper, but the Mr. Leavitt Secretary of the Liberal-Conservative Association, says must have been taken without permission, as Mabee could not get it otherwise. It is also denied that Mabee was ever a Conservative. It is said both he and his family are Grits. His attempt to impose himself on either one party or the other, it mattered not which was purely a financial venture, and had no political significance whatever.

FRANCE'S GROWING DEBT

That the French Government is keenly alive to the serious conditions of the public treasury is shown by the action of the Minister of Marine in striking out, in spite of remonstrances, the vote for three new war ships. These vessels would cost several million dollars and the amount saved would be of some help in reducing the deficit, but the work of economy must go much further if the Government wishes to save itself. The present Ministry has held office longer than any other in the history of the Republic, but unless it can show great progress in reducing the deficit, it will probably be overthrown at the next general election which occurs in April. The campaign against the Government on the score of its financial policy is already being vigorously prosecuted by the Nationalists, who are turning to advantage every action of the Ministers so far as it involves the spending of public money. Even the entertainment of the Czar and Czarina is sharply criticised.

The French deficit for September was $4,000,000, while for the first nine months of 1901 it was $27,400,000, as compared with a deficit of $17,800,000 in the corresponding period of 1900. Aside from the practice of rigid economy, this growing deficit can only be overcome by increasing taxation or by borrowing money. About everything in France is already heavily taxed and any additional burden of the kind would be seriously felt by the people. The proposition has been made to increase the duty on foodstuffs, but this, while indirect and spread over the entire country, would raise the cost of living. The people naturally favor the proposition to borrow money, as this would shift the burden to other generations. Such a policy is suicidal, as it simply adds to the national debt, which is already larger than that of any other country, and give only temporary relief. France is exceedingly rich, its people are industrious and thrifty, but the very slight increase in its population is a heavy shadow over the country. It may well be doubted if the coming generations would cope with the heavy debt. The safest and surest method for reducing the deficit is to curtail public expenses. That is the only sound business course which is open to the country.

France has made a tremendous struggle to keep herself in the first rank of military and naval powers and part of the present trouble may be attributed to that ambition. She has been driven to this course by the action of the other European Governments, but she also has the satisfaction of knowing that if she is staggering under the burden, they are finding theirs heavy. Rich in resources as Russia is, the Czar's Government is constantly in need of money, while the financial affairs of Germany are not as satisfactory as they might be. But France is worse off than any of the other European Governments and the query of Le Temps, "if we are thus ruined in peace, what will happen in war?" opens a field for speculation which only Frenchmen can thoroughly appreciate.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers would Do well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I like a booster for two things—one is the crowd that is in him and the other is the space than air on him to back up his crew with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 75 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. D. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bastow thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 10 names. Here are 20 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Ingile, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

Clerking

Looks more attractive than housework for a woman, but it is also even more exhausting. The work is often done under high pressure, and the brightness of the eyes and the flushed cheeks of the attentive clerk indicate nervousness rather than health. If this is true under most favorable conditions, what shall be said of those who suffer from womanly diseases, and who endure headache, backache, and other pains day after day?

No sick woman should neglect the means of cure for womanly diseases offered in Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"A heart overflowing with gratitude, as well as a sense of duty, urges me to write to you and tell you of my wonderful recovery," says Miss Corinne C. Bask, Orangeburg, Orangeburg Co., South Carolina. "By the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I am entirely a new being compared with the poor miserable sufferer who wrote you four months ago. I remark to my parents almost every day that it seems almost an impossibility for medicine to do a person so much good. During the whole summer I could scarcely keep up to walk about the house, and yesterday I walked four miles and felt better from the exercise. I now weigh 125 pounds. Mine was a complicated case of female disease in its worst form."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness.

A BIG FIRE RAGING IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—A fierce fire is raging on Market street, between 12th and 13th streets, and it is feared heavy loss of life will be involved. The fire started at 10.30 a.m. in the nine-storey building occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., furniture and upholstering manufacturers. Although the structure was fireproof, it was filled from cellar to roof with highly inflammable material, and in a few minutes flames were bursting from every window, making it impossible for the firemen to assist those in the burning building. Hundreds of men and women were employed by the firm and a great many were killed and injured. Up to 11 o'clock eleven bodies have been removed to the morgue and it is certain that others were killed. The flames spread so quickly that nearly everybody who could get out was compelled to jump from the fire escapes in the rear, which fronts on a narrow street. When the firemen reached the scene this street was literally piled up with the bodies of people who who had jumped. Some were dead, others were dying. Lying on the fire escape at the fifth storey, in full view of thousands of spectators, was a body, roasted to a cinder, and other objects on the fire escape higher up were believed to be bodies. The fire is spreading eastward and has crossed Market street, where several big buildings are on fire, but the Fire Department hope to prevent these from being destroyed. Wanamaker's immense store is only a few hundred feet away, and the City Hall is close by, but the wind is blowing from a direction that will save these structures.

At about 11.30 o'clock the walls of the Hunt-Wilkinson building fell. This gave the firemen an opportunity to work on the other buildings that were ablaze, and at 12 o'clock the fire was believed to be under control. The wholesale and retail rubber warehouse of Lewis, and Mulconroy, adjoining Hunt-Wilkinson and Company's building was on fire, but the flames could be confined to the upper stories. Stories conflict as to the number of persons killed. Hunt, Wilkinson and Co. employed 300 people, mostly girls. The fire is believed to have started on the second floor of their building, where 15 persons were at work. It is not known whether any of these escaped. When the rear wall of the building fell a number of bodies were lying in the small street in the rear, variously estimated at from six to thirty, and they were covered with hundreds of tons of brick and twisted iron. The police say that twelve are known to have been killed, and they hesitate to estimate how many bodies are in the ruins. Dozens of streams of water are playing on the red hot ruins, and as soon as the men can get to work, hundreds of city employes will begin to search for bodies.

Eye-witnesses say the flames spread with remarkable rapidity. This, they say, was due to the fact that much naptha, varnish, excelsior and other highly inflammable material were used by the firm. Employes who started down the fire escapes in the rear of the building before the flames were visible from the street were compelled to jump before they had travelled two stories because of the flames breaking through the windows. The first firemen who arrived on the scene devoted their energies entirely to the work of rescue. Nets were spread in the front and rear of the building, and some who jumped were saved in this way. A woman jumped from one of the windows of the Market street front, but the smoke blinded her, and she missed the net, striking the pavement and dying instantly. In the rear a young girl who jumped from one of the top stories caught on the fire escape at the third storey, and the flames bursting from the window burned her body to a crisp in almost no time. Two men, one white and one colored, emerged from the fourth storey, and stood on the fire escape with the flames all around them. The white man danced up and down, and appeared to be bereft of his reason. The colored man stood for a few seconds and then jumped to his death below. The white man stood on the fire escape until he was overcome, and then fell to his death in the small street. There was no fire escape on the front of the building, and all employes rushed madly to the rear.

AN AMERICAN BORE THE UNION JACK

Montreal, Oct. 25.—Yesterday afternoon at 3.30, with a banner flying, a procession marched solemnly up St. Helen street to Notre Dame, along to St. Peter, and then up St. James to the post office. Then, like the King of France, it solemnly marched back. On the way back the procession got very dry, and a licensed house of refreshment benefitted. The procession was headed by a man and a flag, it was closed by a man with a flag—it consisted of a man with a flag. In fact, Mr. J. R. Simon was the procession.

He is a wealthy silk dealer and importer of New York. It is said he is worth two million dollars or less, and his name is familiar throughout the silk world. Yesterday he was in the Corticelli silk agency here with half a dozen other local silk men and was drawn into a discussion regarding the Boer war; then into a wager, and he lost. What the wager was or what he lost it is not necessary or discreet to tell, but fifteen minutes later, teamsters, brokers, messenger boys and every one else on St. James street stopped to watch Mr. Simon and the Union Jack go by.

Mr. Simon is short, forty, florid and well dressed. He staggered a little when he saw the size of the flag he had to carry, and did not look pleased when he heard that he was to be accompanied by one of the party who was there to see that the meteor flag of England flew free over a wealthy citizen of the United States through the principal street of this patriotic city. The first shock over, he bravely shouldered his banner and set out. He started to walk on the sidewalk, but his guardian said: "You are not a common foot passenger. You are a procession, and processions are not allowed on the sidewalk here." So Mr.

MISS STONE SAID TO BE STILL ALIVE

New York, Oct. 25.—The fact that the brigands who kidnapped Miss Stone have permitted communications to be established is taken to mean that Miss Stone is alive and safe from harm, for the present at least, says the Sofia correspondent of the World. C. M. Dickinson, the diplomatic agent or envoy of the United States in Bulgaria, as well as Consul-General at Constantinople in an interview said:

"I have absolute proof of the complicity in the crime of some members gands who attacked Miss Stone's party were disguised in Turkish fez and cloak. But two of them threw back their cloaks during the attack, thus revealing the uniform of the Macedonian committee. They were recognized, too, as Bulgarians. Moreover, they spoke poor Turkish and good Bulgarian and ate ham and bacon.

"The leading members of the Bulgarian Government agree, I believe, that the brigands are willing to surrender to the Bulgarian troops and that in this case there would be no danger to the captives' lives, but if they should be attacked by Turkish troops the brigands would fight to the last and then kill the captives. The Turkish troops are under orders not to attack the brigands even if they are fired upon.

—Bertha Rice, who appeared at the Police Court some days ago, charged with the theft of some articles from Mr. Richardson, of the C. P. R. hotel, appeared yesterday for sentence. She was further remanded for one week.

THE MOLSONS BANK.

The forty-sixth annual general meeting of the Molsons Bank was held in the Board Room of that institution at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The President, Mr. W. Molson Macpherson, occupied the chair, and among those present were, Messrs. S. H. Ewing, Vice-President; J. P. Cleghorn, Samuel Finley, F. C. Henshaw, H. Markland Molson, W. M. Ramsay, directors; George Filer, A. G. Watson, John Crawford, J. Try-Davies, Hon. James O'Brien, James Wilson, S. W. Ewing, E. H. Copland, W. R. Miller, Charles E. Spragge, G. M. Kinghorn, G. W. Robinson, F. W. Molson, and Colin McCuaig.

The President, having called the meeting to order, requested Mr. A. D. Durnford to act as secretary, and after that gentleman had read the advertisement convening the meeting, the President named Messrs. J. Try-Davies and Charles E. Spragge to act as scrutineers.

REPORT OF DIRECTORS.

The General Manager, Mr. James Elliot, then read the annual report of the Directors, as follows:—

The Directors beg to submit the following report for the year ending the 30th September, 1901:—

The net earnings of the Bank, after making full provision for bad and doubtful debts amounted to $353,890.51, being equal to 14.15 per cent. on the capital Account.

This has been distributed by two semi-annual dividends of 4 per cent., and a bonus of 1 per cent. Included in the expenditure of the year has been $15,364.82 for alterations and improvements in the premises at Montreal and elsewhere. The Directors are confident that the alterations completed during the year at Montreal will have the entire approval of the Shareholders, adding as they have done so materially to the appearance of the offices and the convenience of the public and officials of the Bank.

The Directors have been able to add $100,000 to the Reserve Fund, making its present total $2,150,000 and have carried forward $31,506.47, to the credit of Profit and Loss Account.

The Bank acquired during the past summer premises in Jacques Cartier Square in this city, where a branch has been opened, known as the Market and Harbor branch, offering all the usual banking facilities to the public.

As the growth of business at Valleyfield, Que., did not meet the expectations of the Board, the branch there has been closed.

All the branches of the Bank have been inspected during the year, and your Directors have pleasure in once again bearing testimony to the zeal and efficiency with which the work of the Bank is performed by the officials generally.

On behalf of the Directors.
W. MOLSON MACPHERSON
President.
Montreal, 21st October, 1901.

THE DISCUSSION.

The President then said:—

In submitting to you the result of the year's work, I do so with the greatest satisfaction, knowing that you will receive it with feelings of approval. The annual meeting of the Molsons Bank occurs when all predictions respecting our harvest have become an established fact. Our country for years depended upon its wheat crops, and prosperity or depression throughout the country was largely governed by it, but now our older provinces have become firmly established as dairy and farm producing provinces. Our cheese, butter, cattle and hay, continue to find ready markets in Great Britain; our hay and oats are being shipped in large quantities to South Africa, and our Canadian horses are being largely used as remounts for the British troops in South Africa. Consequently our trade returns for the year are of a most satisfactory character.

The water powers of Canada and our valuable spruce lands have attracted British and foreign capital, resulting in the very large manufacture of pulp and paper, and in addition to this, our pulpwood manufactured for the United States has become a considerable article of export, and has given employment to labor, and the carrying trade of the country has derived great benefit therefrom.

The employment of labor through all our manufacturing sections, as well as through our farming districts, has been very satisfactory, the labor market being strained to its fullest extent; consequently, our country offers great inducements to settlers.

The increased deposits in banks and financial institutions show how fully labor and capital have been employed and remunerated, the total amount now being over $400,000,000.

The province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories have been bountifully blessed with the finest harvest that our country has ever enjoyed, greatly benefiting the business of the whole Dominion.

As a result of such prosperity, our Bank has derived its full advantages as our branches extend from Quebec to Vancouver, covering the whole country, and I am, therefore, enabled to place before you the handsome statement which shows 14.15 return on our capital.

We are continually strengthening ourselves, and have added this year $100,000 to the Rest, which now stands at $2,150,000, or 86 per cent. of our capital; and have also increased our reserves by investing in bonds and securities, which now stand at $2,311,447.

Feeling so sanguine of the continued good earnings of the bank, the Directors have decided to recommend that the dividend be paid 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, that is 9 per cent. annually, instead of 8 per cent., with a bonus of one per cent. as formerly. I am sure that such a change will meet with general approval.

The capital of the Bank has been employed to its fullest capacity, and the circulation has been kept to its fullest limit.

The Shareholders of the Bank have increased from 686 in 1900, to 747 in 1901, thus increasing the friends and supporters of the Bank.

The General Manager, Inspectors, Managers, and in fact, the whole staff of the bank, have been most zealous and efficient, and the pleasing statement now submitted is the outcome of their exertions.

I don't know that I have anything further to add. The year has been a most prosperous one. The country, from one end to the other, seems to be blessed with abundance, but we must safeguard against what must come sooner or later, for we cannot have good times always, and we feel it our duty to protect the Shareholders all we can. Any questions the Shareholders wish to ask I will be pleased to answer.

Mr. James Wilson spoke a few words concerning the admirable statement placed before the Shareholders, and remarked that in it he did not see any mention of the Pension Fund which it was last year decided to establish.

The General Manager—"We have not started it yet; but are still working at the idea. We have had insurance actuaries examining into certain data we gave them, and their opinions are more exacting than what we thought necessary. Probably we shall start the fund on January 1 next."

Mr. Wilson hoped that when the fund was established, it would be a contribution of the Bank itself, and not an assessment on the employes, because he thought it would make the Directors feel that when an official was leaving the employ of the institution, he did so without feeling that he had been paying into a fund from which he would never get any benefit.

The General Manager—"We have a certain fund set aside already for that purpose, but we found that it required more than we had expected. We shall have to make an assessment on the officers, but it won't be much, probably 3 per cent. of their salaries, and if one of them leaves before he is entitled to a pension, he will get back the whole, or nearly the whole, of what he has paid in, if he has behaved properly."

Mr. John Crawford took it for granted that the Directors would do what was right towards the officials of the Bank, for a more efficient, obliging and better lot of men was not to be found in the Dominion. He spoke of the financial statement as being exceedingly satisfactory, but expressed regret at the remarks of the President, that the Directors recommended a dividend of 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, instead of 4 per cent., and a bonus, equal to 9 per cent. in the year. He had hoped that there would have been no difficulty in initiating, next October, a 10 per cent. dividend. Speaking of deposits bearing interest, and amounting to over $12,000,000, he wished to know what profit the Bank made on them. He assumed that the maximum interest allowed by the Bank was 3 per cent.

The General Manager—"We have to keep a large amount of cash on hand, idle, at all the thirty-eight branches. There are $1,500,000 of that cash lying in the vaults here, and in those of the different branches. We make a profit, but it is difficult to say how much; we pay 3 per cent. and lend at 6, but we cannot lend all we have."

Mr. Crawford—"There are $500,000 and odd with foreign agents; I presume it is the New York?"

The General Manager—"New York, Germany, France, etc."

In reply to further questions by Mr. Crawford, the General Manager said that the municipal, railway, public and other securities were principally railway bonds and British consols, of which latter the Bank had £40,000. There were very few municipal Canadian bonds, except first class ones. Our Bonds, amounting to about $2,400,000, were of such a class that on them money could be borrowed tomorrow either in London or New York.

The President—"We are pleased to hear Mr. Crawford's remarks in reference to the statement, and I cannot say we are astonished to hear him in reference to the dividend, as I have known what his ideas were. Our intention has always been to make the Rest equal to the Capital, and the Directors have steadily gone on in that direction; it gives greater security to the Shareholders. I think Mr. Crawford would be the last one to advise us to do anything which would weaken the security of the Shareholders. As things look at present, it does not seem as if it would be long before we shall be able to pay 10 per cent. dividend. If we could see three or four years ahead and if the years were like some we have had in the past, the latter would be easy. But we cannot, and I think we must go on making the Rest equal to the Capital, and protect the Shareholders. I beg to move the adoption of the annual report."

The motion was seconded by Mr. S. H. Ewing, Vice-President, and was carried unanimously.

Mr. Crawford then moved: "That the thanks of the Shareholders are due and are hereby tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their valuable services to the Bank during the past year." He spoke of the infinite pleasure it afforded him to make the motion, and of the great confidence he felt in the Bank. The statement which had that day been submitted to the Shareholders showed how diligently and faithfully the Directors had applied themselves to the interests of the Bank. With the motion he also coupled the General Manager, Inspectors, Manager and officers.

The motion was seconded by Hon. James O'Brien, who expressed the opinion that the financial statement was a most satisfactory one, and hearty thanks were deserving those who had made the year so successful.

The motion having been unanimously concurred in, the President returned thanks, and said that, of course, the Directors and the officials should be linked together in the resolution. The Directors would be a very inefficient body without the Management of the Bank. It was to them the Bank was indebted for the handsome statement which had been placed before the Shareholders, and which had been so approved by them.

Mr. S. H. Ewing also said a few words of thanks. He remarked that he felt it a great honor to be a Director of that Bank. He had been there for quite a number of years now, and he thought that he was safe in saying that the whole board did all it possibly could for the Bank. As to beginning to pay a 10 per cent. dividend at present. The Molsons Bank had always progressed, never gone back, had always increased its dividend, never decreased it and he thought that if it kept on paying 4 1-2 per cent. semi-annually, until the Rest amounted to $2,500,000, it could then safely go on paying a 10 per cent. dividend. He spoke of the diligence and close attention which the General Manager, Mr. Elliott, gave to the affairs of the Bank. Mr. Elliot had been with the bank 42 years, and he seemed part and parcel of the institution. To Mr. Elliot, to Mr. Durnford, the chief inspector, and to the whole staff the Bank was very much indebted. The staff was a splendid one.

Replying to Mr. Crawford, the President said that an attempt was made to break into the branch at Owen Sound, but it was unsuccessful, and therefore no loss was sustained. Three men were arrested, but so far nothing had been proved against them. The Bank had 38 branches, and there were four Inspectors. Mr. Durnford, the chief inspector, usually remained in Montreal.

Mr. Crawford wished to know if, in the Bank and its branches, there were any means, electrical or otherwise, of communicating with the outside, in the case of a hold-up.

The General Manager—"We have such electrical protection wherever it can be obtained."

The meeting then proceeded to the election of officers, and the scrutineers soon reported that the retiring Board had been re-elected, viz.:—Messrs. James P. Cleghorn, S. H. Ewing, Samuel Finley, F. C. Henshaw, H. Markland Molson, W. Molson Macpherson, W. M. Ramsay.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. W. Molson Macpherson was re-elected President, and Mr. S. H. Ewing Vice-President.

Mr Kennedy's Enterprise

Mr. H. P. Kennedy is making things hum in the meat-line. His latest departure is the equipment of the rooms at the rear of his principal store as a place for the disposal, either by whole sale or retail, of the choice meats with which the market is supplied. This is convenient to visitors to the market, and on Saturdays the new department is largely patronized. Mr. Kennedy's business is growing by leaps and bounds.

The Story Repeated.

The Toronto Star republishes the story of the sale of the Peterborough Street Railway. As stated in our issue of Saturday, there is not a word of truth in the report. There is, however, every reason to believe that the road will change hands soon, as it is too valuable a property to long lie dormant.

Get the Best.

Certainly the most lifelike portraits of the King and Queen are those offered this year by the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, to their subscribers, and, what is the use having anything but the best. The Family Herald portraits are each 18 x 24 inches, and are perfect likenesses. The Family Herald portraits have also the distinguished merit of being the very first taken after the King's accession to the throne, and have, therefore, an historical value that no other portraits will possess. When one gets the best at the same price as an inferior article, there should be no time lost in choosing, and certainly the Family Herald's pictures of the King Queen are beyond comparison with any others before the public.

In addition to these two portraits, each subscriber receives, we understand, a perfect copy of the renowned Gainsborough picture, the Duchess of Devonshire, 22 x 28 inches, in ten beautiful colours. It is pronounced a perfect gem. All three pictures and a year's subscription to the Family Herald and Weekly Star for one year is the dollar's worth of the season.

Turkey and Crete.

MARRIED AT OAKVILLE

Nuptials of Mr O. A. Langley and Miss Gertrude Bray

The marriage of Mr. O. A. Langley, barrister, of Lakefield, and Miss Gertrude Bray, of Oakville, occurred on Oct. 24th. The following particulars is taken from the New Era:

Yesterday morning at 9.30 o'clock a quiet, but pretty, wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bray, Oakville, when their only daughter, Miss Gertrude, was married to Mr. O. A. Langley, of Lakefield, Ont. The bride was becomingly attired in her travelling dress of blue frieze and black velvet hat, and carried a large bouquet of white chrysanthemums. There was no bridesmaid or groomsman. Miss Applebe played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Worrell in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The house was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and flowers for the occasion. After congratulations had been extended by the guests a sumptuous breakfast was served in the dining room, after which Mr. and Mrs. Langley left on the 11.40 train for a trip eastward. Upon their return they will reside at Lakefield. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome mink ruff and a watch. Their many friends wish them great prosperity and happiness in their wedded life.

WHERE HE FAILED

"My health is all right!" said a well known traveler to a circle of friends in the sitting room of the Snowden House last night. "Here is the truth regarding my sudden illness. Just before I left on my last trip my wife chanced to remember that she had a second cousin living in a little town that I expected to visit, and she made me promise to call on her. It so happened that I was obliged to pass the night where this second cousin lived, and remembering my promise to my wife, I looked her up during the evening. I discovered her relative to be a maiden lady of uncertain age, living alone in the company of a dog, three cats and a parrot.

"'I am sorry to hear that you are a commercial traveler,' she said, after we had explored the family album as a matter of duty.

"'Why?' I asked.

'Because as a class they are so dissipated and ungodly,' she answered.

"Now, I am not one to desert my colors when they are fired on, so I disputed the assertion flatly.

"'That is not so,' said I, 'I personally know any number of commercial men, and I can assure you that they are mainly men with strong religious leanings. Now,' said I, warming up, 'as a member of the church——'

"'Oh, do you belong to a church?' she cried.

"'Certainly, said I, unblushingly.

"'Oh, I am so glad,' she answered. "There is a prayer meeting tonight, and I haven't missed going for thirty years. I can now ask you to go with me, knowing you will be glad to.'

"'Delighted,' I murmured, mentally kicking myself for a fool.

"That dear old girl dragged me away to prayer meeting and introduced me to the church members as a commercial traveller who belonged to a church. I think if they had had notice they would have advertised us and charged an admission.

"But the climax came when the minister arose with beaming face and, looking at me, said:

"'Brother Blank, will you lead in prayer?'

"Right there was when I was stricken down. The doctor pronounced it heart failure, and for a country doctor he wasn't far from the truth."

MAKES PEACE WITH KAISER

Venezuela Settles Porto Cabello Incident by Punishing Offenders.

Caracas, Venezuela, Oct. 28. — The Venezuelan government and the German legation have satisfactory arranged the difficulty arising from the affray between German sailors and the police of Porto Cabello on Oct. 6 last.

The settlement was arrived at in the following manner: The Venezuelan government officially communicated to the German minister the information that the two individuals concerned in the attack on the German sailors had been arrested and would be tried. The German legation, therefore, notified the Venezuelan government that it would consider the incident closed while awaiting official notification of the punishment of the offenders.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The navy department has received a mail report from Captain Perry, commander of the battle-ship Iowa, which is now watching over American interests at Panama, stating that affairs on the isthmus continue quiet and that there has been no material change in the situation.

Captain Perry's report was accompanied by a report from Commander McCrea of the Machias, lying on the other side of the isthmus. The commander says that there are no material changes in the condition of affairs in Colon, though one hears of "wars and rumors of war" at various points all over the republic of Columbia.

From reliable sources he learns that the liberal leader, Diaz, feeling much encouraged over the reported successes of his party at Bocas Del Toro, and the well-known discontent existing among the government troops on the isthmus, due to their having received no pay for five weeks, has issued a proclamation calling upon all loyal Colombians to join him near Panama, where he has plenty of arms and ammunition for everybody.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Brockville, Oct. 28.—A sad accident occurred here this morning, by which an 8 year old lad named Willie Sutton lost his life. He was riding on a loaded coal cart, and in some manner fell off the cart, his head striking the hub of the wheel in the descent. He died a few minutes afterwards. It happened within a short distance of the lad's home. His father is employed by Senator Fulford.

McGINNIS DROWNED

Winnipeg, Oct. 28.—The body of John McGinnis an aged resident of Beaver Mill, who had been missing for over a week, was found at the mouth of the Rainy River. He had been drowned. The dead man was 65 years of age, and was well known in the Rainy River and Rat Portage districts.

London, Oct. 25.—Mr. Chamberlain's speech at Edinburgh to-night is awaited with keen interest, as a pronouncement on the policy in South Africa by the Minister, who will order the details of the reconstruction.

A Test Case.

The Ontario Licensed Victuallers' Association has taken a hand in the fight against the blinds regulation in Ottawa. The license commissioners some time ago ordered that all blinds in bar rooms be removed and that the bars face a front street. A test case was made when Mr. John Hiskell, of the Brunswick, appeared in court on Monday, charged with having blinds on his bar windows. Mr. J. B. Haverson, of Toronto, representing the Licensed Victuallers, appeared for Mr. Huckell. He argued that the regulation is unreasonable and that the present restrictions are too harsh. The magistrate reserved judgment.

Tarred and "Feathered"

A negro, who had been regarded as a dangerous character, was "waited" on by a committee of Alnwick farmers and treated to a coat of tar and grass, the latter being a substitute for feathers. He pleaded piteously for mercy, and promised to leave the locality, which we understand he did.

Pro Boers Meet in Weimar.

Berlin, Oct. 28.—An enthusiastic pro boer meeting was held to-day in Weimar, attended by more than 1,000 persons. Dr. Gadow of Kimberley answered Herr Brandt, former German minister to China, who had ridiculed Weimar because of the proboer sentiments which have frequently found expression there of late. Resolutions were adopted condemning the recent executions in south Africa and denouncing the British military methods as "predatory."

Mrs. White Declared Not Guilty

Brantford, Oct. 26.—Chief Justice Meredith, in his address to the jury in the White case this morning, inclined to charge against the prisoner.

He dwelt in detail upon all the theories advanced by the Crown, and altho he spoke very carefully and guardedly, his leanings were against the acceptance of the story told by the prisoner. Briefly, the argument of the Crown was that White came to his death in one of four ways—suicide, accidental administration of the poison by himself, deliberate murder on the part of his wife or accident on her part.

The first possibility was removed by the fact that, if deceased suicided, he would not have asked what was the matter with him, nor would he have asked if the liquor he drank on the night before could have caused it. The Crown claimed that the poison could not have been administered by him or by her accidentally, because she firmly stated that she had no strychnine in the house.

Therefore, the Crown claimed, the death must have been planned by Mrs. White. They claimed that there was motive for the crime in the fact that the accused had spoken of obtaining divorce and that insurance had been placed upon the life of the husband. The defence denied these motives emphatically, and advanced the theory that deceased came to his death at his own hand, witnesses being brought forward to prove that deceased had repeatedly threatened to suicide.

The jury retired at 11.25.

The jury came out of the room at 4 p.m. Five minutes later the judge took his seat and, after the jury had answered to their names, the judge asked if they had arrived at a decision.

The foreman stood up and said clearly. "Not guilty."

Mrs. White was much affected and left the court room with her two sons.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I luv a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to the burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 75 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallen, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. B. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bastow thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 80 names. Here are 80 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Baptie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

WHEN GENERAL BULLER LIVED IN MONTREAL

A Sketch of the Celebrated British General's Career When in Canada.

TOOK A LEADING PART IN SPORTING EVENTS

Captain Buller Was a General Favorite Amongst Sporting Men of Montreal—He Has Many Friends in Canada.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—The enforced retirement of General Sir Redvers H. Buller from his command of the First Army Corps and the Aldershot district, has caused much amazement among his many friends in Montreal and other parts of Canada.

It was pointed out by a strong admirer of General Buller, yesterday, in an up-town club, that he had, of all the commanders in South Africa, the hardest end of the campaign to face, and in the most difficult portion of the country, and with scarcely 30,000 troops. Yet he did relieve Ladysmith, drove the Boer army through their rocky fastness out of Natal; planned and fought the greatest battle of the war at Dalmanutha, and was highly praised for this by Lord Roberts in despatches.

HIS LIFE IN MONTREAL.

It is about thirty-seven years now, since the General, then Lieutenant R. H. Buller, of the 4th Battalion, 60th Royal Rifles, now the "King's Royal Corps," was stationed in Montreal. At that time the garrison of Imperial troops totalled close on 5,000 men, of artillery, engineers, military train, and infantry. Battalions of the Grenadiers and Scot Fusilier Guards were quartered in what was called the Victoria Barracks, on the corner of St. Paul and St. Sulpice streets, the officers being for a time quartered at the St. Lawrence Hall, and finally at the hotel now called the "Riendeau's," on Jacques Cartier square. The 4th Battalion 60th Rifles were quartered in the College Barracks on College street, now the property of J. E. Mullin & Co.; the 16th Regiment were in the old Molson College, some of the artillery and engineers in the old Quebec Gate Barracks, where is now the C. P. R. Dalhousie station, and the military train and other details at Hochelaga. Buller and his brother officers had their mess and quarters in what was called the Donegana Hotel, now the Notre Dame Hospital. Another fine soldier was also in garrison at that period, and like Buller, straight from the China war of 1860, Colonel Garnet Wolseley, Deputy Quarter-master-General, and now Field Marshal Vis-count Wolseley, and ex-Commander-in-Chief of the British army. These two, then comparatively unknown officers, were destined in a few years to come closer together in the course of duty, and soon learned to appreciate the merits and abilities of each other, so that the rapid advancement of Wolseley in military rank, had a like advantage for Buller. In fact in later years, he and Sir Evelyn Wood and a few others were dubbed by their envious military comrades, members of the "Wolseley Gang."

Buller was not much given to going into too general society. He had a few private friends, whose families he highly esteemed, and none more so than the late Mr. Gilbert Scott, who came from his native place, Crediton, Devonshire. He was however, fond of and encouraged all kinds of outdoor sports among his fellows and his company.

BULLER AS A SPORT.

He was, it is said, a rattling handy man with the gloves, and a hard, plucky rider across country. Being an enthusiastic disciple of Isaac Walton, and a rover of the chase, he, with several of his brother officers, became members of the Montreal Fish and Game Protection Club, and he was present at the annual meeting held at "Dolly's" chop house on the 5th March, 1864. Messrs. Henry MacKay was president, John Ogilvy vice-president, and A. Murray secretary and treasurer. Mr. McKay presided, and the club's efforts to preserve the fish and game were more efficient then than at present. The members of the club comprised most of the wealthy business men of Montreal, but few of them are now to the fore, having paid the debt of nature. But while encouraging in every possible way healthy athletic exercise among his men, he also kept a strong, firm hand on discipline. Those who knew him in those days looked upon him as a bit of a martinet, yet it was also noticed that on a long trying route march or other battalion competition, Buller's men invariably came out on top. Several of the Rifles who served under Buller, now residents of Montreal, speak of him as a man, brusque disposition, slow and brief of speech, but fair, just and straightforward. He was kind and generous not only to those under him, but also to many a young sub, not as well off as he. The drill book he had at his fingers' ends, and in transport organization he was so able that on Wolseley, being given the command of the Red River expedition in 1870 he immediately had Buller appointed to his staff, and from that time, it is stated, their friendship has never been broken. And Buller gave a striking example of this when holding the high position of adjutant-general of the army, he declined the offer of the Government in 1895 to become commander-in-chief over the head of his old friend and comrade, Lord Wolseley, his senior in rank and in years. There was again. Though an epicure and a good liver at all times, those who have served in several campaigns with him found him quite contented with the private soldier's rations, and would share his tobacco with the humblest "Tommy." It is no wonder, then, that he had such a strong hold on his men, that his slightest request was looked upon by them as a command to be satisfactorily carried out.

After leaving Canada, in 1871, he joined the Staff College at Sandhurst and while there the Ashanti War broke out and once more Wolseley took him on his staff to the West Coast of Africa, where he did splendid service. A few years later he was appointed military secretary to General Sir James Leicester Smythe, at the Cape, with the rank of major. Sir James Sivewright, a member of the Cape Government at that time, tells a good story of Buller and the outbreak of the Boer invasion of Natal in 1881, just after the Zulu war, in which he, (Buller)

AGAIN GAINED NEW HONOURS.

According to Sir James Sivewright, one Sunday major Buller appeared at Newlands, the home of Sir James, in low spirits about Natal. He asked "Does Sir George Colley know this African ground as we know it? He may be tempted to go up one of those infernal hills. Very well, he'll climb one of them, but not really get to the top; or, if he does get there, he won't understand that the top's no use, unless you know which ridge to guard. And again, I ask you, does he know our African hills?" Mr. Sivewright drove him into Cape Town and got the wires connected with the base. The news was reassuring. Sir G. Colley had moved out in force the day before, and was now, it was understood, in command of the Boer position. The Boers were probably retreating. Mr. Sivewright told this radiantly to Major Buller. The Major was merely more melancholic than before. "You'll see," he said. 'It's the very thing I told you. Colley has gone up some mountain. He'll think he commands the Boer position. But he won't. It takes an African to do that. Please God, the Boers have been bluffed and have bolted."

News came later that Sir George Colley had been killed by the Boers on Majuba Hill. Buller and his guest went straight for the general's quarters—Major Buller's general, Sir Leicester Smythe—and demanded to see him. The military secretary briefly told his chief what had happened. "And now, sir," said the masterful man taking the reins into his hands, "I'll tell you what we must do. You must leave with me for Natal to-night to take over the command. You're senior officer in this country, and it's your right. We must catch the Boers on the hop. Here is Mr. Sivewright. He'll go to the Union Company and get a small steamer, and we'll start to-night. Just take your kit and yourself and So-and-So." The old gentleman remonstrated. He must at least see the Governor, he said. "As soon as you see Sir Hercules," retorted his subordinate, "he'll stop you. This isn't the time for waiting for instructions from England." We must go now. It's our—I beg your pardon, sir, it's my chance in life." The general agreed, the appointed hour came, the steamer lay in the harbour ready, the conspirators met and waited for their leader. No Sir Leicester Smythe arrived; there came a note from him instead. He had seen the Governor, after all, and His Excellency had insisted on their "awaiting instructions from England." Had Major Buller had his way then perhaps a second Boer war would have been unnecessary.

When Adjutant-General of the Army he did much to improve the lot of the non-commissioned officers and the rank and file. On coming before the Duke of Devonshire's Parliamentary Committee on Reform of the Army, in 1894, he answered the questions in the fullest manner, and as the Radicals said, there was no detail connected with the army, from the cost of the private soldier's boots to the actual strength of the entire British forces which he had not at his fingers' ends. He knew his business thoroughly and was found to be absolutely correct in all his facts. "If you want a good army," he said, "you must pay for it, and yet the House of Commons is always crying out economy. You can't get a good article at a low figure."

Some one asked why it was necessary to have such showy uniforms as most of the troops. "Because," he said, "a showy uniform attracts Mary Ann, the nursemaid, who makes Tommy Atkins join the army. In plain uniforms, you would find recruiting a harder job than ever." And the committee found out he was right. The late great war correspondent, Archibald Forbes, in his book on "Peace and War," says that Buller saved the honour of the British Army twice, at Tamai, when his brigade, by his fine handling, saved the day, and again his fine retreat across the desert with the remnant of Sir Herbert Stewart's brigade, sent to relieve General Gordon at Khartoum.

FRENCH DECADENCE

M. Hanotaux Says Renewed Energy Will Follow the Present Lassitude. Japan Can't Sell Bonds.

Paris, Oct. 29.—M. Hanotaux, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, has a long article in the Temps to-day on French decadence. He says that France is still in her own productions one of the richest countries in the world but the race appears to be fatigued and spent after its prodigious efforts to recover from the effects of the war of 1870.

He thinks, however, that the exhaustion is only a repossful lassitude prior to a renewed display of energy and believes that the future lies with the Ministry of the Colonies. M. Hanotaux is evidently not affected by the results of the colonial policy of Mr. Chamberlain, the British Colonial Secretary.

Murdered Boy for Few Cents

Montreal, Oct. 28.—Tobias Hansen, a Dane, aged 25 years, has given himself up to the police as a self-confessed perpetrator of an atrocious crime. His story was not believed at first, but investigation proved it to be true. Hansen had been drinking heavily for a few days and ran out of money. Walking along one of the streets of Westmount he met a thirteen-year-old lad named Herrick Marrette, who was jingling a few coins in his pocket. Hansen immediately knocked him down, and then cut his throat with a penknife, besides inflicting other injuries. As it turned out, the poor lad had only seventeen cents in his pocket. Hansen threw the body on a stone pile and walked away, but his conscience troubled him, and today he gave himself up, otherwise he might never have been discovered. Hansen is a recent importation, but seems to be an intelligent man. The victim is a son of Samuel Marotte of Marrotte, Leblanc & Company, spice merchants.

Strike Caused by Death of Child

Valleyfield, Que, Oct. 28.—After several interviews with the managers of the Cotton Company and the men the Deputy Minister of Labor held a meeting of the strikers in the Town Hall yesterday, after which the dismissed man apologized to the foreman, who asked for his reinstatement, and the committee of strikers apologized to the manager, who agreed to reinstate the dismissed employe and take back all the strikers without discrimination. The men have agreed to work overtime to make up the time lost on the strike, and provision is made to prevent strikers in future.

The strike arose out of sympathy by the spinners for a fellow-workman, named Thierge. This man, while on duty last week, was told that his child was dead. He asked leave to go home, but was requested by the foreman to wait until another man could be got to fill his place, so as to keep his machine in operation. Thierge would not wait, but went off and buried his dead child. After two days absence he returned, and was informed that the foreman wanted to see him. He replied that if the foreman wanted him he knew where to find him. Thierge was then dismissed, and his fellow workmen, being informed that it was on account of absenting himself to bury his child, at once quitted work out of sympathy.

ASSASSIN READY FOR EXECUTION

Czolgosz Showed no Desire to Postpone Death Penalty

TO DIE THIS MORNING AT SIX

His Attitude Was the Same as When First Arrested – Extra Guard Placed in the Cell

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The officials of Auburn prison this morning completed the general preparations for the execution of Leon F. Czolgosz. Warden J. Warren Mead conferred with electrician E. F. Davis and the keepers and guards who are to assist in the execution and many features of the final programme were carefully reviewed. Warden Mead has selected six assistants from the guards who have had the widest experience in such affairs, and those chosen to conduct Czolgosz to the chair and fasten and prepare the assassin for the doom are experts.

There is not a single indication that does but point to the assassin's going to the chair in exactly as unconcerned a manner as his 55 predecessors in the State. Curiously enough the man's attitude is absolutely unchanged from what it was when he was arrested and sentenced. He is not anxious to see anybody and refuses to talk except in monosyllables. Czolgosz is eating well and is in good physical condition. He shows no apparent signs of changing his method and no apparent desire to postpone the death penalty.

Tonight at 6 o'clock after the death warrant is read, there will be an extra guard placed in the cell with Czolgosz, and this precaution is taken to prevent any possibility of the prisoner dashing himself against the stone floor. The portion of the condemned cell in which the four condemned men besides Czolgosz are confined has been partitioned off by an iron screen.

GUARDS KEEP WATCH.

Extra guards kept watch during the night at the iron gate of the prison, and they will be maintained until after the execution tomorrow morning. The guards were doubled merely as a precautionary measure, and not because there is reason to believe that extra men will be needed. The police of the city are co-operating with the prison officials, and keep a close watch on all trains entering the city. They too, feel that there is a remote possibility of an act of violence upon the part of some crank through with a wild plan of either aiding or injuring the prisoner, and they hope to prevent anything of the kind. Guards and police keep a close watch on State street, upon which the main entrance and prison wall front. The prison was perfectly quiet today, and at no time was there any [illegible].

ONLY ONE ISSUE IN THE RICE CASE

Mr. Robinette on the Line of Defence Which Will be Taken

CANNOT BE SENTENCED TO DIE

The Point That Rice Cannot be Sentenced to Death While Serving a Term will be Kept Till Last.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—The Criminal Assize Court was opened this afternoon at two o'clock by Chief Justice Falconbridge, with all the solemnity and impressiveness which usually characterizes the opening ceremonies of the high criminal court of the realm. The court room was crowded, fully an hour before the entrance of His Lordship. Many people, who expected to see Fred Lee Rice, the sole survivor of the Rutledge gang, and alleged murderer of Constable Boyd, arraigned in the dock were disappointed. The charge must first be considered by the Grand Jury, which met this afternoon, and will probably present a bill late this evening or to-morrow morning. In the meantime, the prisoner remains at the jail.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie, K.C., who will act as Crown prosecutor, arrived from Guelph on Saturday night, and spent this morning in conference with H. H. Dewart, K.C., County Crown Attorney. It is understood that Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., counsel for Dr. Polland, charged with abortion, is anxious to have his case tried immediately on the conclusion of the murder trial. The counsel for the prosecution considered the matter during the conference this morning, but Mr. Dewart would not say what course had been decided upon.

There is much speculation as to the line of defence Mr. Robinette will pursue in defending the prisoner Rice. To The News Mr. Robinette said this morning:—"Obviously there is but one straight issue—either Boyd was killed by a bullet from Rice's revolver, or he was not. I cannot give you details of my defence." He intimated, however that there would be some startling developments in the case. The formal objection that prisoner cannot be sentenced to death while serving a sentence of imprisonment will not be made until the jury has returned a verdict of guilty, and the judge is about to pronounce sentence.

The Crown authorities and sheriff's officers are unusually reticent in regard to the preparations for the court.

GERMAN PAPERS IN A FIERCE FERMENT

They Denounce Chamberlain and Hurl Adjectives at England

A CENSURE ON KITCHENER

Boers Declared to be Masters of South Africa in a Military Sense—Say That England Treat Boers as Assassins.

London, Oct. 28.—Mr. Chamberlain's speech at Edinburgh on Friday evening says the Berlin correspondent of the Times, has evoked a perfect storm of indignant protest on the part of the German press.

The Neuste Nachrichten says Chamberlain ought long ago to have withdrawn into private life. They refer to the 'dark machinations' of Rhodes and his confederates, in which Chamberlain joined with the object of destroying the South African Republic.

The National Zeitung says Great Britain treats the Boers, who are still, in a military sense, masters of the country, as though they were assassins.

The Tageblatt talks of 'butcher Kitchener' and of the 'barbarous herding of defenceless women and children in the shambles of English concentration camps.'

French General Not Friendly

New York, Oct. 29. — The Paris Matin, says the Paris correspondent of The London Times and The New York Times, publishes three letters, written by General Voyron, who commanded the French force in China, to Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee. The letters show how strained, during the entire period of the foreign occupation, were the relations between the French General and the Commander-in-Chief of the allies. The publication, remarks the correspondent, is significant because it must be by the consent of General Voyron or some authorized colleague of that general. The first letter upholds the French right to protect the Catholic Missions, which Count Von Waldersee contested. The second letter, replying to the Field Marshall's protest against the numerous French flags run up between Pekin and Pao Ting Fu, says that the French occupation does not exclude other powers, except where French rights are exclusive. The third letter criticises Count Von Waldersee's scheme for organizing the Government of Pekin. It says the French have already adopted in their section of the city the [illegible].

THE BOER PRISONERS

Cause of the Heavy Death Rate in the Boer Camps

London, Oct. 29.—The official war returns show that 1,614 white children died in September in the Transvaal concentration camps, and 885 in the Orange River Colony camps, making [illegible] deaths among 51,700 children. The opponents of the war base upon these distressing figures the gravest indictments against the Government for not moving the camps to Cape Colony or Natal, near the sea, where children can live. On the other hand, it is pointed out that heavy as the death rates look, they are not enormous as judged by South African peace standards. The rate in Middleburg, Cape Colony, before the war was 150 per thousand. The increase in the population of the Orange Free States between 1890 and 1900 was only 11 per thousand per annum, though the race is proverbially prolific. Moreover, the evidence of English nurses in South Africa accustomed to the slums of London, is quoted to prove that the mortality in the camps is due to the great uncleanliness of Boer habits. They say that to ordain that Boer babies shall be washed once a week and Boer women once a month would raise a storm of indignation.

Canadians Held by Russians

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 28.—Russians have seized five Japanese schooners for being within the prescribed limits around the seal rookeries across the Pacific. About 75 fishermen, mostly Japanese but some Canadians and Americans, are also held.

Banker Under Arrest

Halifax, Oct. 28.—Detective Power of this city arrested A. Harley, former manager of the Fredericton branch of the Bank of British North America, just as the prisoner was leaving Halifax for Boston with his wife.

Harley entered the employ of the bank in Nova Scotia about twelve years ago. He was a good football player and soon became a favorite in social circles. He was promoted to the managership of the branch in Fredericton, but was dismissed from his position a few days ago. Some time ago a gentleman from Scotland deposited $6,000 in the branch at Fredericton and received from the manager the regular deposit check. Later he deposited the check for the money in Montreal, but was told that there were no funds. It is probable that the matter will be quietly arranged and that no persecution will follow.

Unite for Miss Stone

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 28.—Six young Bulgarians have banded themselves to search for Miss Ellen M. Stone, and Madame Tsilka and with the consent of the Bulgarian authorities have left Samakov for Melnonia with this object in view. The absence of news about Miss Stone has led to a revival of the report that she had already been killed and that the brigands have dispersed.

GOTHAM SQUEALS UNDER EXPOSURE

When Its Own Howls of Crime are Sent Elsewhere It Objects

WICKEDNESS IN NEW YORK

Can be Admitted There But no Outsiders May Publish It Without Rebuke—Numerous Crimes Committed

London, Oct. 28.— The Times this morning prints the following New York despatch:

Yours of Thursday regarding the condition of New York has been telegraphed back here, and has raised a storm of protest. Commissioner of Police Murphy calls it "wickedly and maliciously false." One paper calls the despatch "fiction," and the attitude of the other papers is similar.

There never was a better illustration of the American characteristic, that so long as the criticisms of anything American are printed in the United States nothing is said, but outside criticism is denounced. The very papers which declared the despatch to be a lie have been printing articles representing the condition of New York as being deplorable. On Thursday one evening paper gave a list of the burglaries which had been committed in a few days in a single section with the heading: 'What Burglars are Doing While Tammany's Police Sleep.'

Another paper the same day said: "Reports of robberies are suppressed by wholesale. As a matter of fact the police are afraid to make arrests. There are five precincts within a short distance of headquarters in which robberies and hold-ups are the rule rather than the exception. It is a fact that the police have orders not to make arrests between now and election unless absolutely compelled to do so."

Then follow details of a number of cases of crimes down town. In one case the victim shouted for help at a policeman who was twenty-five yards away, but the officer turned and walked in an opposite direction.

A morning newspaper yesterday printed a column article headed: "Assaults, thefts, and even murders, fail to move the police." It said that if the complaints of crimes committed on Park Row made to policemen were only reported at the stations the thoroughfare would be shown to be as vile a resort as the "five points" during its most evil days. Then follows a detailed long list of recent robberies on Park Row.

BRITISH CAPTURE MANY OF THE BURGHERS.

Kemp's Commando Captured in the Neighborhood of Rustenburg

FIGHTING GOING ON NEAR THE BORDER.

Situation in Cape Colony Improving—Botha and Schalkburger are Conferring

London, Oct. 28.—Recent despatches state that Kemp's commando of two hundred and fifty Boers has been captured in the Magaliesbergen, south of Rustenburg. The country in this neighborhood is very mountainous, adaptable to the Boer tactics, and the capture is regarded as highly important. Rustenburg is about midway between Mafeking and Pretoria.

Fifty men and three laagers have also been captured at Nylstroom, 60 miles north of Pretoria. In addition small detachments of men have also been taken prisoners at Villiersdorp and Vryheid.

TRIED TO CROSS THE BORDER.

Lisbon, Oct. 28. —Advices received from Lorenzo Marques, Portuguese East Africa, indicate that brisk fighting has recently taken place on the Delagoa Bay railroad line. It is said that the Boers burned six good trains a few miles from the boundary and then attempted to pass into Portuguese territory. They were met by the British forces between Ressano Garcia and Komatipoort and were repulsed, but it is stated that the British lost heavily.

The Portuguese have reinforced all their posts on the frontier.

YOUNG REBELS UNARMED.

Pretoria, Oct. 28.—The general situation in Cape Colony has much improved. In the western province there are still a large number of young Cape rebels who roam about the wild and desolate portions of the colony, unarmed, doing little damage and avoiding the British columns.

According to despatches from Matjesfontein, Scobell's and Knox's columns are on the move again after refitting at Beaufort West.

Commandant Scheeper, who was recently captured by the British, is progressing favorably at Beaufort hospital.

THE LEADERS TOGETHER.

Newcastle, Natal, Oct. 28.—Commandant General Botha has rejoined Acting-President Schalkburger at the Boer field headquarters at Amsterdam. General Botha's commando is divided into detachments which are operating independently in the bush veldt especially adapted to their tactics.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 28.—At the resumption at the seating of the South African Compensation Commission to-day, Major-General Sir John C. Ardagh, on behalf of the Government, announced that all claims of foreign countries had been settled diplomatically with the exception of those of the Netherlands and France, as follows— The United States, £6,000; Austria, £15,000; Germany, £30,000; Russia, £4,100; Italy, £12,000; Spain £150; Sweden and Norway, £1,000; Switzerland £250, and Belgium £800.

LAUNCH OF A BIG CRUISER.

London, Oct. 28.—The King Alfred, the largest cruiser in the world, was successfully launched at Barrow-in-Furness this morning. The King Alfred cost £1,011,789. She will have a speed of twenty-three knots.

TRANSFER OF DANISH INDIES.

Copenhagen, Oct. 28.— The deliberation in the negotiations between the Government and Mr. L. S. Swenson, U. S. Minister, with regard to the sale of the Danish West Indies, is attributed to the influence of a member of the royal family closely connected with the commercial interests which started the agitation against the sale. The efforts to retard the negotiations will probably be continued in the hope that something will turn up to prevent the transfer of the islands.

EARL RUSSELL CAN RE-MARRY

London, Oct. 28.—The decree of divorce granted Lady Russell from Earl Russell on March 18th last, on the ground of the Earl's bigamy with Mrs. Somerville, was to-day made absolute, no opposition to Lady Russell's application being presented. Earl Russell, it is announced will marry Mrs. Somerville immediately.

TURKEY PAYS OVER $350,000.

Constantinople, Sunday, Oct. 27.—A further installment was paid yesterday on account of the contract with the Cramps, of Philadelphia, for a cruiser, making the total paid in the neighborhood of £70,000.

LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

London, Oct. 28.—The King Alfred, the largest cruiser in the world, was successfully launched at Barrow-in-Furness this morning. The King Alfred cost £1,011,789. She will have a speed of twenty-three knots.

SMALLPOX.

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Dominion Policeman Lebeau, who lives at 318 Percy street has taken smallpox. He was removed to Porter's Island today.

Quebec, Oct. 28.—There are thirty cases of smallpox in Quebec, and some of them are very serious. The situation has become alarming.

London, Oct. 28.—A news agency despatch from Yokohama says the newspapers agree that the attempt to sell bonds of 50,000,000 yen abroad has been a failure, and that this is likely to impair the position of the Cabinet.

Will Aid Stock Gambling.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—The order issued July 31 of last year prohibiting the quotation of futures on the Stock Exchange has been rescinded. Henceforth the prices of wheat, rye, oats, maize and ryeflour for future delivery may be quoted. The prices for futures of raw sugar may also be quoted at Magdeburg and for rapeseed on the [illegible] exchange.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA STORY OF ALLIANCE

They are to Fight for Each Other in Case of Necessity

EUROPE PRACTICALLY DEFIED

How the Visit of the Czar to France Was Taken—No Hostility Shown to Great Britain

Paris, Oct. 28.—The Liberte this evening gives prominence to a lengthy interview with M. Jules Hansen, an honorary Conseiller d'Ambassade, concerning the Franco-Russian alliance. The statements made by M. Hansen are worthy of attention, because he is well known as being closely connected with official circles, while in years gone by he was intrusted by the French Government with certain missions which paved the way for the conclusion of the Dual Alliance. In 1897 M. Hansen also published a pamphlet concerning the origin of the alliance, which attracted a good deal of notice at the time. In reply to a representative of the Liberte, M. Hansen said he believed that, in a general way, the information concerning the alliance published by the Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung was correct. The treaty was of a regular character, like the Austro-German Treaty of Alliance. It was stipulated that, in the event of one of the two States being attacked by a power, whether Germany, Great Britain, or any other, the other contracting party should come to its help with all its resources and military or other forces, and that one of the two allies could not make peace with the aggressor without a previous understanding between both. Contrary to what was adopted in the Triple Alliance, no term of years was stipulated for its duration, or the duration of the military convention, both of which were for an indefinite period. It was erroneous to say that this military convention was signed previous to the alliance, and that by the latter it had lost its importance. The treaty of alliance was signed by M. de Mohrenheim and M. Ribot, and the military convention in 1894, by M. de Freycinet, who, during the five years he was Minister of War, worked unceasingly in its favor. It was a document of the highest importance, and mapped

Dealing with the financial side of the allies under all circumstances.

Dealing with the financial side of the alliance, M. Hansen said that when it was concluded, it was evident that Russia wished to free herself from German tutelage, both in a financial as well as a political point of view, and that, therefore, conversations took place with regard to the loans she would have to contract on the Paris market. Russia required money for her military organization and armament, and to extend her railway systems—in order to open up her Asiatic possessions, and so derive benefits from their immense agricultural and mineral wealth. For these reasons it was agreed that Russia could contract on the Paris market a loan of [illegible] francs, to be realized in three or four series. A first loan of 450,000,000 was contracted, and M. Hansen says that to his knowledge [illegible] spent. It is improbable that the [illegible] series will be realized before [illegible] year.

M. Hansen denies that any additional clauses or codicils were added to the treaty during the stay of the Czar and the President of the Republic at Compiegne. The attitude to be adopted by the two nations in view of certain [illegible] was [illegible] and agreed upon, but at each time such a discussion took place minutes were drawn up and countersigned by each party, it would be a proof that the two allies had only moderate confidence in one another. The conferences at Compiegne turned chiefly upon Eastern and Far Eastern [illegible]. The [illegible] question [illegible] a [illegible] question.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Down in Mississippi a preacher who was somewhat extravagantly eulogizing a dead parishioner in a funeral sermon, was made the target for a disgusted man whose knowledge of the departed's weaknesses was fortunately better than his marksmanship, else the preacher would have paid dearly for his post-mortem flattery. Shooting at sight is a summary and severe penalty, but there are brands of gilt-edged eulogy that nothing less fits. Not even the touch of death can metamorphose the deeds of a villian into those of a saint.

There's a big row on over in the United States because President Roosevelt sat at table in the White House with Rev. Booker T. Washington as a guest. Mr. Washington a few years ago dined with Queen Victoria in Windsor Castle, and the British people did not have a fit. Why should they?

• • • • •

Now we are told that Buller was dismissed "solely because of his speech at the King's Royal Rifles' dinner." If so Britain is ruled by very small-minded men. But we don't credit the story. The speech merely furnished his enemies with an excuse.

• • • • •

Mr. Roosevelt will not interfere in the South African struggle. Responsibility has done much to steady the President; and besides there's that Philippine nuisance to be abated. Kruger must take his spoilt fish to another market.

• • • • •

Buffalo has a "Don't Kick" Club whose motto is: "Better say nothing than speak ill of your fellow man." It is said to have about 7,000 members. If it lives up to its motto it is to be hoped it will spread and prosper.

Toronto has suppressed a disgusting fake entertainment consisting of the death cries of a negro who was burned at the stake, reproduced by phonograph. There's no room for such a show in Canada.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I lay a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that air on him to bak up his craw with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. H. Milliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 95 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallen, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. M. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bustard thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Ingle, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he had better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Henly says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Shephard, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above and a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

GET UP!

That's the morning call of Chanticleer. It's a welcome cry to a well man. But to a man whose sleep seems to have been only an unrefreshing stupor; who wakes with burning eyes, throbbing head, and a bad taste in the mouth, it means only a new day's misery.

In such a physical condition health is most surely and swiftly restored by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, and it cures through the stomach diseases of liver, lungs, kidneys, etc., which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands, and every organ is benefited by the resulting increase of rich, pure blood.

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol and is entirely free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics.

"Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy have been of great benefit to me," writes (Prof.) Pleasant A. Oliver, of Viola, Fulton Co., Ark. "Before I used the above mentioned remedies my sleep was not sound; digestion bad; a continual feeling of misery. I now feel like a new man. Any one in need of medical treatment for nasal catarrh could do no better than to take treatment of Dr. R. V. Pierce. I know his medicines are all right in this class of diseases."

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, cloth binding, sent free by the author, on receipt of 50 one-cent stamps, to pay expense of customs and mailing only. In paper covers 31 one-cent stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

MAKES PEACE WITH KAISER

Caracas, Venezuela, Oct. 28. — The Venezuelan government and the German legation have satisfactory arranged the difficulty arising from the affray between German sailors and the police of Porto Cabello on Oct. 6 last.

The settlement was arrived at in the following manner: The Venezuelan government officially communicated to the German minister the information that the two individuals concerned in the attack on the German sailors had been arrested and would be tried. The German legation, therefore, notified the Venezuelan government that it would consider the incident closed while awaiting official notification of the punishment of the offenders.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The navy department has received a mail report from Captain Perry, commander of the battle-ship Iowa, which is now watching over American interests at Panama, stating that affairs on the isthmus continue quiet and that there has been no material change in the situation.

Captain Perry's report was accompanied by a report from Commander McCrea of the Machias, lying on the other side of the isthmus. The commander says that there are no material changes in the condition of affairs in Colon, though one hears of "wars and rumors of war" at various points all over the republic of Columbia.

From reliable sources he learns that the liberal leader, Diaz, feeling much encouraged over the reported successes of his party at Bocas Del Toro, and the well-known discontent existing among the government troops on the isthmus due to their having received no pay for five weeks, has issued a proclamation calling upon all loyal Colombians to join him near Panama, where he has plenty of arms and ammunition for everybody.

TOTOL.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

"My Totol is so fond of asparagus," said Madame Delery. "I take the stalks and I boil them in salted water and I put butter on th[em]—oh, I can't tell you how much asparagus my Totol eats when I fix it for him that way."

She did not notice the suppressed smiles on the faces of the merry Prescott girls, who were her auditors. Totol was her only child and to her he was an all-absorbing topic. The Prescott girls knew just how Totol wanted his shirts "done up," how many lumps of sugar he took in his afternoon dinner coffee, how many minutes his eggs had to be boiled and so forth and so forth.

"If Totol ever becomes famous I am in a position to write his biography," said Mary Prescott after Madame Delery had gone home.

"And I can illustrate it," added Helen, who had a talent for caricature—and forthwith she produced a sketch of Totol seated before a huge dish of asparagus.

"But you forget," suggested mischievous Georgina, "that all this inside information may be useful to Marian some day."

"Such jokes are in wretched taste," cried Marian, blushing furiously. "You know how I dislike them."

Good Madame Delery had not the slightest idea that she was making her idol ridiculous. Artlessly she supposed that he must be as interesting to the rest of the world as to her. She was a transplanted Creole, for business reasons made it more convenient for her son to live in the "up town," American part of New Orleans. Her next door neighbors were the Prescotts, and with four pretty girls in one house and a young man in the other it would have been strange if love had not stolen into the atmosphere. The Prescotts like Madame Delery sincerely, they appreciated the genuine goodness with which she had "mothered" them on more than one occasion—for they were motherless girls. They would not have wounded her in the presence of a stranger, but they frequently laughed among themselves at her harmless foibles.

Mother's darlings are often sandy-haired, weak-eyed, dull-witted youths; but Anatole—to give him his right name—was well-built and handsome, with white teeth, a silky, black moustache and eloquent, brown eyes. Like most Creoles, he had a talent for music, but this did not prevent him from being a good man of business. In short, he was just the sort of a young man to figure as the hero of a girl's dream. Should not Marian Prescott have thanked heaven for sending such a suitor across her path? But Mme. Delery had unwittingly placed Anatole in a ridiculous light before these gay girls, and it is not easy to fall in love with a man one has laughed at. Still, in secret and unacknowledged even to herself, Marian's heart inclined toward Anatole, but she feared the gibes of her sisters; so she laughed louder than any of them at Mme. Delery's absurd anecdotes about her son. The others had really no intention of turning Marian against Anatole; in fact, they expected that the two would marry some day; but they loved to tease and had never learned the wisdom of bridling their tongues.

Anatole had a suspicion that Mme. Delery made the Prescott girls laugh at him, but he was too good a son to hurt his mother's feelings by letting her know this and he did not even ask her to drop his foolish petname.

"Poor, dear maman!" he reflected, "it is just because she loves me so much."

But this did not heal the hurt of being flouted by Marian. She was the most attractive of the four sisters, though not the prettiest; but Anatole thought her so and considered that, to make her face perfect, there was only needed a kindly light beaming upon him out of her dear long-lashed eyes of blue.

At first she and Anatole had often sung together, and her contralto voice accorded well with his pleasant tenor in singing those charming songs in which the modern music of France is rich.

"Go on, my children, go on," Mme. Delery would say, nodding her head to the music. "I renew my youth in listening to you."

But of late Marian had always some excuse; she was hoarse, or the piano was out of tune, or she was not in the mood for music.

This did not prevent her from playing accompaniments for Haswell Peters, whose musical taste inclined toward popular ditties. As it was spring and the windows were open, the Delerys had the benefit of hearing his loud, untrained voice.

"But, mon Dieu, that young man does not sing—he brays," cried Mme. Delery. "Poor Marianne's ears must suffer."

"Oh, no doubt she likes it," replied Anatole, with a touch of bitterness.

"Of course she does not enjoy it," said Mme. Delery. "How could she? But a well brought-up young girl cannot say to a visitor, 'Sir, pray be silent. Your voice resembles that of a donkey.'"

Anatole hoped that this might be the state of Marian's feelings, but she certainly had every appearance of encouraging Haswell Peters' attentions. He was a florid, thick-set young man, with a loud voice, a boastful manner and an inexhaustible supply of self-esteem. After his sallies of borrowed wit he always laughed uproariously. It was observed that Marian was always kinder to Mr. Peters when Anatole was present as a spectator. In short, Marian was suffering from an acute attack of perversity during which a girl sometimes thrusts from her the love which would make the happiness of her life.

Anatole, who might by rights have been conceited, was a modest young fellow, and, thinking that his attentions had become distasteful to Marian, he ceased them altogether. Through a desire to pique him she became doubly gracious to the complacent Mr. Peters, who found no difficulty in believing that a charming girl might be in love with him. But Marian's spirits became very variable and Helen assured her, with more sincerity than politeness, that she was "getting worse than a prickly pear."

Thus matters stood when spring glided into summer. The delicate blossoms of the earlier months had given place to those better fitted to endure the heat. Crape myrtle, that hot weather flower, nodded ready in old-fashioned gardens, and the penetrating odor of fringed honeysuckle filled the humid air of dusk. Those are the nights when the [illegible] of lake walks become [illegible] and all who can spend their evenings out of doors. Each crowded street car bore testimony to the fact that the city's population longed for the freshness of the open air.

It was on such a warm evening that Marian, with Mr. Peters, accompanied by her sisters, who duly escorted, set out for one of the lakeside resorts. Soon they found themselves crossing the bridge to join the vast crowd scattered about the pretty pleasure grounds. Family groups were sitting around refreshment tables or in the seats that faced the stage; but the lovers—and their name was legion—had wandered into the lanes or along less frequented paths, or out upon the pier where the tender shining of the moon was not eclipsed by the brilliancy of electric lights. It was an ideal opening; the soft breeze blew steadily, and the salt water splashed with a cool sound around the pier.

But Marian was in low spirits; her smiles were forced and she could not summon up a laugh at Mr. Peters' jests. They had gone out toward the pier, while the rest of the party lingered to listen to the band.

Mr. Peters seemed to feel the sentimental influence of the scene. As Marian's hand rested lightly upon his coat sleeve he squeezed it with his arm. After a moment's silence he cleared his throat pompously, and began, "Miss Marian, has it ever occurred to you that I am a man calculated to——"

But what he calculated to say Marian never discovered, for just then there was a startling cry of "mad dog!" A wild stampede began; chairs and tables were upset, and the throng surged confusedly hither and thither in their haste to escape this sudden danger.

Terrified like the others, Marian ran toward a pavilion, but when she turned to Mr. Peters—alas! he had vanished. She caught a glimpse of him galloping toward a pavilion, but when she turned once.

But she was not deserted. Anatole, who had been watching her wistfully from afar, now hastened to her rescue.

"Ah, Totol!" she cried, calling him by his derided pet name, in her agitation. "I am all alone, and I am so frightened."

"No, you are not alone," replied Anatole, reassuringly, "I am here to protect you. See, I will make a barricade for you of these tables and chairs. Great heavens! How could that fellow run off and leave you?"

"Never mind him. I am delighted to be relieved of his burdensome society," said Marian.

"Truly, Marian?" asked Anatole. "I have been fearing for a long time that you considered me the burdensome one, not Mr. Peters."

A blush rose warmly to Marian's cheeks and the long lashes veiled those blue eyes that Anatole loved so well.

"That was only because you were blind to the truth," she said, in a very low voice.

Still, it was not so low that Anatole did not hear what she said, and there, behind the barricade of tables and chairs they spent a blissful half hour of explanations and reassurances. In truth, they were so oblivious to the rest of the world that they did not discover the mad dog excitement had been a false alarm until the others of the party—minus Mr. Peters—found them in their retreat, and jeeringly informed them of the fact.

BAND OF BRIGANDS HAVE BEEN DISBANDED

New York, Oct. 28.— Three reports, each corroborative of the others, have been received from widely different sources concerning the movements of the brigands who hold Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka captive, according to the Sofia, Bulgaria, correspondent of The World. One is that the [illegible] consisted of eighteen [illegible] been dissolved in the mountains near Jeltepe, and that fifteen of the members have returned to their homes. The remaining three members are said to have been made custodians of the prisoners, and it is claimed that they are holding them in the wooded recesses of Jeltepe, which is in Turkish territory, about twenty miles into the mountains from the Bulgarian frontier. Another version of the situation is that because of the early and heavy fall of snow in the mountains the brigands with their prisoners have come down from the mountains and are now located near Nevrekop, which is in the foothills of the mountains in which Jeltepe is located. The third comes from Constantinople and says that communication has been opened with the brigands from a point in Turkish territory.

STATEMENT AT SOFIA.

Minister of Interior Saraboff, of Bulgaria, has made the following statement to the Sofia, Bulgaria, correspondent of The Journal and Advertiser concerning the case of Miss Stone: "If I could send my troops across the Turkish border I would find Miss Stone within two days. I have just received word from the commander of our troops that Miss Stone is not in Bulgarian territory. We have three military cordons moving toward the frontier, and on the frontier itself I have placed a military guard. If the brigands were on our territory the cordons would certainly find them. Our troops and those of Turkey are now searching in the Perin mountains, where, unlike Bulgaria proper, there are no villages and only a few scattered houses in the mountains. If my troops find the brigands we shall make short work of them."

CHINA RICH IN COAL.

The Gold Deposits, However, Are of Little Value.

San Francisco, Oct. 28.—Herbert C. Hoover, a graduate of Stanford, '95, and now a mining expert in China for Bewick, Moreing & Co., of London, at a salary of [illegible] a year, has just arrived here from the Orient. In a talk about mining in China, he said:

"The popular idea that there are rich gold mines in Manchuria is all wrong. On behalf of a board of mines of the Chinese Government, I explored Chi-li, Shantung, and Honan provinces, and found that all the ledges had been worked down to the water level. The Chinese will work $3 ore, as they are satisfied with wages that no American would work for. The whole country is dotted with dumps from mines which Chinese farmers have been working for a thousand years in intervals of their farm labor.

"But China is rich in coal, and the Chinese Engineering and Mining Company, an English concern, with a capital of [illegible], has just taken over Li Hung Chang's old coal field on the Gulf of Chili, a field thirty miles long by twelve miles wide. The company will make coke, and will bring that and coal by a line of twelve steamers to Frisco, and carry back cheap freights.

"They can lay down coke in Frisco, at $6 a ton.

"China has greater coal measures than any other country, both anthracite and bituminous, and her coal is worth far more than all her other minerals."

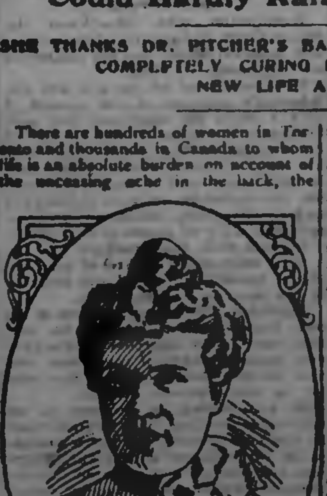
A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACHACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and sideaches.



Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

Miss Annas Defoe, a young lady whose address is 355 King street west, Toronto, recently wrote as follows:

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appetite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

SUGAR BEET CONTRACT

Four Companies Submit Terms to Ontario Government for Ratification

The indications are that next year the Ontario sugar beet industry will make a start worthy of the importance of the crop. This year, as last season, most of the product will be shipped to Michigan for use in the Michigan factories, but Mr. C. C. James, the Deputy Minister of Agriculture has already received copies of the contracts which four sugar beet companies in Western Ontario intend to use in securing the crop of next season. These contracts have to be submitted to the government for approval before the terms can be enforced. Though none of the companies have as yet erected their factories it is more than likely that they will be completed next summer and the machinery installed in time to handle the crops for which their contracts will call.

No. 3 Company

The members of No. 3 Company, 57th Regiment, are requested to return their clothing and accoutrements to the Armouries this evening, at 8 o'clock sharp. By Order.

A Quiet Wedding

The residence of Mr. Charles James, Sherbrooke street, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Saturday evening, when his daughter, Miss Florence Emma, was married to William Richard Evans. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. L. Armitage, the bride being assisted by Miss Emilie Rush and the groom by Mr. Richard Gillies.

No Action to be Taken

Mr. H. P. Kennedy was notified by Chief Rozzel on Saturday that he must cease selling meat on the market. It appears that Mr. Kennedy, whose business is growing very rapidly, has attended his retail store to the rear of the market building, and was selling meat in smaller quantities than by the quarter—when Mr. Rozzel asked Mr. Kennedy to discontinue selling, he flatly refused to do so. An investigation of the facts shows that Mr. Kennedy's out-of-door establishment was entirely on his own premises, and he was not therefore breaking the provisions of the town meat bylaw. No action will therefore be taken.

The November Canadian Magazine

The opening feature of the November Canadian Magazine is a profusely illustrated account of the Duke's Tour across the continent. Nor is this account an ordinary one. It is entirely different from anything which has appeared in any of the newspapers and is full of historical references and quaint imaginings. The illustrations are reproductions of photographs of the chief events connected with the Royal Reception at Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa. The reproductions are perfectly done.

The second feature of the number is a series of three sporting events. Capt. E. K. Barnes reviews the Rowing Season; John R. Hall, Secretary of the Canadian Cricket Association, reviews the Season's Cricket; while Mr. F. J. Campbell, Secretary of the Lake Yacht Racing Association, writes of the various Yachting events of the season. There are other very interesting articles in the issue, including one on "City Government in Canada," by Dr. S. Morley Wickett, Ph. D. Short stories, the usual departments, and superb illustrations make up what is a most interesting and valuable issue of the National periodical.

THINKS HER CURE A MIRACLE.

So Mrs. Baxter and Her Husband in Gratitude Have Become Catholics.

New York, Oct. 29.—A relic of St. Paul the Apostle has been on exhibition for several days at St. Jerome's Roman Catholic Church, 138th street and Alexander avenue, and Mrs. Thomas Baxter, of 710 East 143rd street is so firmly of the belief that she has been restored to health through its instrumentality that she has become a Catholic for the second time, and her husband has become a convert to the same faith. The Baxters were married twenty-two years ago. Mr. Baxter's relatives objected to the marriage because Mrs. Baxter was a Catholic. Baxter was a Baptist. Rather than have trouble Mrs. Baxter joined the Baptist Church. The couple have now three children.

Mrs. Baxter has been suffering from kidney disease for months. She heard of several persons who were said to have been helped by visiting the relic at St. Jerome's Church and she decided to try it herself. She went to the church a week ago, and the next day she felt better, and has continued to improve ever since. Mrs. Baxter felt so thankful that she rejoined the Catholic Church. Her husband resolved to join it too, and their children are receiving instructions in the faith preparatory to entering the church.

The Catholic Church does not recognize marriages made in the Protestant faith, so the couple were married last Wednesday night by one of the priests attached to St. Jerome's Church.

Protestant Home

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Protestant Home will be held this afternoon, Oct. 29th, at half-past three. A cordial invitation is extended to all interested in the work.

Kills Mother By Accident

Redbud, Ill., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Antone Stoeckel, jr., wife of a prominent farmer living near here, was accidentally killed to-day by her seven-year-old daughter. Stoeckel had just returned from a hunting trip and gave the loaded gun to his son to take into the house. The boy handed the weapon to a younger sister. A few seconds later a shot was heard and Mrs. Stoeckel was found dead.

Jilted Bride Seeks Death.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 28.—Lizzie Arnold attempted to commit suicide in a dramatic manner this afternoon. She was to have been married this morning to James Smith, but he did not appear. Later she found him in the company of another woman. After writing a pathetic note to her mother, she took a quantity of arsenic, but physicians saved her life. The note contained the statement that she "died for love of Jim." She will probably recover.

Famine Grows in China

Shanghai, Oct. 29.—According to reliable reports received by the British consul general, Mr. Warren, 600,000 persons in the province of An-Hui and 300,000 in the province of Kiang-Su are on the verge of starvation and the famine is spreading. The available funds are insignificant. The Chinese have contributed $37,500 and the foreigners $7,500. A committee of the consuls is being formed to aid the sufferers.

Measuring Party.

A measuring party will be held at the Ashburnham Town Hall on Friday evening, November 15th. Don't miss it.

ANIMAL SEEMS L'KE A MAN.

Anatomy of Orang-Outang of Interest to Students of Nature.

Denver, Col., Oct. 29.—"It would take an expert to tell that these organs were not a man's," said Dr. C. P. Conway, after an autopsy on the body of "Joe, the wild man of Borneo," a particularly fine specimen of orang-outang which died in Denver, Col., Oct. 15. Joe was the only genuine orang-outang ever brought to so high an altitude as that of Colorado, and his owner blames the climate for the death of his pet.

Joe was captured in the low, swampy forests on the southern coast of Borneo last summer, brought by R. L. Edwards to Kuching and brought to this country. Mr. Edwards started with him to San Francisco, exhibiting him on the way. In Denver Joe was taken sick with inflammation of the bowels and a cerebral hemorrhage ended his life. After the autopsy the body was sold to the state museum of natural history and is being mounted by a taxidermist. Before the skull was removed to be exhibited in the museum several plaster casts of the face were taken and will be shown with the skull. The heart and brain Mr. Edwards himself kept to send to Professor Burt Wilder of Cornell university, formerly of Princeton, who makes a specialty of the study of apes and is preparing a work in the nature of a development of the Darwinian theory.

"For Professor Wilder's purposes the orang-outang is particularly useful, and as the cerebrum is greatly convoluted and approaches most nearly to that of man," said Dr McGraw, who assisted Dr. Conway in making the autopsy. "The anatomical and pathological conditions in this ape are almost identical with those in man. There was the vermiform appendix, the liver and kidneys were placed as they are in a human being and the large and small colon were found. The heart and brain particularly resembled those of a man. The lungs, however, have only one lobe on each side instead of three on the right side and two on the left, and the intestinal tract was much shorter than in man, but otherwise there was no radical difference. The most remarkable feature about the orang, however, was that a perfect nail grew on its right big toe. This seems to support the theory held for many years that orangs once had toenails, but lost them through generations of disuse."

His owner, Mr. Edwards, says that the orang was a most affectionate creature, playful and never dangerous. Joe would climb into his master's lap and hug him like a child with the most exaggerated demonstrations of affection. The orang had been taught, like Mr. Crowley of Central Park, to eat with knife and fork, to wear a high hat and walk on its hind legs and lift the hat with absurd gravity.

INSURGENTS BURN A TOWN.

Rebels Destroy a Philippine City Despite Attack of Americans.

Manila, Oct. 29.—The insurgents yesterday attacked San Jose, province of Batangas, which was garrisoned by a detachment of the Twenty-first infantry under Lieutenant Patrick A. Connolly. The Americans fought hard, but were unable to prevent the burning of the town.

General Sumner reports a fight which took place at daybreak Wednesday at Bayuan, province of Batangas, between companies D and I of the First Cavalry and a band of insurgents. There was desultory firing the whole afternoon, when the insurgents were driven into the mountains. The cavalrymen destroyed the insurgent barracks, storehouse, eight thousand pounds of rice and many uniforms and blankets.

The people of the island of Samar have been notified to concentrate in the towns on pain of being considered public enemies and outlaws and treated accordingly. Intense feeling exists among the troops in Samar. If they can meet the enemy in the open there will be great retaliation. Many of them have seen and the others have heard of the barbarous treatment to which the dead American soldiers were subjected by the Filipinos recently.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Having reached a decision to check at least temporarily the natural reaction which is going on in the United States army in the Philippines as a consequence of the expiration of terms of enlistment Secretary Root has before him details of a plan for replacing these men from the forces now in the United States.

To take the place of returning troops the department will send out the Eleventh, Twelfth and Fifteenth cavalry and the Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth infantry. The cavalry organizations will be brought to the maximum strength by recruitment before they go out, while the infantry regiments will be swelled to the exceptional figure of 1,500 men each. In addition at least 1,000 men will be recruited and sent out in battalion organizations for attachment to depleted regiments in the Philippines.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 29.—The recruiting station to-day received a general order issued by the war department to recruiting officers to enlist for infantry and cavalry desirable white applicants and hurry forward to the Presidio. This is taken to mean that the department is to send today new troops to the Philippines.

UNITED STATES IN LEAD

That Country Excels World in Production of Precious Metals

Washington, Oct. 29.—Director Roberts of the mint has prepared a statement showing the production of the precious metals for the calendar year of 1900. It shows that the production of gold in the world that year was 12,457,387 ounces of the value of $257,514,700, a loss in value of $49,970,300 from 1899. The loss was mainly in the Transvaal field, South Africa, and due to the war. The production of South Africa in 1899 was of the value of $73,227,100 and in 1900 $9,671,000. The principal gains were $8,120,000 in the United States and $4,000,000 in Canada. The United States again heads the list. In the United States the principal gains were by Alaska, Arizona, Colorado and Utah.

The silver output of the world amounted to 174,754,796 fine ounces, the largest ever known. It exceeds the product of 1899 by 11,579,882 ounces. The United States again leads all other producers, with a slight advance over Mexico. There was an important advance in the price of silver during the year, the price ranging from 59.1 cents per ounce in January to 64.3 cents in the last month of the year.

The chief factor in the rise was the purchases for the account of the government of India. Silver rupees still constitute the common currency of India, and to supply the demand the government gives rupees in exchange for gold sovereigns at the rate of 15 rupees to the sovereign. Under this policy the government reports an outlay for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1901, of £8,833,000, which at the average value of the year would make the purchases amount to nearly 80,000,000 ounces. This would seem to restore India to somewhere near her old position as a customer for silver.

HOW HE WHIPPED CERVERA

Admiral Schley Tells the Story, Clearing Up Important Points.

Washington, Oct. 29.—When the Schley Court of Inquiry adjourned today, Admiral Schley had not completed his testimony in chief.

The chief event of the day was the Admiral's relation of the events of July 3, when the American fleet sent Cervera's squadron to the bottom of the sea or to the beach. He told his story of this historical occurrence in plain words and in unaffected style, but the narrative was straightforward and to the point, indicating close familiarity with all phases of that event.

He said that the Brooklyn had for a time sustained the fire of all four of the Spanish ships and also the fire of the Spanish land batteries.

Explaining the historical turn of his own flagship, the Brooklyn, he said that she had not approached to within less than 600 yards of the Texas, and that he never had considered that vessel in the slightest danger.

He also stated, in response to an interrogation from Mr. Rayner, that he had never during the battle engaged in any colloquy with Lieut. Hodgson, and that he had not used the expression attributed to him by Hodgson. This refers to the alleged colloquy in which the Admiral is charged with having said: "Damn the Texas!"

Admiral Schley also gave the details of the reconnaissance of May 31, when the Spanish ship Cristobal Colon was bombarded. In this connection he denied the statements attributed to him by Commander Potts of the battleship Massachusetts.

PLEADS FOR SLUM WOMEN

Lady Talbot Wants Wealthy to Rescue London's Degenerate.

London, Oct. 29.—Lady Edmund Talbot issues a public announcement this morning to the effect that only London's women of wealth and culture can save the metropolis from the shame of a large and constantly growing horde of brutal women of the female sex. Persons of this sort have recently overrun some of the western districts, fighting, molesting purses, picking pockets and otherwise imitating the conduct of their brother hooligans. Investigation shows that many of these women can neither read nor write and are wholly without the pale of civilizing influences. Wealthy and refined women must come to the rescue. Night schools must be established, presided over by these gentle, magnetic persons who alone can win the wayward daughters of the streets. The latter despise the ordinary schools and utterly shun them.

Boers Will Hold Out Until the End Says Steyn in a Letter to Kitchener

THE REBELS ARE IN GRNERAL FRENCH'S GRIP

Affairs in Cape Colony Considerably Improved—Col. Gordon's Condition—De Wet Heard From

Manchester, Oct. 29.—The Guardian has published a letter received by Lord Kitchener from former President H. P. Steyn, of the Orange Free State. Regarding the feeling of the people of the Orange Free State Mr. Steyn says: "Order and peace are maintained by us and not by your Excellency. If your Excellency will permit me, your Excellency's jurisdiction extends only as far as your Excellency's cannon can reach. If it is a crime to fight in self-defence, and if such a crime must be punished, then I think the Majesty's Government ought to be satisfied with the destruction of the country, the chastisement of women and children, and the general misery which have been caused by the war."

The writer further states that the great majority of the Boers are still under arms and intend to remain so until the end of hostilities—or of their lives. His expressed opinion is that Kitchener can do more towards ending the war than any other one man. In conclusion he asks for justice, not magnanimity.

General Botha Nearly Captured by Remington

Pretoria, Oct. 30—Commandant General Botha's recent escape from the British Columns pursuing him was a close affair. Major Remington marched on the Commander-in-Chief's quarters at night, only to find that Botha had got off with a few hundred yards start, leaving his hat, revolver and papers behind. Ten prisoners, including Commandant Hans Botha and former Landdrost Schutte, were captured.

AFFAIRS IN CAPE COLONY

Matjesfontein, Cape Colony, Oct 29.—Undoubtedly the work of the British columns in this colony is gradually but surely stamping out the rebellion which but a few weeks ago sputtered and blazed with more or less promise of disastrous effect on the British cause in many parts of the colony.

Myberg and Fouche with their commandos have been driven to the north-eastern district of the Keiroo desert, where supplies are particularly scarce and the drinking water impregnated with disease germs. Colonel Scobell is following Commandant Smuts very closely, and the latter, recognizing the seriousness of his position, has deserted his main commando, and with one hundred men has gone northward. Kritzinger has not only been driven out of the colony, but has been successfully prevented from returning.

Five hundred men have recently appeared in the Great Berg Valley, where up to date there has been no fighting. They are largely men without arms or ammunition, and appear desirous of looting but not fighting.

The enemy have penetrated to Hopefield and Saldanha Bay, seizing some horses and gaining a few score recruits, whose loyalty was unable to stand the strain of the presence of the commando. It is impossible at present to detail impending operations, but Malmesbury, Mooresburg, and other towns in the district are fortified and impregnable.

LAAGER TAKEN.

London, Oct. 29.—Kitchener reports that Colonel Benson has surprised a small laager at Trichardsfontein and captured 27 men. Grobelaar and Erasmus attacked the rear of Benson's column near Bethel, but were beaten off without loss.

Between Oct. 17 and Oct. 23, Col. Dawkins, operating west of Nylstroom, captured two laagers and 76 prisoners, including three field cornets.

GORDON'S ILLNESS.

Kingston, Oct. 29.—A medical report recently received here regarding the condition of Col. Gordon, the Canadian special service officer in South Africa, states that the afflicted officer will remain another month in Wynberg hospital before he will be ready to start for home.

Strong Article on the Question of Britain's Resources

THE DRAG OF THE AFRICAN WAR

It is Said That a Supreme Effort Will Now be Made to Settle the Boers in South Africa.

London, Oct. 30.—The people are becoming impatient over the war in South Africa, and this, together with the desire of the King to have peace before the coronation, makes it imperative that something be done without delay.

The Post says that through the blunder of provincial officials, the British War Office secret leaked out. The notice had been sent to the militia, yeomanry, and volunteers of the United Kingdom that the Government contemplated the contingency of being obliged to call out all classes of the reserves, and ordered that they report to their headquarters immediately with a view to active service.

The disclosure, which could not have been kept from the public many days in the ordinary course of things, created a decided stir in the country and the people are wondering what is to happen next. In ordinary circumstances such a movement would not be considered save in view of such a menace as a threatened foreign invasion. On the surface of the European political situation nothing of that kind would appear to be imminent. Under certain conditions it is possible to conceive that France might take the aggressive; but that would happen only in the event of strong European backing such as Russia might give. But that backing would hardly be accorded unless the Triple Alliance were willing to assume the roll of uninterested spectators, and it is probably a fact that Germany would be unwilling to see France aggrandized at the expense of Great Britain. The attitude of Germany would be that of Austria and Italy, as the continental balance is at present adjusted.

What the levy en masse means, if it be seriously intended, doubtless is that the British Government has decided to make one great effort to end the South African war by crushing Boer resistance and Cape Colony rebellion by numbers. Only a few days ago Mr. St. John Brodrick, British Secretary for War, asserted that an hundred thousand men were in training at home for foreign service. It is possible that his figures may be open to criticism. He may have counted in the paper brigades and divisions which lack nothing but enlisted men to make them real. If the idea of the ministry is to send another regular army to Lord Kitchener's assistance, it is not likely that it could be fully organized from the regulars now in the United Kingdom. The militia, which legally forms part of it and is a reserve to the regular establishment, would be available for South Africa, while the yeomanry and volunteers could be utilized for home defence. Just how many officers and men could be found for either service is a moot question. Two hundred thousand are supposed to be in Africa. It may be doubted if half that number of regular troops are to-day in England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland. Perhaps, including the militia battalions, the War Office might secure fifty thousand for immediate foreign service. The chances are that some such movement is the real object in view.

The Boer war has dragged along until it has become a terror to the Government and people, sapping the financial strength of the Empire, destroying its political and military prestige abroad, to be no nearer an end than it was two years ago. Something evidently ought to be done, and perhaps what will be done or attempted is forecasted in we have been commenting.

CZOLGOSZ GOT NO CHANCE TO TALK

Wanted to Deal in Heroics in the Presence of a Lot of People

SHORT SHRIFT GIVEN HIM

Assassin of President McKinley Electrocuted at Auburn Prison To Day—Slept Soundly Last Night

Auburn, Oct. 29.—At 7.12.30 o'clock this morning Leon F. Czolgosz, murderer of President William McKinley was shocked to death by 1,700 volts of electricity. He went to the chair in exactly the same manner as have the majority of all the other murderers in this State, showing no particular sign of fear, but, in fact, doing what few of them have done, talking to the witnesses while he was being strapped in the chair.

Czolgosz slept so soundly that this morning the guard had to shake him at 5 o'clock to awaken him. After the death warrant was read Czolgosz asked to see the superintendent, and was told he would be down presently. Then the condemned man rolled over on his cot, apparently anxious to sleep again. At 5.15, however, the guard brought to him a pair of trousers with the left leg slit so as to allow the free application of the electrode, and an outing shirt. When dressed he lay down on the cot again, and in this attitude Superintendent Collins found him at 5.30.

WANTED TO DEAL IN HEROICS.

"I want to make a statement before you kill me," Czolgosz said. "I want to make it when there are a lot of people present."

"Well, you cannot," said the superintendent.

"Then I won't talk at all," said the prisoner, sullenly.

When brought to the death chamber, Czolgosz stumbled as he stepped over the threshold, and as the guards urged him forward toward the chair he stumbled again on the little rubber-covered platform upon which the chair rests. His head was erect, and with his shirt turned back at the neck, he looked quite boyish. He was intensely pale, and as he tried to throw his head back and erect, his chin quivered very perceptibly. As he was being seated he looked about at the assembled witnesses with quite a steady stare, and said:

"I killed the President because he was an enemy of the good people—of the working people."

His voice trembled slightly at first, but gained strength with each word. "I am not sorry for my crime," he said loudly, just as the guard pushed his head back on the rubber head-rest and drew the divisible strap across his forehead and chin. As the pressure on the straps tightened and bound the jaw slightly, he mumbled, "I'm awfully sorry I could not see my father."

NO TIME WASTED.

It was just exactly 7.11 o'clock when he crossed the threshold. But a minute had elapsed and he just had finished the last statement when the strapping was completed and the guards stepped back from the man. Warden Mead raised his hand, and at 7.12.30 Electrician Davis turned the switch that threw 1,700 volts of electricity into the living body. The rush of the immense current threw the body so hard against the straps that they creaked perceptibly. The hands clinched up suddenly and the whole attitude was one of extreme tenseness. For forty-five seconds the full current was kept on, and then reduced slowly until it was cut off entirely. Then it was turned on for two or three seconds and the body, which had collapsed as the current was reduced, stiffened up again against the straps. When it was turned off again Dr. Macdonald put his hand over the heart. He said he felt no pulsation, but suggested that the current be turned on for a few seconds again. Once more the body became rigid. At 7.15 the current was turned off for good.

From the time Czolgosz left his cell until the full penalty was paid, less than four minutes had elapsed.

The rule was also broken in a final effort to secure a confession as to whether others plotted with him or abetted him in the murder, but he stuck to his denial of any conspiracy, and declared that the story that he had his hand wrapped in a handkerchief was untrue.

"Why, they found the handkerchief you had it wrapped in," said the superintendent.

"That ain't so, sir," he answered earnestly. "I did not have no handkerchief; I just had the pistol in my pocket."

SPANNING THE OCEAN.

With Suit for Separation, Husband for Alienating Affection.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—The gossips in Toronto are just now paying special attention to the litigation between members of the Eaton family connection, one suit having been entered in London, England, and another in Toronto. About the year 1893 Miss Josephine Eaton was married to Mr. Thomas D. M. Burnside, formerly of Toronto, but now manager of the Pirie Wyatt Paper Mill Company, London, England, a very good position, which enabled Mr. Burnside to keep up a fine establishment and support his wife and family in comfort, if not in luxury. For some cause, which, rumor says, was neither adultery nor dissipation, Mrs. Burnside began proceedings in 1898 for separation from her husband and for possession of the children and of the house and furniture, and in April of the present year she applied to the Divorce and Probate Court thereof. A mass of evidence bearing upon this case has been taken in Toronto by commission, before M. T. Malone, copies of which have been forwarded to England.

Meanwhile, Mr. Burnside, who professes to have been quite unaware that he was filling the role of cruel husband and father, instructed his Toronto solicitors to enter suit against Timothy Eaton, Margaret Eaton, his wife, and Harry McGee, a director of the T. Eaton Company, for the alienation of Mrs. Josephine Burnside's affections from her husband, damages of $100,000 being demanded. The court records in Toronto show that this suit was entered on Sept. 3rd, 1901, and the first examination for discovery is about to take place, the formal trial of the case being fixed to come off in January next.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnside are both living in London, but "they never speak as they pass by," and the two children are in the custody of their mother, pending the decision in the divorce proceedings.

FRED LEE RICE MURDER TRIAL

Man Who is Accused of Shooting Constable Boyd is Unconcerned

STEWART SAYS RICE SHOT BOYD

Evidence of the Gallant Constable and His Cross Examination Took Up the Whole Morning Session.

Promptly at ten o'clock the Grand Jury filed in and took their seats in the jury box on the south side of the court room. Hugh McMath, the foreman, who is himself a Justice of the Peace, announced that a true bill had been found in the case of Fred Lee Rice, charged with murder.

"Are you ready to go on with this case?" said his Lordship.

"I appear for the prisoner, my Lord, and we are ready for trial," replied Mr. Robinette.

"Bring in the prisoner."

Sherrif Mowat beckoned to the constable on guard at the door leading to the private entrance to the sheriff's rooms, and everybody turned round to see the prisoner's entrance. After a few minutes' delay, which brought an anxious look to the Sheriff's face the door opened and Rice was brought in and escorted to the dock by Officers Severs and McElroy.

APPEARANCE OF RICE.

Rice was dressed with the same care and neatness with characterized him in the last trial. He was dressed in a black cutaway suit and wore a dark red tie. His face is quite as thin as it was at his last appearance in Court, and penitentiary life has added to the handsomeness of his feature. When the indictment of the grand jury was read, charging him with the murder of Constable William Boyd on the fourth day of June last, the prisoner stood up and listened, drumming his fingers on the dock railing as if to appear unaffected.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie, M.P., opened the case for the Crown by reviewing, in an eloquent, masterly style, the evidence which the Crown proposes to present. Mr. Guthrie is a tall, well built man of about thirty-five or forty years of age; he made an impression on the audience with his first few sentences. "It is as much my duty to aid in the acquittal of an innocent man as to relentlessly prosecute a guilty man," said he, and expressed himself convinced of the guilt of the accused. It was most regrettable, he argued, that in a country like this, boasting of its civilization and of its education, a crime of the grave magnitude of this should occur.

The first witness called for the Crown was Walter Stewart, County Constable. Stewart testified that, with Constables Boyd and Bogart, he took charge of the prisoner Rice and his companions, Jones and Rutledge, on the evening of the tragedy at the Court House, after the trial of the prisoners for the robbery of the Aurora postoffice. The prisoners were secured by two pairs of handcuffs, each pair connected by three links of three-quarters of an inch in diameter. They were driven from the Court House in a covered hack, the three prisoners sitting with their backs to the horses and himself and Boyd sitting opposite, with Constable Bogart on the box with the coachman. All was well until they reached the corner of Sumach and Gerrard streets, when the parcel containing the revolvers was thrown in by some person and a scramble ensued. Rice and Rutledge each secured a revolver and ordered the constables to throw up their hands. Boyd was immediately shot dead.

RICE FIRED THE SHOT.

"Who was it fired the shot that killed Boyd?" asked Mr. Guthrie.

"Rice did," answered the witness.

The witness continued the recital of the well-known story of the tragedy and the recapture of the prisoners in a quiet confident way. He told how the prisoners got out of the cab and made a dash towards the sidewalk and how he shot Jones from the door of the vehicle, and eventually secured the prisoners on the platform of the car with the assistance of Kohlmeyer, the motorman, and others.

STEWART CROSS-EXAMINED.

The cross-examination of the witness by Mr. Robinette, the prisoner's counsel, furnished the first definite clue to the line to be pursued by the defence. The witness admitted that even though the prisoner Jones, who died as a result of Stewart's bullet, was handcuffed to his fellow-prisoners he could raise his arms and use his hands quite freely. Although Stewart was positive that only one shot was fired inside the cab, he admitted that he did not look in the direction of Rice at the instant of the explosion.

"Did you attempt to draw your own revolver in the hack?" enquired Mr. Robinette.

JONES PASSED SOMETHING.

Re-examined by Mr. Guthrie, Stewart said that he had seen Jones pass something under the seat before the shooting, but in the excitement he did not see what it was. The Crown will try to show that this was the revolver.

Mr. Robinette called his Lordship's attention to the fact that Stewart had not mentioned this action of Jones at the inquest or preliminary investigations.

This ended the evidence of the Crown's chief witness and the court adjourned for lunch. The usual warning was given the jurymen that they would not be allowed to separate during the trial, and filed out, escorted by a half dozen constables. Rice was led out of the court room smiling and chatting pleasantly with the constable.

[illegible] English Killed in War

Washington, Oct. 29.—A Mr. Boissevain, editor of a paper in Amsterdam, has addressed an appeal to President Roosevelt begging him to mediate in favor of the Boers. There is not the least doubt that he would like to do so. The trouble is that one-handed mediation is an impossibility; both parties must agree to it in advance. There is such a thing as armed interference, which does not require anybody's consent; but the United States could hardly be expected to resort to that.

DICTATOR FOR SPAIN WEYLER PLANS COUP

The Spanish Minister of War Hints at Becoming Dictator.

HIS SPEECH WILL HAVE SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES

That Internal Troubles Will End in Civil War, is Generally Believed. Weyler the Foremost Man in the Country.

Madrid, Oct. 30.—Spain was roused from the Pyrenees to Gibraltar to-day by the report that General Weyler, the minister of war, intends to take advantage of the present turbulent political conditions and assume dictatorship.

During yesterday's sitting of the Spanish chamber of deputies, which proved sensational, Senor Romero Robledo plainly led the minister of war, General Weyler, to define his attitude and intentions. General Weyler declared that while the war in Cuba lasted his views were totally distinct from those of the liberal party, but that when the war was at an end the motive for separation disappeared and he saw nothing to prevent his attaching himself to a liberal government.

"I have always faithfully observed discipline," he continued, "and he who talks of dictatorship is the enemy of discipline. Our recent manoeuvers have proved that good feeling exist between the people and the army. As for dictatorship, no one thinks of such a thing. Dictators are the offspring of circumstances.

UPROAR FOLLOWS THE SPEECH.

"For myself I say this: I have never thought of being one, nor do I now. Nevertheless, if my aid were asked at a moment of gravity, I do not know how I should decide between my political and military duties, but I should always incline toward the latter.

Loud and prolonged uproar interrupted the minister of war and several of his ministerial colleagues were unable to restrain expressions of surprise at his words.

"I am a politician, and a liberal," he resumed, "but before all I am a soldier, and if it should become necessary I will defend our institutions and parliament."

Senor Romero rejoined: "I take note of the declarations of the minister of war on the subject of a dictatorship."

After attacking Senor Silvela, the conservative leader, for advocating an alliance between Spain and France, Senor Romero attacked General Weyler for inspecting the forts in the neighborhood of Gibraltar. He declared that these actions were "imprudent and dangerous as tending to create an apprehension in a powerful country which has always advocated Spanish predominance in Morocco."

El Pias asserts that Senor Sagasta will shortly resign the premiership owing to ill health.

General Weyler's speech largely occupies public attention in view of the possibility that he may become premier if Senor Sagasta, whose health is indifferent, should find it necessary to retire. El Imparcial remarks that "a dark cloud enshrouds General Weyler since the debate."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The conservative press is unanimous in the opinion that it is with this man that the Spanish people must reckon if they should decide to upset the existing government. He is brave, unscrupulous and ambitious. He probably cares as little for the monarchy as he cares for the nobility. [illegible] the throne at auction to the highest bidder. In any event he will have a weighty voice in deciding the fate of the nation.

Don Valeriano y Weyler Nicolau is [illegible] one of the most conspicuous figures in Spanish military history. [illegible]

[illegible] Weyler distinguished himself in the suppression of the rebellion. He was aggressive and relentless. [illegible]

Then came the Cuban rebellion. Campos was found inadequate for coping with the insurgents and the rebellion [illegible] Weyler was appointed commander in chief of the island and took up his headquarters in Havana. After eighteen months of ruthless warfare Weyler resigned, leaving the rebellion yet unsubdued.

For his services he was later appointed captain general in Madrid and gradually made his way to the Spanish cabinet.

ELEVEN PERSONS KILLED IN A RACE RIOT.

Lott's Restaurant Set on Fire by the Police Who Wished to Dislodge the Gang.

Columbia, Miss., Oct. 29.—The town of Columbia and its vicinity was thrown into great excitement from this day by several messengers from the vicinity of Balltown, La., about 25 miles below here, who brought the news that a race riot had been precipitated between the whites and blacks of that section by the shooting and burning of the negro Bill Morris, who criminally assaulted and almost murdered Mrs. John Bell a few days ago.

It seems a negro named Orea Lott was really at the bottom of the trouble. It was reported to the officers of Washington Parish that Lott, who lived near Booth, La., was running a restaurant without a license at a camp meeting at Live Oak Church, where a negro revival was in progress. The constable of the district gathered a posse and started to investigate. Lott was apprised of the approach in advance and was ready for trouble when it reached Live Oak Church. The posse was fired on near the church when from ambush the negroes opened fire from two or three directions. [illegible] men paid no attention to the firing, as it was from a distance. He said all he wanted to do was to capture Lott. When the restaurant where Lott had his goods was reached the posse was fired on by Lott and negroes concealed behind the counters. The firing became general between the posse and the restaurant crowd, and also between whites and negroes all over the ground.

At this juncture the posse deemed it necessary to fire the Lott restaurant in order to dislodge his gang.

Lott rushed out when the torch was applied and discharged a double-barrelled shot gun into the crowd of whites. Twenty-two buckshot took effect in the side of Joe Seale, one of the posse, from the effects of which he died. A negro who followed Lott shot a man named Elliott, one of the posse, through the stomach with a 38-calibre pistol. The negroes then tried to escape, but others of the posse had their guns levelled, and [illegible]. Lott was a shapeless mass of blood and brains before his body hit the ground.

During the fight a negro preacher came out of the church armed with a musket. He was shot and killed before he could use it.

After the smoke of battle had cleared away there were five dead negro men, three women, [illegible] who perished in Lott's restaurant, and one child who was with its mother in the restaurant perished with her. The fences, trees, church, houses and camps were thoroughly riddled with bullets. There must have been fully two thousand shots fired. It is rumored that since the fight one negro has been found dead in the swamps and several wounded have applied for assistance at neighboring houses. The negroes took to the woods like scared rabbits after and during the shooting, and it is said some may be found in the neighboring swamp. Sheriff Simmons, of Washington Parish, and posse, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff [illegible], of Marion County, and posse, were on the ground early this morning and assisted in burying the dead and taking care of the wounded.

SIR THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY

WONDERFUL CAREER OF THE C.P.R.'S POPULAR PRESIDENT.

Began as a Clerk in a Railway Office and is Now Head of the Greatest Road on Earth.

[Special to the Times.]

Milwaukee, Oct. 29.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, whose wonderful career has attracted so much attention, was born in this city. His parents, who live at [illegible] Twentieth street, are properly proud of the success of their son in life, for he was always a good boy and has to-day the same tender regard for his father and mother that distinguished him when a boy. This was evidenced by the telegram he sent to them when the honor was conferred upon him Sept. 19, in which he said: "One owes a great deal to a good father and mother."

"Tom" Shaughnessy, as he will always be called here by those who have known him from his birth, was born in the old third ward, which in those days was distinctly Irish, and his father was a policeman. He grew up with the other lads, running about barefoot and getting into just as much mischief as the rest of them. When old enough he was sent to St. Gall's school and the public school and afterwards attended a business college. His record may be told like this:

Tom Shaughnessy.
Third ward urchin.
Railway office lad.
Stock clerk, Milwaukee road.
Chief clerk supplies department.
General storekeeper of Milwaukee road.
Alderman of the city of Milwaukee.
Purchasing agent of Canadian Pacific.
General superintendent.
General manager.
President.
Knight Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy.

The story possesses a romantic interest which is seldom surpassed between the covers of books. Yet there is nothing especially romantic about Sir Thomas himself, and the details of his climb upward from the most humble and obscure beginning to such a height are merely a story of hard work—drudgery and slavery is what many would term it to-day.

He was born in 1853 and the early aptitude he showed for mastering the details of railway business were what gained him his rapid promotion, for his aptitude was coupled with an almost superhuman capacity for hard work. He was general storekeeper of the great St. Paul railroad at the age of 26. But before that time he had interested himself in politics, despite the devotion to business, and was elected an alderman when barely [illegible] years old. He went to the Canadian Pacific road when he was but [illegible] years of age.

He married a Miss Nagle of this city, who is now Lady Shaughnessy, and they have [illegible] children. One of Sir Thomas' brothers was drowned while bathing in the lake years ago.

DEATH OF PRINCE MURAT

PASSED AWAY AT THE CHATEAU DE CHAMBLY

A Man Who was a Blood Relative of the Great Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte of France

New York, Oct. 29.—Prince Joachim Murat, who died yesterday at the Chateau de Chambly, in the department of the Oise, was born at Bordentown, N. J., in 1834. The prince, who was also the possessor of the titles of Prince of Cleves and Prince of Berg, was the grandson of Murat, King of Naples, and of Queen Caroline, the sister of Napoleon I. His father, Prince Napoleon Lucien Charles, who died in 1878, spent many years in exile at Bordentown, N. J., with his uncle, Joseph Bonaparte, ex-King of Spain.

Prince Joachim accompanied his mother on her visit to France in 1848, when Louis Bonaparte, subsequently Emperor Napoleon, was elected as President of the French Republic.

The story of his father's marriage is a romantic one. Miss Caroline Fraser was the daughter of Major Fraser, a Scotchman and a soldier in the British army during the revolution, who, becoming enamoured of a beautiful young lady of Virginia, married her and went to South Carolina. The children of this marriage were three daughters and a son, all of whom went to Bordentown to live. One day Prince Lucien, who had secretly become acquainted with her, announced to his uncle, the former King Joseph, that he was about to marry a young lady of great beauty, but small fortune. The uncle declared that whoever married his scapegrace nephew would have to support him, a declaration which proved only too true.

There was an elopement by night to Trenton, where Prince Lucien married Miss Fraser, and returned with her to Bordentown. Joseph, true to his word, cut off his allowance. Mme. Murat had a few thousand dollars, and one of her sisters had $40,000, every penny of which they gave to Prince Lucien, who was not long in getting rid of it in gambling, betting on cockfights and horseracing, and drinking.

Mme. Murat was not the woman to sit quietly by and see her children, of whom there were now four, want for food and clothing, so she opened a school for young ladies, which was famous in its day and which for a while supported her husband prince and her family with some little degree of comfort. Mme. Murat loved the prince and felt that he had impoverished himself by incurring the ill will of his uncle in marrying her, so she divided her earnings equally between her family and her husband. The prince took his share with amiable condescension and soon got rid of it. Joseph offered to give Mme. Murat an annuity if she would close her school, but she declined his offer.

During their last days in Bordentown, the Murats were very poor. Sometimes they actually suffered for food, and neighbors used to aid them. At last brighter days came. Prince Lucien's cousin, Louis Napoleon, became President of France. Prince Lucien thought it might be worth while to visit Paris, so he set sail, leaving his wife and children behind him, for he had been able to borrow only enough money for one passage.

Fortune prospered, and he sent word for Mme. Murat to follow him with the children. This they did with the aid of borrowed money and dresses made by her kind friends. Then came the coup d'etat and the Empire. Never after were they in want. Mme. Murat lived to see the fall of Napoleon III, and when the republic was declared again Prince Lucien crossed to England where he died in 1878, at the age of seventy-five. His devoted wife survived him only one year, dying in Paris in 1879.

Prince Joachim was only eighteen years old when he went with his mother and her family to France.

He entered the army as a private soldier in April, 1852. In 1853 he was a sub-lieutenant of cavalry. In 1863, having risen to the rank of lieutenant colonel, he was attached to the staff of the Emperor Napoleon. He was a great favorite at the gay court of the Tuileries, and in 1866 became a colonel of a regiment of cavalry of the Hussars of the Guard, and distinguished himself on several occasions in Algeria. On the eve of the war, July 14, 1870, he received his appointment as general, of which, however, he was deprived in 1886, at the same time that the names of the Comte de Paris, the Dukes of Aumale, Nemours, Chartres, Alencon, Prince Jerome Napoleon and of the Prince de Joinville were stricken off the army list.

Prince Joachim was a well known sportsman, and a member of the leading Parisian clubs and the possessor of a very handsome estate.

One of his sisters is Princess Anna, Duchess de Mouchy wife of the heir to the ancient Dukedom of Noailles. The Murat family were at one time engaged in a lawsuit against the Italian Government for the recovery of a sum of $10,000,000, constituting the private and personal fortune of King Joachim Murat of Naples.

His son, Joachim Napoleon, Prince of Pontecorvo, who becomes the head of the family, was born at Groshois on February 28, 1856, and was married in Paris in May to Mlle. Ney.

THE MABEE PAMPHLET

When a party is reduced to getting up or taking up scandals in order to defeat its opponents it is a sign that that party is in sore need of fighting material. We never had much opinion of dirty work in either religious or civil life, and we feel that the man who unearthed this Mabee pamphlet fake has done his party no service. Further, we admire the spirit of Mr. Whitney, who declines to be held up by what he declares is an attempt at blackmail. The "revelation" is said to be the consequence of Mr. Whitney's refusal to avail himself of Mr. Mabee's services as a writer of campaign lies for public use. If such is the case we think more of Mr. Whitney than ever. His action appeals to our sense of fair and decent fighting, and will not lower him in the estimation of the country. Campaign literature made to suit the public taste, regardless of facts, is no new thing. It shows how barbarous and unclean our public life is and explains to a large extent the refusal of good men to come forward in the public service. No man—that is no decent man—relishes a coat of mud even if he does not deserve it, and the preference for clean clothes and a private life is easily intelligible. The approaching campaign bids fair to outrival its predecessors in mudflinging and in view of our claims to be a well-educated and religious people, it is time that this sort of thing was put a stop to. We all know how easy it is to make white look black—much easier than it is to make black look white, and this, we suppose, is the reason for the adoption of filthy tactics. It is only fair to say that the people do not desire these "revelations," because, as a rule, they do not believe them, and the man who seeks to blacken our public men is doing no service to the good name of the province.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA

Paris, Oct. 29.—The Liberte this evening gives prominence to a lengthy interview with M. Jules Hansen, an honorary Councillor d'Ambassade, concerning the Franco-Russian alliance. The statements made by M. Hansen are worthy of attention, because he is well known as being closely connected with official circles, while in years gone by he was intrusted by the French Government with certain missions which paved the way for the conclusion of the Dual Alliance. In 1897 M. Hansen also published a pamphlet concerning the origin of the alliance, which attracted a good deal of notice at the time. In reply to a representative of the Liberte, M. Hansen said he believed that, in a general way, the information concerning the alliance published by the Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung was correct. The treaty was of a regular character, like the Austro-German Treaty of Alliance. It was stipulated that, in the event of one of the two States being attacked by a power, whether Germany, Great Britain, or any other, the other contracting party should come to its help with all its resources and military or other forces, and that one of the two allies would not make peace with the aggressor without a previous understanding between both. Contrary to what was adopted in the Triple Alliance, no term of years was stipulated for its duration, or the duration of the military convention, both of which were for an indefinite period. It was erroneous to say that this military convention was signed previous to the alliance, and that by the latter it had lost its importance. The treaty of alliance was signed by M. de Mohrenheim and M. Ribot, and the military convention in 1894, by M. de Freycinet, who, during the five years he was Minister of War, worked unceasingly in its favor. It was a document of the highest importance, and mapped

Dealing with the financial side of the allies under all circumstances.

Dealing with the financial side of the alliance, M. Hansen said that when it was concluded it was evident that Russia wished to free herself from German tutelage, both in a financial as well as a political point of view, and that, therefore, conversations took place with regard to the loans she would have to contract on the Paris market. Russia required money for her military organization and armament, and to extend her railway system—in order to open up her Asiatic possessions, and to derive benefits from their immense agricultural and mineral wealth. For these reasons it was agreed that Russia could contract on the Paris market a loan of 1,500,000,000 francs, to be realized in three or four series. A first loan of 450,000,000 was contracted, and M. Hansen says that to his knowledge this has not yet been spent. It is improbable that the second series will be realized before another year.

M. Hansen denies that any additional clauses or codicils were added to the treaty during the stay of the Czar and the President of the Republic at Compiegne. The attitude to be adopted by the two nations, in view of certain eventualities, was undoubtedly discussed and agreed upon, but at each time such a discussion took place minutes were drawn up and countersigned by [illegible], it would be a proof that the two allies had [illegible] in one another. The conferences at Compiegne turned chiefly upon Eastern and Far Eastern affairs. The Transvaal question "was not referred to for a single instant at Compiegne, and there would be no question of it," declared M. Hansen in reply to a pointed question.

What Makes the Home?

Not the house, however fine it may be; not its furniture, pictures and appointments. The wife and mother makes the home, and to speak of going home means to go back into the shelter of the mother's love and care.

And when womanly ills sap the mother's strength, the home-life suffers. The food is not cooked as she cooks it. Everywhere the lack of wifely supervision and motherly thoughtfulness is apparent. What a change, then, when this wife and mother comes back to take her old place in the family. Thousands of women who, because of womanly ills, had been shut out of home life and home happiness, have been enabled to once more take their place in the family after being cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"I commenced taking your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' about the 20th of last December, one year ago," writes Mrs. Ellen Wright, of Mountainview, Howell Co., Missouri. "I have been very slow about writing to you, although I am thankful I am here to-day and have the privilege of saying I thank you a thousand times for your kind advice. I can truthfully say that it was through your kind advice and your medicine and the will of the Lord that I am living to-day; I am in better health than I have been for three years. I have taken one-half dozen bottles of each medicine. I am able to do my washing for four in family, and all my housework, cooking and milking. In fact, I feel like a new woman."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its almost countless consequences. They do not react on the system nor beget the pill habit.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "A dog is a [illegible] for two things—one is the flea that is in him and the other is the spirit that sir on him to take up his chaw with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. H. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 90 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. H. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Masters thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Baptie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above and a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

Her Little Wretch.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

The sun shone fiercely down in the factory yard and upon William Cole, foreman, seated upon a pile of lumber and muttering imprecations as he dug his heel savagely in the hot sand.

"If I ever get back to civilization, confound it, I'll stay there!" he was declaring under his breath. "It's just as the poet fellow says, 'Better fifty years of What's-his-name than a cycle of Carthage.'"

"Who's you talkin' to, mister?" piped a small voice.

Mr. Billy started and looked up, to find himself confronted by an atom. It was a feminine atom, dressed in a torn pink frock with a shock of mud-colored hair, and the bluest eyes that ever looked out of a dirty face. The atom draged after it a wagon made of pasteboard, mounted on empty spools, in which reclined with what grace it might a doll formed from a stick of kindling wood wrapped in a bit of calico.

"Hullo! you little wretch—where'd you spring from?" asked Mr. Billy.

"Over there," responded the atom, nodding vaguely in the direction of a line of hovels half a mile away. "I play here 'cos we ain't got no yard and it's hot in the road. That's my house you's settin' on now."

"Oh! it is, is it?" responded Mr. Billy, gravely. Well, now, see here. I'm not going to have you coming here, where cars are backing in all the time. You'll be killed if you do. Not that you wouldn't be better off in heaven, but I don't care to have your death on my soul and mind. Now, here's a small fraction of United States currency. Take it and trot along home, and remember that if you spend it judiciously you may some day be as rich as Rockfeller. Don't lose sight of the fact that I'm vested in the panoply of power here. So git!"

The child held out her hand for the penny and eyed Mr. Billy wistfully. "I don't wanter go home," she said. "She whips me."

"Does, hey?" said the big man with amiable sternness. Well, perhaps you need it. Tell you what I'll do, though. If you'll promise solemnly, honest Injun, to stay away from the tracks, you may bring your doll dude over here. Promise?"

The child nodded.

"All right; fire away, then. If your face were cleaner I would give you a chaste kiss on the cheek just for luck, but under the circumstances I think I will forbear."

Then Mr. Billy went whistling away to his work and the atom made a palace of the lumber pile and seated Rosabella in state in the drawing-room while she prepared an imaginary dinner in an imaginary kitchen under some projecting boards. The next day when the youngster appeared Mr. Billy greeted her cheerfully with:

"Well, you little wretch, how are you?"

"I'se well," responded the infant. And as he drew near the foreman discovered from the smeary condition of her countenance that some effort had been made to render it clean.

"Been washing your face, I see," he commented.

"Is yer goin' to kiss me now?" the child demanded.

"Think I shall. Here's a corner that's comparatively spotless, and upon it I press my lips, thus—partly as a reward of merit for your praiseworthy efforts, and partly because you have the biggest violet eyes in twenty states."

The atom smiled graciously at the compliment and as often as she saw Mr. Billy in the days that followed she'd wave a stately hand at him and he would respond with a "How's my little wretch?" in a big voice that rang through the yards.

One day Mr. Billy was at home with an attack of what he called, for want of a better name, "the durndest fever a fellow ever had," when his small protege came to harm. She had a skipping rope in her hand and was wandering near the forbidden tracks when a freight car of lumber backed into the yard. The end of the rope was caught by the wheels, and as the little one tugged to repossess herself of it her foot slipped under the car and was cruelly mangled. She whimpered for a moment, but the little wretch had been brought up in a stern school where sympathy was unknown and directly she lay quiet until one of the men passed near where she was. Then she lifted her voice in a piteous cry.

"Here's the little wretch," she said. "I'se awfully hurted. Please come and get me."

They carried her to the hospital and summoned her mother, and after the surgeons had removed the crushed member and made the patient as comfortable as possible she began to get feverish.

"Where is the big man?" she asked, plaintively. "Why doesn't he come to see his little wretch?"

"I'm here, Martha," said her mother, her surly face for once softening. "Won't I do?"

"No," said the atom, her head tossing on the pillow. "I want my big man. He loves me. He kissed me once, and he gave me this yesterday. I'm his little wretch. Oh! why doesn't he come to me?"

"This" was a penny, the last of a series of such gifts, which had been tightly clasped in the small hand every minute except when the surgeons were operating.

"Who is this man?" asked the sweet-faced nurse. "If we could find him her last moments would be easier. Nothing can save her life, but she would be happy if he were by when she passes out."

"I don't know no man," said the woman roughly. "She's out of her mind."

"Johnny knows my man," went on the little voice; "he'll go for him. Tell him his little wretch is hurted and he'll come."

But before Johnny could be found the shadows had lengthened in the ward and the murmur had grown so weak that the "Oh, why doesn't the big man come to see his little wretch?" could hardly be distinguished. Then, as the sun went down all was quiet again in the dormitory, and the nurse drew the sheet up over the still white, beautiful face of the atom.

When Mr. Billy heard about it the next day his face paled and his language was somewhat fearful. "I'd have given my life and all the money I possess to have been with the kid!" he said brokenly. And then he went over to the hovel and laid a rosebud in the hand that still held the penny.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 29.—At the resumption at the sitting of the South African Compensation Commission to-day, Major-General Sir John C. Ardagh, on behalf of the Government, announced that all claims of foreign countries had been settled diplomatically with the exception of those of the Netherlands and France, as follows— The United States, £2,000; Austria, £15,000; Germany, £20,000; Russia, £4,100; Italy, £12,000; Spain £150; Sweden and Norway, £1,000; Switzerland £250, and Belgium £300.

LAUNCH OF A BIG CRUISER.

London, Oct. 29.—The King Alfred, the largest cruiser in the world, was successfully launched at Barrow-in-Furness this morning. The King Alfred cost £1,011,750. She will have a speed of twenty-three knots.

TRANSFER OF DANISH INDIES.

Copenhagen, Oct. 29.—The deliberation in the negotiations between the Government and Mr. L. S. Swenson, U. S. Minister, with regard to the sale of the Danish West Indies, is attributed to the influence of a member of the royal family closely connected with the commercial interests which started the agitation against the sale. The efforts to retard the negotiations will probably be continued in the hope that something will turn up to prevent the transfer of the islands.

EARL RUSSELL CAN RE-MARRY

London, Oct. 29.—The decree of divorce granted Lady Russell from Earl Russell on March 18th last, on the ground of the Earl's bigamy with Mrs. Somerville, was to-day made absolute, no opposition to Lady Russell's application being presented. Earl Russell, it is announced, will marry Mrs. Somerville immediately.

TURKEY PAYS OVER $[illegible]

Constantinople, Sunday, Oct. 27.—A further installment was paid yesterday on account of the contract with the Cramps, of Philadelphia, for a cruiser, making the total paid in the neighborhood of [illegible].

LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

London, Oct. 29.—The King Alfred, the largest cruiser in the world, was successfully launched at Barrow-in-Furness this morning. The King Alfred cost £1,011,750. She will have a speed of twenty-three knots.

TRIED TO CROSS THE BORDER.

Lisbon, Oct. 29.—Advices received from Lorenzo Marques, Portuguese East Africa, indicate that brisk fighting has recently taken place on the Delagoa Bay railroad line. It is said that the Boers burned six good trains a few miles from the boundary and then attempted to pass into Portuguese territory. They were met by the British forces between Ressano Garcia and Komatipoort and were repulsed, but it is stated that the British lost heavily.

The Portuguese have reinforced all their posts on the frontier.

YOUNG REBELS UNARMED.

Pretoria, Oct. 29.—The general situation in Cape Colony has much improved. In the western province there are still a large number of young Cape rebels who roam about the wild and desolate portions of the colony, unarmed, doing little damage and avoiding the British columns.

According to despatches from Matjesfontein, Scobell's and Knox's columns are on the move again after refitting at Beaufort West.

Commandant Scheeper, who was recently captured by the British, is progressing favorably at Beaufort hospital.

THE LEADERS TOGETHER.

Newcastle, Natal, Oct. 29.—Commandant General Botha has rejoined Acting-President Schalkburger at the Boer field headquarters at Amsterdam. General Botha's commando is divided into detachments which are operating independently in the bush veldt especially adapted to their tactics.

London, Oct. 29.—Recent despatches state that Kemp's commando of two hundred and fifty Boers has been captured in the Magaliesbergen, south of Rustenburg. The country in this neighborhood is very mountainous, adaptable to the Boer tactics, and the capture is regarded as highly important. Rustenburg is about midway between Mafeking and Pretoria.

Fifty men and three laagers have also been captured at Nylstroom, 80 miles north of Pretoria. In addition small detachments of men have also been taken prisoners at Villiersdorp and Vryheid.

SMALLPOX.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—Dominion Policeman Lebeau, who lives at 112 Percy street has taken smallpox. He was removed to Porter's Island today.

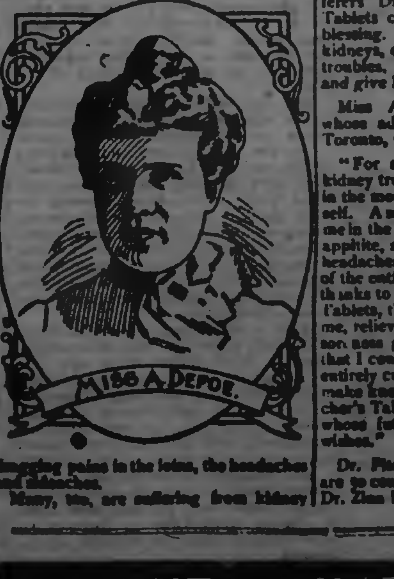
A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and sideaches.



MISS A. DEPOE.

Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

Miss Anna Depoe, a young lady whose address is 355 King street west, Toronto, recently wrote as follows:

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appetite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

Late, Indeed

A good story was told the Times the other day by a citizen. It appears there was to be a lecture in a neighboring town, where our friend happened to be stopping over night, and as he had nothing to do, he took it in. The chairman of the lecture committee of a literary society sat restlessly on the stage before a large but waiting congregation, wondering why the expected lecturer did not arrive. Finally, he felt that some sort of an excuse was necessary, and stepped to the foot lights. "Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "I regret the delay and am unable to account for the absence of Professor Smythe, who was to lecture here to-night. He told me that he would be on time if he was alive, and, as he is not here, we must conclude that he is dead." Just then the Professor rushed on the stage all out of breath. "Ladies and gentlemen," continued the chairman, "allow me to introduce to you the late Professor Smythe, who will now address us on The Inferno."

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Mr. A. M. Pouenette and Miss Alice Meade

A very interesting event took place at St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, at five o'clock yesterday morning, when Mr. M. M. Pouenette, of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company, was united in marriage to Miss Alice E. Mead, second daughter of the late Richard Mead. The wedding took place from "Bell View," the handsome residence of Mrs. John Burnham, aunt of the bride.

The interior of the church was handsomely decorated with palms and flowers by the Girl's Guild, of which the bride was a member.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's, assisted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, of St. John's, performed the marriage ceremony. As the bridal party entered the church, the organist, Prof. Davies, rendered "Entree de Procession," which was followed by Stephen Heller's wedding march. The choir during the service rendered excellently the hymn "How Welcome was the Call," and "Sweet the Festal Day."

The bride was assisted by her two sisters, Miss Kathleen and Miss Gwendoline, who were attired in gowns of white organdie and black picture hats. They carried bouquets of chrysanthemums. The groom was supported by Mr. Hazen Ritchie, formerly of the Canadian General Electric Co., town, and now of Montreal. The bride was given away by her uncle, Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers. She charmingly gowned in white organdie, wearing a veil and orange blossoms.

The ushers were Messrs. W. D. Parker, Hal. B. Burnham, A. A. Hollingshead, George C. Burnham. Messrs. Stanley Burton and Herbert E. Wood admitted the guests to the guests pews.

As the party left the church Mendelssohn's wedding march pealed forth from the church organ.

A wedding breakfast was served at "Bell View," where the newly married couple received the congratulations of their relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Pouenette left on the G.T.R. noon train for Toronto and other points, and will on their return take up their residence at No. 607 Stewart street.

The Times joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Pouenette many years of happiness.

A Cathedral Wedding

The nuptials were celebrated at St. Peter's cathedral on Monday at 7 a.m., of Mr. Michael McGlynn of H. B. Bradley's & Co's., Peterborough, and Miss Nellie Campbell of Scranton, Illinois. The bride was assisted by her niece, Miss Mary Haggart, also of Scranton, and the groom was supported by Mr. James Curran of Peterborough. Rev. Father O'Sullivan officiated. The bride was becomingly dressed in a traveling suit of navy blue with picture hat, and the bridesmaid was similarly attired. After the ceremony a reception was held at the City hotel, where the newly wedded couple received the congratulations of a party of friends, with whom the Times joins in good wishes for their future happiness.

EARL RUSSELL MAY LAND

The Immigration Commissioner's Embargo Against the Bigamist Is Declared Off.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Earl Russell, who was convicted by the House of Lords of bigamy for marrying a second wife in this country after he had been granted a divorce in Nevada, is free to enter this country if he so desires. The Assistant Secretary of the Treasurer, Mr. Taylor, who has general jurisdiction over immigration matters decided so to-day, overruling the commissioner of immigration, Mr. Powderly. On Wednesday Mr. Powderly, upon the representation of Heraden & Smith of Philadelphia, who is understood to be a relative of the earl's first wife, that Earl Russell had been convicted of crime or misdemeanor "involving moral turpitude," transmitted Mr. Smith's complaint to the board of special inquiry at Ellis island, New York, for its information in case he was detained upon his arrival there by the inspector. To-day Assistant Secretary Taylor rescinded this letter and further instructed the board to admit the earl unless other reasons for exclusion than his conviction in England should appear. Mr Taylor pointed out that Earl Russell had been granted a divorce by an American court, under which grant he was set at liberty to marry again, and that in so marrying he was guilty of no crime against the laws of the United States.

FRANCE'S NEW BATTLE SHIPS

With 100 New Ones the Nation Will Feel Secure, M. de Lanessan Said.

Brest, France, Oct. 29.—Presiding at the launch to-day of the armored cruiser Leon Gambetta, the minister of marine, M. De Lanessan, said the cruiser was one of a new contingent of upwards of 100 warship, each of which possesses perfect fighting qualities. Unless unforeseen difficulties occurred abroad, the naval programme would be completed in the time fixed by the chamber and then France would enjoy at sea that same security that her numerous, solid battalions assured her upon the continent of Europe. While the French vessels were more costly, they were also worth more than the ships of other maritime nations. The French navy was directing its efforts to the fighting quality of its ships rather than to numbers, he said. Only strong nations could hope to honorably preserve peace and liberty.

CHILD DIED OF HUNGER

SAD STORY OF SIN AND DEATH IN PETERBOROUGH

A Infant, Born Out of Wedlock, is Allowed to Die for the Want of Food and Care

The following will speak for itself. It is a sad story of sin and death, that does no credit to the men and women of the town who call themselves Christians. We have many churches, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., and other institutions of charity and religion, and to think that a human being could die of hunger—particularly a little child—is past belief and makes one almost think that our boasted charity is all a mockery.

The Times, in order to give its readers the facts as they really are, requested Dr. Bingham, Medical Health Officer, to give us a written statement of the sad case, which we publish below:

A child died on Monday in this town under very distressing circumstances, and by request I make the following brief report of the case: About one month ago a respectable looking young woman, from another city, was taken suddenly ill here, and the poor girl in the extremity of her suffering, took refuge in the house of a stranger, and in a very short time gave birth to a child of fine, healthy appearance. At this point the question arose, who would take care of the infant? Its unfortunate mother was utterly destitute, and the cowardly ruffian who should have stood by her in the hour of her need had skipped out. Now, the woman where the child was born has six children of her own, and an invalid mother to look after, so it was impossible that she could give the child proper care. She kept it for one week, then it was transferred to a neighbor. It remained in its new home about two weeks, but having taken very sick, it was returned to the place of its birth, where it continued to sink until the end came. When the child was born I applied at once to the agent of the Children's Aid Society to have it taken to the Shelter. The agent was unable to admit the child stating as a reason that as the society has a resolution on its books that such children would not be admitted to the Shelter, because it might encourage illegitimacy. The reason given here will not, I think, be endorsed by impartial men and women, who have a fair knowledge of human life.

One may say too, in conclusion, that in this town we have, under diversified names, all the outward observances of civilization and Christianity ably and zealously conducted by both men and women. All this is praiseworthy, but somehow the result is not satisfactory, for when a poor woman appeals at the door of charity for a night's lodging, she is refused, and must lie all night in the police cells, and when a child is born out of wedlock it must die. The public can draw their own conclusions.

A SERIOUS MISTAKE.

How a Clerk in a Local Dry Goods Store Blundered

A clerk in a local dry goods store had always prided himself on his ability to win the customers who entered the place with children, and was particularly strong with the mother with babe in arms. He had boasted that he never failed to win the mother by judicious praise and handling of the infant, and his fellow clerks were a trifle jealous of him until this week when an incident occurred which has made him avoid all the children that come in the store.

He was quite familiar with the modern method of dressing babies and young children which left their tiny legs bare, and when a fashionably dressed matron entered the store with a bundle in her arms from which depended one bare leg he was quick to seize the opportunity. Approaching with his most deferential air he patted the bare leg of what he supposed was the baby in the bundle with the remark in the choicest off baby talk: "Lovely little footsie wootsies."

The woman drew back in indignant rage, turned purple with wrath at the insult, stamped her foot in anger and with the ejaculation, "You wretch," swept out of the store, never to enter it again, for it was her arm the luckless clerk had patted and she had never had a baby.

The Children's Aid Society

The officers of the Children's Aid Society respectfully request parents and guardians who are providing their children with new clothing for the winter to donate the cast off clothing to the society. During the winter months relief can be given in many cases by the distribution of clothing to deserving families who come under the notice of this organization. Parcels may be left at the Shelter, No. 276 Charlotte street, and will be thankfully acknowledged.

Indigestion, that menace to human happiness, pitiless in its assaults, and no respecter of persons, has met its conqueror in South American Nervine. This great stomach and nerve remedy stimulates digestion, tones the nerves, aids circulation, drives out impurities, dispels emaciation, and brings back the glow of perfect health. Cures hundreds of "chronics" that have baffled physicians.—48

FOSTER ON IMPERIALISM

Interesting Lecture at the Fortnightly Club Last Night

The Fortnightly Club is to be congratulated on the treat given its members and the public last night in the shape of an address by one of our most distinguished Canadians, Hon. George E. Foster. The assembly room at the Y.M.C.A. was filled with a most representative audience and it is needless to say that the address was an uncommonly thoughtful and eloquent deliverance. The lecturer was introduced by Mr. Sheriff Hall and was very heartily received. The subject was "Imperialism." Mr. Foster spoke for nearly two hours, without manuscript or notes, and with a facility that showed his masterly knowledge of the past and present status of the Empire. He took the ground that the so-called Manchester school, the once strong and influential school that believed that the colonies were a hindrance to Great Britain, was closed forever. Two recent events, the Queen's Jubilee and the South African War with the participation of the colonies, did more than anything that ever before occurred to draw the mother country and the colonies together. To promote imperial unity, it is not necessary to make any formal arrangement, the thing for us to do is to catch hold of the points and lines upon which we can co-operate. The ignorance of the colonies about each other, and especially the ignorance in Great Britain about the colonies, should be overcome. Geographical distances are now no impediment to unity, on the contrary they are rather an advantage, the different climates giving different wants and different productions which can be readily interchanged. The argument of the lecturer was that the tendencies of time are all toward closer union of the Empire and a future development such as has been hitherto undreamed of. The very hearty applause at the close showed that all had listened with keen interest.

Mr. D. W. Dumble in moving, and Mr. James Kendrey M.P., in seconding a vote of thanks becomingly expressed their appreciation of the lecture. The meeting closed with the singing of "God Save the King."

The next meeting of the Fortnightly Club will be held on the evening of November 14th.

Advice to Mothers

If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Polson's Nerviline. Don't be afraid to use Nerviline freely—a whole bottle full would not burn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub it until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water into which 20 drops of Nerviline has previously been stirred. This is a sure, pleasant and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

A VAIN APPEAL.

A Holland Editor Appeals to the President of the United States

London, Oct. 29.—The Globe humorously publishes the following: By aid of industry and files of La Patrie a correspondent of a contemporary has obtained some interesting statistics of the war in South Africa. During the last two years the Boers have lost 121 men killed and 380 men and seventeen officers captured, while among the British losses have been 2,152,124 men killed, which includes 80,000 officers and 200,000 men, and 2,000 officers captured. The British have captured fourteen guns, while the Boers have retaliated by taking 3,160 from the British. Of the 1,163 battles 1,084 have proved decisive victories for the Boers.

The British generals have been peculiarly unfortunate. No fewer than seventy-one have been killed. General Methuen was so ill-fated as to be killed seven times in four months, General Kelly-Kenny has had his head blown off three times while "Bobs" has lost five legs and nine right arms. If it be true that necessity is the mother of invention, the special correspondents of La Patrie must have seen pretty hard times.

DEATH AS A PUNISHMENT

Japanese Who Look Upon Life Imprisonment as More Severe.

London, Oct. 29.—Writing from Tokio on Sept. 14, the correspondent of The Times suggests an interesting reason to explain why the punishment of penal servitude was meted out to the assassin of Mr. Hoshi Toru instead of the death penalty. He writes:

"The sentence of penal servitude passed upon Iba Sotaro, the murderer of Mr. Hoshi Toru, has caused much discussion in Japan. Many publicists claim taht if ever the death penalty was deserved he deserved it and that emphatic encouragement has now been given to the political assassin. But the more general feeling is that capital punishment would have been chosen by the man himself, had choice been possible, and that, in his opinion, the sentence of penal servitude has destroyed the projected climax of his drama.

"Had Iba suffered the extreme penalty of the law a perpetual pilgrimage would have been made to his grave by future generations, and offerings of incense and flowers would never have been wanting. Not a few educated men would have honored his tomb for the sake of the philosophy he represented, and the ignorant masses, without making any scrutiny into his methods or his motives, would have worshipped the memory of a man who achieved his purpose in the face of extreme difficulties.

"That is what happened at the grave of Nishina Buntario, who assassinated Viscount Mori eleven years ago. Artisans, actors, wrestlers, dancing girls, apprentices, tradesmen—all flocked to his sepulchre, not because they approved of his act, or respected his sentiments, but because they desired to propitiate the spirit which enabled a poor student to accomplish a deed conspicuously beyond the range of his normal capacities. The Japanese mind is always ready thus to abstract an achievement from its motives or its results.

"But it is impossible to associate any notion of success with the fate of a man compelled to devote the remainder of his life to toiling in prison garb side by side with common felons. The glamour of Iba's act is entirely obscured by such a sentence, and people who would have remembered him for all time had the forfeiture of his life crowned the tragedy will soon lose sight of him among the masses of vulgar malefactors to whose company he has now been relegated.

"It is not apparent, of course, that these considerations influenced his judges. The law gave them discretion to mitigate the penalty in view of extenuating circumstances, and they exercised the discretion without explaining their reasons. But the result, by whatever road they reached it, will certainly conduce to public morality much more than a sentence of death would have done."

A Scientific Voice Improver

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal chords, Catarrhozone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes huskiness or hoarseness, thus ensuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. Catarrhozone keeps the mucous surfaces in perfect condition, and its regular use absolutely prevents colds and throat irritation, thereby removing the singer's greatest source of anxiety, unfitness of voice. The most eminent speakers and Prima Donas would not be without Catarrhozone and credit in no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence. The hard rubber inhaler fits conveniently into a purse or vest pocket, and may be used in the church, theatre, any place or time. Price for outfit $1. Small size 25c. RISING PREDICTED BY MISSIONARIES

Another Revolt by Boxers in China Believed to be Impending.

THE NATIONS WANT TOO MUCH

The Time in Which Trouble May Arise Limited to Five Years—Territorial Integrity May Be Jeopardized.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Missionaries in China who have had an opportunity of gauging the temper of the people believe there will be a recurrence of the Boxer outbreak in China within five years. This news is now in the possession of the State Department, as a result of representations believed to have been made by Special Commissioner W. W. Rockhill.

Dangerous as such a condition would be to the territorial integrity of China, the prospect of its development is not more menacing to Chinese entity than the present attitude of certain European powers. Pledged as her revenues are to the payment of the indemnity demanded by the Powers for the Boxer outrages, further monetary demands upon China for outrages committed upon foreigners cannot be granted, and concessions will have to be made instead.

QUESTION OF CONCESSIONS.

These concessions, it is apprehended here, will take the form of territorial grants. France has already begun the concession movement by negotiating a convention with China in regard to railway rights in Yunnan. Germany has shown no disposition to withdraw her garrisons at Shanghai, and the steamers are plowing the Yang-tse-Kiang and are endeavoring to take away from the English the trade of the populous region watered by that stream. Germany is also taking measures to increase her interests in the Province of Shatung.

When Senator Beveridge was at Shanghai he interviewed a number of missionaries who had visited interior points as the feelings of the people toward the foreigners. This feeling, bitter before the Boxer outbreak, has grown more hostile as a result of the conduct of the allied Powers.

Mr. Beveridge asked them if they feared another outbreak. All replied in the affirmative. As to the time of its occurrence, some said two, some three, and others five years. The last estimate was regarded as extreme. Whether the outbreak predicted for the future can be confined to one section of China, as was that of 1900, seems to be doubtful.

Thanks to the policy of Secretary Hay, the United States has played a part of paramount importance in the Boxer revolt. It came boldly out for the preservation of the territorial and administrative entity of China. Undoubtedly, the United States will continue to demand the observance of the "open door." Whether it will go farther than to exercise its moral influence to preserve China's territorial integrity is a question that events only will probably determine.

FOUGHT THE BOERS AGAINST HIS WILL

Story Told by Joseph Kellogg of Leavenworth, Kansas.

AMERICANS WITH THE ENGLISH

Clearing the Boer Farms of Women and Children—Good Treatment and Good Pay.

Leavenworth, Kas. Oct. 30.—Joseph Kellogg, the son of a wealthy family here, arrived yesterday from South Africa, where he spent seven months as a volunteer soldier in the English army as a member of the South African Light Horse. Mr. Kellogg, who is only 20 years old, is sunburned and shows the effect of hard service in an open country. He left his home in Leavenworth a year ago.

"I served in the English army, but it was a case of necessity with me," he said this morning. "As an American I hate to say I fought against men who were fighting for liberty. It was a case of go with the English or starve. I left New Orleans on a ship that took 1,200 mules over to the English army. I was sick most of the time going over, and when we arrived at Cape Town they would not pay me anything. I had no money, and there was only one thing left to do—enlist as a volunteer and go up the Orange Free State country.

"It was surprising to find the number of Americans in the English army. In my squadron alone there were ten. Every inducement was offered them to enlist. The pay of volunteers who enlisted in the South African regiments is $1.20 per day. The pay of a soldier in the regular English army is only 30 cents a day there. I enlisted first for three months, then for three months more and remained in the service over seven months because we were not close to a railroad when my time expired. The commander of my squadron was Lieutenant Colonel G. Ewing, the son of an English earl. Colonel Williams was in command of the district we operated in.

"The day after I enlisted we started out on field service without waiting to be drilled. We had long rifles and were really mounted infantry. We had no sabers; there is no use for sabers in that country. All our service was in chasing and fighting the commando of General Kritzinger. He had about 225 Boers and we had about 600 men. We had several long distance fights, but lost only a few men. Most of our skirmishing was at night. The Boers would be found in good force at times, but they would divide in squads of eight men and scatter and it was hard to run them down. They knew the country and would soon be together again at some appointed place. We rode over a great deal of the Orange Free State country. On my return I arrived in Cape Town the day Lord Roberts left, and heard the guns firing his farewell salute. My squadron was never connected with any big army division and had no service under any noted general.

"It is estimated that there are about 11,00 Boers in the field. There are 251,000 soldiers in the English army in South Africa. They hold nearly all the towns and protect the railroads so that it is impossible for a foreign Boer sympathizer to get into the Boer service except he crosses through the colony of another nation. The Boer army is made up of all nationalities. So is the English army. There are many South African colonists called 'loyalists,' who cannot speak English and they are serving with the English and making good soldiers. The American volunteers who are with the English are well treated. The regular army soldiers are treated with strict discipline, but not the volunteers. Officers are kind to volunteers.

"The service is hard. There is a great deal of rain and much night riding. Horses do not last long. The American and Australian horses are the best. The Veldt horses are nice looking, but they soon play out.

"An effort is being made to starve the Boers out. When we came to a farm house we loaded the women and children on a wagon. They were allowed to take all the things they wanted and were then taken to a refugee camp. Here they were detained, and I am told, well provided for. We always took our own forage along for horses, but burned that found at Boer farms. We drove the cattle and sheep along, and had all the fresh meat we wanted. The soldiers were furnished a regular army rations, but members of a squad killed a sheep whenever they felt like it. This made the Boers mad. We found the women could always speak enough English to swear at us.

"It will take a long time to subdue the Boers, but the English will bankrupt them and wear them out. When I arrived in England on my way home an effort was made to have me reenlist. The soldiers going from England now to Africa are very young. I noticed whole regiments of young men between 18 and 22. They were pretty well drilled and can stand it for awhile."

Milton's Bones Disturbed

London, Oct. 30.—It seems quite possible that the bones of Milton have been disturbed within the last week or two. The alterations now proceeding in the Church of St Giles, Cripplegate, have, says the City Press, necessitated the temporary removal of a large number of coffins from that part of the church in which the remains of Milton are believed to rest. Curiously enough all the coffins save one bore inscriptions, and this one was inclosed in two shells. The coffins have been reverently restored to their proper positions. This is not the first time a coffin supposed to be Milton's has been disturbed. In 1790 a ghoulish scene, which excited the poetic indignation of Cowper, took place in St. Giles, the supposed body of the poet being then deprived of teeth and locks of hair by unscrupulous relic hunters. There has, however, always been a merciful doubt whether the coffin so rifled, was that of the poet. Then, as now, the church was under repair. When it is remembered that a few years ago the church took fire in the Cripplegate holocaust, it cannot be said that Milton's wish for peace has been wholly fulfilled. It was in "Lycidas" that he wrote:

So may some gentle Muse
With lucky words favor my destined urn,
And as he passes turn
And bid fair peace be to my sable shroud.

German Says "Hands off"

Berlin, Oct. 30.—During an address at a recent meeting of the Fleet society in Hanover, Captain Von Weltheim of the German navy is represented to have said:

"Germany's interests in the five republics of Central America, in view of American competition, can only be maintained 'when we have a fleet strong enough to say to the Americans, 'Hands off!'"

This declaration was received with stormy applause. The papers generally ignore it, and the Freisinnige Zeitung observes:

"There is a species of politcail mischief-making, which, while not punishable under the penal code, is none the less calculated to cause apprehension."

Mrs. General Grant Dying

Washington, Oct. 30.—With five sons and daughters living and not one near her, Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, widow of the late President Grant, is seriously ill at her home in this city. Mrs. Grant will not allow any message to be sent to her children, telling of the serious character of her illness, in order that she may be absolutely independent of her family in all things. Mrs. Grant arrived in Washington almost two weeks ago from Canada. Hardly had she reached the city when she was attacked with a severe cold, which soon developed alarming symptoms. At one time her condition was extremely critical. She is slightly better to-day, but her advanced age proves a serious handicap to the efforts of her physicians and the end may come at any time.

Catarrhal Poisons and Their Remedy

The poisonous secretions from Catarrh are dangerous because they affect the stomach and bowels, giving rise to an unhealthy condition of those organs. Catarrh is the source of much ill-health and was considered practically incurable until it was demonstrated to the satisfaction of the medical profession that by the use of Catarrhozone any case of nasal or throat trouble can be permanently and quickly cured. Catarrhozone by its unusual merit has enlisted the support and endorsation of the most prominent medical authorities, who freely state that any one giving it a trial is sure to receive permanent benefit. A RURAL TRAGEDY IS MYSTERIOUS

Miss Crowther Said She Had to Take Nasty Stuff

SHE DIED SOON AFTERWARDS

Seized by Man Who, She Said, Had Put Dirt Into Her Mouth—No Marks of Violence on Body.

London, Oct. 30.—The death of Miss Lizzie Crowther, in a lonely village six miles from Leeds, is one of the most mysterious rural tragedies that has occurred for a long time. The story reads remarkably like an incident in one of Mr. George Moore's novels.

About nine o'clock on Saturday evening Miss Crowther, who was the eldest daughter of Mr. George Crowther, an undertaker's foreman at Leeds, left her grandmother's farm at Wike to go and see her aunt, who resides at Manor House Farm, about fifty yards away.

Twenty minutes later the poor girl rushed back into the house agitated and breathless with haste and fear. Her hair was disarranged; the shawl, which in this part of England often takes the place of a hat and jacket, was hanging from her shoulders, and she was apparently in a terrible state panic.

Her mouth was filled with earth, and her grandmother gave her some water with which she washed her mouth out. Then sobbing and exhausted she sank into a chair. A moment later her hands convulsively twisted, and she cried, "Oh, grandma, look at my hands." Then she made a remarkable statement.

"A brute of a man," she cried, "got hold of me, but I never saw anyone. I did not know his voice. He said, 'Give me some brass,' I told him I had none, and he seized me by the hair." She added that the man put his arm round her head and face and forced some bitter substance into her mouth.

"I have such a nasty taste in my mouth," she went on, "I can't bear it." In answer to her grandmother's questions she said that the man had put the dirt in her mouth. He did not knock her down.

After a while she sobbed, "Oh, grandma, I'm dying." Her grandmother exclaimed surely not, surely not." Miss Crowther's color had changed to almost blue, and some terrible pain appeared to seize her. Shortly afterwards she exclaimed, "Oh, it's in my legs." She then partly slipped off her chair and stretched herself out, moaning, "Oh, that brute of a man; catch him, catch him."

These were the last words she spoke, and she died lying on the floor about ten minutes after running back into the house. A messenger had been despatched on horseback for a doctor, but the medical man arrived after death had taken place. The coroner for the district opened an inquest at the grandmother's residence yesterday. An aunt of Miss Crowther's stated that the girl's pocket's had not been touched. Dr. Francis Carter, who had made a post-mortem examination of the body, said that he had found no marks of violence and there was nothing at account for death.

It is a pathetic circumstance that Miss Crowther was engaged to be married to a young master plumber at Leeds, Mr. Gilbert Westerman, with whom she had kept company for the past four years. Miss Crowther was a healthy girl and had not been subject to hysterical seizures.

Richest Vein of Gold Found

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 30.—Miners from Fleming's gold field report a mammoth vein, or blow-out, of remarkable size, and richness, heretofore unknown, 20 feet wide, which samples over $25 gold.

Thousand-pound samples from the ledges brought here to-day show extravagant richness. Much of the rock when crushed is held together by gold wire. It is claimed by old prospectors to be the largest gold mine in the Rocky Mountain region. They allege that there is over $50,000,000 on one side of Box Canyon.

When the president, Mr. Drummond, called for officers, Mr. Kerr started the ball rolling at 8c. The bidding was very brisk, and soon ran up to 9c. Mr. Wrighton at that figure called Keene, Fraserville, Beaufort, Otonabee, Union, all of which accepted.

Mr. Whitton then bid 8 7-8c, but Mr. Sauve brought the price back to 9 cents, taking Ormonde, Shamrock, Melrose Abbey, Norwood and Indian River.

The third bid opened at 8 15-16c. by Mr. Whitton, who called Shearer, Villiers, Westwood, Myrtle, East Emily, Warsaw, Oakdale, Warminster—all of whom refused.

Mr. Kerr bid 8 1-2 and brought the price up to 8 7-16, and finally back to 8 15-16c, but the same factories still refused.

It became quite apparent that a deadlock existed between the buyers and sellers. Mr. Bailey tried to induce some of the factories to sell at 8 7-8c, but there was no inclination on the part of the salesmen to sell at that figure. There were calls from the buyers to adjourn the board. Upon motion, this proposition was carried, the factories in the meantime being bound not to sell. The Board then stood adjourned for two weeks.

Mausoleum for Czolgosz

Chicago, Oct. 29.—To save the body of Leon F. Czolgosz from burial in a pauper's grave to erect over it a $200,000 mausoleum has become the life object of Miss Henrietta Tice, a book canvasser and Chicago Socialist. She has canvassed the leaders of both the Socialists and Anarchists of the city, begging them to aid her, and so enthusiastic has she become that she believes plans will be fulfilled and the body and mausoleum will be placed in Chicago.

The woman's enthusiasm is not shared by the Chicago Anarchists with whom the assassin associated while he was here, and the Socialists scout the idea. Supt. Schrade of Waldheim Cemetery has informed several persons who have been making demonstrations at the anarchists' tomb, at that place that on the anniversary of the hanging of the Haymarket rioters, Nov. 11, no demonstration will be allowed, although floral emblems may be deposited by a small committee sent to the cemetery for that purpose.

HUMORS OF THE BOER WAR

Experiences of English "Tenderfeet" in South Africa.

The greatness and glory of the British race is due in large part to their determination to take with them to every part of the globe the customs of the home land. These customs being in the main most excellent, consisting as they do chiefly of law and order, bathtubs and cricket, the national satisfaction with national manners has been somewhat in the nature of a boon to the human race. On the other hand there arises not infrequently a man who fails to differentiate between the essential and the trivial, and who, in his good British way, is determined to live, wherever he may be, just as he was wont amid the fogs of London. During the Boer war a number of these gentlemen added greatly to the gayety of the campaigners.

Bulawayo is where the world comes to an end. There, in the heart of Africa, the railroad—that is, the apology for the railroad—stops for good. It stops all along the line for a few hours until the line can be repaired. The Boers were perilously close to Bulawayo, which was inadequately defended, and for some time the situation was critical. Even when the immediate danger of the attack was over the place was in a manner beleaguered. It was such a time as is supposed to try men's souls. Communication with the outer world had just been restored, when one day there strolled into the club an officer who was known as the armor plated warrior, on account of his little weakness for dressing up his khaki clothes with the chains and other gewgaws of ornamental warfare.

"What's the matter, old man?" asked an acquaintance, cheerily. "You seem uncomfortably down in the mouth."

The officer sat down, with depression on every line of his countenance.

"Ya-as," he drawled wearily. "No toothpicks."

"No what?"

"No toothpicks. Can't get along without toothpicks, you know. As soon as a wire would go through I cabled to my brother in London, 'Toothpicks immediately.' Couldn't get on without them, you know. Here comes a cable from my blessed fool of a brother, 'Can't find toothpicks in code book.' Must be a blessed idiot, my brother, you know."

Some of the gentlemen who came out to fight for their country were popularly known as the "Piccadilly picnickers," by reason of the fact that their knowledge of how to dress and what to eat exceeded their acquaintance with minor matters such as drill, etc. One little group of picnickers came to join the Bulawayo military police. Not, even in the city, the "policeman's life is not a happy one," but up country, where the natives are nasty and the fevers worse, keeping the peace is not just the sort of occupation which goes well with a picnic for the sake of a big game shooting. The young men in question were after the big game, and thought that the government might as well pay their expenses. The chief treasure of the party, showed with glee to the man who was commissioned to meet them, consisting of a dressing case, price sixty guineas, presented to one of the number by his fond mother. The contents of it were displayed with pride, silver topped all, with everything in the nature of scent bottles and other necessaries of the toilet that could possibly be wanted by a member of the police force in the interior of Africa.

There was much to laugh at up country in time of danger, but the man who had made himself ridiculous one day might die a brave man's death the next. Little tin soldiers do not always remain such. Even the boy with the dressing case shed his absurdity as a garment and earned his [illegible] until he proved his worth by falling in "big game" shooting of a sort different from that of which he had dreamed in Piccadilly.

MEDICAL EVIDENCE RICE MURDER CASE

Likely to be very Voluminous for Crown and Defence

CROWN'S WITNESS ON STAND.

Dr. Caven Illustrates the Course of the Bullet by the Aid of a Court Official—Jury Will Retire This Evening.

DID JONES FIRE THE SHOT.

Regarding the possibility of the shot having been fired by Jones, Stewart's admission that although both the wrists of Jones were manacled to his fellow-prisoners, the links of the handcuffs were sufficient to afford Jones ample freedom to use a revolver, with the acquiescence of his fellow-prisoners, was slightly damaging to the Crown's case.

Minor witnesses differed as to the number of explosions which occurred before the men left the hack. Highley, the cab driver, was positive there was only one, but admitted to Mr. Robinette that he was very much excited and his recollection a little cloudy regarding the exit of the party from his vehicle. Thomas Cruttenden, jr., herd "shots" from inside the vehicle; he could not say how many, but he thought there were more than one. He would not swear that he saw a revolver in Rice's hand as he approached the cab. Motorman Kohlmeyer, who gallantly refused to move his car at the point of the prisoners' revolvers, and other witnesses, contradicted each other regarding the number of shots fired.

The first witness called was William Hyd, who keeps a grocery store on the corner of Gerrard and Sumach streets, where the tragedy occurred. As the hack containing the prisoners and constables passed the corner he saw a man run away from the vehicle and down Sumach street. Thinking that one of the prisoners had escaped he gave chase, following the fugitive as far as Sumach place, where he saw the last of him. He came back and found Boyd dying in the cab. To Mr. Robinette he stated that he heard two shots fired, both of which may have been fired inside the vehicle. His impression was that besides the driver somebody accompanied Boyd to the hospital in the hack, which contradicts the evidence of Highley, the hackman, who said that he alone took the dying constable to the hospital.

THE MEDICAL EVIDENCE.

The Crown then called Dr. Newton Powell, who commenced the medical testimony, which promises to extend to a great length, as there are several surgeons on hand to give evidence on both sides. The witness assisted at the post-mortem, and detailed to the jury the injuries received by Jones. He said that the bullet received by Jones in the groin took an oblique course downward and backward. Mr. Robinette examined the witness closely as to this, eventually eliciting an admission that the wound may have been received while in a sitting posture. The apparent object of the counsel for the defence was to show that Boyd fired before he himself was shot. The doctor admitted further that it was possible for a man to receive such a wound in the groin and move around afterwards. He carefully examined the hat of Constable Boyd, which was produced in court, and gave it as his opinion that the powder marks proved conclusively that the muzzle of the revolver which fired the fatal shot was quite close to the hat.

Dr. Peters' evidence differed in no important detail from that given by Dr. Powell. Cross-examined by Mr. Robinette he also admitted that Jones may have been shot while sitting.

DR. CAVEN'S ECIDENCE.

Court Crier Kemp was employed as the subject of a demonstration by Dr. John Caven, as to the course of the bullet through the brain of Constable Boyd. Dr. Caven conducted the post-mortem on the murdered man, and is regarded as the Crown's star medical witness. He described with professional minuteness the result of his examination of the course of the bullet. On opening the skull he found portions of the splintered bullet close to the point of egress. He also admitted that Jones may have received his wound either in or out of the hack.

Miss Maclaren, a nurse of the Toronto General Hospital staff, testified that no revolver was found in the pockets of Boyd, when he was admitted to the hospital.

Police Constable Page identified the revolver taken out of the cab and given him by Guard Annis. He left it at the police station.

Dr. Ross, who was called to the hospital to attend Boyd, testified that the wound received was necessarily fatal. To Mr. Robinette he stated that he did not know who brought Boyd to the hospital.

Police Constable Steele testified that he heard the shooting from a distance, but when he arrived on the scene it was all over. He identified the hats which were found in the hack, and a revolver bullet taken from the wall of a house on Gerrard street. It fitted the cartridges of the revolvers used in the affray.

CONCLUSION THIS EVENING.

Mr. Guthrie expects that the evidence for the Crown will be concluded this evening. Rice will take the stand in his own behalf and in addition about half a dozen medical men will be called for the defense. It will probably be late to-morrow evening when the jury will retire to consider the evidence.

ROBERTS AND THE WAR

FIELD MARSHAL WANTS TO RETURN TO SOUTH AFRICA.

So Says a Cable to the North American—Kitchener Will Be Superseded.

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.—Wilberforce Hay, the London correspondent of the North American, cables as follows:

"It is now tacitly acknowledged in official circles that Field Marshal Earl Roberts is not only anxious to go out to the Transvaal again in command of the forces, but he has even offered to do so. The desire, or rather request, to that effect was received by Mr. Brodrick, Secretary of War, within a week, and may have something to do with the hurried return of the Marquis of Salisbury from the continent at the time it was expected he would remain away for at least a month.

"'Bobs' wants to succeed Lord Kitchener, whose stock has been steadily falling for several months in the light of the meagre and disagreeable intelligence constantly trickling out from the South. Friends of the Khartoum hero think it is time he made some decisive move and showed results.

"The people are becoming impatient, and are more strongly inclined every day towards the statement by the Kitchener partisans that the Field Marshal's invasion was a smoothly-paved trip, and not a fight, and that upon Kitchener has fallen the brunt of the hardest fighting with the guerilla forces of the Boers.

"As to the chances of Lord Roberts going back opinion is unanimous that he will go, unless Kitchener shows something decisive within a few weeks. The Ministry must have that to give out if they do not want to lose all support. For another week the British column has been trekking across the veldt without making an important capture or hunting down the remnants of the commandos. The Boers, for their part, have prolonged hostilities another stage, and succeeded in eluding pursuit.

"Another month of this and Roberts will surely get his wish."

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Copenhagen, Oct. 30.—That energetic business woman and money-maker, the Princess Waldemar of Denmark (formerly Princess Marie of Orleans, eldest daughter of the Duke of Chartres) is enlarging her sphere of interest. She is now starting in business as a real estate speculator, having secured a plot of ground adjoining Copenhagen and obtained the municipal sanction to divide it into lots on which she is about to erect villas to rent to aristocratic people. The princess is also interesting herself in commercial plans for the benefit of the Danish West Indies, as well as for the development of Danish commerce in Asia. She has secured valuable concessions from the Russian Government in connection with the Asiatic trade.

SUBTERRANEAN FIRE BURNING.

London, Oct. 30.—A strange spectacle is presented at Gringley-on-the-Hill, where over fifty acres of soil are burning. It is glebe land with a large seam of peat running through it, varying from two to ten feet thick, and the heaviest rain has failed to check the fire. An attempt to quench it was made by digging trenches round the subterranean fire and filling them with water, but the fire crossed the trenches and in several places has burned gates and fences. Since sufficient water cannot be procured to flood it, the authorities anticipate it must be left to burn itself out.

WILL CLOSE THE EXPOSITION.

Special Entertainments to Mark the End of Buffalo's Display.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 29.—This is farewell week at the Pan-American exposition, and, as such, will crowd all manner of entertainments into a few days.

Western New York will own the exposition on Wednesday. In addition, this will be exhibitors' day, and from all the various exhibits valuable and useful souvenirs will be distributed to the visitors.

Negotiations are in progress to secure a football game between teams of national reputation for the afternoon. Saturday, the last day of the city of light, will be fittingly celebrated. One of the events of farewell day will be a sham battle in the esplanade, the opposing forces being the regulars stationed at Fort Porter, and the Indians from the Indian congress, many of whom have participated in actual warfare upon the plains. This sham battle will be as realistic as any imitation can be.

Hails Czolgosz as a Martyr.

London, Oct. 30.—The anarchist clubs of London celebrated the electrocution of Czolgosz by "dances in honor of his noble death." Various groups met at their respective headquarters at a late hour last night and most of the gatherings did not disperse until four o'clock this morning, and after singing the "Carmagnole," all the meetings lustily cheered every mention of Czolgosz, whose portrait, draped in black and red, occupied the place of honor on the platforms. There were remarkable scenes on the dispersal of the clubs, groups of anarchists shouting "Vive La Republique," singing the "Carmagnole," dancing and shouting "Czolgosz, the brave." The police dispersed some of the groups. The increasing activity of the anarchists is occasioning some concern to Scotland Yard.

GOLDWIN SMITH DEFENDS GEN. BULLER

Says That He Acted to the Best of His Judgment

ROBERTS RELIEVED LADYSMITH

Buller Family in Devonshire Very Strong—Popular Feeling Aroused by People of Devonshire.

Goldwin Smith, writing in the Weekly Sun says:—When a Roman general returned from the field of a disastrous defeat he was received with honors as having done his duty to the Republic. When a Carthaginian general was defeated he was crucified. The conduct of the Roman, in contrast to that of his adversary, was the sure pledge of his ultimate victory. A Carthaginian general, seeing the day go against him, threw himself into the sacrificial fire leaving his army headless. A general or a military officer of any grade, so long as under trying circumstances he acts to the best of his judgment and ability, ought surely to be held blameless. To punish him for a mistake is to shake his nerve and that of all other generals or officers under the same trial. "Shooting an admiral" for a wrong move does not "encourage" but, on the contrary, discourages the rest. This remark applies to the cases of Buller and Schley, especially to that of Buller. Buller unquestionably acted to the best of his judgment, and at the risk of his personal reputation, when, learning, as he supposed, that the garrison of Ladysmith was unable to hold out longer, and finding that he was himself unable to relieve them, he sanctioned surrender on terms. The consequence of persecuting him for this will be that next time a general, though he may be certainly be informed that a garrison cannot hold out, will withhold leave to surrender on terms, and will thus lose a garrison as well as the place. After all, Ladysmith was relieved mainly by the progress of Lord Roberts' operations in another quarter. There were mistakes, and worse than mistakes, at Waterloo, but the Duke, with his usual good sense, forbade enquiry. He knew that you must in some measure take some chance of your men; that all cannot have the same head or the same nerve. The general result had been good, and the Duke closed the account. The Buller family is very strong in Devonshire, where the people are still clannish, and popular feeling is evidently aroused. The spectacle is not sublime nor likely to incline the enemy to submission.

HOW MANY BOERS ARE NOW LEFT?

A New Yorker Makes a Careful Calculation.

ESTIMATES THEM AT 30,000

But This Count is Evidently Greatly Exaggerated.

It Is a Case of the Wish Being Parent of the Thought—End of the War Not Yet in Sight.

New York, Oct. 31.—Gen. Pearson, Quartermaster-General of the Boer Army, now in Washington, says the two South African republics still have over 30,000 fighting men in the field. The [illegible], a very reputable paper, estimates the utmost possible enrolment of the Boer forces, from first to last, at 75,000 and believes that there are not over 10,000 now in the field. If Gen. Pearson's larger estimate of 30,000 men still fighting is correct it means that Dutch recruits from Cape Colony and Natal have reinforced the republican armies to the extent of 20,000 men or more.

The Boers have never officially stated their own losses. Kitchener has reported nearly 12,000 men deducted from the fighting strength of the Boers for the nine months that ended on Sept. 30 last. The British Government claims to hold about 38,000 Boer prisoners at the end of the first fifteen months of the war. According to British military reports about 1,500 Boers were killed in action, 3,000 died of camp diseases and 1,000 were taken prisoners by the Portuguese and sent to Lisbon in the first fifteen months of fighting. This accounts for 47,000 fighting Boers in all, without allowing any to have been disposed of by voluntary surrenders, which British reports put at 3,000 up to January 1, 1901. If there are 10,000 Boers still in arms, as the Statesman estimates, the total enrolment of the republican armies from first to last has been about 60,000 men. If the Boer Quartermaster-General is correct in his larger estimate of 30,000 Boers still fighting, the total number engaged in the conflict up to the present time is 80,000.

The total population of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State when the war began was 420,000. A liberal allowance of capable fighting men would be one in five of that total, which would give not quite the 85,000 fighting total which the Statesman estimates. But the Dutch population of Cape Colony and Natal is at least 300,000, giving another 60,000 possible recruits for the Boer armies. It is not therefore impossible that Gen. Pearson's larger estimate of 30,000 fighting Boers still in the field is correct.

Expelled from Prussia

Berlin, Oct. 30.—According to the local newspapers, Mr. Joseph Harringe, a well-known German-American war correspondent, who was present at the battle of Taku, has been expelled from Prussia, the ground alleged being evasion of military service a number of years ago.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 31 1901

A Western paper says: "Horseless carriages, wireless telegraphy, smokeless powder, hornless cattle, seedless raisins and brainless dudes have long been the vogue, but this year the fad seems to have taken hold of the farmers all over the country and they have raised earless corn." Our observation is that the hardy husbandman is rather wont to raise—for sale to the beautiful city sojourner—cornless ears.

A despatch from Pretoria says that a number of young Cape Colony rebels have taken to the field, but most of them are unarmed and they seem to spend most of their time very sensibly in keeping out of the way of the British columns. Fellows who live this sort of strenuous life on this continent are not considered rebels, they are called tramps.

De Wet has at last broken his long silence, and his letter to the Swiss lady will cover the English pro-Boers with confusion. In spite of all the talk in England about the barbaric treatment of prisoners, De Wet calmly writes newspaper reports of cruelty are false and that "both sides treat their prisoners with as much consideration as possible under the circumstances." The long wail about the concentration camps may now die away.

It is said that one-fifth of the townships have abandoned the statute labor system and many more will vote to abandon it at the January municipal elections. The jolly rolling spell will soon be a reminiscence.

THE NAPOLEON OF SPAIN

Madrid, Oct. 30.—Spain was roused from the Pyrenees to Gibraltar today by the report that General Weyler, the minister of war, intends to take advantage of the present turbulent political conditions and assume dictatorship.

During yesterday's sitting of the Spanish chamber of deputies, which proved sensational, Senor Romero Robledo skilfully led the minister of war, General Weyler, to define his attitude and intentions. General Weyler declared that while the war in Cuba lasted his views were totally distinct from those of the liberal party, but that when the war was at an end the motive for separation disappeared and he saw nothing to prevent his attaching himself to a liberal government.

"I have always faithfully observed discipline," he continued, "and he who talks of dictatorship is the enemy of discipline. Our recent manoeuvres have proved that good feeling exists between the people and the army. As for dictatorship, no one thinks of such a thing. Dictators are the offspring of circumstances.

"For myself I say this: I have never thought of being one, nor do I now. Nevertheless, if my aid were asked at a moment of gravity, I do not know how I should decide between my political and military duties, but I should always incline toward the latter.

Loud and prolonged uproar interrupted the minister of war and several of his ministerial colleagues were unable to restrain expressions of surprise at his words.

"I am a politician, and a liberal," he resumed, "but before all I am a soldier, and if it should become necessary I will defend our institutions and parliament."

Senor Romero rejoined: "I take note of the declarations of the minister of war and the subject of a dictatorship."

After attacking Senor Silvela, the conservative leader, for advocating an alliance between Spain and France, Senor Romero attacked General Weyler for inspecting the forts in the neighborhood of Gibraltar. He declared that these actions were "imprudent and dangerous as tending to create an apprehension in a powerful country which has always resented Spanish predominance in Morocco."

El Pias asserts that Senor Sagasta will shortly resign the premiership owing to ill health.

General Weyler's speech largely occupies public attention in view of the possibility that he may become premier if Senor Sagasta, whose health is indifferent, should find it necessary to retire. El Imparcial remarks that "a dark cloud constitute General Weyler since the debate."

The conservative press is unanimous in the opinion that it is with this man that the Spanish people must reckon if they should decide to upset the existing government. He is brave, unscrupulous and ambitious. He probably cares as little for the monarchy as he cares for humanity. If the opportunity arises he is quite capable of seizing the reins of government and setting himself up as dictator or selling the throne at auction to the highest bidder. In any event he will have a weighty voice in deciding the fate of the nation.

Don Valeriano y Weyler Nicolau is, and for a long time has been one of the most conspicuous figures in Spanish military history. Born in Palma de Majorca, Sept. 7, 1838, he entered the Collegio de Infanteria of Toledo at an early age and was soon recognized as a boy of promise. No sooner was he out of school than he was made a captain and sent to Cuba. Captain Weyler's conduct in Cuba on his first visit met with approval and he was sent to San Domingo to suppress the revolution there, where he was credited with deeds of great valor.

Then soon followed the attempt of Cuba to establish a republic and Count Valmaseda, the commanding general, sent Weyler there to suppress the insurgents. Weyler distinguished himself in the suppression of that rebellion. He was aggressive and relentless. At the age of 39 Weyler was given the rank of lieutenant general in the Canary Islands. His record in the Spanish peninsula during the Carlist war shed honor upon Spain's military history. His success caused him to be sent as captain general to the Philippine Islands. At the Philippines, in the suppression of the insurrection, he continued the methods he had successfully used in Cuba and with a like result.

Then came the Cuban rebellion. Campos was found inadequate for coping with the insurgents and the rebellion-suppressing Weyler was appointed commander in chief of the island and took up his headquarters in Havana. After eighteen months of ruthless warfare there he resigned, leaving the rebellion yet unsubdued.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I lub a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 95 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallen, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. B. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Hastead thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Bagtie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he had better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Hanly says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

ONE LAD AND LASSIE'S FATE.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

Hope Hallam wandered on, that beautiful October evening, between the royal purple and gold of the wild woods with autumn's wealth and autumn's waste on either hand.

It was good to be there—the old home among the pines—the pines themselves grand with the sun's rays falling like a halo about their proudly uplifted crests. Good to be here, and yet there was an ever present sense of something wanting.

For the first fifteen minutes of her walk Hope resisted this unwelcome sensation; for the next quarter of an hour she gave it room grudgingly and then she walked on oblivious of all the beauty around her.

Two weeks ago she had told herself that one may cultivate indifference until it becomes a disease, and she more than half suspected that she had done this. And now, at the first whisper of the pines, what had become of that so carefully cultivated indifference?

She had told herself that she detested Burns and his unreadable Scotch. But the lines that had nagged at her inner conscience and made life difficult for the last twenty-four hours were none other than:

The auld guidwife's well hoarded nits
Are round and round divided,
An' monie lads' and lassies' fates
Are there that night decided;
Some start awa' wi' saucy pride,
And burn thegither trimly;
Some start awa' wi' saucy pride,
And jump out owre the chimlie,
Fu' high that night.

"Well," she exclaimed, throwing up her head desperately, "I suppose it is only natural to think of such things on the last day of October."

"What things?" asked a masculine voice at her elbow.

Hope stiffened all over.

"I didn't know you were there," she remarked carelessly.

"I wasn't," he explained. "It is a case in the present tense."

"Oh," she commented.

They walked on in silence. Rather unfortunately, since it was a silence resolved to make them remember what both had resolved to forget.

Last Halloween they had walked down this lane together, but that was before they had burned those silly nuts together; they had not quarreled then and their hands had been better employed than at present. Also, the silence between them had been something better than constrained.

He was one of those fair-faced, cleft-chinned men who do what they determine to do, if it is nothing more than keep their mouth shut, and Hope knew it. But this is not what was troubling her. She wanted to meet him with a frank friendliness that should testify to her carefully cultivated indifference, and that blessed Burns and his everlasting "nits" threatened to leave her with no indifference to bear witness to.

Why couldn't she forget for just five minutes that they had ever burned those ill-fated nuts to-gether. It was absurd. In novels sentimental memories may form the warp and woof of a woman's life, but in reality, and with a business woman especially, the idea of a little affair of a year's standing tying one's tongue was ridiculous.

"The golden-rod is pretty, isn't it?" she remarked, resolutely cheerful.

"Very pretty," he agreed courteously.

"Autumn is a lovely time of the year," she continued, more vivacious than original.

"Extremely so," he assented absently.

Hope suddenly realised that her remarks were more worthy of a school girl than of a business woman.

"I was out on a big grain elevator the other day," she began.

He turned with interest.

"The one you drew the plans for last?"

"No," hurriedly, "another one."

"Do you do much of that?"

"A good deal. Father made a specialty of elevators, so, of course, I understand that department better than—" she broke off abruptly. Thoroughbred business women never talk shop. Besides this business her father had left her made the quarrel permanent.

The fair-faced man returned to his philosophical calm and switched off daisies' heads with heartless skill.

"What have you been doing lately?" she asked beginning to despair of eliminating the personal element.

"Mountains," he returned laconically.

"Are they good," she questioned.

"About like everything else that I have done this year," he returned cheerfully. "I've been in a better mood for wandering than working."

"You should have come to Chicago," she commented.

"Would it have done any good," he asked sharply.

"It is the great center for restless energy to find employment," she explained precisely.

He turned and looked at her carefully.

"Ah, I see," he remarked conclusively.

Hope stopped and stared down dreamily at the little brook. There was no reason why she should not go on talking about Chicago only—only that great, restless city, throbbing with ceaseless energy seemed almost impossible to believe in here in these dim southern woods with a glorious sunset dying away silently in the west. It was all very peaceful, but with her whole heart she longed to be back in Chicago—anywhere save in the presence of this strong, silent man, and the memories of that silly nut of hers that had first sprung away, then returned with a rush to burn to ashes beside his;

An' monie lads' and lassies' fates
Are there that night decided:

If she was not a business woman trained to take a logical view of everything she could find relief in detesting him for his stubborn silence. But she knew that once he had spoken earnestly and that he was not the man to repeat himself.

"If we cross over at once you will be able to look at my latest before the light fails," he suggested as he led the way toward the little bridge.

Hope followed with a pang at heart. How many, many happy hours had she spent in that wood-nestled studio watching him at his work. She glanced at the easel with tired eyes.

"Mountains," he had said. Rather a single mountain, grandly limbed and barren. Perpetual snow upon its peak; perpetual shadow upon its slopes. Its strong side storm-swept and stern. Nowhere a hint of sunshine save where the light fell soft and clear upon a dead butterfly with outspread, broken wings.

"Alone."

Hope struggled against the supreme desolation of the conception. She knew that he was standing near somewhere sharpening a pencil with mathematical precision.

"Alone—" looking down forever upon that dead Psyche at its feet.

"Oh, Harry, I can't——"

The knife and pencil disappeared and a firm hand checked her rush for the door.

"You don't enjoy looking at my picture," he said quietly. "How would you like to live it?"

"I have lived it," she replied, recklessly. "It's worse than it looks!"

"I know it is," he returned methodically closing the door behind them.

They started away nervously into the dim lighted woods. The air of that cool October evening seemed surcharged with eager fire. The man remained relentless. If she wanted to be with him she must come to him. And Hope, in spite of that difficult year in Chicago, was hard-headed.

When they reached the brook Harry pulled a couple of magnolia leaves and paused idly.

"Shall I launch them?" he asked.

"No," she said quickly.

"We ought to settle it."

"I prefer to settle it some other way."

"What other way?" he questioned relentlessly.

"Some surer way," she muttered.

Harry dropped the leaves as he had dropped the pencil.

"Hope," he said huskily, "I swore once that I would never ask you again."

"I know," she interrupted incoherently. "Don't do it. I'm going to do it anyway."

Again the firm hand closed on hers, but this time it did not release its hold to close a door. For it was as though all the doors of that old life had closed behind them and they had come out hand in hand upon the sunny upland of a gracious hope.

And one lad and lassie's fate was there that night decided.

DEATH OF PRINCE MURAT

New York, Oct. 29.—Prince Joachim Murat, who died yesterday at the Chateau de Chambly, in the department of the Oise, was born at Bordentown, N. J., in 1834. The prince, who was also the possessor of the titles of Prince of Cleves and Prince of Berg, was the grandson of Murat, King of Naples, and and of Queen Caroline, the sister of Napoleon I. His father, Prince Napoleon Lucien Charles, who died in 1878, spent many years in exile at Bordentown, N. J., with his uncle, Joseph Bonaparte, ex-King of Spain.

Prince Joachim accompanied his mother on her visit to France in 1848, when Louis Bonaparte, subsequently Emperor Napoleon, was elected as President of the French Republic.

The story of his father's marriage is a romantic one. Miss Caroline Fraser was the daughter of Major Fraser, a Scotchman and a soldier in the British army during the revolution, who, becoming enamoured of a beautiful young lady of Virginia, married her and went to South Carolina. The children of this marriage were three daughters and a son, all of whom went to Bordentown to live. One day Prince Lucien, who had secretly become acquainted with her, announced to his uncle, the former King Joseph, that he was about to marry a young lady of great beauty, but small fortune. The uncle declared that whoever married his scapegrace nephew would have to support him, a declaration which proved only too true.

There was an elopement by night to Trenton, where Prince Lucien married Miss Fraser, and returned with her to Bordentown. Joseph, true to his word, cut off his allowance. Mme. Murat had a few thousand dollars, and one of her sisters had $40,000, every penny of which they gave to Prince Lucien, who was not long in getting rid of it in gambling, betting on cockfights and horseracing, and drinking.

Mme. Murat was not the woman to sit quietly by and see her children, of whom there were now four, want for food and clothing, so she opened a school for young ladies, which was famous in its day and which for a while supported her husband prince and her family with some little degree of comfort. Mme. Murat loved the prince and felt that he had impoverished himself by incurring the ill will of his uncle in marrying her, so she divided her earnings equally between her family and her husband. The prince took his share with amiable condescension and soon got rid of it. Joseph offered to give Mme. Murat an annuity if she would close her school, but she declined his offer.

During their last days in Bordentown, the Murats were very poor. Sometimes they actually suffered for food, and neighbors used to aid them. At last brighter days came. Prince Lucien's cousin, Louis Napoleon, became President of France. Prince Lucien thought it might be worth while to visit Paris, so he set sail, leaving his wife and children behind him, for he had been able to borrow only enough money for one passage.

Fortune prospered, and he sent word for Mme. Murat to follow him with the children. This they did with the aid of borrowed money and dresses made by her kind friends. Then came the coup d'etat and the Empire. Never after were they in want. Mme. Murat lived to see the fall of Napoleon III, and when the republic was declared again Prince Lucien crossed to England where he died in 1878, at the age of seventy-five. His devoted wife survived him only one year, dying in Paris in 1879.

Prince Joachim was only eighteen years old when he went with his mother and her family to France.

A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACHACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and sideaches.

Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

MISS A. DEFOE.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

Miss Anna Defoe, a young lady whose address is 355 King street west, Toronto, recently wrote as follows:

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appitite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr, Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

A FIRST CLASS JOB.

The Bridge Over Chemong Lake Completed and Passed

Yesterday Warden Fitzgerald, County Engineer John E. Belcher, Wm. Anderson, chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee of the County Council, accompanied by the Government Engineer J. McCallum and Mr. McDermott, contractor, drove out to Bridgenorth and inspected the new bridge over the lake. It was the final inspection before paying over the balance of the money to the contractors.

The bridge had been all planked since the formal opening a month or so ago. The planks have been placed lengthways, which makes it easy for rigs, being very smooth.

Mr. McCallum congratulated Mr. Belcher and the County Council on the splendid work done, which is the best of its kind to be found anywhere. Messrs Bogue & McDermott, the contractors, are deserving of great praise for the way they handled the job.

Indian Summer.

(By our Junior Reporter.)

O glorious Indian summer,
We hail you on your way,
Why can't you, gentle maiden,
Take off your things and stay?

Too bloomin' hot was August,
July was also rough,
September had its failings,
But you are just the stuff.

Fair girl of gold and crimson,
Your presence brings good cheer;
Write to your folks and tell 'em
That you will stay a year. B. B.

BUGLE BAND MEETS.

Regular Weekly Practice on Monday—A Good Turn Out.

The bugle band held their regular weekly practice on Monday evening last and with but two exceptions the full call was squared. The boys are maintaining the same interest in the band as taken previous to the trip to Toronto, and are practising hard at new, up-to-date and lively marches for next season's parades. The harmonious working of the band, coupled with the present progress made, will see them gazetted next spring, as one of the finest bugle and drum corps in line. Applications are continuously being made to the bugle major for positions in the band, but have to be refused owing to lack of instruments. The membership at the present time comprises 18 buglers and 5 drummers, rather a slim aggregation for a regiment of such strength and distinction. A regiment to be alive, active and up-to-date must support a bugle band of strength in proportion with the regiment and capable of being heard from the first to last company on parade, as there is no music "outside of the bagpipes" that makes a soldier cut loose and step out as does the thrilling, breezy marches of a bugle and drum band. At the close of the practice the boys decided on obtaining quarters, more centrally located, for the winter months, where they can at any time enjoy a sociable evening and keep up a more continuous practice than where they are at present. A committee was appointed to look after the interests of the band. The officers appointed for the ensuing year are: Hon.-Pres., Major Miller; Pres., Capt. Adjt. Wagner; Vice-Pres., Quarter Master Sergt. Brundrett; Sec., Bugler Williams; Treas. Drummer Thornton. Members are requested to bring in their uniform on Monday evening next, when the regular practice will be held.

A Watered Sixpence

A beggar boy asked an old gentleman in the street for a sixpence.

"What will you do with it if I give you one?" asked the old gentleman.

"Turn it into ninepence quick," replied the boy.

"How?"

"Give me the tanner and I'll show yer."

The boy got the money, darted off to a baker's shop and bought a threepenny loaf, with which he returned to the old gentleman and handed him back three pennies.

"How's this? You said you'd make sixpence into ninepence."

"So I 'ave. The baker's got threepence, you've got threepence, and I've got a three penny loaf. That's ninepence."—Tit-Bits.

A True Nerve Tonic

acts not so much upon the nerves themselves, as upon the digestive functions, and the abundant formation of rich, red blood. The nerves cannot be fed on medicine. They can be fed and strengthened by digested and assimilated food. Ferrozone's marvellous action arises from its power over the digestive and assimilative functions of the body. You take it, the blood grows richer, redder. You feel strength and vigor, digestion ceases to be noticed, for it has become good. Work is easier, for you have the strength to do it. In a short time you have health. Use Ferrozone. Price 50c. at Ormond & Walsh's.

THE PROTESTANT HOME

ANNUAL MEETING IN CONNECTION WITH INSTITUTION

The Yearly Reports of Protestant Home Submitted and Officers Elected for the Ensuing Year

The annual meeting of the ladies who conduct the affairs of the Peterborough Protestant Home was held Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance. Mrs. Vernon occupied the chair.

The report of the secretary, Mrs. Miller, was presented as follows:

In presenting the annual report of the Peterborough Protestant Home, we would again express our gratitude to God for His care and protection during the past year. During the year thirtyone persons have been provided with a home. Some of these have been inmates for many years, while others were in but a short time. There was just one death during the year.

It is with regret that we report the death, last April, of Miss Londerville, who for some years discharged the duties of matron so faithfully. Miss Fraser was appointed in her place, and has proved herself very efficient.

We wish to thank all those who have in any way contributed to the welfare of the Home, particularly the clergymen and physicians who have given so freely of their time to the inmates, also the editors of the different papers for their kindness in inserting notices of our work and wants, also to Sheriff Hall, and Mr. F. E. Bell, for auditing the books.

We would again ask that more ladies would take an interest in the work. At present there are very few who attend the meetings, and the committee would gladly welcome representatives from the different churches.

M. MILLER, Secretary.

The report was adopted.

Miss Roger, the treasurer, then submitted the following statement:

OVER THE RIVER.

Breezy Items Gathered in Ashburnham by Times Reporters.

Everybody in Ashburnham reads the Times.

—What's the matter with the Civic Association? Isn't it about time that it was getting its work in? It may have shared the fate of the Common Weal Society, and died of ennui.

—Our enterprising merchant, Mr. Wm. Collins, has been "housecleaning" and improving his store. He has had it painted and new counters put in. Billy is sure to keep on the top of the heap.

—Mr. David Conroy, our local philanthropist, has turned the old wreck, at the corner of Elizabeth and Lake streets, into a very handsome residence.

—Our local brewery is doing a large and increasing business. Ashburnham is justly celebrated for its lift lock and its lager. If you don't believe it, just ask George Lignett.

—Mr. E. A. Peck's beautiful new residence is an ornament to the village.

—The removal of the old Mowry foundry, will do away with an old landmark.

—The brewery has had about 200 cords of wood brought up from the lower parts.

—It is quietly whispered that Ald. John Smith, our local politician and purveyor of single tax theories, has his eye on the Reeveship. John would make a capital chief magistrate, as he has had long experience at the Council board, and is otherwise qualified.

—It is rumored that another steamer will be put in the stocks this winter to accomodate the business of the lower waters. The idea is, we believe, to have a morning as well as an afternoon boat to Idyl Wyld, the prettiest of all our summer resorts.

MR. BARRIE'S DAMAGES

He is Awarded $[illegible] for His Loss by Fire Last Winter.

The following judgment of local interest has been handed down by Justice Street in the Trial Court, Osgoode Hall:

Barrie vs. Aetna Insurance Co—Judgment (L) in action tried in Toronto with six other actions by the same plaintiffs against different insurance companies, brought to recover $3,000, the amount secured by defendant's policy of insurance against loss of goods by fire, issued to plaintiff Barrie, with loss, if any, payable to plaintiff Alexander. The plaintiff Barrie is a merchant doing business in the Town of Peterborough, and defendants alleged that owing to misrepresentation as to amount of the loss the policy is void, under the 15th statutory condition, and that the policy is also void by reason of misrepresentation by plaintiff Barrie, as to the value of his stock at the time of the issue of the policy, which is therefore void under the first statutory condition because of misrepresentation of a circumstance material to be made known to defendants to enable them to judge of the risk to be undertaken. The value of the goods destroyed was alleged to be $3,061.38. Held, that the charge of fraud failed, and that the plaintiff is entitled to recover under the general law the actual market value of the goods destroyed, or the diminution of that value resulting from the fire in the case of damage. The plaintiff Barrie, and his advisers, have, however, misconceived his duty after the fire. Under the general law, and also R. S. O., ch. 203, sec. 145, sub-sec. 2, it was his duty to secure as soon as practicable the insured property from further damage, and separate the damaged goods from those uninjured, and to notify the insurer of the separation. He failed to do this. Moreover, instead of making a careful detailed estimate of the loss in the gentlemen's furnishing department, as he might easily have done, he took the opinion of a number of persons who made a cursory examination as to the percentage of damage it had sustained. The same course was pursued in regard to the whole stock, and although he took stock after the fire, and before his sale began, his stock book shows no indication whatever that the slighest effort was made by him to ascertain the details of his loss. Upon the evidence these shortcomings were due to incorrect and injudicious advice and he has not been guilty of fraud, but the result is that it is difficult to ascertain the real loss; but after a careful analysis of the evidence and finding as to the loss in detail, the plaintiffs are entitled to recover a total sum of $1685, with costs of action. G. Tate Blackstock, K.C., and R. McKay, for plaintiffs; S. H. Blake, K.C., and L. G. McCarthy, for defendants.

KIMBALL WANTS FREEDOM

He Writes an Amusing Letter to Chief Rossel

Chief Rossel received the following letter from Eric Kimball, who was sent to the Reformatory for an indefinate period for stealing money from Mr. Jackson, of the Crown Hotel:

Peterborough Reformatory
For Boys, Oct.27th, 1901

Mr. Chief Rossel, Peterborough, Police station.

Dear Sir,—I now take the pleasure in writing a few lines to let you know how I am getting along at the present time. We have not had school for two weeks as our teacher is sick.

We had snow here on the 17th of this month, but we are now having fine weather at the present time. My trade is school in the morning and tailor shop in the afternoon, but I have not been working very much lately.

We play football, lacrosse, baseball and many other games.

I would like you to try and get me out if you can. I will be here a year on February 19th. I have been here 8 months and 8 days, and I would like for you to try and get me out. I will promise that I will never take anything that does not belong to me, and when I get out I am going to work with a farmer or at home.

If you see any of my family tell them to send me a neckerchief, pair of mitts, and to send them with the other things that I wrote for in a pervious letter.

How are things getting a long in the town? I would lake to be home soon.

All of the English church boys have been confirmed, and I have to do what is right. I chum with Jessy Arris ever since I have been here.

For our breakfast we get bread and coffee, for dinner, potatoes, meat, bread and water, for supper, bread and coffee, and every other night we get corn meal and milk.

I think this is all for this time, so good-bye. Answer soon.

ERIC KIMBALL.

Jessie Airris referred to in the above epistle was sentenced some time last winter to a term in the Reformatory for stealing money from the Y.M.C.A.

HORROR OF TRAGEDY GROWS

Michigan Slayer's Victims Are Five Instead of Four.

Crystal Falls, Mich., Oct. 29.—Later details from the scene of the Beechwood tragedy show that it was the most revolting in the history of the upper peninsula. Instead of four, as reported last night, there were five victims:—

Andrew Israelson, who committed the crime.

Mrs. Andrew Israelson, his wife.

Andrew Lindstrom, his father-in-law.

Mrs. Amanda Lindstrom, his mother-in-law.

Minnie Lindstrom, his sister-in-law.

It appears that Lindstrom was shot and killed first by the maniac, who then turned his rifle on the three women as they ran screaming from the house. The aged mother-in-law was killed on the doorstep, the sister-in-law a few feet away in the garden and the wife ten feet distant from the spot where her sister fell. One shot only was necessary to kill each of the maniac's victims.

After the family was wiped out the murderer draged the body of the mother-in-law into the house, which he set on fire. Then, walking out to the yard, Israelson put a bullet through his head, and fell dead at the side of his wife. The house and the two bodies in it were entirely consumed.

THE RICE MURDER TRIAL PRISONER BROKE DOWN

County Constable Says That Neither Jones Nor Rutledge Shot Boyd

APPEAL TO THE JURY'S FEELINGS BY DEFENCE

Rice's Counsel Declares That the Death of Jones and Suicide of Rutledge Have Paid Sufficiently for Boyd's Murder

The trial of Fred Rice for the murder of Constable William Boyd entered upon its most interesting stage yesterday afternoon, when Rice entered the witness stand to give evidence on his own behalf. The prisoner gave his testimony with an air of frankness which seemed to impress the jury, and certainly made an impression with the audience. He told the story of his birth in Champaign, Ill., and his education at the State University there. Tracing his early history from the time of his arrest and imprisonment in the Colorado State Penitentiary, for forgery, he moved on in his story up till the afternoon of June 4th, when he, with Rutledge and Jones, left in the cab with Constables Boyd and Stewart for Toronto jail.

He explained how he, shackled to the other two, sat on the back seat, he opposite Boyd and Rutledge opposite Stewart, as the package of revolvers came flying in the window at the corner of Sumach and Gerrard streets, of which he knew nothing, and of which he said he had been told nothing by Jones or Rutledge.

At this part of the evidence, on the suggestion of Mr. Robinette, Constable Stewart was called, and Detective Forest, who represented Jones as the tallest, was handcuffed in the center to Rice at the left, and Constable McIlwain on the right. It was then shown that by the freedom given in the handcuffs Jones would have opportunity to seize a revolver and fire.

Resuming, Rice told of the tussle for the package between Stewart and Rutledge. When the struggle started Boyd seized Rice by the arm and Jones pressed back in the seat and pulled Rice back with him. Then, Rice said, "Boyd let go my arm, put his foot against my chest, drew his revolver, and shot Jones. Immediately after there was another shot from my right, and I saw that Boyd was killed. As the second shot was fired Jones handed me his revolver and said, 'I'm hit.'"

In his cross-examination by Mr. Guthrie, Rice said that he fired when he got outside the hack because he had the natural instinct to escape. He denied being left-handed, and also that he told the hackman to hurry up on the night of the shooting. He denied that any raid on Canadian towns was planned, but admitted having copied a list of Canadian towns and their banks. He came to Canada to see the races at the Woodbine, although he did not go to the track. The reason why the trio, when captured in Chicago, were armed with revolvers, was that Chief Kipley of Chicago had advised all citizens to protect themselves from the reign of thugs then rampant.

STEWART RECALLED

One of the principal events in this morning's continuation of the trial was the recalling of Constable Stewart to give rebuttal evidence, the questions being asked by Crown Attorney Guthrie.

You heard the evidence given yesterday by Rice, that Boyd put his foot on Rice's chest and pushed him back?

I did.

Is that so?

It is not.

You heard Rice say that Rutledge put his shoulder against Stewart and forced his head towards the window?

Yes.

Is that so?

It is not.

Did Rutledge shoot Boyd?

He did not.

Did Jones shoot Boyd?

He did not.

Would you have seen either of the two if they had shot him?

Yes.

Did Boyd draw a pistol in the hack?

He did not.

Did he fire a shot in the hack?

No.

Then, having heard the evidence yesterday, let me ask you who did it?

"I object," said Mr. Robinette. "This evidence is merely rebuttal, and that question cannot be answered."

"The objection is sustained."

With these four words the last bit of evidence in the trial was at an end.

The court room was crowded, and many worked themselves off as budding lawyers, carried a black bag, and slipped past the doorkeepers. There were several ladies in court.

MISS BOYD TESTIFIES

Miss Blanche Boyd, a daughter of the deceased constable, was called by Crown Prosecutor Guthrie as the first witness, to rebut the evidence given yesterday by Rice that Boyd drew a revolver from his pocket and shot Jones. Miss Boyd was dressed in black. She gave her address as [illegible] Wellesley street. She was living at home on the evening of June 4 last. Her father owned a revolver, which he kept in the top drawer of the dresser. She looked for it the day after the tragedy, and it was still there. Her brother, who came over from Chicago, took the weapon away with him, and still has it. He had not sent the revolver back. He was not able to appear, as he is ill with typhoid fever.

Two cartridges she found in the bureau drawer were produced.

"The caliber?" asked Mr. Guthrie.

"Thirty-two, I think."

She was at home when her father's clothes were returned from the hospital after his death, and there was no revolver returned with them. She thought her father's revolver was a 32-caliber.

Cross-examined by Mr. Robinette, she said she saw her father with the revolver on the Sunday preceding the tragedy, and she did not know whether her father got a revolver the night of the tragedy or not.

Miss Mamie Boyd corroborated her sister's evidence as to seeing the revolver in the dresser the day following the tragedy.

It only took twenty minutes to examine Walter Stewar and the Misses Boyd.

ADDRESS FOR DEFENCE.

At half-past ten Mr. Robinette commenced to address the jury, to plead for the life of that young fellow sitting in the dock. Rice sat with his right arm over the dock rail, more anxious, more in earnest, than ever. He hadn't much to look forward to—21 years in penitentiary—but life is sweet, and Rice leaned forward eyeing his counsel and following the address most carefully.

Mr. Robinette's address to the jury was a splendid effort. Cool and deliberate, he weighed every word well, and made all his points strongly.

Mr. Robinette contended that there were several apparent discrepancies between Crown witnesses as to Constable Stewart and his parting with his revolver, and he pressed these alleged discrepancies home for half an hour. On the question as to whether Stewart gave up his revolver to Rutledge before the trio left the hack or not much hinges. Rice's story is that Boyd shot Jones in the groin in the hack and that immediately after Boyd himself was shot by Jones or Rutledge. Stewart's story is that he shot Jones in the groin after they had left the hack. If Stewart shot Jones after Jones left the hack, he must have had a revolver.

After reviewing the discrepancies in the evidence as to when Stewart parted with his weapon Mr. Robinette drew attention to the fact that Rutledge was a desperate man, and that he was not likely to have left Stewart in the cab with a gun in his hands or pockets.

Then Mr. Robinette pointed out that Hackman Highly said he saw a revolver in the bottom of the hack after he drove to the hospital with Boyd. If this story is accurate, this revolver might have been the weapon which Rice said Boyd drew on Jones. The Crown has endeavored to show it was a pipe which was recovered from the cab.

HOW MANY SHOTS?

Mr. Robinette reviewed the difference in the witnesses as to the number of shots fired in the cab. Constable Stewart swore there was one shot fired in the cab, and the number as given by the other witnesses runs all the way up as high as five.

"Cruttenden of yesterday made a falsifier of Cruttenden of June 7th," said Mr. Robinette, further attacking Mr. Cruttenden's evidence about seeing a revolver in Rutledge's hand. "and this evidence about the revolver is the rotten core which permeates all his evidence," further argued the counsel for the defence.

The discrepancy between the witnesses as to who shot back into the hack was pointed out.

Producing the two revolvers of 44 and 45 caliber, Mr. Robinette said: "Either of these revolvers might have killed Boyd—the one in the hands of Rutledge or the one in the hands of Rice, for the doctors who found the bullet in Boyd's head swore that it might be a 44 or 45 caliber. The fact that Constable Stewart testified that he turned his head when Boyd was shot was noted.

AN APPEAL TO SENTIMENT.

Mr. Robinette then began to play on the feelings of the jury, drawing a picture of Rice's long sentence in the penitentiary, a silent city of the dead, he called it. Then he drew a picture of the prisoner's aged mother and her home, whence she wrote that she would remain on her knees praying as long as the trial continued. At this point the prisoner broke down and wept, as did several of the jurors and spectators. He wound up: "Why avenge now? Has not a higher power than ours disposed of this case? Three are now in the grave, and two lives have already been given for one."

This afternoon the Crown Counsel and his Lordship will deliver their addresses, and the case will go to the jury.

UNCLE SAM'S INCONSISTENCY

An Action by the United States That Seems Almost Incredible

New York, Nov. 1.—Who would have believed it both possible, after reading the American denunciations of Spain's concentration policy in Cuba in 1897 and 1898, that within three years American generals would be applying it in the Philippines? Yet the unexpected has come to pass. In Samar the strictest orders have been given for the entire population of the island to concentrate in towns, accompanied by the threat that any one found outside them will be shot or hung as an enemy of the American people. Any man who should have dared in 1898 to prophesy such a state of affairs would have been denounced far and wide as a slanderer of the United States, and been informed that the American flag never had covered and never would cover such infamy. Now, however, the situation has changed, and it is almost impossible to get those newspapers which were most outspoken in their denunciations of Spanish misrule to discuss the situation in the Philippines. When they are forced to comment upon it by such mishaps as the recent disasters in Samar, it is only to assure their readers, as did the New York Times recently, that the situation in Luzon is satisfactory.

DR. SHUTTLEWORTH RESIGNS.

Will Leave Guelph to Join Beet Sugar Syndicate.

Toronto, Nov. 1.—Dr. A. E. Shuttleworth, professor of chemistry at the Ontario Agricultural College, has resigned his position to accept that of agricultural superintendent and chemical expert for the Ontario Sugar Company, the large beet sugar syndicate recently formed. Prof. Shuttleworth has conducted the tests of sugar beets for the Government, and has given instructions to the farmers on the growing of them, and will perform the same duties for the private corporation.

The Ontario Cabinet yesterday accepted the resignation, and appointed Professor Harcourt, who has been his associate for some years, to his chair at Guelph.

CABLE TO AUSTRALIA

The Connecting Links to be Opened at Once to Durban

New York, Nov. 1.—Word was received to-day at the headquarters of the Western Union Cable company announcing the opening of the new cable connecting Durban, Natal, with Pekin, Western Australia. In addition to facilitating the traffic with Australia the new line opens up cable communication with several groups of islands hitherto inaccessible except through the mails. Among the more important points touched by the new line are Rodriguez and the Cocos Islands. The rate to these points is $1.11 a word from this city.

Special from Norwich Ont.

The recent recovery of Mr. Norman Batty, Hardware Merchant, one of Norwich's oldest and most successful citizens, has excited much comment. For years Mr. Batty has been an unceasing sufferer from Catarrhal Asthma and although no end of time and money was spent relief was not obtained until Mr. Batty commenced Catarrhozone treatment which perfectly cured him. This case is only equalled by that of Mrs. Bannon, wife of J. J. Bannon, druggist, who was also cured of Asthma and Hay Fever by Catarrhozone after thirty years' suffering. Fully a hundred persons in this town have been cured of Catarrhal troubles by Catarrhozone, which is a remarkable proof of its value. Two months' treatment, Price $1. Small size 25c. Sold by all Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co.

RANKS WITH ROCKEFELLER

Montreal Shoemaker Claims to be Heir to $125,000,000

Montreal, Nov. 1.— David Jennings, a Montreal shoemaker, claims to have established his right to an immense fortune in England. Jennings, who is 72 years old, and has a large family, left Montreal in September last for England to establish his identity as the heir of Humphrey Jennings, and put in a claim for several millions of pounds which he believed to be lying in the Bank of England awaiting the rightful claimants.

A letter has been received from him by one of his sons stating that the English courts recognized him as the legitimate and rightful heir, and the obtaining of the property was now a certainty. The estate is said to value twenty-seven million pounds but the story lacks confirmation.

Irish Roughly Treated

Dublin, Nov. 1.—A force of constabulary broke up a United Irish league demonstration at Kilmain, County Mayo, yesterday, though the meeting had not been proclaimed. The police refused to allow John O'Donnell, M. P., of Peter Reagan, a league organizer to speak; William Redmond was thrown about and Mr. O'Donnell was assaulted and dragged through the street. Mr. Reagan's hand was broken by a blow from a constable's baton, and a dozen men, women and children were trampled on or clubbed.

COSTS OF CHINESE WAR.

French Government Authorizes a Loan to Reimburse Expedition

Paris, Nov. 1.—The cabinet to-day approved the bill authorizing the loan of 265,000,000 francs in 3 per cent perpetual rentes to reimburse the treasury for its outlay as a result of the Chinese expedition and to pay indemnities to sufferers in connection with the expedition. Simultaneously with the issue of these rentes the minister of finance, M. Caillaux, will cancel rentes to an equal amount deposited in the public deposit funds, which will receive in exchange Chinese securities.

TURKEY REJECTS RESPONSIBILITY

Government Will Resist American Claim for Repayment of Ransom

NOT IN THE TURKISH DISTRICT

Miss Stone Was Warned of Danger and Did Not Notify The Authorities of Her Intentions.

Constantinople, Oct. 31.— The Turkish Government is already preparing to resist the anticipated demand of the United States for repayment of the ransom necessary to secure the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the abducted American missionary. The Porte repudiates all responsibility for the kidnapping of Miss Stone, and maintains that the United States has no claim against Turkey, and that therefore the latter is justified in refusing to recoup the United States for the money expended in her rescue.

A high Turkish official this morning informed a representative of the Associated Press that the Turkish resistance of any claims would be based upon these contentions; First, that Miss Stone, although warned of the dangers of the road, persisted in travelling; second, that she did not notify the authorities of her intention, in order to obtain an escort, which precaution even the foreign Consuls always take when travelling in such outlying insecure districts of the empire; and third, that the brigands who kidnapped Miss Stone and her companion were Bulgarians, that the coup was planned in Bulgaria, and that the sanctuary was found in Bulgarian territory.

RECEPTION FOR MISS STONE.

New York, Oct. 31.—Americans are preparing a reception for Miss Stone upon her release, says a Sofia, Bulgaria, correspondent of The Journal and Advertiser. It is believed that Miss Stone will be able to be present at Philippopolis on November 6 at the dedication of the new American church there. After that she will doubtless go to the United States to see her relatives.

THE REALM OF SPORT

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 1.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the meeting of the new California Hockey Club at Oakland to-morrow, which will inaugurate the season of winter racing on the coast. For several weeks past the stables have been filled with fast horses shipped from the East and the outlook is promising for a successful meeting.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 1.— Keen interest is manifested in sporting circles in the boxing show to be pulled off to-night by the Empire Athletic club. The star event on the card is a twenty-round bout between "Jack" Beauscholte of Chicago and Marvin Hart of Louisville. The two men have been training industriously and reports from their respective training quarters to-day say they are in the pink of condition. The preliminary will be furnished by Steve Crosby and "Young" Walcott. George Siler is here from Chicago to act as referee.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 1.—A good card has been provided for the boxing show of the Salt Lake Athletic Club to-night. The wind-up will be a twenty-round go at 135 pounds between Roy Condie and Clem Turville. Both men have good records behind them, and a lively contest is expected.

BRITAIN'S NATIONAL DEBT

Not as Great as It Was After the Napoleonic Wars.

London, Nov. 1.—There has recently been printed in England an interesting summary of the national debt of this country. The great debt of England was incurred during the Napoleonic wars, when the English Government spent money with a free hand, not only in maintaining its own army and navy, but in liberally subsidizing the military operations of its continental allies. It was assumed at the close of the Napoleonic wars that the country had a debt which would go far toward paralyzing its industrial development, and for a number of years after that time, in consequence of currency troubles, not altogether dissimilar from those encountered in the United States in the years that followed the Civil War, the debt tended to grow larger instead of smaller. Thus the largest national debt that England ever had was in the year 1816, when it amounted to the enormous sum of £952,000,000. From that point onward the effort was made to take steps towards reducing this national obligation. There were years in which this effort was unsuccessful, but on the whole the attempt was creditably held to, so that in the year 1899 the national debt of the United Kingdom had been reduced to the sum of £635,000,000; that is, the English debt in two-thirds of a century had been reduced by more than $1,000,000,000. Since 1899, however, the debt has increased, and in March of the present year it had been raised to the dimensions of £706,000,000, an addition due to the great expense attending the war in South Africa, a national undertaking which is likely to materially add to the debt before peace is declared.

KING SEEKS CURE IN ITALY

Britain's Ruler Will Spend Part of the Winter in San Remo.

Milan, Nov. 1.—An English court courier arrived at San Remo yesterday to take a house for King Edward, who will spend half of January, February and March there. The courier will probably take the Villa Dirio, where Emperor Frederick stayed the winter before his death. San Remo is noted as the driest place in the Riviera and is specially recommended for sufferers from throat affections. This more than political reasons probably guided the selection of San Remo in preference to any place in French Riviera.

King Edward to-day personally conferred the insignia of various orders on 250 to 300 officers and others recently decorated. The investiture, which was held in St. James' palace, was attended by all the state ceremonial for which the King is such a stickler.

While the route between St. James' palace, and Marlborough House is only a few hundred yards long, King Edward disappointed the crowds to-day by driving from his residence to the palace and back in an entirely closed carriage. The King looked aged and pallid. An incident which evoked some comment was the presence of Sir Francis Laking, the king's physician, at St. James palace to-day. Sir Francis left the palace and drove to his home opposite Marlborough House, just before His Majesty returned there.

Earl Russell Married

London, Oct. 31.—Earl Russell and Mrs. Somerville were married at the Registry Office in London this morning. Earl Russell, it will be remembered, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment by the House of Lords for bigamy, having re-married in the United States after obtaining there a divorce from his English wife. The House of Lords held that an American divorce did not apply to a marriage contracted on British soil. Lord Russell having served his term of imprisonment and secured a British divorce, has again married.

FRANCE'S PATIENCE EXHAUSTED WITH SULTAN OF TURKEY

Battleships and Troops Have Been Sent to the Levant

MAY SEIZE THE CUSTOMS.

Bombardment of Smyrna is Even Spoken of in Case the Turks should Resist—Do not Want Bloodshed.

Paris, Oct. 31.—"The entire French Mediterranean squadron left yesterday afternoon," says the Toulon correspondent of the Figaro. "While one division put in at Salins d'Hyeres, another, composed of three battleships and two cruisers, under the command of Admiral Caillarde, proceeded to the Levant. Two thousand troops will be added to this force. Admiral Caillarde's orders are that, if complete satisfaction is not immediately given by the Ottoman Government to all the claims of France, he shall seize the customs house of the port nearest his squadron. It is believed his destination is the Island of Mitylene. The island commands the entrance to the Dardanelles and the Gulf of Smyrna. Several morning papers confirm the Figaro's Toulon advices. Rumors to the same effect were current in Paris late last evening, but the Foreign Office professed to know nothing about the matter."

OFFICIALS STATEMENT

A Foreign Office official in commenting the foregoing to the correspondent here of the Associated Press, said:

"The squadron sailed with sealed orders and proceeds first to a Greek port—the island of Syra, I think—where the admiral will receive definite instructions as to carrying out his sealed orders. I am not at liberty to say what the sealed orders are, but the seizure of the customs at Smyrna would probably be a very effective way of convincing the Sultan that France's patience is exhausted, and that we have decided to enforce an immediate execution of the Turkish Government's engagements. We, however, are very hopeful that the Sultan will not compel us to go to that extreme. Our squadron will not reach the Greek port before Sunday. The Turkish Government has thus still three days' grace, and we trust in the meantime to receive complete satisfaction. We have acted very considerately towards Turkey, hoping up to the last moment that she would carry out her engagements, and it is only now when we find that there is no serious indication of her doing so, that we have reluctantly resolved to put strong pressure to bear, in the shape of a naval demonstration. It is now two months since the French Ambassador, M. Constans, left Constantinople. His departure failed to produce the desired effect. On the contrary, even the quays and Lubbal questions which the Sultan's irades purported to settle, remain open."

"The internal situation in the Turkish Empire deterred us for some time from taking drastic measures to enforce our demands. But the dignity of France could not permit the present state of affairs to be prolonged indefinitely. We sincerely hope the Sultan will fully appreciate the fact that we cannot any longer be trifled with, and relieve us of taking further steps to safeguard our interests."

The official was asked what would happen if the Turkish authorities resisted, and he replied:

"That is a very unlikely contingency. But if it occurred I suppose we shall have to bombard the port. But we do not want bloodshed, and I do not believe there will be any occasion for it to occur."

MAJOR ROSS CAPTURES BOER TRAIN WRECKERS

Gallant Canadian and His Command Active in South Africa

"MAKE BEST POSSIBLE TERMS WITH BOERS"

National Review Publishes the Text of Buller's Despatch to White —Fresh Troops from Aldershot

London, Oct. 31.—The text of General Buller's message to White counselling surrender, as published in the November National Review, differs materially from the General's version of the matter in his recent speech to the Queen's Westminster Volunteers. The despatch published by the Review in part as follows:

"I have been repulsed. You will burn your ciphers. You will destroy all your ammunition. You will then make the best terms you can with the Boers after I have fortified myself on the Tugela."

During his speech at Westminster General Buller said he believed that he had reason to believe that a telegram purporting to have been sent from him to General White was in the hands of some magazine editor but the name of the magazine was not specified. The editor of the Review claims that he got the despatch from a civilian who was in Ladysmith at the time of the siege.

The Morning Leader, which supports Buller, denounces the telegram published as a forgery.

MAJOR ROSS ACTIVE.

Pretoria, Oct. 31.—During the past four days two hundred and fifty Boers have been accounted for by the British. Major Ross with his Canadian Scouts captured 17 train wreckers while attached to General Williams' mobile column, after a long chase and a night surprise.

DYNAMITE MATERIAL.

London, Oct. 31.—The German steamer Herzog, whose owners were given damages by Great Britain arising from her unlawful detention early in the war, has returned to Hamburg with a cargo of saltpetre, having failed in an attempt to land the explosive in Portuguese territory, where the Boers have a large dynamite factory.

FRESH CAVALRY.

London, Oct. 31.—The authorities at Aldershot have received instructions to prepare a brigade of cavalry for active service in South Africa. The fresh troops will start early next month.

CAPTURED A SPY.

Cape Town, Oct. 30. — A spy of the enemy has been captured travelling between Stormberg and Burghersdorp wearing the uniform of Remington's Guides.

A portion of the telegraphic line from Cape Town to Port Elizabeth via George Aventeur, and Humansdorp has been damaged by the Boers.

SAW MISS STONE KIDNAPED

LETTER FROM HUSBAND OF WOMAN WHO IS WITH HER.

Bandits Surrounded Missionary Band and Chose the Two Women as Hostages.

New York, Oct. 31.—The Rev. Howard A. M. Briggs, pastor of the Waverly Congregational Church in Beacon avenue, Jersey City, received the following letter yesterday from Gregory M. Tsilka, a missionary, giving an account of the capture of his wife and Miss Stone by Bulgarian brigands on Oct. 1:

"Salonica, Turkey, Oct. 8.

"My Dear Briggs,—On Tuesday, 1st, a week ago, a large party of us were travelling from Bansko to Djumaja. On our way we found ourselves surrounded by a band of armed men, about thirty in number, all armed with the latest rifles however. They demanded our surrender and then made us climb up a thick forest, stopping here and there to examine the place. After half an hour or so more we were ordered to sit down. Then they chose Miss Stone, an American missionary, and my wife and taking two of our horses they went further in while they kept us, the rest, till the very morning so that we could not go and report to the Government.

"Just at the time, before taking the ladies, we had to witness a most terrible thing. They had captured at the same time, a little before or after—we don't know—a Turk and, while they tied his hands back, and they were beating him with the backs of their rifles, and finally, taking his own knife, they stabbed seven times and he fell dead.

"For a long time we had to wait and hear nothing. Oh, the agony and the sleepless nights that we have spent waiting and watching and no answer! Finally we got a letter telling us that the reason of their capture was to get money. They demand more than a hundred thousand dollars. It is a very large sum and it seems impossible to get it.

"I am confident that our friends in America will do all in their power. Pray for us. When my wife gets free you shall have a long story of her experiences. God grant her freedom!

"I would have written sooner but I have been in the hands of the Government, being examined and cross-examined almost every day. Many people have suffered terribly on this account. Some have been beaten to death with the hope that before they died they would tell where the missionaries are. The inhabitants all around the place where they were captured are in prison, or have run away and deserted their homes. Your friend,

"GREGORY M. TSILKA."

The Rev. George M. Tsilka and the Rev. Mr. Briggs were members of the class of 1900, Union Theological Seminary. Mr. Tsilka and his wife are Albanians. They came to this country five years ago to educate themselves for missionary work. They were engaged to be married at the time. Mrs. Tsilka became a trained nurse and had a place in the Presbyterian Hospital when Mr. Tsilka was ordained a Congregational minister by the Manhattan conference. They were married shortly before sailing, about a year ago. Mr. Tsilka is 26 years old. His wife was a teacher in Miss Stone's school.

NATURAL GAS FOUND AT PORT HOPE

A Proof That Peterborough is on the Natural Gas Belt.

SHOULD BORE FOR IT AT ONCE

The Port Hope Company to Sink Another Well Without Delay — Natural Gas Abounds in This Region.

That natural gas abounds in this locality there is every reason to believe. The Times has pointed this out time and again, but our Board of Trade, which should be foremost in taking up matters of this kind, has made no move. A short time ago we published a letter from Mr. Harvey, the expert who is boring in Port Hope, stating that there is every probability that immense stores of natural gas or coal oil, or perhaps both, are to be found in Peterborough. We sent Mr. Harvey's letter to the Secretary of the Board of Trade, so that it might be read and discussed by the Board, but that gentleman returned it to us, stating that the Board would take no action. Just how he ascertained this, without holding a meeting of the Board, was not explained. Natural gas would cheapen fuel, light and power, and this, no doubt, will give any proposition looking to the sinking of a well, considerable opposition by interested parties.

However, notwithstanding the apathy of the Board of Trade, if there really is such an organization, so important a matter cannot long be dormant. The fact that gas exists in Port Hope, where the geological formation is almost identical with our own, is proof that we too possess these natural stores.

The Port Hope well was shot on Wednesday. Thirty-two quarts of nitro-glycerine were used for the purpose. The result is that a quantity of gas has been let free, although not as large in amount as hoped for. The gas was lighted and burnt furiously for some time, when it was extinguished and the well capped, and a gauge put on to test the pressure. The trustees met last night to decide where to bore the next well.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 30.— A crowd of over 200 out-of-work men, organized by Socialists, marched to the Northampton Workhouse yesterday. The guardians refused to hear a Socialist deputation, but consented to listen to four of the unemployed men. This decision angered the crowd, which threatened to storm the board-room, but peace was eventually restored. One man told the board that over 800 shoe-lasters were out of work, chiefly because of American competition. Large numbers in other branches of the shoe trade are also idle, and in addition there is a prospect of a deadlock in the trade. The guardians decided to appeal to the corporation to co-operate in organizing relief works.

Victoria, British Columbia, Oct. 30.—Chinese papers received here to-day say that everything is done to make the return of the Court to Pekin as much like a triumphal re-entry as possible, so as to lead the people to believe that the Chinese troops won a victory over the allies. The heads of military men in all districts have been ordered to make a correct report of the strength of the army, the number of men and guns and amount of ammunition in their respective districts. The circular states that the report must be correct, as on the correctness of them the success of a "great enterprise" depends.

PETERBOROUGH NOVEMBER 1 1901

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY

The busy people of Canada are not anxious for an extra holiday at this time of the year, and they are disposed to regret that King Edward VII did not choose a more convenient date to make his entree into this breathing world, especially as the 9th of November falls this year upon a Saturday, which is the favorite day in the week for farmers to come to market, and is consequently the day upon which the merchants expect to sell the most goods. The distinguished predecessors of our august sovereign were far more considerate in this connection. Good old George III (Farmer George), son of "Fred who was alive and is dead," opened his eyes on May 24th, and kept that day for his birthday, from 1738 till 1752, when the adoption of the Gregorian Calendar, boosted his birthday on to June 4th. His amiable son, George IV, "the first gentleman of Europe," described by the Duke of Wellington, as "the most extraordinary compound of talent, wit, buffoonery, obstinacy and good feeling," had the grace to put in his appearance on August 21st, both excellent dates for a public holiday. Our late Queen Victoria, of blessed memory, reverted to the precedent established by her illustrious grandfather, and was born on May 24th, her birthday being the most popular holiday of the year, throughout her ever-widening dominions, to her accession in 1837 to her death in 1901. Of her nine children only two were born in May, Princess Helena on May 25th and Prince Arthur on May 1st. So it comes to pass that we have a holiday thrust upon us in November, which we are bound to loyally observe until such time as the crown passes to our recent guest, Prince George, who was born on June 3rd.

Opinions vary as to the advantage of many holidays. It has been said that the people of Ontario are richer than the people of Quebec, not because they are more industrious or frugal, or because that Province has better soil and better climate but because the French-Canadians have too many Saints' days on which they do not feel free to work. The Ontario statutes define holidays as including Sundays, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, Dominion Day, Christmas Day, the Sovereign's birthday, Labor Day and Thanksgiving Day. Of these Easter Monday is not observed except by banks, but in towns and cities a Civic Holiday is usually proclaimed in August, and of late years there has been a partial observance of Empire Day. We skip the Epiphany, the Ascension, All Saints' Day, Conception and Ash Wednesday.

The regular holidays in New York State in addition to Sundays are: New Year's Day, Lincoln's birthday (Feb. 12), Washington's birthday (Feb. 22), Decoration Day (May 30), Independence Day (July 4), Labor Day, Election Day (first Tuesday in November), Thanksgiving Day (last Thursday in November), and Christmas Day, and in some of the other states there are holidays on local anniversaries, such as Bunker Hill Day, in Massachusetts.

We notice that some of our sister cities are discussing the propriety of celebrating the King's Birthday on Monday, November 11th, instead of Saturday, November 9th. In Guelph the manufacturers prefer Saturday and the merchants want Monday. If anything on this line is going to be done in Peterborough, it should be decided at once, so that the farmers may be notified through the papers, whether they should come to market on Saturday, or not.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There are not many people in this country who would care to trade May 24th for November 9th as a holiday.

•• • ••

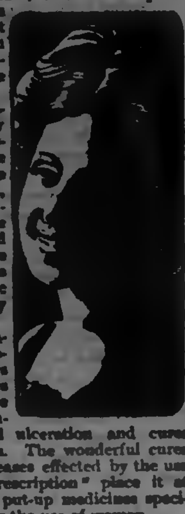
The Hollanders' boycott on British vessels is making headway, but the Dutchmen are not yet happy. British trade does not seem to feel it, but business in Dutch ports does. So many boycotts always work.

•• • ••

Gen. Chaffee does not think the war in the Philippines is nearly ended. He says the whole people of the Philippines are engaged in waging war upon the United States. The few Filipinos who are friendly to the United States are those holding offices. Other officers report that they believe that the loyalty of the office-holders will continue only so long as they have the opportunity of drawing American dollars. Uncle Sam is going to have his end of the white man's burden to bear.

•• • ••

The treatment received by the Czolgosz family is hardly creditable to the United States people. The conduct of the unfortunate father and brother has been above reproach, trying as their position has been, they have done what they could to aid the law and discover if there existed a plot against the President. They deserve sympathy; they receive persecution. Not only have they been discharged by their employers, but threats were made against them should they attempt to give the son and brother's body burial. [illegible] officials boasted that they would not [illegible]. This is [illegible]. The law has taken the life of the culprit. Let that end it. Surely the unfortunate relatives of the assassin will suffer enough. Yet the United States people send missionaries to China, and India!



NO SHADOW

Of outward misfortune can darken the smile of the loyal wife and loving mother. But when disease comes the smile slowly fades, and in its place comes the drawn face and tight closed lips which tell of the constant struggle with pain.

When the delicate womanly organism is diseased the whole body suffers; the form grows thin, and the complexion dull. The first step to sound health is to cure the diseases which undermine the womanly strength.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries disagreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. The wonderful cures of womanly diseases effected by the use of "Favorite Prescription" place it at the front of all put-up medicines specially prepared for the use of women.

"I was troubled with female weakness for eight years, and suffered more than I can tell," writes Mrs. Gust. Moerr, of Ovando, Deerlodge Co., Montana. "My disposition was affected to such an extent that to say a pleasant word to any one was almost an impossibility.

"I had two operations performed by one of the most skilled surgeons of the West, but did not get relief. Then, against my doctor's strict orders, I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and also followed the advice given in the Common Sense Medical Adviser.

"I continued this treatment for three months, and to-day am as healthy and well as a woman can be. I cannot thank Dr. Pierce enough for his kind letters to me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I luv a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 75 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gellon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. B. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Easterl thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbutt, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Dagtie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. P[illegible], the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

The sun shone down hot and parching upon the lonely canvas covered wagon that slowly wound its way across the burning sands toward the village of Bear Creek. The panting horses, wet with dirty foam, labored heavily as the awkward wagon moved slowly along. A tall, lean man, with short, stubby whiskers sat holding the lines, and urged on the lagging steps of the tired animals. From within the covered body came the low sound of a woman's voice as she crooned the sweet melody of some old-fashioned hymn. Suddenly the singing ceased.

"Are we almost there?" she asked, with a tired hopefulness in her voice. A head appeared from behind the flap of the curtain. It was rather a pretty head, with its wealth of dark brown hair.

"Are we almost there?" she asked again, pushing her elbows out upon the front seat. The man looked around with a soft smile.

"Yes," he said. "Do you see them low squatty houses yonder?" The woman nodded [illegible]. "Well, that's hit," he said as he touched her cheek affectionately. He spoke with a slow drawl, his words dropping as if with studied weight.

In a few minutes the wagon entered the narrow, lane-like street, lined with its rough log huts. At the first sight of the white canvas in the distance the inhabitants of Bear Creek had collected to watch the growing speck and to indulge in curious speculation as to its occupants.

"It's one 'er them fellers ter work at ol' Jim Crawford's, I guess," said a rough looking individual of capacious girth.

"Yes, darn 'em! They've been 'er pilin' in here like bees uv late," responded another.

It was evident that the people of Bear Creek bore no special good-will toward "Ol' Jim Crawford."

As the horses drew the wagon along between the rows of people on either side of the street the man on the seat was greeted by many waves of the hand. He pulled his team into the rude sidewalk near a small group of men. "Can yer tell me the way to Jim Crawford's?" he asked politely. A frown spread over the faces of the men. For a moment no one spoke. The man on the wagon waited expectantly.

"Jim Crawford's is right up thar," finally answered a stout young fellow, throwing up an open hand with fingers pointing in all directions. "And when yer git ter the fork of the road just take the fork hand." A laugh from the crowd greeted the rough jest. The man on the wagon showed a slight red tinge under the swarthy tan of his face.

"I ain't here to raise no row," he said, looking the short young man squarely in the eye. "But yer could be er darn sight more civil to er stranger." His peculiar drawl affected the risibilities of the crowd, and a loud laugh rang out on the air. When the rough yells subsided a small girl stepped out from behind the men. Hers was the dark complexion of the half-breed.

"I'll tell yer wher' ol' Jim lives," she cried. The men turned around abruptly. "Jes' foller this road ter yer right. Ol' Jim's is erbout 300 yards from the last cabin," she said, pointing to the distant hut. The men sneered at her and one of them grabbed at her dress, but she easily eluded them and passed on up the street.

The tall man clucked to his horses and the wagon moved on. After driving a few yards he saw to his left across the street the sign of the Big Horn saloon. A sudden idea seemed to strike him. He again pulled his horses into the side of the street and got down from his seat.

"Friends," he said, "will yer all come and take som'thin' with me, just ter show that ther ain't no hard feelings?"

The crowd was staggered at first, but soon responded joyfully, concluding that the stranger was a pretty good fellow, although he was going to work for "Ol' Jim Crawford."

"Where der yer hail from, stranger?" asked Shorty Johnston, as they lined up before the bar.

"Kentucky," answered the stranger. The men looked approvingly at the size of his whisky.

"Anybuddy with yer?"

"My wife," he answered briefly.

"Any brats?" queried "Shorty." The man's face colored slightly. "Not yet," he said. The crowd laughed good-naturedly.

"Well, here's to the brats!" cried a fellow down to the end of the bar. "To the brats!" they all cried, clinking their glasses.

A few minutes late Tobe Johnson drove slowly away from the Big Horn followed by the lusty cheers of his newly gained friends.

It was conceded on all hands that Tobe Johnson was the best fellow that had ever struck a spade in ol' Jim's diggings. Old Jim himself was a stingy avaricious old fellow, who was held in absolute contempt by the citizens of Bear Creek. He lived a short distance the center of the town—that is, from the saloons—and knowing that he was looked upon with no little hatred, he seldom came down from his suburban hut—if indeed, Bear Creek could boast anything so pretentious as suburbs. Naturally enough the hatred for "Ol' Jim," himself fell also upon the innocent heads of the men who worked under him. So that the village of Bear Creek, and "Ol' Jim's place," as it was called, were as two hostile cities encamped against each other.

But as time rolled on Bill Hawkins failed to get his share of Bear Creek's disapproval and dislike. He was regarded as a good hearted fellow, of friendly disposition, yet with as strong a will and as firm a courage as was to be found in the two camps. Furthermore, he was a worker, and spent most of his time away from the gambling dens and saloons—something which the miners usually failed to do.

One day Johnston was informed that he was the proud possessor of a son and heir. But his boy came at a dear, dear price to the father. The frail mother, wearied and worn by the hard life to which she had not been accustomed and without the proper medical attention to uphold her declining strength, was in imminent danger of death. For days she lay in a half stupor, moaning piteously the while. Hawkins stayed faithfully at her side. He tried to argue himself into the belief that she would soon be well again. "She can't die," he would soon say hopefully. "We will nurse her back to health and strength. No, no—she will not leave me." But within the inner depths of his consciousness he was afraid. The neighboring miners did all they could to help the unfortunate husband. The gentle demeanor of the young wife had planted a touch of tenderness in their rough breasts.

But it soon was seen that the struggle would soon be over. And one day just as the bright sunlight of the afternoon began to fade into the deeper shadows of the evening, the mother breathed a soft sigh and passed to the realms eternal.

They buried her midway between Ol' Jim's and the village of Bear Creek—to signify that both places were joined in sorrow. The funeral was attended by the members of both settlements. For the first time in many years the men of Bear Creek walked side by side with the men from Ol' Jim's without the sign of outward resentment. Old grievances were laid aside and forgotten. Even Ol' Jim himself was spoken to without a sullen grimace. Truly, the loss fell sadly on the two camps.

After the funeral was over and the miners had returned to their work Tobe Johnson returned to his hut a sad and heartbroken man. The baby who had caused his grief he swore he could never love. He never wished to see the innocent little thing again so great was his sorrow. He left the lonely cottage and walked down into the village. The little half-breed girl sat all night by the cradle waiting for his returning footsteps, but no sound broke the stillness of the night save the howl of some lonely dog outside or the occasional waking wail of the infant in her charge. Finally at daybreak the shambling steps came up the beaten path. Then a heavy boot beat roughly at the door for admittance. Hurriedly opening the door, she returned to the cradle. The staggering figure of a man came in. It was Tobe Johnston, his eyes bloodshot with drink and dissipation. For a moment he gazed expectantly around the room. "Millie" he called. Then, seeing the frightened half-breed beside the swaying cradle he seemed to recall the incidents of the past few days. With a dark frown on his brow he stumbled over to the corner of the room, and fell heavily on the bed.

Tobe Johnson slept long and soundly. He was awakened late in the afternoon by the rough voices of the men with whom he had spent the previous night. Hardened wretches that they were they wished him to return to the village—to the bar and gaming tables. For the moment he seemed ready to yield. Then suddenly from the cradle came a faint "coo." He turned quickly to meet the laughing blue eyes of his baby. He looked steadily at the little face—'twas the first time since that fatal night. Then he walked quickly to the cradle and lifted the little thing in his arms.

"No, by God, I won't go!" he [illegible] fiercely to the men. For the moment they were stupefied. Then they bowed their heads and walked slowly from the room.

"Was it the look in the soft blue eyes?" they mused "Was it the smile of his lost love he saw?"

HUMORS OF THE BOER WAR

Experiences of English "[illegible]" in South Africa.

The greatness and glory of the British race is due in large part to their determination to take with them to every part of the globe the customs of the home land. These customs being in the main most excellent, consisting as they do chiefly of law and order, bathtubs and cricket, the national satisfaction with national manners has been somewhat in the nature of a boon to the human race. On the other hand there arises not infrequently a man who fails to differentiate between the essential and the trivial, and who, in his good British way, is determined to live, wherever he may be, just as he was wont amid the fogs of London. During the Boer war a number of these gentlemen added greatly to the gayety of the campaigners.

Bulawayo is where the world comes to an end. There, in the heart of Africa, the railroad—that is, the apology for the railroad—stops for good. It stops all along the line for a few hours until the line can be repaired. The Boers were perilously close to Bulawayo, which was inadequately defended, and for some time the situation was critical. Even when the immediate danger of the attack was over the place was in a manner beleaguered. It was such a time as is supposed to try men's souls. Communication with the outer world had just been restored, when one day there strolled into the club an officer who was known as the army plated warrior, [illegible] of his little weakness for dressing up his khaki clothes with the chains and other gewgaws of ornamental warfare.

"What's the matter, old man?" asked an acquaintance, [illegible]. "You seem uncomfortably down in the mouth."

The officer sat down, with depression on every line of his countenance.

"Yaas," he drawled wearily. "No toothpicks."

"No what?"

"No toothpicks. Can't get along without toothpicks, you know. As soon as a wire would go through I cabled to my brother in London, 'Toothpicks immediately.' Couldn't get on without them, you know. Here comes a cable from my blooming fool of a brother, 'Can't find toothpick in code book.' Must be a blamed idiot, my brother, you know."

Some of the gentlemen who came out to fight for their country were popularly known as the "Piccadilly picnickers," by reason of the fact that their knowledge of how to dress and what to eat exceeded their acquaintance with minor matters such as drill, etc. One little group of picnickers came to join the Bulawayo military police. Not, even in the city, the "policeman's life is not a happy one," but up country, where the natives are nasty and the fevers vicious, keeping the peace is not just the sort of occupation which goes well with a picnic for the sake of a big game shooting. The young men in question were after the big game, and thought that the government might as well pay their expenses. The chief treasure of the party, claimed with glee to the man who was commissioned to meet them, consisting of a dressing case, price sixty guineas, presented to one of the number by his fond mother. The contents of it were displayed with pride, silver topped all, with everything in the nature of scent bottles and other necessaries of the toilet that could possibly be needed by a member of the police force in the interior of Africa.

There was much to laugh at up country in time of danger, but the man who had made himself ridiculous one day might die a brave man's death the next. Little tin soldiers do not always remain such. Even the boy with the dressing case shed his absurdity as a garment and used his [illegible] until he proved his worth by helping in "big game" shooting of a sort different from that of which he had dreamed in Piccadilly.

A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and sideaches.

Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

Miss Anna Defoe, a young lady whose address is 335 King street west, Toronto, recently wrote as follows:

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appetite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

—The deer hunting season opens today and lasts for fifteen days. The wilds of Ontario where the fleet-footed animal is in plenty, will be alive with dogs and men.

—Sergeant Adam Hall, who went with the second Canadian contingent to South Africa, has received a photograph, that of a group of invalid soldiers, taken at Dover on Aug. 11th, 1900. It contains 66 Colonials, including Sgt. Hall.

—Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, on Monday received an order from the town of Sault Ste. Marie for a large $90 tent. The order came on Monday morning and by Monday night the tent was made and shipped to the "Soo."

—Twenty per cent of the townships of this province have decided too give up statute labor as a means of keeping works as a means of paying hist axes and regardless of the necessity of satisfying employers is not a success.

—The Cobourg band which thought they could purchase uniforms in the States and then by putting them on in that country pass the custom offices on the pretence that they were worn will have to go down the pants pockets and pay the fiddler.

—At G. E. Whiten's every year there is a great rush of business for Christmas which promises this year to be greater than ever, and with which it is difficult to cope. We therefore take this early opportunity of notifying our customers that it will greatly facilitate matters and ensure your orders being out on time and receiving careful attention if you will kindly give us your Christmas orders for photos as early as possible. Studio 186 Hunter street.

Hastings Star: A resident of our town handed us a "confidential" letter which he had received on Monday from New York. Its perusal revealed the fact that the sender wished to secure accomplices in this country to pass off counterfeit money. If his proposition was acceptable to the recipient of the letter, the following telegram "His lodge is Eagle, No. 7," to "J. W. Ellis, Greenville, New Jersey," was to be sent. No letters would be accepted. No doubt a large number of these letters have been received throughout the country, and if all are as honest as our friend, the green goods man will receive the go by.

The Peat Industry.

It is encouraging to note that an Ontario company has just been incorporated under the title "Peat Industries, Limited," the intention of the promoters being to sell an ideal in all commercial products derivable from peat bogs. It is only within the last couple of years that any value has been placed on the immense peat deposits in Ontario, and right in this district—at Beaverton and Kirkfield—probably the most intelligent efforts are being made to demonstrate the value of the product as a cheap fuel. It has also been discovered that gas can be produced very cheaply from peat, and the new company will no doubt conduct investigations along that line.

Presentation and Address.

Miss Grant, the retiring organist of St. Andrew's church, was on Wednesday evening presented with a ring by members of the choir, together with the following address:

Dear Miss Grant:

On behalf of your many friends assembled here tonight, I would remind you of the fact that while acting as organist and choir leader of this church you have greatly endeared yourself to us as members of the choir and as members of the Young Men's Guild.

We regret to learn, that in order to further pursue the study of your profession, you find it necessary to sever your connection with the church, but trust in your new sphere of life you will find that further success which your energy and ability deserve.

We cannot let you leave us, however, without expressing in some tangible form our appreciation of your services whilst in our midst, and to that end we would ask your acceptance of this ring, together with our most sincere and hearty wishes for the welfare of your mother and yourself.

Signed on behalf of the Choir and Guild.

THE GRIM REAPER

Death of Monsignor Laurent at St. Mary's Presbytery Lindsay.

The death occurred at St. Mary's Presbytery, Lindsay, at 11.30 o'clock this morning of Rt. Rev. Monsignor Laurent, V. G., after an illness of about twelve days of bronchitis. The late Monsignor Laurent was born in France in 1835 and was ordained priest at Toronto in 1862. His career since has been an eminently useful one. Memories of him will dwell with the worshippers at St. Peter's cathedral, who have shared his ministrations of the sacred offices and listened to the simple and earnest eloquence of his discourses. He will be regretted throughout the whole church, and especially in the Diocese of Peterborough, in which he has laboured even since it was erected.

The death is reported of Mrs. Daniel Reid of Galway. She was born in 1821 and emigrated to Canada in the year 1848, and made her home at Gore's Landing where she remained about one year. It was at that place that she became acquainted with Mr. Daniel Reid, whom she married the following year. They both moved to the Township of Otonabee and settled on a farm near what is Indian River station. Not being satisfied with their surroundings, they removed to the Township of Galway in the spring of 1858 and settled on lot No. 2, concession 16, where they resided continuously until the time of her death. The members of the family who survive to mourn her loss are Mrs. J. Allen, Mrs. Wm. Clark, Mrs. James McGrath, daughters, and Mr. D. Reid, a son, all of Galway.

The death of Johanna Elizabeth, wife of Mr. Frank Daly, of Rochester, N. Y., and daughter of Mr. H. P. Crowley, of Douro, took place whilst Mrs. Daly was on a visit to her parents.

REV. ALEXANDER JACKSON

Tokens of Esteem from His Congregation in Cleveland.

His Peterborough friends will be interested in learning of the practical tokens of esteem which have been presented to Rev. Dr. Alexander Jackson, of Madison avenue Presbyterian church, Cleveland, who is an annual visitor to this section in the summer season, and who has been heard at St. Paul's church on several Sundays during the past two years. Rev. Dr. Jackson was recently presented by the male members of his congregation with a fine bicycle, and later the Ladies' Aid Society of the church gave him and his wife a substantial money present. Rev. Dr. Jackson has been invited by the officials of Colton church, Glasgow, Scotland, to preach at the re-opening of that edifice, which is being refitted.

Corn 200 Years Old

Woodstock, Oct. 31.—Mr. Sam. Wilson, of the Malden road, Sandwich West, to-day showed the Windsor Record a fine sample of corn grown from some seed found last year in the covering of an Egyptain mummy supposed to be at least 2,000 years old. The seed, which was quite black when found, was brought here by Rev. Mr. Higgin, Grand Rapids, and a small quantity given to Mr. Wilson which he planted about 60 hills. From these hills he husked four bushels, besides what his horses got in and ate.

The corn is a bright red dent, but Mr. Wilson cannot identify it with any species grown here. The grain is a fine sample, plump and dense, and weighs well.

Who can say that this is not some of the corn that Joseph laid up against the famine?

THE DEAD CHILD

When people are ignorant of the sweetness and the passion of music, they cannot be expected to respond to the emotions really incident to the compositions of the great masters. It is idle to complain of the poor attendance at this opera or at that. Poverty of taste cannot be supplied by complaining. The hard fact remains. So is it in all matters relating to the emotion of the sublime, whether in music, in painting, in poetry, or in the sympathy of the human kind with each other. Music is art and not business, and cannot be developed according to business principles. Mozart did not die a millionaire. The artist usually died in a poor-house; the business man aims to die in a mansion. So it is with pure sympathy. It has no reference to business, and when organizations having for their alleged immediate object the diffusion of love and tenderness crystallize themselves into organizations conducted on business principles, their usefulness from that moment is gone. They have mistaken their function. The artist has become his own doorkeeper. The kindly emotions have been arranged in due order, and have been labelled with their price-tickets. Sympathy under such circumstances is no longer sympathy. What then? It is asked. Simply this: All suffering, all woe, all distress is by the very fact that it is such, dependent upon the forgiving spirit and the hand of mercy. Give it parish limits, exact a moral standard (as of legitimacy), demand, in a word a quid pro quo, and it ceases to be sympathy—it is cruelty.

This is what has been meted out to the dead child which Dr. Bingham has laid upon a public bier. Is there a man or a woman in town who is not ashamed? Or have we become so self-satisfied that our sympathy is the mere mummified remains of its former self? We may well recall the famous words of the victim Roland! How many crimes are committed of the revolutionary guillotine: "O Re., in thy name!"

MUNICIPAL ELECTRIC LIGHT

The Advantages of Municipal Ownership Fully Demonstrated.

The following is a table of the figures showing the cost of electric light in a number of cities which have adopted municipal systems. In every case the cost has been reduced one-half or more from what the cities formerly paid private companies:

Cities.	No. lights.	Tt. cost of plant & buildg.	Cost per Arc light per yr.
Little Rock, Ark.	111	$30,000	$61.00
Bloomington, Ill.	240	30,000	60.00
Decatur, Ill.	61	21,000	40.81
Elgin, Ill.	80	21,000	43.00

Paris, Ill.	60	9,000	40.00
Madison, Ind.	85	25,000	50.50
Bowling Green, Ky.	60	15,000	50.00
Bangor, Me.	140	35,000	45.00
Lewiston, Me.	100	15,000	64.00
Bay City, Mich.	142	30,000	50.00
Ypsilanti, Mich.	80	24,000	33.00
Marietta, Ohio	65	12,000	30.00
Chambersburg, Pa.	60	24,000	45.00
Meadville, Pa.	74	20,000	47.42
Staunton, Vt.	60	17,000	24.00

Should Peterborough acquire the Water Works, the dam would provide sufficient energy to do our lighting at a very greatly reduced price from what we are now paying.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I luv a rooster for two things—one iz the crow that is in him and the other iz the spurs that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 90 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M. P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. D. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bastow thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 37 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Baptie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

A Church That Pays Taxes

Toronto Globe: The Jarvis Street Baptist church has voluntarily forwarded to the city $587.50 as an instalment of $650 taxes which the church authorities have levied upon themselves, exclusive of school and local improvement rates. The estimate is based on the present rate of taxation, which is reduced to the rate that would be necessary if exemptions were abolished and the payment is accompanied by a protest against church exemptions as contrary to the principals that should govern the relations between civil authorities and religious bodies. This example has been between the people of the Province for many years, but there is no noticeable tendency toward extensive imitation.

MORLEY DENOUNCES SOUTH AFRICAN WAR

Says That the South African War is a Big Mistake

DUTCH INTERFERENCE NOW IS USELESS.

Holland's Premier Now Sees the Hopelessness of Interference—Canadian Scout Killed

London, Nov. 1.— In an address to his constituents at Arbroath recently, referring to the concentration camps in South Africa, Mr. John Morley, M.P. characterized the death rate as "appalling, hideous and excessive." The Government policy of devastation was admittedly a mistake and the authorities were aggravating the essential mischief of the situation by mismanagement.

Continuing, he said: "I wonder what Lord Palmerston would have said of a Government justifying themselves by saying that Russia in Poland, and Austria in Bosnia had done something like the same. The war has entirely changed in character, and is drifting into a war of extermination of a people fighting for their own land.

"The policy of unconditional surrender and submission means extermination and annihilation. The present attitude of the Government is one of sullen desperation. There is nothing worse than mettle in a blind horse."

HAVE ACCOMPLISHED NOTHING.

London, Nov. 1.— According to The Times' correspondent in Brussels, Dr. Kuyper, Premier of Holland, recently stated in the Second Chamber of the States General, that the Dutch Government had done all in their power to bring the war in South Africa to an end.

BETRAYED THE KAFFAIRS.

Cape Town, Oct. 31.— A resident of Barkley West, who betrayed two native despatch runners to the Boers, and so caused their death, has been sentenced by court martial to pay a fine of £500 and to serve four years in prison.

BULLER'S DENIAL

London, Oct. 31.—General Buller has denied the telegram attributed to him by The National Review. The General's entrance to a London theatre the other evening was a signal for a demonstration on his behalf.

Dutch Laborers Warned

London, Oct. 31.—The Brussels correspondent of the Times says the agitation among the Dutch workmen's associations in favor of boycotting British commerce has succeeded in arousing a certain amount of notice in the Dutch and Belgian press. The Dutch papers almost unanimously endeavour to dissuade the dock laborers from attempting to put their project into execution, saying it must end in harming those whom it is intended to benefit.

It is generally admitted that an attempt to boycott British vessels at Rotterdam would mean ruin for local interests.

The Independence Belge says the nations of the continent are paving the way for a situation that is likely to breed a plentiful crop of troubles for themselves. The British nation is fully conscious of the danger arising from universal dislike, and may make a supreme effort to consolidate the Anglo-Saxon race the world over, whereby Europe's commercial and industrial supremacy would be seriously threatened.

A Long Separation

Simcoe, Ont, Nov. 1.—Fifteen years ago, Mrs. M. E. Tolmie and Mrs. William Butler, sisters, parted in this county. Mrs. Butler went to Lemars, Iowa, while Mrs. Tolmie went to Bay City, Mich. Lately made arrangements through correspondence to meet in Detroit and proceed to their old home in Norfolk to visit the scenes of their childhood. The trains did not connect in Detroit, and the sisters did not meet. Mrs. Tolmie then left for Woodstock, where she arrived at one o'clock in the morning, and had to wait several hours for a train. Mrs. Butler was in the station at the time, and they gazed disinterestedly at each other until daylight, before their relationship was discovered. It was a happy meeting, indeed.

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY

Town Council Has No Power to Change Day of Observance

The Town Council met last night for the purpose of considering tenders for construction of sewers on Perry and Rubidge streets. Only one tender was received and it was decided to readvertise it being considered that the previous notices had not reached the contractors. Tenders will be received by Ald. Best up to 4 p.m., on Wednesday next.

The matter of changing the day for observance of the King's Birthday from Saturday to Monday was discussed. The Mayor stated that he had been informally requested by several citizens to make the change, but no regular petition was presented. At any rate, the Council has no legal authority to change a statutory holiday. The statutes provide that the anniversary of the monarch's birth shall be observed unless some other day is fixed by proclamation of the Governor General. Hence no action was taken by the Council.

The Merchant's Association has decided to continue business as usual on Saturday. Many people in both town and country are no doubt unaware that the day is a legal holiday, and there will probably be the usual attendance at the market.

Consumption is Infectious

Every precaution should be taken to prevent the spread of the "White Plague." Persons coming into contact with consumptives should inhale Catarrhozone several times each day as it is a powerful destroyer of these germs, and renders them innocuous. Catarrhozone is a most efficient preventive and may be thoroughly relied upon to promote expectoration, soothe the cough, and benefit in many ways too numerous to mention. Both from a medical and scientific point of view Catarrhozone is the most valuable addition to the armament against consumption. Its merit cannot be too strongly emphasized. Sold at all druggists, two months' treatment, price $1, small size 25c, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Hope of Miss Stone's Release

Washington, Oct. 31.—It was said at the State department to-day that the efforts of the Government to secure the release of Miss Ellen Stone, the missionary who is held for ransom by brigands in the Balkan Mountains, are progressing as favorably as could be expected. The Department is in frequent communication with the proper authorities at St. Petersburg, Constantinople and Sofia, and, although deemed inexpedient to mention the that there is some hope that the outcome will be successful.

The most important statement made by the State Department officers today was that the representatives of this Government had at last got into practically direct communication with the brigands who hold Miss Stone captive. Secretary Hay declined to discuss the report that immunity from punishment has been promised to the outlaws on condition that they waive their claims to ransom and give Miss Stone over to the authorities.

At the Palace Cafe

This happened in the Palace Cafe yesterday: A man with four days' growth of beard on his face—a bristly, black beard—was seated at the counter, devouring a plate of Irish stew. Presently a boy entered and perched himself on the adjoining stool. The boy's hands were black and grimy. "Gimme a piece o' punkin pie," he demanded. The pie was forthcoming, and, beside it on the plate, was a small piece of cheese. The smallness of it aroused the boy's sarcasm. "What's dat?" he asked, pointing a dirty but scornful finger at the cheese. The waiter did not hear. "That," said the man with the four days' growth of beard, "is a piece of soap. Go wash your hands with it." The boy took the man in from head to foot, and then gravely picked up the piece of cheese and held it out to him. "Here, you take it," he said. "You take it an' shave yourself." The man with the four days' growth of beard finished his Irish stew in silence.

ONE CARDINAL IS THE LIMIT

America Fails to Win a Second Red Hat Honor at Rome.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Unofficial advices received from Rome confirm the understanding that no papal consistory will be held before next February. In view of this fact Cardinal Martinelli, the papal ablegate, will leave this country just before the meeting in Rome of the consistory, which will confer the red hat upon him. While there may be some additions to the roll of cardinals, it is certain that none of them will be from the United States.

The real reason for avoiding the naming of another cardinal for this country during Cardinal Gibbons' lifetime is to avoid setting a precedent for two cardinals within the United States. There are more than one, however, in countries where there is a cordial between the government and the church. There is no indication yet as to who will be Cardinal Martinelli's successor.

The Death of Monsignor Laurent

Lindsay Post: "A wave of intense sorrow swept over the hearts of our Roman Catholic citizens this morning when the sad news was made public that their beloved pastor, Monsignor Laurent was no more, having succumbed to the attack of bronchitis from which he had been suffering for about ten days. The sorrow expressed by all members of St. Mary's congregation was shared in by our citizens generally, all of whom respected and admired the good priest as a faithful shepherd and an outspoken opponent of everything evil. In the death of Monsignor Laurent the town loses a citizen who always took a deep interest in its affairs, and whose sound advice was often sought upon public matters. St. Mary's parish loses a devoted priest whose concern for the souls of the flock was constant, and who never wearied of well-doing during the seventeen years he had been in charge of the parish. A capable administrator and financier, he extinguished a heavy debt without imposing any additional burdens on his people, and at the same time carried out costly improvements.

HOPES TO REFORM CHINESE

Sir Robert Hart's Plans Regarding the Native Customs Department

Pekin, Nov. 2.—Sir Robert Hart, director of the Imperial Maratime Customs, has instructed the heads of that department that no changes are to be made for the present in the native customs, but when the latter are transferred to the Imperial customs on Nov. 11 the native customs department will return daily reports of receipts and the movements of junks. Later commissioners will investigate the condition of the native customs, and reforms will be gradually put into effect.

Although the native customs department is grossly corrupt Sir Robert does not wish to estrange the officials. He hopes, however, to quadruple the receipts. He says that the native customs at Tien-Tsin formerly amounted to 400,000 taels annually, but of this sum only 90,000 reached the Government, the balance being disbursed upon Yamen officials and henchmen. A similar condition prevails at other stations.

BENSFORT.

The Young People of Centreville Give a Dramatic Entertainment Which is a Decided Success.

The dramatic entertainment given here on Wednesday evening, Oct. 30, was in every respect successful. The weather was everything that could be desired and a full house was the result.

The opening number was Godfrey's "Greeting to the King," ably rendered by a chorus behind the scenes, and immediately after the curtain rose and the first act of the drama, entitled "The Donation Party," was commenced. Mr. David Doyell, as the Rev. Geo. Baxter, and Miss M. Finnamore as Mrs. Baxter, made the typical minister and his wife. The acting of Miss Robertson as Aunt Jerusha, was highly appreciated, and the difficult part of Phoebe, the darky girl, was ably taken by Miss Donaldson, who rendered a number of coon songs very effectively.

Mr. J. Isbister, who represented Peter Jones, another "colored person," distinguished himself both by his acting, and his rendition of "Coon, Coon, Coon." The love-making of Squire Appleton, in the person of Mr. G. Byers and Aunt Jerusha, was most laughable, and the return of the long-lost son, Herbert, to Mr. and Mrs. Baxter, was very pathetic, being ably carried out by Mr. Melville Heron.

Miss McIntosh excelled in the person of Marm Brown, the deaf old woman who understood everything, and we can assure you the Centreville ladies really scream when they see a mouse.

The other male parts were ably taken by Messrs. F. Anderson, H. Laing and W. Finnemore, who seemed quite at home in their respective parts. The Misses Baxter were well carried out by Miss Doyell and Miss Fair, and the ladies who preferred quilting to kissing games, by Miss Lang, Miss Heron and Miss Anderson.

The entertainment closed about 10.30 with the happy re-union of all at the Donation Party and the singing of "Home, Sweet Home," and the National Anthem. Miss Louisa Doyell played the accompaniments of the evening very acceptably.

Centreville may well be proud of such sons and daughters, and we hope in the near future they will favor us with another such entertainment, which will display their histrionic abilities, which are by no means small. We congratulate Mr. McIntosh, their pastor, on the success he has had with his young people, and feel that he has cause to be justly proud of them. The proceeds of this entertainment and the same held at Centreville on the preceding evening, which were upwards of $60, are in aid of a proposed Sunday School Hall. The moonlight was delightful and the roads good, and if we judge aright by the happy faces and voices as they returned home this will not be the last of Centreville's dramatic entertainments.

ST. ANDREW'S NIGHT.

A Splendid Programme being Arranged by the [illegible]

The Times is pleased to announce that arrangements have been completed for a splendid Scottish entertainment to take place in the market building on St. Andrew's night—Friday, Nov. 29.

The program will consist of Scottish songs, dances by Prof. Sheet's class of Highland lassies, readings, etc. Full particulars will appear later.

It is some years since any attempt has been made to mark Scotland's natal day in Peterborough, and the gentlemen who have the matter in hand propose to make this concert worthy of the occasion.

Ind'an Summer

(By Our Junior Reporter)

There is just a whiff o' winter in the hazy morning air,
And the leaves are turning yellow,
red and brown;
Age is telling on them, they give up in despair
And every little rustle brings them down.

Again 'tis Indian Summer and the weather's smoky blue,
And the days are getting shorter right along;
The forest's sad and lonely, but presents
a lovely hue,
And we miss the feathered songster
and his song.

The corn's been hugged in bundles by the harvesting machine,
And the pumpkin left a-blushing all
alone.
The suit you wore all summer is looking rather lean,
And the prospect for another makes you groan.

Yes, 'tis Indian Summer—just a calm before a storm;
The old year is smiling as it goes;
The man of squandered wages wishes
it were always warm,
And wonders where he'll get some winter clothes.

RICE GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY ONLY.

Final Senes of Murder Trial Before Judge Falconbridge

JUDGE CHARGED AGAINST RICE.

Mr. Robinette, Prisoner's Counsel, Moved for Stay of Judgment and That His Lordship State a Case to the Superior Court

The final scenes in the Rice murder trial are being enacted to-day before Chief Justice Falconbridge in the Assize Court. This morning his Lordship delivered his charge to the Jury, leanin somewhat against the prisoner, and the jury retired to consider their verdict. At the time of going to press they were still out, but a decision one way or the other is looked for at almost any moment.

THE JUDGE'S CHARGE

"The crime,' said his Lordship, "has been described as a diabolical one. One can hardly realise that an escape should be attempted with so little apparent chance of success, and the crime which occurred as a result was therefore made the more repulsive. Still even this must not influence the verdict of the jury."

In reviewing Cruttenden's evidence his Lordship said the contradictoriness of it was the subject of legitimate comment on the part of the prisoner's counsel. The medical evidence points to the fact that there were unburnt grains of powder on poor Boyd's face, and therefore the bullet must have been fired at short range, and further that the shot was fired, by someone sitting opposite.'

Having regard to these medical circumstances it was necessary for the jurymen to adjudge between the evidence of Rice on the one hand and the evidence of Cruttenden and Stewart on the other.

NO MIDDLE COURSE.

His Lordship charged the jury that it was impossible to find a verdict of manslaughter, as a middle course in this case, as the counsel for the defence had hinted. An officer of the law is under the peculiar protection of the law, which precludes the possibility of such a verdict.

The learned Chief Justice then submitted the proposition arising from the second branch of the Crown's case; Was Rice cognizant of a conspiracy to escape? Where three prisoners go out to commit a felony, and the attempt to escape is a felony, and in pursuit of such a human life is taken, all the conspirators can be held by law to be equally guilty of murder.

"We must not push that doctrine against this prisoner too far," said his Lordship. "I am bound to admit that the Crown has not adduced evidence proving the existence of a pre-arranged conspiracy. The prisoner can be found guilty, however, if the jury decide that when the revolvers were thrown in, Rice took advantage of the situation to use violence. It was pointed out that Stewart states that Rice ordered him to "give in."

"Now. I leave the matter in your hands, gentlemen. May the Supreme Ruler guide and direct you to a correct decision on the evidence,' concluded his Lordship.

ROBINETTE'S EXCEPTION

Mr. Robinette immediately rose and took exception to one or two points in the judge's charge. He asked that the jury be reminded that Stewart did not actually see the shot fired, and that Stewart's evidence was not infallible. The jury was accordingly recalled and instructed on these points.

The jury retired to consider their verdict at 11.45.

GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY.

Later the jury came in with the following verdict:

"We find the prisoner guilty of conspiracy, but are unable to find whether the prisoner fired the shot that killed William Boyd."

Mr. Robinette moved for stay of judgment and that his Lordship state a case to the Superior Court.

A New Wonder

London, Nov. 1.—The American, German and Austrian Embassies' military and naval attaches visited Hugenden on Saturday to see the latest electrical wonder—the Armstrong-Orling wireless electric lamp, which has been tried successfully at distances of between four and five miles. The attaches were able to work a wireless torpedo successfully themselves. An elaborate series of experiments was held in a part of the field which hitherto had not been used for the purpose, in order to avoid any suspicion in regard to connecting wires.

Rheumatism is a Constitutional Disease

The pain and localized conditions are mere results of constitutional conditions. Poisoned blood sends its evil influence to various parts of the body, and to cure permanently you must treat it constitutionally. Nothing so completely dispels these poisons from the system as Ferrozone. It makes new blood. It imparts vitality and vigor, enabling the system to throw of the poisons that engender rheumatism. Ferrozone also fortifies the system against the weakening effects of rheumatism, and cures, not simply relieves as most medicines do. Sold by Connell & Walsh.

STORES OPEN SATURDAY

The Merchant's Decide to Keep Open on King's Birthday

A meeting of the executive of the Retail Merchants' Association was held yesterday afternoon, when it was decided not to close the stores on the King's birthday, which falls due Saturday next, one week from to-day.

This action was taken in view of the fact that Saturday is market day, and the loss to the merchants would therefore be very considerable.

Nothing was said as regards observing Monday as a holiday instead. It is understood, however, that there will be no holiday on Monday, so far as the stores are concerned.

The banks and government offices will, of course, observe the statutory holiday, which is Saturday.

Buck and Axe

The army of deer hunters has started for the north, and for the next fortnight there will be much burning of powder and rattling of chips in the Northern woods. Luckily the men who are most expert in the handling of the rifle are not always fortunate in finding middle straights, therefore the enjoyment of the hunting season is by no means confined to those hunters who bring venison home to their families. Without figuring the profit and loss account down to a fine point, it may be assumed that the deer meat obtained in Northern Ontario each November costs a good deal more per pound than the butchers on Peterborough market, ask for beef, mutton or pork, but the hunters come home with a large storage battery of health and strength acquired by roughing it in the woods, that is worth far more than the money cost of their expedition. The hunting season is a sort of extra harvest for the residents in the backwoods, who act as guides and sell provisions to the Nimrods. The railways, too, make a pretty penny during the hunting season. Game Warden Tinsley, of Toronto, reports that the deer are not decreasing in number, which indicates that the wolves are not numerous for to the shame of manly powers it is conceded that the deer have much more to fear from wolves than from guns. To its numerous friends temporarily sojourning in the north, The Times wishes luck in every sense of the word.

The Irish Leaders

New York, Nov. 1.—Forty-one Irish associations were represented at the welcoming demonstration to-day in honor of Messrs. O'Donnell, Redmond and McHugh, the Irish delegates who arrived in New York yesterday. Sunday the three delegates, together with Michael Davitt, who preceded them to the United States, will be given a big reception in Carnegie Hall.

SAM'S GOT THE TOOTACHE.

Latest News from the Gold Lake Hunting Party.

Yesterday a pigeon arrived from Gold Lake, bearing a note from Ald. G. M. Roger, to the effect that Mr. Sam Ray had the toothache and one of the dogs had been poisoned. They can cure the toothache, but the dog is forever lost. He has gone to the happy hunting grounds where poison is unknown, and where buttermilk is not required to sustain life.

The pigeon was let go at 1.45 p.m., and arrived at four.

The hunters were all out on their watches except the Alderman, who had been detailed to guard the buttermilk tank.

The Lord's Money

A little Peterborough boy who goes to Sunday school every Sunday always receives a penny from his father to place on the collection plate. Last Sunday his father gave him two pennies, saying: "One is for the Lord and the other is for yourself." As it was too early to start for Sunday school the little boy sat on the porch steps in the warm sunshine, playing with the two pennies. After a while he dropped one of them, and it disappeared down a crack. Without a moment's hesitation, and still clutching the remaining coin in his clenched fist, he looked up at his father, exclaiming: "Oh, Pop! There goes the Lord's penny."

AN INDIAN TRIBE SEEKS PROTECTION

Hostilities Break Out Among Indians in the Yukon

AN OLD GRUDGE IS REVIVED.

The Small Band Fear Annihilation and Want Assistance from the Government Authorities

Winnipeg, Nov. 1. —A report has reached here that hostilities have broken out between two Indian tribes in the vicinity of Togash, in the Yukon Territory. An ancient grudge is said to exist between the tribes in question, and the smaller one, fearing annihalation, have sought protection from the Government police authorities.

Mr. Walsh, barrister, of Dawson City, who is at present in Toronto, states that Togash is an old police post on the main trail through the Yukon, and is now a point on the new Youkon telegraph line.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 30.—Canon Henson, of Westminister, has written a vigorous letter to The Times to enter once more a protest against the efforts which he hears are being made in high ecclesiastical quarters to induce the Government to appoint a day of public humiliation on account of the continuance of the South African war.

"The different circumstances of the campaign in the Transvaal seem to my thinking," says Canon Henson, "to explain sufficiently the long continuance of the war, and I cannot see anything unusual or suggestive or extraordinary Divine chastisement, in experiences which are strictly normal.

"If, indeed, a day of humiliation were at all becoming; I should incline to assign as its occasion, not the magnitude and duration of our military efforts, but our shameful and shameless neglect of the suffering and devoted loyalists of South Africa."

New York, Oct. 30.—According to several merchants who are considered to be authorities on the question of Cuba and its future, the pearl of the Antilles will determine on annexation to the United States next month through a commission recently appointed to wait upon President Roosevelt. The statement is also made that despite the prospect of sugar crops ruin is staring the planters of the island in the face and that unless annexation or some form of reciprocity is granted the sugar planters will not be able to grind a pound of sugar this year.

The manager of the West Indian department of a well known commission house said to-day: "It is a fact that unless there is a reduction in the tax and duty the Cuban planter will not be able to grind one pound of sugar this year. The crop has never been better than now, but the prospects of marketing it bring the planters practically face to face with ruin. The commission to wait upon the president will ask for a 15 per cent reduction in tax. If this is not favorably looked upon the commission will ask for annexation."

THE SIDE SADDLE DISCARDED

Mrs. Paul Tuckerman of Tuxedo Introduces the style of Riding Astride

Goshen, N. Y., Nov. 1.—The side saddle has had its day in Tuxedo. Mrs. Paul Tuckerman has introduced a new style of riding among the many fair and charming horsewomen. She has discarded the side saddle and dons a new costume of divided skirts and trousers, which permits her to ride astride and is very smart and stylish. Every day she may be seen flying over the gravelled driveways riding man-fashion, with all the skill and grace of an accomplished equestrienne. The innovation has been very popularly received, and next season it is confidently expected that it will be generally adopted by every horsewoman in the Tuxedo colony. Mrs. Tuckerman's stable of saddlers is small, but it contains only the most spirited and best bred horses. She is not altogether alone in the matter of riding astride, for Mrs. Hitchcock has ridden man-fashion at Meadow Brook this season; as have also the Misses Smith, at Saratoga.

KING WELCOMES THE DUKE AND DUCHESS

Immense Crowds Gather Along the Sea Front

PRESENTED A STRIKING SIGHT

King Appeared in an Admiral's Uniform, Accompanied by the Queen and Duke's Children

Portsmouth, Nov. 1. — Today's naval pageant in honor of the return of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall was almost a reproduction of the ceremonial attending their departure. The town and harbor were astir early, immense crowds assembled along the sea front, and rounds of cheers mingled with the National Anthem and salutes from the harbor ships and land batteries as the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert started to meet the Ophir. On board the Royal yacht the King, in undress uniform of an admiral stood on the after-bridge at the salute, while the Queen and the children of the Duke and Duchess paraded the hurricane deck.

A STRIKING SPECTACLE.

The Roads presented a striking spectacle, owing to the great gathering of warships, dressed from stem to stern, with their yards manned and their sides lined with their crews. Nelson's old flag ship, the Victory, started the salute to their Majesties, and each ship in turn took it up as the Victoria and Albert moved down the Solent, accompanied by a flotilla of older Royal yachts.

Off Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, the Victoria and Albert and the Ophir met and exchanged signals of greeting.

At about two o'clock the booming of distant guns announced the approach of the Royal vessels, and the naval procession soon hove in sight. As the Victoria and Albert, the Ophir, and two ironclads steaming in file one after the other, passed down the lines of the fleet, guns, bands, and cheers commingled in the welcome to the Royal travelers.

During the first night out from St. John's, while steaming about fifteen knots, the Ophir sighted an iceberg directly ahead and about two miles off. The berg was first seen by the cruiser Diadem, which warned the Ophir, and the squadron changed its course and reduced speed. The searchlights showed a pale green mass one hundred feet wide, with about 60 feet above the water. The Ophir's passage was tempestuous.

The army and the London holiday crowds will unite in the welcome tomorrow, but to the colonies will be accorded the distinction of emphasizing the Imperial nature of the function. Their official representative, headed by Mr. J. G. Colmer, C.M.G., as Lord Strathcona's Deputy for Canada, will be at the Victoria station to present addresses of congratulation and welcome and receive a reply. They will be introduced by Mr. Chamberlain to the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall. The colonies will in this way place the final seal upon the Imperial mission, and the King will not under many days the investiture of his son with the title of Prince of Wales.

LOVE AT SIGHT

A Traveller Relates His First Experience of Love

It was a jolly crowd that sat around the register of the National Hotel last night, toasting their shins and telling some rather fishy stories. Mr. Moon had just conducted a yarn about a fishing expedition he was once on, when a good-natured traveller with a smiling face, broke in:

"I must tell you of my experience when a mere lad. I was travelling on one of the old horse cars, in Toronto, when I first saw her. It was a case of love at first sight with me and I was anxious to know her. In a few minutes she dropped her glove, whether intentionally or on purpose I do not know. When I first saw the glove on the floor I thought the conductor had dropped his overcoat.

I made a grab for it. She grabbed for it at the same instant I did. Our heads came together and it was the most violent introduction I ever had.

When I came to my senses I asked if she was hurt. "Oh, no," said she. "I always travel on this line, and am used to such things."

I asked her to marry me. She said she wouldn't wipe her old shoes on me. I saw I had her, so I learned her address and thought I would speak to her father. I told him I had asked his daughter to marry me and she had said she wouldn't wipe her old shoes on me. He said, "Don't worry. If she don't, I will,' and he did."

THE MABEE RUBBISH

The Mr. Mabee who wrote the "Life-long Conservative" campaign document for the Ross Government in Ontario came from Ohio. He offered it, it seems, to supply the Conservatives with literature, one sample of which referred to "the Ross machine, which died of self-inflicted wounds in a cess-pool of iniquity." When Mr. Whitney rejected his stuff he went over to the Liberal organization, which took him right to its heart. His rubbish will hurt chiefly those who invest money in distributing it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Chamberlain's Edinburgh speech has not been favorably received by the continental press. That's good. You can bet that when the other fellows are not pleased, J. Bull is doing about right.

* * *

Eighteen years of exile in a British colony are said to have made that doughty old rebel Arabi Pasha an enthusiast for British rule.

* * *

Someone has stolen a racehorse named Wilfrid Laurier. The War Horse Hon. G. W. Ross, is still safe however.

Already reports of the shooting of no fewer than five men "in mistake for bears or deer" have come from Maine. Let the thousands of hunters now going out into the Ontario forests learn to distinguish a man from a bear or deer before sighting a rifle. The man who shoots another by such a "mistake" deserves a long term in prison.

Wages are going up in the lumber camps, labor being scarce. The W.C.T.U. missionary in Muskoka says that the lumbermen are the best men in the world to-day, the hardest workers and cleanest livers in Ontario.

The Hamilton City Council has passed a by-law to prohibit the use of trading stamps. Perhaps the courts will kindly express an opinion on the power of a City Council to do anything of the sort.

UNCLE SAM'S INCONSISTENCY

New York, Nov. 1.—Who would have believed it both possible, after reading the American denunciations of Spain's concentration policy in Cuba in 1897 and 1898, that within three years American generals would be applying it in the Philippines? Yet the unexpected has come to pass. In Samar the strictest orders have been given for the entire population of the island to concentrate in towns, accompanied by the threat that any one found outside them will be shot or hung as an enemy of the American people. Any man who should have dared in 1898 to prophesy such a state of affairs would have been denounced far and wide as a slanderer of the United States, and been informed that the American flag never had covered and never would cover such infamy. Now, however, the situation has changed, and it is almost impossible to get those newspapers which were most outspoken in their denunciations of Spanish misrule to discuss the situation in the Philippines. When they are forced to comment upon it by such mishaps as the recent disasters in Samar, it is only to assure their readers, as did the New York Times recently, that the situation in Luzon is satisfactory.

BRITAIN'S NATIONAL DEBT

London, Nov. 1.—There has recently been printed in England an interesting summary of the national debt of this country. The great debt of England was incurred during the Napoleonic wars, when the English Government spent money with a free hand, not only in maintaining its own army and navy, but in liberally subsidizing the military operations of its continental allies. It was assumed at the close of the Napoleonic wars that the country had a debt which would go far toward paralyzing its industrial development, and for a number of years after that time, in consequence of currency troubles, not altogether dissimilar from those encountered in the United States in the years that followed the Civil War, the debt tended to grow larger instead of smaller. Thus the largest national debt that England ever had was in the year 1820, when it amounted to the enormous sum of [illegible]. From that point onward the effort was made to take steps towards reducing this national obligation. There were years in which this effort was unsuccessful, but on the whole the attempt was creditably held to, so that in the year 1899 the national debt of the United Kingdom had been reduced to the sum of [illegible]; that is, the English debt in two-thirds of a century had been reduced by more than [illegible]. Since 1899, however, the debt has increased, and in March of the present year it had been raised to the dimensions of [illegible], an addition due to the great expense attending the war in South Africa, a national undertaking which is likely to materially add to the debt before peace is declared.

Cough, Cough,

Night and day, until the strength is entirely exhausted, and that dreaded word "Consumption" begins to be whispered among friends. That's a common story, familiar to the people of every town and village.

There's another story which ought to be as widely known as the story of disease, and that is the story of the cures effected by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Bronchitis, asthma, obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bleeding of the lungs, and other forms of disease which affect the respiratory organs, are permanently cured by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

"Only for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I think I would be in my grave to-day," writes Mr. Moses Miles, of Hilliard, Uinta Co., Wyoming. "I had asthma so bad I could not sleep at night and was compelled to give up work. It affected my lungs so that I coughed all the time, both night and day. My friends all thought I had consumption. My wife insisted on my trying Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—which I did. I have taken four bottles and am now a well man, weighing 165 pounds, thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for book in paper covers or 50 stamps for cloth-bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I luv a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 75 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he "would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. B. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Easton thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Baptie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he had better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

Officially Reconsidered.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

"There's one thing certain," said young John Sylvester, "we won't take that nigger postmaster back, no matter what the inspector says."

The words met with instant approval from his indignant fellow-townsmen who had assembled in the postoffice of the southern village to explain matters to the inspector sent by the Government. Every man in the room was armed, and each face was set and stern, as Terril, the inspector, appeared in the doorway.

Terril was old in the service, though fairly young in years, and had been sent to the defiant little town because of his wide experience. He had tried to refuse the case, though he did not deem it necessary to confide his reason to his superior officer. Inopportunely enough he was ordered to leave by a morning train, whereas he had intended to call on the Girl that evening. She was a visitor in Washington and he feared she would be gone before he returned. Now it is unwise for a postoffice inspector to have personal interests, for the Government expects him to have none but the Government's own.

However, Terril had been obliged to take case No. 2252C, and he had contented himself with writing a rather striking and lengthy note to Miss Deane, and ordering a box of violets to be sent with it.

Therefore here he was the next day in Battletown in no patient mood with the obstreperous Southern hotheads. He was greeted by a babel of voices.

"We've driven that damned nigger out of the State!"

"The assistant's in charge now!"

"The nigger's afraid to come back!"

"What are you going to do about it?"

Terril stood unmoved.

"One moment, gentlemen," he said quietly; "I can't listen to you all at once. Besides, there are too many young fellows here. Suppose some of you older men come with me into the next room; then we can discuss this matter calmly, and"—smiling—"with less noise."

"That's reasonable," said young John, and forthwith old John Sylvester and four others, fathers in the community, retired with the inspector to convince him that there was but one thing to do—to appoint a white man in the negro's place.

"Is there anything against the black man's character?" asked Terril.

"We don't concern ourselves with the character of niggers," answered Sylvester, majestically. "Jones is a nigger and that in itself, is enough against him."

Terril, who saw that he might as well have talked to the younger men said but little until he had heard all sides of the question. When he returned to the main room and noted the determined faces before him, he made his decision promptly, but privately.

"It will teach them a lesson," he said to himself, "and besides, I want to get back to Washington."

"Gentlemen," he said aloud, "this matter cannot be decided at once; I shall have to explain the situation at headquarters; in the meantime my instructions are to remove your postoffice to the county seat."

There was a look of dismay on the faces of his hearers.

"But we'll have to go eight miles for our mail," said one man.

"How long will it be before we have our own office back?" asked another.

"Oh, it may not take long to decide," said Terril smoothly. Before they had finished talking about it, he had gathered up the money orders, stamps and other Government property dismissed the assistant, and was on his way to the county seat. At the postoffice there, he deposited the effects with the necessary instructions, telegraphed the railway service not to put off any mail at Battletown, then fretted and fumed at the 12 hour wait, until he could take the train to Washington. En route he drafted his report and wound up with:

"In view of the foregoing facts and circumstances, I have the honor to recommend that the post office at Battletown be discontinued for an indefinite period dependent upon the behavior of the citizens of the town."

When Terril reached his hotel after a three-days' absence from Washington, he found a letter, the handwriting of which made his heart beat faster. His face was a study as he read:

"My Dear Mr. Terril;

I left Washington unexpectedly the same day you did, though by the afternoon train. Did I never tell you that I lived in Battletown? When I reached home, just fancy my surprise when I heard that you had been here, gone away and taken our postoffice with you. How could you be so cruel?

"I felt very indignant with you, especially so this morning, because I had to drive eight miles for my mail. But just now, when I was handed your violets, which my hostess sent after me, my indignation cooled perceptibly and now I want to tell you how much I appreciate your kindness. The violets are still fresh and lovely.

"In your note you ask me that I write you an occasional letter from my Southern home. Under ordinary circumstances, I should be pleased to do so, but consider, I am writing this eight miles from home for convenience sake, and must come as far for an answer.

"Cousin John Sylvester says this state of affairs may not last long. Do give us a nice white postmaster, Mr. Terril, and then I shall send you the prettiest note of thanks I can write.

Cordially yours,

GRACE DEANE."

First Terril laughed, next Terril frowned—then Terril thought hard and tore up his carefully worded report. He re-wrote it quite as carefully, and wound up with: "In view of the foregoing facts and circumstances I have the honor to recommend that the present incumbent be removed, and a white man be appointed in his stead."

"After all," he said to himself apologetically, "it is far the simpler way."

SAW MISS STONE KIDNAPED

New York, Oct. 31.—The Rev. Howard A. M. Briggs, pastor of the Waverly Congregational Church in Bergen avenue, Jersey City, received the following letter yesterday from Gregory M. Tsilka, a missionary, giving an account of the capture of his wife and Miss Stone by Bulgarian brigands on Oct. 1:

"Salonica, Turkey, Oct. 7.

"My Dear Briggs,—On Tuesday, Ist, a week ago, a large party of us were travelling from Bansko to Djumaja. On our way we found ourselves surrounded by a band of armed men, about thirty in number, all armed with the latest rifles however. They demanded our surrender and then made us climb up a thick forest, stopping here and there to examine the place. After half an hour or so more we were ordered to sit down. Then they chose Miss Stone, an American missionary, and my wife and taking two of our horses they went further in while they kept us, the rest, till the very morning so that we could not go and report to the Government.

"Just at the time, before taking the ladies, we had to witness a most terrible thing. They had captured at the same time, a little before or after—we don't know—a Turk and, while they tied his hands back, and they were beating him with the backs of their rifles, and finally, taking his own knife, they stabbed seven times and he fell dead.

"For a long time we had to wait and hear nothing. Oh, the agony and the sleepless nights that we have spent waiting and watching and no answer! Finally we got a letter telling us that the reason of their capture was to get money. They demand more than a hundred thousand dollars. It is a very large sum and it seems impossible to get it.

"I am confident that our friends in America will do all in their power. Pray for us. When my wife gets free you shall have a long story of her experiences. God grant her freedom!

"I would have written sooner but I have been in the hands of the Government, being examined and cross-examined almost every day. Many people have suffered terribly on this account. Some have been beaten to death with the hope that before they died they would tell where the missionaries are. The inhabitants all around the place where they were captured are in prison, or have run away and deserted their homes. Your friend,

"GREGORY M. TSILKA."

The Rev. George M. Tsilka and the Rev. Mr. Briggs were members of the class of 1892, Union Theological Seminary. Mr. Tsilka and his wife are Albanians. They came to this country five years ago to educate themselves for missionary work. They were engaged to be married at the time. Mrs. Tsilka became a trained nurse and had a place in the Presbyterian Hospital when Mr. Tsilka was ordained a Congregational minister by the Manhattan conference. They were married shortly before sailing, about a year ago. Mr. Tsilka is 29 years old. His wife was a teacher in Miss Sigma's school.

—The marriage took place at St. Peter's Cathedral Wednesday morning of Miss Ada Guerin, daughter of Mr. Dufinos Guerin, town, to Mr. Wm. Brien, of Toronto.

PAINES CELERY COMPOUND

Cures and Gives You New Life When Everything Else Fails.

IT IS THE POPULAR MEDICINE IN THE HOMES OF THE WEALTHY AND THOSE IN HUMBLER CIRCUMSTANCES.

Beware of Substitutes and Imitations.

Are you ailing, rundown, or suffering from some dangerous disease? If you are, allow us with candour and an honest interest in your welfare, to direct your attention to Paine's Celery Compound, the medicine that "makes sick people well."

The wonderful record of cures wrought sick and diseased people in our Dominion, is the best and strongest proof of the health-restoring virtues of Paine's Celery Compound. It has cured the most desperate and obstinate cases of disease even after sufferers were pronounced incurable.

The use of one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound will, in all cases banish the doubts of the unbelieving. The testing of one bottle will prove to all sufferers that there are virtues in the wondrous medicine possessed by no other remedy—virtues that banish suffering and misery.

The immense popularity of Paine's Celery Compound has induced unscrupulous people to put up vile and worthless imitations of the great health-restorer. Dishonest dealers for the sake of large profits resort to substituting and recommending the "something just as good." At all times beware of imitations and substitutes. See that the name PAINE'S and the Stalk of Celery appear on each bottle.

Read the strong testimony of Mr. G. W. Parks, of Inglisville, N.S., cured by Paine's Celery Compound after failures with other medicines:

"While at sea I was taken sick, which compelled me to abandon my work and seek home and rest. I consulted the doctors who pronounced it slow fever or typhoid. I suffered severely from night sweats, and from cold chills during the day. Added to this, I was extremely nervous, which weakness me and reduced my flesh until I was a mere skeleton. This continued until last winter, when my wife and friends began to despair of my recovery, as the medicines I took produced no good, and I was growing weaker. Through the influence of Rev. G. M. Tyler, I was induced to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial. I can truly say it worked wonders. The first bottle gave me great relief, and five bottles completely cured me."

Have you Eczema?—Have you any skin disease or eruption? Are you subject to chafing or scalding? Dr. Agnew's Ointment prevents and cures any and all of them, and cures itching, Bleeding and Blind Piles besides. One application brings relief in ten minutes, and cases cured in three to six nights. 35 cents.—71

Britain's Ruler Will Spend Part of the Winter in San Remo.

Milan, Nov. 1.—An English court courier arrived at San Remo yesterday to take a house for King Edward, who will spend half of January, February and March there. The courier will probably take the Villa Dirio, where Emperor Frederick stayed the winter before his death. San Remo is noted as the driest place in the Riviera and is specially recommended for sufferers from throat affections. This more than political reasons probably guided the selection of San Remo in preference to any place in French Riviera.

King Edward to-day personally conferred the insignia of various orders on 250 to 300 officers and others recently decorated. The investiture, which was held in St. James' palace, was attended by all the state ceremonial for which the King is such a stickler.

While the route between St. James' palace, and Marlborough House is only a few hundred yards long, King Edward disappointed the crowds to-day by driving from his residence to the palace and back in an entirely closed carriage. The King looked aged and pallid. An incident which evoked some comment was the presence of Sir Francis Laking, the king's physician, at St. James palace to-day. Sir Francis left the palace and drove to his home opposite Marlborough House, just before His Majesty returned there.

TURKEY REJECTS RESPONSIBILITY

Constantinople, Oct. 31.— The Turkish Government is already preparing to resist the anticipated demand of the United States for repayment of the ransom necessary to secure the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the abducted American missionary. The Porte repudiates all responsibility for the kidnapping of Miss Stone, and maintains that the United States has no claim against Turkey, and that therefore the latter is justified in refusing to recoup the United States for the money expended in her rescue.

A high Turkish official this morning informed a representative of the Associated Press that the Turkish resistance of any claims would be based upon these contentions; First, that Miss Stone, although warned of the dangers of the road, persisted in travelling; second, that she did not notify the authorities of her intention, in order to obtain an escort, which precaution even the foreign Consuls always take when travelling in such outlying insecure districts of the empire; and third, that the brigands who kidnapped Miss Stone and her companion were Bulgarians, that the coup was planned in Bulgaria, and that the sanctuary was found in Bulgarian territory.

New York, Oct. 31.—Americans are preparing a reception for Miss Stone upon her release, says a Sofia, Bulgaria, correspondent of The Journal and Advertiser. It is believed that Miss Stone will be able to be present at Philippopolis on November 6 at the dedication of the new American church there. After that she will [illegible] go to the United States to see her relatives.

A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and dizziness.

Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

Miss Anna Defoe, a young lady whose address is 355 King street west, Toronto, recently wrote as follows:

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appetite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

Household Hints.

—In packing away winter furs sprinkle them with oil of vitrol. It will eat more holes than the moths can possibly do.

—By removing the window sash before cleaning the panes all danger of falling to the street will be avoided.

—By cutting off a half hour from the regular allowance of sleep one may get the first whack at food supplies from the dumbwaiter.

—Match marks on the wall are easily removed with a fresh coat of paint.

—Wine stains on silk dresses yield readily to a pair of sharp scissors.

—Don't throw away old shirt-bosoms. Two of them sewed back to back with a ribbon around the neckband form a neat wall-pocket. If the bosoms are frayed the effect is more artistic.

Pan-American

Editor Morning Times.

Reply—Pan-American means All-American, and includes both North and South American. Pan is the Greek word for all.

Germany's Population.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—What is the population of Germany? Where is its greatest growth and how many cities has it?

Reply—The population of Germany aggregated 56,345,000 according to the census of 1900, the results of which have just been made public. The empire contains no less than 442 cities with a population of between 10,000 and 100,000 each. The greatest growth has been in Prussia in the year 1816, Prussia had 10,700,000 inhabitants; in 1866, 24,000,000; and in 1900, 34,463,000.—Ed. Times.

The Dead Child

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—I have read Dr. Bingham's letter in this morning's Times and in reply beg to say that no child which was neglected or cruelly treated has ever been refused admission to our Shelter, ad there is no resolution on the books of the Children's Aid Society which prevents us from dealing with such cases. It is true, however, that the Society is not a home for foundlings, and unless the children who apply for admission are within the terms of the Children's Protection Act they cannot be admitted.

If the case in question had been reported as one of destitution or desertion the child would have been admitted at once.

Yours truly,

R. M. DENNISTOUN.

Secretary Childrens Aid Society.

Hoodlumism One Here

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Your evening contemporaries encouraged the boys of the town to engage with more than their usual ardour in Hallowe'en pranks. The consequence of this thoughtless advice was that hoodlumism was rampant. It is expected that the town will have to pay for a good deal of the damage done. Fences were torn down without compunction, doors and windows were smashed in as a matter of course. Whether the police did their duty on this occasion is open to question. Probably they considered that the authorities wished the boys to have "a time." From what we have heard we fancy that an attempt at a repetition next year will lead to more fun than was bargained for. The fire-cracker nuisance had to be abated, and it looks as if the Hallowe'en nuisance will have to follow suit. Fun is fun, but Thursday night's performances were in many cases the work of incipient desperadoes.

The Dead Child

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The King's Daughters have asked me to say that had they known of the distressing case reported by Dr. Bingham, resulting in the death of a child from want of care, they would have attended to it promptly. Anyone knowing the King's Daughters and their work in the past will appreciate the sensitiveness prompting them to make this explanation. Neither limitations nor rules nor stipulations nor the multifarious stumbling blocks of charity clog their work. I make this part of my statement gratuitously. The sweetness of charity is not soured in the making. God bless them, and incline the King's sons to do as His daughters do. No true man spends his time upon himself. With regard to Miss Clarke's reference to the unfortunate woman who spent Sunday in the police station, I can only say, with many others, that the system which provides for boarders of the "respectable" class should label itself so, and not as if it were doing the Lord's work, viz: taking care of the poor. The Lord no where advises the keeping of a lodging house for pay in His blessed name. As for Miss Clarke, we all know her willingness and value in charitable work, and it is well for the Y.W.C.A. that they can put her forward as their apologist.

Yours, etc.,

P. B. P.

P.S.—The death of the little child, and the case of the poor woman will not have been in vain if the people of this town are aroused to the real sense of their duty. P. B. P.

On the Rocks

Lakefield News: The Empress has been travelling in hard luck again In the early part of this week, whilst making a round of Stony Lake for the benefit of certain residents of Lakefield who were eager to obtain one last glimpse of scenes they loved so well, before the season closed, she grounded on a rock in the vicinity of Mt. Julian and notwithstanding most strenuous efforts to get her floated, refused to budge. Her passengers, somewhat to their disgust, had to remain close prisoners till the Majestic arrived from Young's Point to convey them home. All efforts of the Captain of the Majestic to get her floated also proved ineffectual, and finally the Sunbeam, which was conveying a party of hunters up the lakes came to her assistance and succeeded in drawing her once more into deep water. Not much damage was done to the steamer by her grounding, but when getting drawn off the rock, two flanges of the screw got smashed.

MALT BREAKFAST FOOD

Founded on the Scientific Ideas of Dr. Fothergill and Other Food Experts.

The suggestions of the celebrated Dr Fothergill and other noted food experts regarding the use of Malt in connection with cereals (grains), have been practically and successfully carried out by the manufacturers of Malt Breakfast Food. This food is a happy combination of pure health-giving Malt and the choicest strength-yielding Wheat, the whole partially cooked and predigested, producing a breakfast dish of unequalled value for muscle-building and bone-forming. Experts affirm that Malt Breakfast Food is the only grain food that contains all the great food elements in just the proportion needed for perfect nutrition. The manufacturers guarantee Malt Breakfast Food to be the richest in flavor, the most appetizing, the most satisfying and the most easily digested food in the world. Your Grocer sells and recommends it.

The Pain of Sore Feet

Just about the most tantalizing of all pains comes from sore feet. To get relief bathe the feet in warm water and then rub them with Polson's Nerviline. It penetrates through the pores of the skin, takes out the soreness, reduces swellings, invigorates the tired muscles, tones up the circulation, and prevents the feet from becoming sore again. Nerviline is a protection and safe-guard against the pains and aches of the entire family and cures rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, etc. 25 cents.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I hev a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spare that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Dours, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 95 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. B. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bastow thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbutt, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Bagsie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he had better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

TURKEY ACCEPTS FRENCH CLAIMS

Message Received at Paris Conceding Sultan's Acceptance

BUT FRANCE IS NOT SATISFIED

Will Now Demand the Adjustment of French Protectorate Over Catholics and [illegible]

Paris, Nov. 4.—The despatch of Admiral Caillard's squadron from Toulon to Turkish waters has already had its effect. The French Foreign Office this morning received a telegram from M. Bapst, councillor of the French legation at Constantinople, announcing that the Sultan yesterday sent him a message accepting all the French claims, including the Lorando claim. But the French Government will refuse to accept this surrender as a satisfactory solution of the difficulty, as the Sultan imagines she will do. On the contrary, France will now demand compensation for the moral injury caused to her by the Sultan's conduct during the past three months. This compensation will be in the shape of an adjustment of the French protectorate over Catholics in the Orient, on a satisfactory basis, and guarantees for safeguarding the development of the French schools in the east. Adequate guarantees will also be demanded for the settlement of the Lorando claim and other claims. Moreover, France will strikingly re-affirm its prestige by sending M. Constans, the French Ambassador, back to Constantinople on board a warship.

CEBU GIVES UP REBELLION

General Chaffee Tables the Pacification of Another Island.

Washington, Nov. 4.—An important cablegram was received at the war department this afternoon from General Chaffee. It follows, in part:

Manila, Oct. 31.—Adjutant General Washington: The following from Brigadier General Hughes: "Insurrecto forces Cebu island have come in, laid down arms in good faith in obedience to demand of people for peace; 150 rifles, [illegible], 60 officers, 470 men. Affairs not yet settled [illegible] Bohol island; may move additional troops there to force settlement."

This settles for present, at least, disturbances here as regarding Cebu. Further disorder that island will be made by deliberate action inhabitants, as peace can easily be preserved if people disposed to do so. Shall advise Hughes waste no time, but move on Bohol immediately. CHAFFEE.

Manila, Nov. 2.—General Hughes reports the complete surrender of the insurgents in the island of Cebu and says the pouring of troops into the island of Samar is believed to have had a good effect on the Cebu insurgents, who have been wavering for some time. The malcontents kept up the conflict by saying that a majority of the American troops had left the Philippines.

[illegible] just received here from Catbalogan, island of Samar, say that twelve men of Company G of the Ninth infantry, under command of Sergeant Williford, who had been sent from Basey to San Antonio to investigate and report in regard to the number of bolomen in the vicinity, were viciously attacked by 140 insurgents, who rushed on them with great violence, killing two of the soldiers and wounding two others. Williford remained cool and collected during the attack and the survivors may be stated splendidly. Hundreds of the insurgents were killed. Captain Bookmiller of company G recommends Williford for a medal of honor and Privates Swanton and Nare for certificates of merit.

Fifteen Yaqui Raiders Were Shot by Mexican Cavalry

GEN. BULLER'S FRIENDS APPEAL

Indians Fought for 20 Minutes and Then Fled to the Mountains—More Fighting Expected.

Tucson Ariz., Nov. 1.—A desperate battle took place on Wednesday between Yaqui Indians and Mexican cavalry. Fifteen Yaquis were killed and a number of troopers were wounded. The charge was led by Lieut.-Col. Quintro with 200 men, all mounted. They left Guaymas after receiving repeated despatches announcing raids made by Indians. The Indians were camped in Latuna Canon when the troops came upon them. A fight at close range began and lasted 20 minutes. The troops rode upon the Indians, killing them with their six-shooters. The Indians fell back, and securing their horses, made for the mountains. The troops are in pursuit and more fighting is expected. Lieut.-Col. Quintro is highly commended for his bravery by the people of Guaymas.

New York, Nov. 2.—According to the Tribune, Gen. Buller's friends are not cast down by the National Review's publication of the alleged Colenso heliograph message. They assert that the truth will now be forced out, and that the complete text will show that the passage quoted has been more or less garbled. Gen. Buller's friends assert that he learned in advance that the National Review would have the articles, which have caused so much commotion, and decided to forestall them. The editor of the magazine is a son of the late Admiral Maxse, and his sister is the wife of Lord Edward Cecil, the Prime Minister's son, who was with Baden-Powell at Mafeking.

There is a general appeal to the War Office to make an official statement in regard to the heliographic messages from Gen. Buller to Sir George White. Gen. Buller, it is stated, has been advised by his friends to take legal proceedings against the National Review.

London, Oct. 30.—The streets of London were rendered impassable this evening by the densest and blackest fog known for years. All traffic virtually suspended except in a few main thoroughfares, and Trafalgar Square, the Strand, Whitehall and Piccadilly were blocked with omnibuses unable to make progress. Cabmen led their horses. In the theatres the fog obscured the light.

London, Nov. 2.—A despatch to a news agency from Rome says that the second division of the Italian Mediterranean squadron has started for Turkey with the object of counter-balancing the French naval demonstration.

SHOT WHILE PLAYING GHOST

Woman Kills a Boy Who Had Frightened Her Son.

Pittsburg, Nov. 2.—While indulging in Hallowe'en pranks Fred Bradley, aged 15, was shot and almost instantly killed by Mrs. Margaret Cameron. A crowd of boys gathered around the grocery store of Mrs. Cameron, and frightened her 10-year-old son by playing ghost. Mrs. Cameron fired four shots from a pistol into the crowd. One of the bullets entered Bradley's abdomen and he died within an hour.

Dum-Dum Bullets to Defeat Low

New York, Nov. 2.—Every effort is to be made to introduce the dum-dum bullet into the campaign and make it a political missile to accomplish the end of Seth Low as a candidate. Mr. Shepard has countenanced its use, and refused to deny that his opponent had opposed the use of unnecessarily cruel projectiles in warfare.

At a meeting on Saturday of a pro-Boer committee, an address was adopted calling "the attention of the liberty-loving workmen of New York to the fact that they now have a most effective opportunity presented to them to strike a blow in aid of the gallant men of South Africa who are struggling for freedom," by boycotting "all goods of British manufacture, and all goods carried by British shipping."

The report given out at the Shepard headquarters concludes: "The committee is taking active measures to aid the election of Shepard and Van Hosen, both being earnest advocates of the Boer cause, and to secure the defeat of Seth Low on account of his pronounced pro-English sympathies, and especially because of his having voted at the Hague Peace Conference in favor of the use of the expanding or dum-dum bullets."

WENT HOME TO DIE

Returned to Ireland After Fifty Years and Found Himself a Stranger.

Woodstock, Nov. 4.—A very pathetic letter was received this afternoon by Mr. [illegible] Brady from his old friend, James Kennefick. Mr. Kennefick writes from Mitchelstown, County Cork, Ireland, his native place, to which he returned a few months ago to die. In his letter he touchingly says that after 50 years' absence he, like poor old Rip Van Winkle, is a stranger in his old home.

Mr. Kennefick will be remembered by many of the old residents of Woodstock, Nissouri, Ingersoll, and Beachville. He was engineer of the Thamesford and Nissouri gravel road, the construction of which caused so much trouble with the ratepayers concerned therein. He was a man of some literary attainment, and the poem he made to the sheriff, entitled, "My Manitoba Home," is a [illegible].

Irish League Short of Cash

New York, Nov. 1.—In a report of a meeting of the directors of the United Irish League the Dublin correspondent of the London Times and the New York Times makes significant revelations regarding the financial test of the political enthusiasm of Ireland. Judged by this test, the league has failed in many of the most important districts, says the correspondent.

Kilkenny City, which is represented in Parliament by Patrick O'Brien, contributed 20 shillings to the Parliamentary fund and nothing to the election fund. West Donegal's total subscription was 2 guineas; North Wexford gave £1, and Cork City, William O'Brien constituency, £2.

Power Rates Going Up

Orillia News-Letter: The Ontario Government has again asked the town if the power scheme will be finished this fall and states that 110 horse power will be taken for use at the asylum here. In connection with this matter a meeting of the fire and Water Committee was held Saturday morning and original figures quoted to the Government some time ago for 110 horse power a year $1,485, or $13.50 per horse power, was withdrawn and a rate of $17 per horse power, or $1,870 quoted. This is certainly a step in the right direction, for instead of the scheme costing $75,000, it will cost over $100,000 when everything is completed, there being over $25,000 of expenditure at this end of the line which was not included in the contract, but it has to be met just the same. The additional cost will probably raise the rates all round.

FRENCH SQUADRON IN TURKISH WATERS

The Trouble May Result in War if Turkey Does Not Yield.

FRENCH NAVY READY TO FIGHT

Likely That Turkey Will Settle Rather Than Go to War—Mutiny in the Turkish Army.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Arrivals received from Toulon would imply that the French naval demonstration in the Mediterranean has had the desired effect to make Turkey yield to the demands of France. The following despatch was received from Toulon:

"The complete Mediterranean squadron returned to Toulon this evening and anchored in the roadstead."

This would include Admiral Caillard's division, whose departure has thus either been countermanded or postponed. It would imply that the government has received news from Constantinople since morning which has not yet been divulged and which has induced a change of plan.

It was reported that Admiral Caillard had been ordered to cruise within reach of a despatch boat to-day, for possible further instructions, and it is significant that the torpedo-boat destroyer Hallebarde left Toulon at full speed during the afternoon to rejoin the squadron.

A despatch from Toulon to the Figaro confirms the report of the entire squadron and adds that Admiral Caillard's division is still held in readiness to sail at a moment's notice.

Editorially the Figaro and other morning papers express surprise at this perplexing and unexplained move after the despatch of Admiral Caillard to the Levant had been officially announced.

The decision to make a naval demonstration against Turkey was taken at a meeting of the Cabinet Tuesday, at which M. Delcasse, the minister of foreign affairs, explained the sultan's procrastination regarding the French demands and the delay disputed.

STRENGTH OF FRENCH SQUADRON.

Admiral Caillard's squadron consists of the armored cruisers Admiral Pothuau, Chanzy and Latouche-Treville; the second-class cruiser Galilee. The crews aggregate 2,346 men, but the vessels will also carry landing parties.

The newspapers approve the government's decision. The Journal des Debats says:

"Everyone at Constantinople and the other capitals must be aware that France and Russia are completely in accord on this matter. Under these circumstances it is difficult to believe that the Ottoman government will not come to its sense, and recognizing the affair before it is too late relieve us of the necessity of using other means than those of diplomacy and courteous discussion."

La Liberte remarks that the fact that Admiral Caillard has embarked 1,600 marines is a sign that the [illegible] will not only [illegible] a slight show of [illegible], but will go to the end, even though war should ensue.

MUTINY IN TURKISH ARMY.

Constantinople, Nov. 4.—A mutinous demonstration was made in front of the admiralty offices Tuesday by 600 officers and non-commissioned bashi-bazouks, which caused dismay among the occupants of the Yildiz palace.

The pay of those who took part in the demonstration is several months in arrears and only a promise of prompt settlement prevented the carrying out of threats of further action.

The pay of all the troops with the exception of the marines comes with fair regularity because they formed the guard at the weekly selamlik and discontent among them might result in serious consequences to Sultan Abdul Hamid.

POSITION OF OTHER NATIONS.

Washington, Nov. 4.—M. Margerie, the charge d'affaires of the French embassy here, had a short interview with Secretary Hay this afternoon, after which the secretary left at once for the white house. M. Margerie may be considered an expert in matters pertaining to the Levant, having spent several years at Constantinople recently as an attache of the French embassy. He feels confident that there is not the slightest danger of a dissolution of the concert owing to the action of the French government in sending warships to make a naval demonstration in the Turkish waters and and to seize a customs port.

The other nations parties to the concert understand the situation perfectly and, in fact, most of them have grievances and claims themselves like the French complaints, so they may look with complacency upon the effort to make the porte meet his obligations. There also is precedence for this action, for a few years ago Austria seized a Turkish port in the Gulf of Alexandria, and held it until her claims were paid, yet the incident did not cause any protest by the others powers or even attract much attention. It is confidently expected that it will not be necessary for the French admiral to proceed to any great length before the Turks will meet his demands.

KILLED IN ACTION

John Pemberton Formerly of Millbrook Meets Death in South Africa

The Toronto papers of yesterday contained the following despatch from Ottawa—

"The following cablegram from the casualty department, Cape Town, reached the Militia Department to-day: —"Please inform Professor Pemberton, Halifax, that Sergt. J. G. Pemberton, Canadian Scouts, was killed in action at Beroteenfabichen, 27th October."

The fate that Sergt. Pemberton met on active service in South Africa will be keenly felt here amongst his friends, for he was known to many persons in Peterborough. He was the second son of Prof. Pemberton, who, for a number of years was bandmaster at Millbrook, and followed the profession of music teaching in that village. About six years ago the family moved to Halifax, where the deceased was very successful in a large wholesale house. He made frequent trips back to his old home at Millbrook, and generally took a run down to Peterborough to renew old acquaintances. John, who would be now about 24 years of age, was of a venturesome nature, and followed the Second Canadian Contingent to South Africa. He did not enlist until some time after arriving at Cape Town. He was a general favorite, a good hearted fellow, and hosts of friends in Millbrook and Peterborough will be grieved to learn of his untimely end.

Refuses to Hang Prisoner

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 4.—The supreme court has issued a writ of mandamus to compel Warden C. E. Haddox of the state prison to execute Geo. Carter, convicted of the murder of a companion in a Charleston gambling house. As the time for the execution under the original sentence has passed through various legal proceedings in Carter's behalf the warden refused to hang him without a formal rehearing and a resentence. The state court got a writ of mandamus to compel the warden to execute the prisoner on any day he sees fit. The point will now be decided by the court of last resort, the warden determining to appeal.

The Crandella Changes Hands

Lindsay Post: The Crandella was purchased this morning by a syndicate to be known as the Kawartha Lakes Navigation Co., composed of Messrs Jas. H. Lennon, R. M. Knight and R. Elliott. All who know these gentlemen will at once agree that we can feel assured of having on these waters next season a first-class boat, run in first-class shape and with the comfort and interests of the pleasure-seeking public always in full view. Already preparations are being made to take the boat down to dry-dock on Monday, where the hull will be rebuilt, and then before spring the whole upper work will be so remodelled that few will be able to recognize her. The machinery will be overhauled and new installed where required. Special attention will be paid—in doing this work—to the comfort and convenience of [illegible] and we feel safe in assuring the public that a new era has begun all round and that all who remember Capt. Elliott's courteous treatment of the travelling public, this season will look forward with pleasure to their dealings with him next season.

Up for the Winter

Lakefield News: Coming events cast their shadows before. An exemplification of this bright saying of the poet Campbell is seen in the array of yachts of various designs which are now lining the shore opposite the Strickland Co's works. The following boats are now hauled up for the winter: Mr. Jas. McDonald's "Mayflower," Mr. Breese's "Flash," Mr. J. W. Allen's "Lorelei," Messrs. McBain and Stratton's "Mollie," Mr. Carter's "Libby," and the late Colonel Sloan's "Estelle." They make quite an imposing fleet.

ALLEGED TO HAVE POISONED FOUR

A Trained Nurse Is Accused of an Awful Crime.

FOUR DEATHS ARE INVESTIGATED

Strange Massachusetts Crimes Will Be Probed in Court—Miss Jennie Toppan Arrested After Analysis of Vital Organs.

Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 4.—Miss Jennie Toppan, a trained nurse, 44 years old, is locked up in the Barnstable county jail on a warrant charging her with the murder of Mrs. Mary Gibbs of Cataumet, Mass. The warrant charges not only the murder of Mrs. Gibbs, but three other crimes are hanging over her head, as Mrs. Gibbs' father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Alden P. Davis, and her sister, Mrs. Harry Gordon, wife of the cashier of the Chicago office of an insurance company, died within a few days of her death.

Miss Toppan was arrested yesterday afternoon at Amherst, N.H., where she was visiting Miss Nichols, an intimate friend. She was taken to Nashua, N.H., and in court this morning waived examination and returned to Massachusetts without requisition papers. She arrived in this village in custody of General Joseph Whitney, chief of the state police.

Since her arrest developments have been disclosed concerning the identity of Miss Toppan. She was taken from a Boston home when a child by Mrs. Toppan, a wealthy widow of Lowell, Mass. At that home she was known as Nora Kelly. When she was 25 years old she wanted to become a trained nurse and was placed in the Massachusetts general hospital, where she graduated with high honors.

FOUR DEATHS ARE INVESTIGATED.

The first death attributed to Miss Toppan was that of Mrs. Davis, who died in Cambridge on July 4 and whose body was taken to Cataumet for burial. Miss Toppan was the nurse. The family had a summer home at Cataumet and Mr. Davis with his two daughters, Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Gordon, decided to remain there for the summer. Mrs. Gordon's health was not good and Miss Toppan was asked to remain. About four weeks after Mrs. Davis' death the father died suddenly one morning after having been in excellent health and spirits the day previous. Within two weeks the two daughters died.

Mrs. Gibbs' husband, Captain Irving Gibbs, was absent on a sea trip at the time of his wife's death, but immediately upon his return began an investigation. He gathered sufficient evidence to warrant District Attorney Holmes in ordering an autopsy, which was held early in September by Dr. Faunce, the medical examiner.

ANALYSIS OF ORGANS.

Portions of the bodies of Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Gordon were sent to Professor E. S. Wood of Harvard, who late yesterday notified Attorney Holmes of his findings. No regular report was filed, but Professor Holmes told the district attorney enough to cause an officer to be hurried to New Hampshire after the nurse.

Miss Toppan had not been lost sight of from the time Captain Gibbs first reported his suspicions to Attorney Holmes. When the state police were put on the case Detective John S. Patterson was detailed to watch Miss Toppan and when it came time to make the arrest he was in Amherst.

When seen to-night Attorney Holmes was not inclined to talk much about the case. "Miss Toppan had been under suspicion for some time," he said, but we kept the facts very closely guarded until we had all the evidence we wanted. Professor Wood analyzed the stomachs and notified me informally of his conclusions. On the strength of these I caused the woman's arrest. I will not go into the details about the government's evidence only to say that Miss Toppan was the nurse in the Davis family during the whole of a remarkable dying period."

THREE MORE SUSPICIOUS MURDERS.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4.—The arrest of Miss Toppan charged with the murder of Mrs. Mary Gibbs caused a tremendous sensation here, where Miss Toppan was well known here and where the Davis family always resided. Since the investigation into the sudden deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Davis and their daughters there have been several stories circulating that may figure to no small extent in the case against Miss Toppan. A close friend of the Davis family has traced what he claims to be three rather strange deaths in which Miss Toppan in a greater or less extent figured as a nurse. The first of these was the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Brigham of Lowell, Mass., a daughter of Mrs. Toppan, the adopted mother of Miss Toppan. Mrs. Brigham died Aug. 28, 1899, at Cataumet, Mass. The second strange death was that of Florence M. Calkins, housekeeper for Mr. Brigham in Lowell, who died suddenly Jan. 15, 1900. The last was Mrs. Edward P. Bannister, of Lowell, who died suddenly Aug. 27, 1901, supposedly of heart trouble.

NURSE A VICTIM OF MORPHINE.

Amherst, N. H., Nov. 4.—Miss Nichols, whom Miss Toppan was visiting in Amherst, in an interview to-night said: "I have known Miss Toppan for years. She came to visit me about a month ago after having been ill in a hospital at Lowell. About a week after she came to our house I discovered that my dear friend was taking morphine—in fact, that she had acquired the morphine habit. I did all I could to break up the habit, but my work counted for little. She would appear rational a great part of the time, but after taking the drug became stupified and sort of rambling. I know that if she did any of these things charged against her the crime can be laid to the effects of that drug.

Canada Guards Against Plague

Ottawa, Oct. Nov 2.—On account of the outbreak of the bubonic plague at Glasgow, Dr. Montizambert, Director-General of Public Health, has issued a circular letter to all steamship companies, requiring all medical officers of vessels to prepare and hand to the quarantine officers, on arrival at Canadian ports, a statement of the temperature of every person on board, taken within 24 hours of arrival. This will draw the attention of the inspecting officers to cases of the disease indicated by a rising temperature, and will ensure that the ship surgeon is brought in contact with every one on board. In addition, instructions have been issued to all quarantine officers to resume, with regard to Liverpool and Glasgow, the special instructions issued last year, when there was bubonic at Glasgow. This is as much as the present reports of isolated cases in Glasgow seem to justify the department in doing.

Glasgow, Nov. 1.—Another case of the bubonic plague has been certified to here. Large numbers of people who have been in contact with plague cases or suspects have been isolated. The foreign Consuls to-day are refusing to grant clean bills of health.

A barmaid who was recently transferred from the Central Station Hotel which belongs to the Caledonian Railway, to the station at Airdrie is pronounced to be suffering from the plague.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 1.—Ships leaving or enterin the port of Batoum, on the Black Sea, have been ordered to be closely inspected, owing to a death from the plague having occurred in the town.

URGES TRADE WITH AFRICA

Former Consul Stowe Tells Implement Dealers of Great Possibilities.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 4.—Colonel J. G. Stowe, former United States consul to Cape Town, addressed the annual convention of the National Association of Agricultural Implement and Vehicle Manufacturers to-day. After touching on the war in South Africa, he spoke of the great trade possibilities for American manufacturers in the Transval and urged increased efforts upon the part of the producers of this country.

George H. Maxwell, manager of the National Irrigation Association of Chicago, urged the delegates to join in the effort to reclaim the arid lands of the west, and to develop home markets, and Congressman W. A. Reeder, of Kansas, supported his argument. The president was appointed to act as a member of the irrigation association's advisory council.

SANG RULE BRITANNIA

New York, Nov. 2.—A strange thing happened in the Academy of Music. There was a concert there given under the auspices of Clan Macdonald, and the particular star of the aggregation of talent was Miss Jessie N. Maclachlan, known as the Scottish prima donna, a woman of international reputation, who has sung before the late Queen Victoria, King Edward and other dignitaries, royal and otherwise. It was her first appearance in Brooklyn and her second in the United States. She was asked to sing a national song and the committeemen said that they preferred "The Star Spangled Banner," but Miss Maclachlan did not know "The Star Spangled Banner." That is not yet in her repertory, but she declared that she would learn it during a brief rest that she expects to have next week after singing in Montreal. The best she could do in the way of a national hymn was "Rule Britannia."

Palace Awaits Kwang Su

Pekin, Nov. 4.—The repairs to the walls, towers and palace have been almost completed. A temporary structure of wood and cloth has been erected in place of the destroyed Chien-Nen tower, under which Emperor Kwang Su will pass when entering the forbidden city. It is painted to resemble the old stone tower, with cannon in the windows, and looks like a piece of theatrical scenery. Every effort is being made to conceal from the court the evidence of conquest. The British loopholed the wall at the station outside Chien-Nen gate, and the Chinese are now building another wall outside this to screen it from the view of the court. Prince Ching started to meet the court to-day.

TRADING STAMPS

Court of Appeal To Be Asked as to Law's Validity.

At Osgoode Hall the Attorney-General submitted to the Court of Appeal for an expression of opinion the question as to whether the Ontario Legislature was within its powers in, at its last session, passing an act, empowering municipalities to prohibit the sale of or trafficking in trading stamps within their limits. Should the decision be in favor of stamps, the by-law recently passed by the council prohibiting their use after Jan. 1st, will be quashed.

Esther Turned Him Down

For the past two weeks Tom Marks and company have been holding the boards at the Victoria theatre, Kingston. Among the company, Peterborough people will remember Miss Esther Evans, the attractive young blonde soubrette who was warmly received here this season. Well, this angelic coon shouter has been the cause of trouble in the afore-mentioned city. It seems that Mr. Lester Moffatt, son of the proprietor of the Campbell House, Napanee, and traveller for a Toronto firm, got struck on the winsome miss. Now, Miss Evans did not worry herself over his infatuation, so Lester attempted suicide at the Iroquois hotel, by inhaling chloroform after writing a billet-doux to the object of his affections. Physicians were summoned and the young man was finally restored to consciousness.

A SEVERE FIGHT WITH HEAVY LOSS

British Casualties Total Nearly 250 Men.

NINE OFFICERS WERE KILLED

Col. Benson, in Command, was Born in St. Catharines, Son of Senator Benson—Boers Attacked in a Mist.

London, Nov. 2.—Lord Kitchener cabled the War Office:

"I have just heard of a severe attack made on the rear guard of Col. Benson's column when about twenty miles north-east of Bethel, near Brakenlaagte, during a thick mist.

"The strength of the enemy is reported to have been a thousand. They rushed two guns with the rear guard, but it is uncertain whether they were able to remove them.

"I fear our casualties were heavy. Col. Benson was wounded, but not severely. A relieving column will reach him this morning."

Later Lord Kitchener telegraphed as follows: "Col. Barter who marched from the constabulary line yesterday, reached Benson's column early this (Friday) morning unopposed. He reports that Col. Benson died of his wounds.

"The casualties are the following: killed—Col. E. Guinness Major F. D. Murray, Captains M. W. Lindsay and F. T. Thorold, Lieuts. E. V. J. Brooke and R. E. Shepherd, and Second Lieut. A. J. Corlett. Died of his wounds—Capt. Eyre Lloyd."

Lord Kitchener then gives the names of thirteen other officers who were wounded, most of them severely, and announces that 54 non-commissioned officers and men were killed and 160 wounded, adding that four of the latter have since died of their wounds.

The despatch then says: "I assume that the two guns have been recovered and the enemy has withdrawn, but I have no further details. I deeply regret the loss of Col. Benson and the officers and men who fell with him. In Benson the service loses a most gallant and capable officer, who invariably led his column with marked success and judgment.

"The fighting was at very close quarters, and maintained with great determination by both sides. The enemy suffered heavily, but I have not yet received a reliable estimate. The Boers retired east."

The Col. Benson whose reverse and death is chronicled above was a son of Canada, though long absent from his native land, and yet has connections residing here. His father was the late Hon. J R Benson of St. Catharines, a member of the Senate, and his brother, James Benson, is now a barrister in St. Catharines. His mother was a daughter of the late James Ingersoll of Ingersoll. The colonel's full name was Frederick William Benson, and he was born in the Garden City on Aug. 2, 1849.

Col. Benson was a student at Grantham Academy, St. Catharines, and Upper Canada College, and went to Sandhurst, England, for his military training. He was in the Fenian Raid, and joined the 21st Hussars Imperial Regiment in 1869, being transferred to the 12th Royal Lancers seven years later. In 1880 he passed the Staff College and was appointed captain in the Dragoon Guards, joining the 17th Royal Lancers in 1881.

Col. Benson had been in the Indian service, having been A.D.C. to the Lieut.-Governor of the North-west Provinces in 1877. From 1882 to 1884 he was brigade-major at Poona, and later was garrison instructor in Bengal. He commanded a brigade of Egyptain cavalry from '92 to '94, and the following year went to Dublin as garrison instructor.

He was ordered to Africa at the outbreak of the war in 1899, and had been at it ever since. He had known what it was to surprise as well as to be surprised, and it was only on the 22nd ult. that he took 37 prisoners from a Boer laager.

RICE'S FATE IN COURT'S HANDS

The Case Will Go to the Court of Appeal

HOPES TO SECURE PARDON

Jury Gives a Verdict Which Gives Rice a Chance for His Life—His Counsel Hopes to Secure Ultimate Pardon

Yesterday afternoon, after being out four hours, and as reported in Saturday's Times, the jury in the trial of Fred Lee Rice brought in a verdict which gives Rice a chance for his life, and through which T C Robinette, his counsel, hopes to secure for his prisoner an ultimate pardon.

The verdict brought in was: "We find the prisoner guilty, but are unable to say who fired the shot."

A few minutes before bringing in their verdict the jury came in to ask Chief Justice Falconbridge for light upon the word "collusion." This pleased Rice and his counsel greatly, for it showed that the jury had been unable at least to find that Rice had fired the shot. A few minutes later His Lordship was again summoned.

"Do you find the prisoner guilty or not guilty?" asked Clerk Nichol.

"On, the first branch of the case we have been unable to agree. On the second branch we find the prisoner guilty.

"Do you think you can agree that the prisoner fired the shot?" asked the Chief Justice.

"No, my Lord. We have discussed it for a considerable time, and it is impossible for us to agree."

Mr. Robinette then asked to have judgment stayed, and asked for a reserve case, to be taken to the Court of Appeal. This appeal will be taken on the grounds that there was no collusion to kill Boyd, and it was not shown that there was any design prior to firing the shot that killed the constable. Mr. Robinette also argued that jury had no right to bring in a special verdict.

His Lordship then acquiesced, and directed that the defence should be allowed to argue that it was a mistrial on account of the failure of the jury to bring in a verdict on the [illegible] Sentence will not be passed [illegible] case is determined.

TURKEY ACCEPTS FRENCH CLAIMS

Message Received at Paris Conceding Sultan's Acceptance

BUT FRANCE IS NOT SATISFIED

Will Now Demand the Adjustment of French Protectorate Over Catholics and Di[illegible]

Paris, Nov. 4.—The despatch of Admiral Caillard's squadron from Toulon to Turkish waters has already had its effect. The French Foreign Office this morning received a telegram from M. Bapst, councillor of the French legation at Constantinople, announcing that the Sultan yesterday sent him a message accepting all the French claims, including the Lorando claim. But the French Government will refuse to accept this surrender as a satisfactory settlement of the difficulty, as the Sultan imagines she will do. On the contrary, France will now demand compensation for the moral injury caused to her by the Sultan's conduct during the past three months. This compensation will be in the shape of an adjustment of the French protectorate over Catholics in the Orient, on a satisfactory basis, and guarantee for safeguarding the development of the French schools in the east. Adequate guarantees will also be demanded for the settlement of the Lorando claim and other claims. Moreover, France will strikingly reaffirm its prestige by sending M. Constans, the French Ambassador, back to Constantinople on board a warship.

CEBU GIVES UP REBELLION

General Chaffee Cables the Pacification of Another Island.

Washington, Nov. 4.—An important cablegram was received at the war department this afternoon from General Chaffee. It follows, in part:

Manila, Oct. 31.—Adjutant General Washington: The following from Brigadier General Hughes: "Insurrecto forces Cebu island have come in, laid down arms in good faith in obedience to demand of people for peace; [illegible] 60 officers, [illegible] Bohol island; may move additional troops there to force settlement."

This settles for present, at least, disturbances here as regarding Cebu. Further disorder that island will be made by deliberate action inhabitants, [illegible] easily be procured if people disposed to do so. Shall advise Hughes waste no time, [illegible] Bohol immediately. CHAFFEE.

Manila, Nov. 2.—General Hughes reports the complete surrender of the insurgents in the island of Cebu and says the pouring of troops into the island of Samar is believed to have had a good effect on the Cebu insurgents, who have been wavering for some time. The malcontents keep up the comfort by saying that a majority of the American troops had left the Philippines.

[illegible] just received here from Calbayog, island of Samar, say that twelve men of Company G of the Ninth Infantry, under command of Sergeant Williford, who had been sent from Basey to San Antonio to investigate and report in regard to the number of bolomen in the vicinity, were viciously attacked by 140 insurgents, who rushed on them with great violence, killing two of the soldiers and wounding two others. Williford remained cool and collected during the attack and the survivors are said to have acted splendidly. [illegible] of the insurgents were killed. Captain Bookmiller of company G recommends Williford for a medal of honor and Privates Swanton and Nero for certificates of merit.

Fifteen Yaqui Raiders Were Shot by Mexican Cavalry

GEN. BULLER'S FRIENDS APPEAL

Indians Fought for 20 Minutes and Then Fled to the Mountains—More Fighting Expected.

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 1.—A desperate battle took place on Wednesday between Yaqui Indians and Mexican cavalry. Fifteen Yaquis were killed and a number of troopers were wounded. The charge was led by Lieut.-Col. Quintro with 200 men, all mounted. They left Guaymas after receiving repeated despatches announcing raids made by Indians. The Indians were camped in Latuna Canon when the troops came upon them. A fight at close range began and lasted 20 minutes. The troops rode upon the Indians, killing them with their six-shooters. The Indians fell back and, [illegible] their horses, made for the mountains. The troops are in pursuit and more fighting is expected. Lieut.-Col. Quintro is highly commended for his bravery by the people of Guaymas.

New York, Nov. 2.—According to the Tribune, Gen. Buller's friends are not cast down by the National Review's publication of the alleged Colenso heliograph message. They assert that the truth will soon be forced out, and that the 'complete' text will show that the passage quoted has been more or less garbled. Gen. Buller's friends assert that he learned in advance that the National Review would have the article, which have caused so much comment, and decided to forestall them. The editor of the magazine is a son of the late Admiral Maxse, and his sister is the wife of Lord Edward Cecil, the Prime Minister's son, who was with Baden-Powell at Mafeking.

There is a general appeal to the War Office to make an official statement in regard to the heliographic messages from Gen. Buller to Sir George White. Gen. Buller, it is stated, has been advised by his friends to take legal proceedings against the National Review.

London, Oct. 30.—The streets of London were rendered impassable this evening by the densest and blackest fog known for years. All traffic virtually suspended except in a few main thoroughfares, and Trafalgar Square, the Strand, Whitehall and Piccadilly were blocked with omnibuses unable to make progress. Cabmen led their horses. In the theatres the fog obscured the light.

London, Nov. 2.— A despatch to a news agency from Rome says that the second division of the Italian Mediterranean squadron has started for Turkey with the object of counter-balancing the French naval demonstration.

SHOT WHILE PLAYING GHOST

Woman Kills a Boy Who Had Frightened Her Son.

Pittsburg, Nov. 3.—While indulging in Hallowe'en pranks Fred Bradley, aged 15, was shot and almost instantly killed by Mrs. Margaret Cameron. A crowd of boys gathered around the grocery store of Mrs. Cameron, and frightened her 10-year-old son by playing ghost. Mrs. Cameron fired four shots from a pistol into the crowd. One of the bullets entered Bradley's abdomen, and he died within an hour.

Dum-Dum Bullets to Defeat Low

New York, Nov. 2.—Every effort is to be made to introduce the dum-dum bullet into the campaign and make it a political missile to accomplish the end of Seth Low as a candidate. Mr. Shepard has countenanced its use, and refused to deny that his opponent had opposed the use of unnecessarily cruel projectiles in warfare.

At a meeting on Saturday of a pro-Boer committee, an address was adopted calling "the attention of the liberty-loving workmen of New York to the fact that they now have a most effective opportunity presented to them to strike a blow in aid of the gallant men of South Africa who are struggling for freedom," by boycotting "all goods of British manufacture, and all goods carried by British shipping."

The report given out at the Shepard headquarters concludes: "The committee is taking active measures to aid the election of Shepard and Van Hoesen, both being earnest advocates of the Boer cause, and to secure the defeat of Seth Low on account of his pronounced pro-English sympathies, and especially because of his having voted at the Hague Peace Conference in favor of the use of the expanding or dum-dum bullets."

WENT HOME TO DIE

Returned to Ireland After Fifty Years and Found Himself a Stranger.

Woodstock, Nov. 4.—A very pathetic letter was received this afternoon by Mr. [illegible] Brady from his old friend, James Kennefick. Mr. Kennefick writes from Middleton, County Cork, Ireland, his native place, to which he returned a few months ago to die. In his letter he touchingly says that after 50 years' absence he, like your old Rip Van Winkle, is a stranger in his old home.

Mr. Kennefick will be remembered by many of the old residents of Woodstock, Nissouri, Ingersoll, and Beachville. He was engineer of the Thamesford and Nissouri gravel road, the construction of which caused so much trouble with the ratepayers concerned therein. He was a man of some literary attainment, and the poem he made to the sheriff, entitled, "My Manitoba Home," is a transcendent one.

Irish League Short of Cash

New York, Nov. 1.—In a report of a meeting of the directors of the United Irish League the Dublin correspondent of the London Times and the New York Times makes significant revelations regarding the financial test of the political enthusiasm of Ireland. Judged by this test, the league has failed in many of the most important districts, says the correspondent.

Kilkenny City, which is represented in Parliament by Patrick O'Brien, contributed 30 shillings to the Parliamentary fund and nothing to the election fund. West Donegal's total subscription was 2 guineas; North Wexford gave £1, and Cork City, William O'Brien constituency, £3.

Power Rates Going Up

Orillia News-Letter: The Ontario Government has again asked the town if the power scheme will be finished this fall and stated that 110 horse power will be taken for use at the asylum here. In connection with this matter a meeting of the fire and Water Committee was held Saturday morning and original figures quoted to the Government some time ago for 110 horse power a year $1,485, or $13.50 per horse power, was withdrawn and a rate of $17 per horse power, or $1,870 quoted. This is certainly a step in the right direction, for instead of the scheme costing $75,000, it will cost over $100,000 when everything is completed, there being over $25,000 of expenditure at this end of the line which was not included in the contract, but it has to be met just the same. The additional cost will probably raise the rates all round.

FRENCH SQUADRON IN TURKISH WATERS

The Trouble May Result in War if Turkey Does Not Yield.

FRENCH NAVY READY TO FIGHT

Likely That Turkey Will Settle Rather Than Go to War—Mutiny in the Turkish Army.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Arrivals received from Toulon would imply that the French naval demonstration in the Mediterranean has had the desired effect to make Turkey yield to the demands of France. The following despatch was received from Toulon:

"The complete Mediterranean squadron returned to Toulon this evening and anchored in the roadstead."

This would include Admiral Caillard's division, whose departure has thus either been countermanded or postponed. It would imply that the government has received news from Constantinople since morning which has not yet been divulged and which has induced a change of plan.

It was reported that Admiral Caillard had been ordered to cruise within reach of a despatch boat to-day, for possible further instructions, and it is significant that the torpedoboat destroyer Hallebarde left Toulon at full speed during the afternoon to rejoin the squadron.

A despatch from Toulon to the Figaro [illegible] the report of the entire squadron and adds that Admiral Caillard's division is still held in readiness to sail at a moment's notice.

Editorially the Figaro and other morning papers express surprise at this perplexing and unexplained move after the despatch of Admiral Caillard to the Levant had been officially announced.

The decision to make a naval demonstration against Turkey was taken at a meeting of the Cabinet Tuesday, at which M. Delcasse, the Minister of foreign affairs, explained the sultan's procrastination regarding the French demands and the step decided.

STRENGTH OF FRENCH SQUADRON.

Admiral Caillard's squadron consists of the armored cruisers Admiral Pothuau, Chanzy and Latouche-Treville; the second-class cruiser Galilee. The crews aggregate 2,160 men, but the vessels will also carry landing parties.

The newspapers approve the government's decision. The Journal des Debats says:

"Everyone at Constantinople and the other capitals must be aware that France and Russia are completely in accord on this matter. Under these circumstances it is difficult to believe that the Ottoman government will not come to its sense, and recognizing its error before it is too late relieve us of the necessity of using other methods than those of diplomacy and courteous discussion."

La Liberte remarks that the fact that Admiral Caillard has embarked 1,600 marines is a warning to the Porte that France will not stop before [illegible] show of resistance, but will go to the end, even though war should ensue.

MUTINY IN TURKISH ARMY.

Constantinople, Nov. 4.—A mutinous demonstration was made in front of the admiralty offices Tuesday by 600 officers and non-commissioned bashi-bazouks, which caused dismay among the occupants of the Yildiz palace.

The pay of those who took part in the demonstration is several months in arrears and only a promise of prompt settlement prevented the carrying out of threats of further action.

The pay of all the troops with the exception of the marines comes with fair regularity because they furnish the guard at the weekly selamlik and discontent among them might result in serious consequences to Sultan Abdul Hamid.

POSITION OF OTHER NATIONS.

Washington, Nov. 4.—M. Margerie, the charge d'affaires of the French embassy here, had a short interview with Secretary Hay this afternoon, after which the secretary left at once for the white house. M. Margerie may be considered an expert in matters pertaining to the Levant, having spent several years at Constantinople recently as an attache of the French embassy. He feels confident that there is not the slightest danger of a dissolution of the concordat owing to the action of the French government in sending warships to make a naval demonstration in the Turkish waters and and to seize a customs port.

The other nations parties to the concordat understand the situation perfectly and, in fact, most of them have grievances and claims themselves like the French complaints, so they may look with complacency upon the effort to make the porte meet his obligations. There also is precedence for this action, for a few years ago Austria seized a Turkish port in the Gulf of Alexandria, and held it until her claims were paid, yet the incident did not cause any protest by the others powers or even attract much attention. It is confidently expected that it will not be necessary for the French admiral to proceed to any great length before the Turks will meet his demands.

KILLED IN ACTION

John Pemberton Formerly of Millbrook Meets Death in South Africa

The Toronto papers of yesterday contained the following despatch from Ottawa—

"The following cablegram from the casualty department, Cape Town, reached the Militia Department to-day: —"Please inform Professor Pemberton, Halifax, that Sergt. J. G. Pemberton, Canadian Scouts, was killed in action at Kerstenfabicken, 27th October."

The fate that Sergt. Pemberton met on active service in South Africa will be keenly felt here amongst his friends, for he was known to many persons in Peterborough. He was the second son of Prof. Pemberton, who, for a number of years was bandmaster at Millbrook, and followed the profession of music teaching in that village. About six years ago the family moved to Halifax, where the deceased was very successful in a large wholesale house. He made frequent trips back to his old home at Millbrook, and generally took a run down to Peterborough to renew old acquaintances. John, who would be now about 24 years of age, was of a venturesome nature, and followed the Second Canadian Contingent to South Africa. He did not enlist until some time after arriving at Cape Town. He was a general favorite, a good hearted fellow, and hosts of friends in Millbrook and Peterborough will be grieved to learn of his untimely end.

Refuses to Hang Prisoner

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 4.—The supreme court has issued a writ of mandamus to compel Warden C. E. Haddox of the state prison to execute Geo. Carter, convicted of the murder of a companion in a Charleston gambling house. As the time for the execution under the original sentence has passed through various leal proceedings in Carter's behalf the warden refused to hang him without a formal rehearing and a resentence. The state court got a writ of mandamus to compel the warden to execute the prisoner on any day he sees fit. The point will now be decided by the court of last resort; the warden determining to appeal.

The Crandella Changes Hands

Lindsay Post: The Crandella was purchased this morning by a syndicate to be known as the Kawartha Lakes Excursion Co., composed of Messrs Jas. H. Lemon, R. [illegible] and R. Elliott. All who know these gentlemen will at once agree that we can feel assured of having on these waters next season a first-class boat, run in first-class shape and with the comfort and interests of the pleasure-seeking public always in full view. Already preparations are being made to take the boat down to dry-dock on Monday, where the hull will be rebuilt, and then before spring the whole upper work will be so remodelled that few will be able to recognize her. The machinery will be overhauled and new installed where required. Special attention will be paid—in doing this work—to the comfort and convenience of ladies and in this we feel safe in assuring the public that a new era has begun all round and that all who remember Capt. Elliott's courteous treatment of the travelling public then expect will look forward with pleasure to their dealings with him next season.

Up for the Winter

Lakefield News: Coming events cast their shadows before. An exemplification of this bright saying of the poet Campbell is seen in the array of yachts of various designs which are now lining the shore opposite the Strickland Co's works. The following boats are now hauled up for the winter: Mr. Jas. McDonald's "Mayflower," Mr. Breese's "Flash," Mr. J. W. Allen's "Lorelei," Messrs. McBain and Stratton's "Mollie," Mr. Carter's "Libby," and the late Colonel Sloan's "Estelle." They make quite an imposing fleet.

Miserable? Of course. Eat more, digest more, then feel streaming through life's renewed current, the buoyancy, the strength, the hopefulness of youth. Simply done if you'll use Ferrozone, the wonderful blood maker, nerve strength and brain vigor. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, know all about it. Call and ask him about it. Price 50c.

ALLEGED TO HAVE POISONED FOUR

A Trained Nurse Is Accused of an Awful Crime.

FOUR DEATHS ARE INVESTIGATED

Strange Massachusetts Crimes Will Be Probed in Court—Miss Jennie Toppan Arrested After Analysis of Vital Organs.

Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 4.—Miss Jennie Toppan, a trained nurse, 45 years old, is locked up in the Barnstable county jail on a warrant charging her with the murder of Mrs. Mary Gibbs of Cataumet, Mass. The warrant charges not only the murder of Mrs. Gibbs, but three other crimes are hanging over her head, as Mrs. Gibbs' father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Alden P. Davis, and her sister, Mrs. Harry Gordon, wife of the cashier of the Chicago office of an insurance company, died within a few days of her death.

Miss Toppan was arrested yesterday afternoon at Amherst, N.H., where she was visiting Miss Nichols, an intimate friend. She was taken to Nashua, N.H., and in court this morning waived examination and returned to Massachusetts without requisition papers. She arrived in this village in custody of General Joseph Whitney, chief of the state police.

Since her arrest developments have been disclosed concerning the identity of Miss Toppan. She was taken from a Boston home when a child by Mrs. Toppan, a wealthy widow of Lowell, Mass. At that home she was known as Nora Kelly. When she was 25 years old she wanted to become a trained nurse and was placed in the Massachusetts general hospital, where she graduated with high honors.

FOUR DEATHS ARE INVESTIGATED.

The first death attributed to Miss Toppan was that of Mrs. Davis, who died in Cambridge on July 4 and whose body was taken to Cataumet for burial. Miss Toppan was the nurse. The family had a summer home at Cataumet and Mr. Davis with his two daughters, Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Gordon, decided to remain there for the summer. Mrs. Gordon's health was not good and Miss Toppan was asked to remain. About four weeks after Mrs. Davis' death the father died suddenly one morning after having been in excellent health and spirits the day previous. Within two weeks the two daughters died.

Mrs. Gibbs' husband, Captain Irving Gibbs, was absent on a sea trip at the time of his wife's death, but immediately upon his return began an investigation. He gathered sufficient evidence to warrant District Attorney Holmes in ordering an autopsy, which was held early in September by Dr. Faunce, the medical examiner.

ANALYSIS OF ORGANS.

[illegible] of the bodies of Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Gordon were sent to Professor E. S. Wood of Harvard, who late yesterday notified Attorney Holmes of his findings. No regular report was filed, but Professor Holmes told the district attorney enough to cause an officer to be hurried to New Hampshire after the nurse.

Miss Toppan had not been lost sight of from the time Captain Gibbs first reported his suspicions to Attorney Holmes. When the state police were put on the case Detective John S. Patterson was detailed to watch Miss Toppan and when it came time to make the arrest he was in Amherst.

When seen to-night Attorney Holmes was not inclined to talk much about the case. "Miss Toppan had been under suspicion for some time," he said, but we kept the facts very closely guarded until we had all the evidence we wanted. Professor Wood analyzed the stomachs and notified me informally of his conclusions. On the strength of these I caused the woman's arrest. I will not go into the details about the government's evidence only to say that Miss Toppan was the nurse in the Davis family during the whole of a remarkable dying period."

THREE MORE SUSPICIOUS MURDERS.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4.—The arrest of Miss Toppan charged with the murder of Mrs. Mary Gibbs caused a tremendous sensation here, where Miss Toppan was well known here and where the Davis family always resided. Since the investigation into the sudden deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Davis and their daughters there have been several stories circulating that may figure to no small extent in the case against Miss Toppan. A close friend of the Davis family has traced what he claims to be three rather strange deaths in which Miss Toppan in a greater or less extent figured as a nurse. The first of these was the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Brigham of Lowell, Mass., a daughter of Mrs. Toppan, the adopted mother of Miss Toppan. Mrs. Brigham died Aug. 29, 1899, at Cataumet, Mass. The second strange death was that of Florence M. Calkins, housekeeper for Mr. Brigham in Lowell, who died suddenly Jan. 15, 1900. The last was Mrs. Edward F. Bannister, of Lowell, who died suddenly Aug. 27, 1901, supposedly of heart trouble.

NURSE A VICTIM OF MORPHINE.

Amherst, N. H., Nov. 4.—Miss Nichols, whom Miss Toppan was visiting in Amherst, in an interview to-night said: "I have known Miss Toppan for years. She came to visit me about a month ago after having been ill in a hospital at Lowell. About a week after she came to our house I discovered that my dear friend was taking morphine—in fact, that she had acquired the morphine habit. I did all I could to break up the habit, but my work counted for little. She would appear rational a great part of the time, but after taking the drug became stupified and sort of rambling. I know that if she did any of those things charged against her the crime can be laid to the effects of that drug.

Canada Guards Against Plague

Ottawa, Ont, Nov 2.—On account of the outbreak of the bubonic plague at Glasgow, Dr. Montizambert, Director-General of Public Health, has issued a circular letter to all steamship companies, requiring all medical officers of vessels to prepare and hand to the quarantine officers, on arrival at Canadian ports, a statement of the temperature of every person on board, taken within 24 hours of arrival. This will draw the attention of the inspecting officers to cases of the disease indicated by a rising temperature, and will ensure that the ship surgeon is brought in contact with every one on board. In addition, instructions have been issued to all quarantine officers to resume, with regard to Liverpool and Glasgow, the special instructions issued last year, when there was bubonic at Glasgow. This is as much as the present reports of isolated cases in Glasgow seem to justify the department in doing.

Glasgow, Nov. 1.— Another case of the bubonic plague has been certified to here. Large numbers of people who have been in contact with plague cases or suspects have been isolated. The foreign Consuls to-day are refusing to grant clean bills of health.

A barmaid who was recently transferred from the Central Station Hotel which belongs to the Caledonian Railway, to the station at Airdrie is pronounced to be suffering from the plague.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 1.—Ships leaving or enterin the port of Batoum, on the Black Sea, have been ordered to be closely inspected, owing to a death from the plague having occurred in the town.

URGES TRADE WITH AFRICA

Former Consul Stowe Tells Implement Dealers of Great Possibilities.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 4.—Colonel J. G. Stowe, former United States consul to Cape Town, addressed the annual convention of the National Association of Agricultural Implement and Vehicle Manufacturers to-day. After touching on the war in South Africa, he spoke of the great trade possibilities for American manufacturers in the Transvaal and urged increased efforts upon the part of the producers of this country.

George H. Maxwell, manager of the National Irrigation Association of Chicago, urged the delegates to join in the effort to reclaim the arid lands of the west, and to develop home markets, and Congressman W. A. Reeder, of Kansas, supported his argument. The president was appointed to act as a member of the irrigation association's advisory council.

SANG RULE BRITANNIA

New York, Nov. 3.—A strange thing happened in the Academy of Music. There was a concert there given under the auspices of Clan Macdonald, and the particular star of the aggregation of talent was Miss Jessie N. Maclachlan, known as the Scottish prima donna, a woman of international reputation, who has sung before the late Queen Victoria, King Edward and other dignitaries, royal and otherwise. It was her first appearance in Brooklyn and her second in the United States. She was asked to sing a national song and the committeemen said that they preferred "The Star Spangled Banner." But Miss Maclachlan did not know "The Star Spangled Banner." That is not yet in her repertory, but she declared that she would learn it during a brief rest that she expects to have next week after singing in Montreal. The best she could do in the way of a national hymn was "Rule Britannia."

Palace Awaits Kwang Su

Pekin, Nov. 4.—The repairs to the walls, towers and palace have been almost completed. A temporary structure of wood and cloth has been erected in place of the destroyed Chien-Nen tower, under which Emperor Kwang Su will pass when entering the forbidden city. It is painted to resemble the old stone tower, with cannon in the windows, and looks like a piece of theatrical scenery. Every effort is being made to conceal from the court the evidence of conquest. The British loopholed the wall at the station outside Chien-Nen gate, and the Chinese are now building another wall outside this to screen it from the view of the court. Prince Ching started to meet the court to-day.

TRADING STAMPS

Court of Appeal To Be Asked as to Law's Validity.

At Osgoode Hall the Attorney-General submitted to the Court of Appeal for an expression of opinion the question as to whether the Ontario Legislature was within its powers in, at its last session, passing an act, empowering municipalities to prohibit the sale of or trafficking in trading stamps within their limits. Should the decision be in favor of stamps, the by-law recently passed by the council prohibiting their use after Jan. 1st, will be quashed.

Esther Turned Him Down

For the past two weeks Tom Marks and company have been holding the boards at the Victoria theatre, Kingston. Among the company, Peterborough people will remember Miss Esther Evans, the attractive young blonde soubrette who was warmly received here this season. Well, this angelic coon shouter has been the cause of trouble in the afore-mentioned city. It seems that Mr. Lester Moffatt, son of the proprietor of the Campbell House, Napanee, and traveller for a Toronto firm, got struck on the winsome miss. Now, Miss Evans did not worry herself over his infatuation, so Lester attempted suicide at the Iroquois hotel, by inhaling chloroform after writing a billet-doux to the object of his affections. Physicians were summoned and the young man was finally restored to consciousness.

A SEVERE FIGHT WITH HEAVY LOSS

British Casualties Total Nearly 250 Men.

NINE OFFICERS WERE KILLED

Col. Benson, in Command, was Born in St. Catharines, Son of Senator Benson—Boers Attacked in a Mist.

London, Nov. 2. — Lord Kitchener cabled the War Office:

"I have just heard of a severe attack made on the rear guard of Col. Benson's column when about twenty miles north-east of Bethel, near Brakenlaagte, during a thick mist.

"The strength of the enemy is reported to have been a thousand. They rushed two guns with the rear guard, but it is uncertain whether they were able to remove them.

"I fear our casualties were heavy. Col. Benson was wounded, but not severely. A relieving column will reach him this morning."

Later Lord Kitchener telegraphed as follows: "Col. Barter who marched from the constabulary line yesterday, reached Benson's column early this (Friday) morning unopposed. He reports that Col. Benson died of his wounds.

"The casualties are the following: killed—Col. E. Guinness Major F. D. Murray, Captains M. W. Lindsay and F. T. Thorold, Lieuts. E. V. J. Brooke and R. E. Shepherd, and Second Lieut. A. J. Corlett. Died of his wounds—Capt. Eyre Lloyd."

Lord Kitchener then gives the names of thirteen other officers who were wounded, most of them severely, and announces that 54 non-commissioned officers and men were killed and 160 wounded, adding that four of the latter have since died of their wounds.

The despatch then says: "I assume that the two guns have been recovered and the enemy has withdrawn, but I have no further details. I deeply regret the loss of Col. Benson and the officers and men who fell with him. In Benson the service loses a most gallant and capable officer, who invariably led his column with marked success and judgment.

"The fighting was at very close quarters, and maintained with great determination by both sides. The enemy suffered heavily, but I have not yet received a reliable estimate. The Boers retired east."

The Col. Benson whose reverse and death is chronicled above was a son of Canada, though long absent from his native land, and yet has connections residing here. His father was the late Hon. J. R. Benson of St. Catharines, a member of the Senate, and his brother, James Benson, is now a barrister in St. Catharines. His mother was a daughter of the late James Ingersoll of Ingersoll. The colonel's full name was Frederick William Benson, and he was born in the Garden City on Aug. 2, 1849.

Col. Benson was a student at Grantham Academy, St. Catharines, and Upper Canada College, and went to Sandhurst, England, for his military training. He was in the Fenian Raid, and joined the 21st Hussars Imperial Regiment in 1869, being transferred to the 12th Royal Lancers seven years later. In 1880 he passed the Staff College and was appointed captain in the Dragoon Guards, joining the 17th Royal Lancers in 1881.

Col. Benson had been in the Indian service, having been A.D.C. to the Lieut.-Governor of the North-west Provinces in 1877. From 1882 to 1884 he was brigade-major at Poona, and later was garrison instructor in Bengal. He commanded a brigade of Egyptain cavalry from '92 to '94, and the following year went to Dublin as garrison instructor.

He was ordered to Africa at the outbreak of the war in 1899, and had been at it ever since. He had known what it was to surprise as well as to be surprised, and it was only on the 22nd ult. that he took 37 prisoners from a Boer laager.

RICE'S FATE IN COURT'S HANDS

The Case Will Go to the Court of Appeal

HOPES TO SECURE PARDON

Jury Gives a Verdict Which Gives Rice a Chance for His Life—His Counsel Hopes to Secure Ultimate Pardon

Yesterday afternoon, after being out four hours, and as reported in Saturday's Times, the jury in the trial of Fred Lee Rice brought in a verdict which gives Rice a chance for his life, and through which T C Robinette, his counsel, hopes to secure for his prisoner an ultimate pardon.

The verdict brought in was: "We find the prisoner guilty, but are unable to say who fired the shot."

A few minutes before bringing in their verdict the jury came in to ask Chief Justice Falconbridge for light upon the word "collusion." This pleased Rice and his counsel greatly, for it showed that the jury had been unable at least to find that Rice had fired the shot. A few minutes later His Lordship was again summoned.

"Do you find the prisoner guilty or not guilty?" asked Clerk Nichol.

"On, the first branch of the case we have been unable to agree. On the second branch we find the prisoner guilty.

"Do you think you can agree that the prisoner fired the shot?" asked the Chief Justice.

"No, my Lord. We have discussed it for a considerable time, and it is impossible for us to agree."

Mr. Robinette then asked to have judgment stayed, and asked for a reserve case, to be taken to the Court of Appeal. This appeal will be taken on the grounds that there was no collusion to kill Boyd, and it was not shown that there was any design prior to firing the shot that killed the constable. Mr. Robinette also argued that jury had no right to bring in a special verdict.

His Lordship then acquiesced, and directed that the defence should be allowed to argue that it was a mistrial on account of the failure of the jury to bring in a verdict on the main issue. Sentence will not be passed until the case is determined.

PETERBOROUGH, NOVEMBER 4 1901

BOURASSA'S TALK

Mr. Bourassa's recent utterances lead a correspondent to remark that in any but a British country, his speech would be deemed at least to border very closely on treason. We realize that he seeks chiefly for notoriety, following in this so many others allowed with impunity to do the same until it has become recognized that it is only necessary to declare a readiness to "shoulder my little musket" against constitutional authority to rush into power on a wave of popularity.

When we consider that men so prominent in England as Labouchere stood and many others pose as enemies of their country in order to gain notoriety we do not wonder at Mr. Bourassa following his example, especially as here even more than in the mother country it pays to assume an ultra position; while at the same time we must give him credit for some (if mistaken) honest misappreciation of historical facts, as the course he has taken is opposed to his political leader's present expression of sentiment. His present attitude is a lamentable result of the attempt made some sixteen years ago to estrange the loyalty of our fellow British subjects of so far removed French origin—to which origin, on account of language alone—they cling as something meritorious though their ancestors would have no association with the France of the present day. Let us hope that ere long he may, like his leader, be converted to the loyalty to the British Crown which the Canadian of French origin displays in an even greater degree than other Canadian citizens.

HOPES TO REFORM CHINESE

Pekin, Nov. 2.—Sir Robert Hart, director of the Imperial Maritime Customs, has instructed the heads of that department that no changes are to be made for the present in the native customs, but when the latter are transferred to the Imperial customs on Nov. 11 the native customs department will return daily reports of receipts and the movements of junks. Later commissioners will investigate the condition of the native customs, and reforms will be gradually put into effect.

Although the native customs department is grossly corrupt Sir Robert does not wish to estrange the officials. He hopes, however, to quadruple the receipts. He says that the native customs at Tien-Tsin formerly amounted to 400,000 taels annually, but of this sum only 90,000 reached the Government, the balance being disbursed upon Yamen officials and henchmen. A similar condition prevails at other stations.

MORLEY ON THE WAR

London, Nov. 1.— In an address to his constituents at Arbroath recently, referring to the concentration camps in South Africa, Mr. John Morley, M.P. characterized the death rate as "appalling, hideous and excessive." The Government policy of devastation was admittedly a mistake and the authorities were aggravating the essential mischief of the situation by mismanagement.

Continuing, he said: "I wonder what Lord Palmerston would have said of a Government justifying themselves by saying that Russia in Poland, and Austria in Bosnia had done something like the same. The war has entirely changed in character, and is drifting into a war of extermination of a people fighting for their own land.

"The policy of unconditional surrender and submission means extermination and annihilation. The present attitude of the Government is one of sullen desperation. There is nothing worse than a settle in a blind horse."

HAVE ACCOMPLISHED NOTHING.

London, Nov. 1.— According to The Times' correspondent in Brussels, Dr. Kuyper, Premier of Holland, recently stated in the Second Chamber of the States General that the Dutch Government had done all in their power to bring the war in South Africa to an end.

Cape Town, Oct. 31.— A resident of Barkley West, who betrayed two native despatch runners to the Boers, and so caused their death, has been sentenced by court martial to pay a fine of £500 and to serve four years in prison.

BULLER'S DENIAL

London, Oct. 31.—General Buller has denied the telegram attributed to him by The National Review. The General's entrance to a London theatre the other evening was a signal for a demonstration on his behalf.

The Provident Savings Life

We are pleased to see by the columns of "The Standard" and the "Weekly Underwriter," that, after a long, minute, and exhaustive examination invited by the company itself, the government insurance officials find the Provident Savings Life in a sound, healthy, and prosperous condition. The fact that the company has fully met the unusually severe and searching tests to which it was subjected, will be a cause for gratification to its many policy holders in Peterborough and elsewhere, and also to the local representative, Mr. M. W. Matchett.

THE FIRST STEP

to baby's health must be taken before baby's birth. The child can have no more health than the mother gives it. A healthy mother, strong of body and cheerful of mind, will endow the child with her own physical health and cheerful disposition. Many a wife who had dreaded motherhood because of past experiences of prenatal misery of mind and body has found a new era open to her with the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives physical strength, soothes the nerves, and induces refreshing sleep. It gives vigor and elasticity to the organs of maternity, so that the birth hour is practically without pain or suffering. It enables the mother to provide a plentiful supply of healthful nourishment for the healthy child. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free of charge. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I gladly recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. J. W. O. Stephens, Mila, Northumberland Co., Virginia. "Before my third little boy was born I took six bottles. He is the finest child and has been from birth, and I suffered very much less than I did before in confinement. I unhesitatingly advise expectant mothers to use the 'Favorite Prescription.'"

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a pleasant and effective laxative medicine.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I luv a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 95 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallen, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. B. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Dastous thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of club for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Bagtie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

KATHRYN'S BURGLAR.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

Kathryn never would have done it had her brother Tom been home, because he would have laughed at her. Nor would her stern father of Scotch ancestry tolerate such absurd nonsense as the observance of heathen customs on All Saints' Eve. Just the year before he had objected to her attending a Hallowe'en frolic, simply because he did not approve of perpetuating silly superstitions.

But Tom was safe at Harvard, undergoing the first agonies of an ambitious freshman, and her father had been summoned abroad to look after a big contract. So motherless Kathryn was free to walk downstairs backward or perform any other Hallowe'en feat. Just at present she was standing in front of the old-fashioned gilt-edged mirror in the drawing room. All around her was midnight stillness.

"I hope the face of my true love comes to me."

She murmured the ancient formula approved by generations of love-lorn damsels, and to complete the charm slowly munched an apple, half apprehensive and wholly filled with wonder as to whether the apparition conjured up by the invocation would be clean-shaven or mustache. Would it be the features of Frank Handy or Chester Raymond? Both had asked for her hand, and really she did not—

What was that? Yes, it must be a masculine face, with bonnie blue eyes, appearing just above her own curls. A little smothered shriek and she swung round to confront a personable chap with crisp blond hair, and a face which, save for a haggard look, would have been more than ordinarily attractive. His eyes had a subtle expression that made her think of Tom, and his dress proclaimed that he had once moved in good society.

Following the first spasm of apprehension she felt a sensation of relief that the picture reflected in the glass was that of a very pretty girl, whose chestnut hair formed dainty contrast with a fluffy negligee of pale lavender.

The stranger raised his cap. "Pardon the intrusion," he began. "I had no intention of attracting your attention but when I opened the door I could not resist the temptation to help out fate, even though the forced prediction might displease you."

Kathryn stared at him. "How did you get in without my hearing you?" she demanded. "I locked all the doors hours ago."

"That is my business," he explained. "No," he went on as she drew herself up, "I did not mean to indicate that it was none of yours. I merely mean that it is my occupation to get into houses with as little disturbance to the occupants as possible."

A wave of red swept over her face. "So you are just a common burglar?" she demanded, with icy scorn.

He flinched at the disgust she did not seek to conceal, but in a moment his easy assurance reasserted itself. "No, quite an amateur one I assure you. In fact, I am merely a tyro and a pretty bad one at that, I imagine. You see I was not brought up to a respectable trade, and when I was thrown upon my own resources I had to do the best I could. I sought everywhere for work, but my family friends remembered the time when I led a rather fast life and would not have me, while others seemed to think that I did not mean what I said when I asked for the simple work I could perform. No man wanted to hire a porter who wore more fashionable clothes than he did, and I couldn't tell him that I had no others."

"Still that is no excuse for becoming a burglar..."

"No," he admitted, "but yesterday it came to a choice between the poorhouse and a rash act, and when I passed your house this afternoon I heard you tell a friend you would be all alone, save for the servants. I did not intend to take much, just enough to get me to Chicago, and I never supposed that you would be trailing about this time of night. Then, you see, when a man has been practically starving for two days there is—"

She flashed a sharp glance at him. "Do you mean to tell me that you have starved to death?" she demanded.

"Not quite that, or I should not be here, but if I remember right the last meal I had was Tuesday morning. This is Thursday. It might have been Monday; I never was good at ancient history, but I think it was Tuesday."

Kathryn picked up a quaint silver candlestick. "Come right along," she commanded. "You should have gone to the policeman, but I suppose you are foolishly proud."

He followed, his eyes resting admiringly upon the little lavender form in front. Here was a girl who was not afraid of burglars and who carried herself as fearlessly as though she were entertaining a guest.

In the dining room she laid out a dainty lunch. Then she sat herself down on the other side of the table, nor did she speak till the first keen craving for food had been satisfied.

"You don't look a bit like a burglar," she said musingly as she looked at the well built man opposite. "Somehow you look as though you were cut out for a leader of men."

"If I keep this sort of thing up," he responded with grim humor, "I am apt to wind up leading a chain gang."

She sprang up with a little cry. "You mustn't keep it up. You must get work and make your people proud of you. You must not go to prison."

"I don't know," he responded, regarding her excitement wonderingly. "It's the only boardinghouse I know where you are not put out if you fail to pay your bill, and apparently, it's the only place where I can find work."

"You should not say these things," reprovingly.

"I know I should not, but when you have done your best, and the whole world seems to be against you; when you starve till you are made desperate, there come moments of temporary insanity, when all sense of right and wrong is lost. When I came here I fully intended to get enough money to take me out West, where there might be a better chance for me, but when I saw you before the glass in that violet colored dress, somehow you made me think of my sister—and she's dead. So are the others, thank God!"

Kathryn rose abruptly and went into the library. Would she call for help? The man did not care much. He simply sat watching the doorway through which she had disappeared. He was very tired, and it did not matter much now, anyhow.

She came back with a card in her hand.

"You know where the Hewitson mills are, don't you?" He nodded. "Mr. Hewitson is my father." Again he nodded. "Take this to the manager. I think there's an opening in the shipping department. You will probably have to start at a ridiculous salary, but—"

He caught her hand and pressed it to his lips as a loyal subject might kiss the hand of a revered sovereign.

"Oh, I will go. Only give me the chance and I'll show what I can do." He felt something folded under the card. He looked down and his face flushed a deep purple. He laid the bill on the table.

"Oh, but you must take it till you get your first salary. You can't starve."

"No, not that! I can't take it, but please God, I'll show you that I can lead a decent life, and justify your faith in me." And, waving his cap, he disappeared as he had come, through the dining room window.

Three years have passed swiftly for Kathryn, but oddly enough she has tried no more Hallowe'en charms. This evening she stands in the square hall watching the storm which is ushering in November. A sleigh dashes up to the door, and her father comes in shaking himself like a great polar bear.

"I've invited young Douglas up to dinner this evening, Kathryn. I didn't think it necessary to 'phone you. Just have an extra place laid. He pushed through that Rothberger deal in splendid shape, and in consequence, I've given him the promotion he deserved. By the way, Kathryn, where did you meet that chap? He was a lucky find for me."

Kathryn does not answer, but with a conscious blush looks into the drawing room, where the softly shaded lights play in the gilt-edged mirror. The bell rings, but she does not wait to receive the guest in the hall. He finds her in the dim drawing room before the mirror. She is looking over her shoulder and she wears a lavender gown.

THEIR HIGHNESESS' RETHRN

Portsmouth, Nov. 1.—To-day's naval pageant in honor of the return of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall was almost a reproduction of the ceremonial attending their departure. The town and harbor were astir early, immense crowds assembled along the sea front, and rounds of cheers mingled with the National Anthem and salutes from the harbor ships and land batteries as the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert started to meet the Ophir. On board the Royal yacht the King, in undress uniform of an admiral stood on the after-bridge at the salute, while the Queen and the children of the Duke and Duchess paraded the hurricane deck.

A STRIKING SPECTACLE.

The heads presented a striking spectacle, owing to the great gathering of warships, dressed from stem to stern, with their yards manned and their sides lined with their crews. Nelson's old flagship, the Victory, started the salute to their Majesties, and each ship in turn took it up as the Victoria and Albert moved down the Solent, accompanied by a flotilla of other Royal yachts.

Off Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, the Victoria and Albert and the Ophir met and exchanged signals of greeting.

At about two o'clock the booming of distant guns announced the approach of the Royal vessels, and the naval procession soon hove in sight. As the Victoria and Albert, the Ophir, and two ironclads steaming in file one after the other, passed down the lines of the fleet, guns, bands, and cheers commingled in the welcome to the Royal travelers.

During the first night out from St. John's, while steaming about fifteen knots, the Ophir sighted an iceberg directly ahead and about two miles off. The berg was first seen by the cruiser Diadem, which warned the Ophir, and the squadron changed its course and reduced speed. The searchlights showed a pale green mass one hundred feet wide, with about 40 feet above the water. The Ophir's passage was tempestuous.

The army and the London holiday crowds will unite in the welcome to-morrow, but to the colonies will be accorded the distinction of emphasizing the imperial nature of the function. Their official representative, headed by Mr. J. G. Colmer, C.M.G., as Lord Strathcona's deputy for Canada, will be at the Victoria station to present addresses of congratulation and welcome and receive a reply. They will be introduced by Mr. Chamberlain to the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall. The colonies will in this way place the final seal upon the Imperial mission, and the King will not defer many days the investiture of his son with the title of Prince of Wales.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Oct. 30.—Canon Henson, of Westminister, has written a vigorous letter to The Times to enter once more a protest against the efforts which he hears are being made in high ecclesiastical quarters to induce the Government to appoint a day of public humiliation on account of the continuance of the South African war.

"The different circumstances of the campaign in the Transvaal seem to my thinking," says Canon Henson, "to explain sufficiently the long continuance of the war, and I cannot see anything unusual or suggestive or extraordinary Divine chastisement, in experiences which are strictly normal.

"If, indeed, a day of humiliation were at all becoming; I should incline to assign as its occasion, not the magnitude and duration of our military efforts, but our shameful and shameless neglect of the suffering and devoted loyalists of South Africa."

New York, Oct. 30.—According to several merchants who are considered to be authorities on the question of Cuba and its future, the pearl of the Antilles will determine on annexation to the United States next month through a commission recently appointed to wait upon President Roosevelt. The statement is also made that despite the prospect of sugar crops ruin is staring the planters of the island in the face and that unless annexation or some form of reciprocity is granted the sugar planters will not be able to grind a pound of sugar this year.

The manager of the West Indian department of a well known commission house said to-day: "It is a fact that unless there is a reduction in the tax and duty the Cuban planter will not be able to grind one pound of sugar this year. The crop has never been better than now, but the prospects of marketing it bring the planters practically face to face with ruin. The commission to wait upon the president will ask for a 15 per cent reduction in tax. If this is not favorably looked upon the commission will ask for annexation."

Goshen, N. Y., Nov. 1.—The side saddle has had its day in Tuxedo. Mrs. Paul Tuckerman has introduced a new style of riding among the many fair and charming horsewomen. She has discarded the side saddle and dons a new costume of divided skirts and trousers, which permits her to ride astride and is very smart and stylish. Every day she may be seen flying over the gravelled driveways riding man-fashion, with all the skill and grace of an accomplished equestrienne. The innovation has been very popularly received, and next season it is confidently expected that it will be generally adopted by every horsewoman in the Tuxedo colony. Mrs. Tuckerman's stable of saddlers is small, but it contains only the most spirited and best bred horses. She is not altogether alone in the matter of riding astride, for Mrs. Hitchcock has ridden man-fashion at Meadow Brook this season; so have also the Misses Smith at Saratoga.

Dutch Laborers Warned

London, Oct. 31.—The Brussels correspondent of the Times says the agitation among the Dutch workmen's associations in favor of boycotting British commerce has succeeded in arousing a certain amount of notice in the Dutch and Belgian press. The Dutch papers almost unanimously endeavour to dissuade the dock laborers from attempting to put their project into execution, saying it must end in harming those whom it is intended to benefit.

It is generally admitted that an attempt to boycott British vessels at Rotterdam would mean ruin for local interests.

The Independance Belge says the nations of the continent are paving the way for a situation that is likely to breed a plentiful crop of troubles for themselves. The British nation is fully conscious of the danger arising from universal dislike, and may make a supreme effort to consolidate the Anglo-Saxon race the world over, whereby Europe's commercial and industrial supremacy would be seriously threatened.

Hope of Miss Stone's Release.

Washington, Oct. 31.—It was said at the State department to-day that the efforts of the Government to secure the release of Miss Ellen Stone, the missionary who is held for ransom by brigands in the Balkan Mountains, are progressing as favorably as could be expected. The Department is in frequent communication with the proper authorities at St. Petersburg, Constantinople and Sofia, and, although deemed inexpedient to mention the that there is some hope that the outcome will be successful.

The most important statement made by the State Department officers today was that the representatives of this Government had at last got into practically direct communication with the brigands who hold Miss Stone captive. Secretary Hay declined to discuss the report that immunity from punishment has been promised to the outlaws on condition that they waive their claims to ransom and give Miss

Consumption is Infectious

Every precaution should be taken to prevent the spread of the "White Plague." Persons coming into contact with consumptives should inhale Catarrhozone several times each day as it is a powerful destroyer of these germs, and renders them innocuous. Catarrhozone is a most efficient preventive and may be thoroughly relied upon to promote expectoration, soothe the cough, and benefit in many ways too numerous to mention. Both from a medical and scientific point of view Catarrhozone is the most valuable addition to the armament against consumption. Its merit cannot be too strongly appreciated. Sold at all druggists, two months' treatment, price $1, small size 25c, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and dizziness.

MISS A. DEFOE.

Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

Miss Anna Defoe, a young lady whose address is 355 King street west, Toronto, recently wrote as follows:

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appetite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

Cancer Growing Two Years

A Remarkable Case Cured Completely by the New Constitutional Remedy.

Not long ago, we had the pleasure receiving the following letter:

"When I began your treatment there was a hard lump in my breast, which had been growing for two years, and it was so bad at last that it drew the nipple in. I consulted two doctors, and they both pronounced it cancer, and advised me to have my breast cut off. Your remedy, however, was recommended to me by a friend, and I am very thankful to say that it not only saved my life, but did away with the necessity of having to undergo the painful operation, which I so much dreaded."

We do not publish the names of those who give us testimonials for the gratification of the curious, but any sufferer from cancer or tumor, may have the name and address of the lady who wrote the above, by sending 2 stamps to Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

The King's Birthday.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—There is really a good deal of nonsense talked about their being too many holidays in Canada. There are 365 days in the year, and a certain amount of business to be done. That business will be done whether it takes 304 days or 303 days. Does anybody suppose people will buy less this month if the shops are open only 24 days instead of 25? If, so then numerous columns of argument in favor of Saturday half holidays in summer time are principally composed of guff.

ANTI-GUFF.

The Dead Child

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—With regard to Mr. Dennistoun's letter respecting the dead child, I have no wish to arouse a controversy. Mr. Dennistoun is enjoying himself on his annual vacation, and would not be here to continue the defence. What he states, however, has not been, and is not, the policy of the Society. Illegitimate children, as such, have been and are by that fact, debarred from the benefits of the C. A. S. I would ask who need aid more? It is only necessary to refer to the heart-rending statistics of baby-farming in Toronto. I decline to chop logic over this matter. The blame is not upon individuals, but upon the system. The whole system of charity is money. At the present moment amongst the Protestant organizations the only organized society acting with a truly charitable spirit is the King's Daughters. Not long ago the Chief of Police (and I may say that the police are most kind hearted) sent a poor woman in a desperate state to the Shelter for shelter, and nothing else. The curator took her in but the town had forbidden the repetition of it. The curator says, however, that under similar circumstances he will never refuse such a case shelter. Who will deny that he is justified in such a determination? I quote this case to show how crass have become the hands of systems in a work of mercy.

Yours, etc.

CANDOUR.

The Dead Child

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In Saturday's issue of the Morning Times, Mr. R. M. Dennistoun enters a defence of the "Children's Aid Society" re the child who died for want of proper care.

Mr. Dennistoun says "If the case in question had been reported as one of destitution or desertion the child would have been admitted at once." Now I most emphatically assert what I have stated before, that I did report the case as one of utter destitution, and I defy contradiction to this assertion, for a member of the society's board of directors was present when I made the report. The agent of the Children's Aid stated distinctly, that an illegitimate child could not be admitted to the "Shelter," and that there was a resolution on the books to that effect.

The destitution of this child can hardly be denied. Its unfortunate mother was stretched on a bed of sickness, penniless, there was no one to keep the child, except under protest, and those who kept it admitted frankly to me, that they had not the means which would enable them to give the child proper care, and they implored me to try and get it into the "Shelter." It was under these circumstances that I applied to the Children's Aid.

There is a discrepancy among the officials in reference to a resolution on the books of the society. One party says that the resolution positively prohibits the admission of an illegitimate child to the Shelter, and if I understand Mr. Dennistoun correctly, he alleges in effect, that there is no such resolution on the books. Now how would it do to publish this resolution just as it stands, and then the citizens would know precisely, whether or not the social status of the parents is considered, before a destitute child can be admitted to the "Shelter."

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Nineteenth Anniversary of Dedication Observed in a Fitting Manner

The services at St. John's church yesterday were of unusual interest. It was the nineteenth anniversary of the dedication of this quietly beautiful edifice, which adds so much to the town and with its old-world presentment always arrests the attention and arouses the admiration of visitors. In the morning there was holy communion, and the rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, delivered a short address to the congregation. The festival service was held in the evening. The church was crowded to the doors and a number occupied chairs in the aisles. Mr. Davidson had extended special invitations to the town officials, officers of various public institutions, representatives of the Federation of Labor and others, and seats were reserved for these and other visitors. After a few warm words of welcome Mr. Davidson preached an eloquent sermon, comparing the grace of God to a river, a mighty and enduring beneficence which yet does not help man unless he reaches forth his hand to help himself. Addressing the members of the Federation of the Labor, he said that the churches generally were not supported as they should be by laboring men and this might be partly the fault of the ministry. On the other hand there was a growing sentiment that the church did not belong to its members alone, that all were equally welcome within its doors, and there was higher joy in ministering to the poor than to the rich who are afflicted. He referred with pardonable pride and affection to old St. John's which from its situation and its historic associations should have a kindly place in the hearts of all citizens of Peterborough irrespective of denominations. The building was of its present dimensions, outside the chancel, half a century ago, when the town had a population of but 400—when the whole population might have lived within its walls. He graphically pictured the old-fashioned interior, with its square pews, its box stoves in the corners, its three-decker pulpit, its choir loft and the orchestra of two violins and a flute. He mentioned in affectionate remembrance the names of "Parson Armour" and of many old families whose descendants now occupy their places.

The musical part of the service was very beautiful. The orchestra was under direction of Mr. Gliddon. Mr. Morphet sang the anthem, "Beyond the Gates of Paradise" in an exceedingly acceptable manner, and the work of the choir was excellent.

HOW SNIKES PROPOSED

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

Mr. Willard Snikes was in love. At least, he thought he was. In the Woman's Help, a paper that his mother had taken for 14 years and six months, William had read that 25 years was the proper age at which a man should marry. He had already passed that age by 72 hours, therefore he ought to get married. Ergo, he must be in love, which brings us back to our original proposition.

Yes, Willard Snikes was perfectly certain that he was in love. He felt a sort of exquisite desire to lie abed in the morning and think of a happy little home. Here work would become a pleasure, and the little tasks around the house a positive delight. Besides, he always experienced a delicious sensation of inquisitiveness whenever he passed a furniture store. The stationer's samples of engraved announcements in for a degree of study which might, ordinarily, have seemed somewhat more than their due. When passing the grocer's he would always glance furtively around in search of the rice breakfast. He had a perfect craving for love stories. The "For Rent Houses" column in the newspapers never escaped his eager eye.

Under the circumstances it might seem, therefore, that there were very strong, if not unmistakable, reasons for believing that the young man had been caught in the same trap that femininity has set for his class from the beginning of time.

The unfortunate part of the matter was that Mr. Snikes remained at a loss to finally determine who the happy young lady was. To be in love is a condition requiring an object. One cannot be in love with nothing.

Snikes spent restless days and sleepless nights in vainly endeavoring to hit upon the most satisfactory lady from every point of view.

At first he thought that Miss Susan Smythe was the one who had stolen his heart. Miss Smythe was the belle of Belleville, as was only proper since she had spent three weeks in Boston. This sojourn at the Hub accounts for the spelling of her name, Smith being altogether too provincial for the swell set she mixed with down there, you know.

Willard wanted to aim high, so he convinced himself that Miss Susan was really the object of the slavish adoration he had cherished in secret for so long—nearly 74 hours—for one unknown.

The next day when he encountered Miss Smythe, while out on his morning ramble, he straightened up, smiled his prettiest, and in his most graceful manner tipped his hat. Somehow, she forgot to pay any attention to his salute. From that hour, indeed from that second, he was sure that he had grievously erred in his early choice. He had spent the morning in thinking how sweet it would be to share a home with her and have the delicious ecstacy of feeling that she was all his very, very own, etc., etc. After their meeting he muttered to himself that nothing short of a pair of oxen could force him even to board at the same hotel with her.

Well, there were others. For one whole week one succeeded another daily. Tilda Swain was the one until he learned that she was already gone. Next there was Mandy Lane, but she couldn't cook, and Josie Frey, but she couldn't sew, and Genevieve—Vieve as he called her—Ludmond, who was too old for him, according to that final arbiter, the Woman's Help.

Finally he settled on Charlotte Jones, a coy maiden of 20 frivolous summers, and an equal number of silly winters. At reading the Woman's Help she had Willard beaten to a standstill. Thus she was quite as well prepared as he to follow out the instructions in "How to Propose and How to Receive a Proposal."

This had been the star articles in a back issue of the famous magazine. The publishers proudly claimed that no less than 40,000 readers had benefited by its advice. Just how the statistics were secured was, of course, left unmentioned.

Having decided that Miss Jones was a fit life companion for a gentleman of his character and attainments, Snikes allowed no time to be lost before starting his campaign. A couple of concerts, the theater once, a box of flowers, these opened the way. Every evening and Sunday afternoon found him at the modest, but neat, dwelling of the Jones'. Aside from the interference of a younger brother, Mr Snikes was quite pleased with the course of his courtship.

The Woman's Help plan was succeeding to perfection. He had called eight times already, and on each occasion had closely followed directions, left early in order not to tire the lady, had uttered the set of compliments laid down, had assisted the lady with her wraps as directed, taking care to give the tender little pat, just as shown in the illustration in the article. Unknown to Snikes, Charlotte knew just about what was coming. She had read the article, and re-read. She had rehearsed her part before the mirror. She had endeavored to charm him in just the way the article described, although just enough so that he should suspect nothing.

At last, after a somewhat brief courtship, Willard's impatience refused to allow him to defer the crucial moment any longer, so one pleasant Thursday evening he decided to pop the question and settle the matter at once.

Immediately after supper he rushed to his room, threw off his coat and settled back in an easy chair. The Woman's Help in hand. Turning to the article on proposing, he read earnestly, ever and anon arising to practice some motion or to try a position.

Having finished the articles he dressed with unusual care, and then he read the article again going through the exercises much more fully than before.

Let's see," he soliloquized, "the hour for proposal depends altogether upon circumstances" (and upon that small brother, thought Snikes); "however, if an evening is chosen it should not be long deferred, as, if one is accepted, one deprives oneself of much of the first sweet enjoyment of being obliged to hasten. When the time has come, the gentleman aims to lead up to the subject by such conversational skill as he may possess. Thus discussing the topic, 'Is Marriage a Failure?' or speaking of his longings for conjugal felicity is a proper method for a gentleman to introduce the desired topic."

"Good! I can do that," thought Mr. Willard Snikes. Glancing at his watch, he found that it was already after 8, so hastily laying the paper down, he put on his hat and sallied forth.

The door was opened by the dainty Charlotte herself.

"Good evening, Mr. Snikes. I am so glad you have come, I am all alone. Everybody has gone to the theater but me."

Snikes wondered why she didn't go. Poor man! He thought her being alone was unpremeditated. He didn't know that she read the Woman's Help. He couldn't help asking:

"Where's Willie?" as he unbuttoned his gloves.

"Oh, he's gone to bed. He's so tired, poor child." Willard congratulated himself on his unusual good luck. "Now," he thought, "if no company comes, I have a free field."

When they were seated in the parlor, Charlotte inquired:

"Are you feeling better to-night than when I last saw you? You weren't very well then, you know."

Willard plunged right in.

"No, can't say as I do. In fact, a fellow can't feel good if he doesn't enjoy his meals. I'm about tired of my mother's cooking."

"Oho," said Charlotte to herself, 'if I got him won't I throw that at him though!" Aloud she said, smiling:

"You surprise me. Surely you don't intend to board?"

"I haven't made my plans yet," replied Willard, non-committally, feeling that he must proceed carefully. Then a moment later:

"Miss Jones, Charlotte, do you care whether I am sick or not?"

"Why, certainly I care, Mr. Snikes. I hope I am not so heartless as to be indifferent to my friend's condition."

"Now," thought Snikes, "I've got to tell her I love her. Well, might as well go it sooner or later." Arising he went over to the table, whereon lay a large book of reproductions of drawings. "There is a picture here I have always had a great liking for"—Charlotte had come to Willard's side. An inspiration came to Willard. He shut out the rest from the whole of the Woman's Help and stuff clear for himself. So in the excitement of the turning of the pages in search of the picture Willard managed to get his arm around Charlotte, and drawing her to him, in spite of her surprise, he kissed her and said: "Sweetheart, I love you." They forgot about the picture then, and in his gleeful ecstacy Willard forgot to ask her to marry him until quite 11 o'clock. Then he did so, confessing with blushing cheek the plan he had intended to follow.

"How funny, Willard dear, I was just going to follow out what it said if you did propose, and you caught me so quickly, without the graceful formality the article speaks of, that I even forgot to say, 'This is so sudden.' But which picture was that you liked so well?" turning to the book again.

"Oh, don't mind about that, my dear. That was just a little strategy of love or war, where everything is fair."

A minute later, when Willard kissed her good-night 17 times, it seemed hardly fair to the Woman's Help, which excellent paper counselled mod-

STREET RAILWAY TO BE OPERATED NEXT YEAR

The Town Council Passes a By-Law Transfering the Franchise.

MONDAY, NOV. 11, MAY BE A PUBLIC HOLIDAY

In Observance of His Majesty's Birthday—A New Trustee Appointed—Reports—Communications—Accounts.

Perhaps the most important business transacted at the Council meeting last night was the passage of a by-law authorizing the transferring of the street railway franchise to a Buffalo company, which is apparently going into the enterprise for all it is worth, and Peterborough will, it is promised, shortly enjoy a street car system perfect in all its appointments. By virtue of the by-law passed, the rights and conditions embodied in the original agreement are to remain in force, the line is to be extended down McDonald to Park street and into Jackson's Park, and from its present terminus south to the Otonabee river (providing the Township of North Monaghan makes no objections thereto). These extensions are to be completed by July first next; the road must be operated all the year round, excepting the extensions from Park street to Jackson's Park, and south, to the river; these sections may be closed during the winter months, should the company feel so disposed. This franchise was originally granted the Canadian General Electric Company in 1893, and shortly afterwards transferred to, and operated by, the Peterborough and Ashburnham street Company. The new company, it is understood, do not intend by any means to limit its extensions to the localities specified in the by-law.

MONDAY MAY BE A HOLIDAY.

Lansdowne Lodge S.O.E. sent a deputation, consisting of Messrs. J. J. Turner, sr., Thos. Gunn and Jos. Downing, to petition Council that Saturday be observed and a public holiday in celebration of His Majesty's birthday. These gentlemen thought it a pity that the first anniversary of this event in Edward VII's reign should pass unobserved by such a patriotic town as Peterborough.

Mayor Denne deplored the Council's inability to grant this request, as dodgers had been circulated among the farmers on Saturday last by the Retail Merchants' Association, announcing that their stores would be open on Saturday next, which would also be held as a market day. It was now too late to amend the matter.

Ald Edgcumbe asked what right the association had to make such an announcement.

After carefully considering the situation, Ald. Clinkscale moved, seconded by Ald. Shortly.—That if the S. O. E. submit by this evening a sufficiently strong petition, the Town will proclaim Monday a public holiday.—Carried.

TESTIMONIALS TO BRAVERY.

Before Council took up its business, Mr. J. H. Roper by permission of the Mayor and his colleagues, presented parchment testimonials, very appropriately worded to Mr. C. Laplante and Mr. Hobbins in recognition by the Royal Canadian Humane Society of their bravery in risking their lives to save from drowning two of their fellow creatures. Mr. Laplante rescued a boy named Spilsburg from drowning in the Little Lake last September, and Mr. Hobbins pulled a boy named Brand out of White's Mill Pond last August.

Council met at 8.30 when there were present T. H. G. Denne, Aldermen Edgcumbe, Shortly, Rush, Clinkscale, Batten, Corkery and Best.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

Morrow to state, without prejudice, that in view of the fact that the sidewalk on the corner of Brock and George street has been raised to its former level, Mr. Morrow is now willing to accept $200 in settlement of his claim against the Town, provided the town pay the arbitration fees in the matter.—Referred to the Board of Works.

Wm. Henry applied for the position of Inspector on Perry and Rubidge street sewers.—Referred to the Board of Works.

A PRINCESS IN BUSINESS

Adding Real Estate Operations to Her Other Commercial Enterprises

Copenhagen, Nov. 4.—That energetic business woman and money maker, the Princess Waldemar of Denmark, formerly Princess Marie of Orleans, eldest daughter of the Duke of Chartres, is enlarging her sphere of interest. She is now starting in business as a real estate speculator, having secured a plot of ground adjoining Copenhagen, and obtained the municipal sanction to divide it into lots, on which she is about to erect villas to rent to wealthy people.

The Princess is also interesting herself in commercial plans for the benefit of the Danish West Indies, as well as for the development of Danish commerce in Asia. She has secured valuable concessions from the Russian Government in connection with the Asiatic trade.

A New Light

London, Nov. 5.—An apparatus for producing light from smoke is the invention of a Belgian engineer named [illegible]. It appears that the origin of the smoke is a matter of indifference. It is simply forced into a receiver, where it is saturated with hydrocarbonet, and can then be turned, giving a brilliant illumination.

THE NEGOTIATIONS ARE DELAYED

Serious Hitch in Arrangements for Release of Miss Stone

THE ANTAGONISM OF MINISTER

Russian Representative Objects to Finishing the Final Transactions in Bulgaria

New York, Nov. 4.—The hitch in the negotiations for Miss Stone's release arises from two causes: First, the fierce antagonism between United States Diplomatic Agent Dickinson and Russian Minister Bakhmeteff; second, the missionary and diplomatic disinclination to accede to the brigands' terms, though moderated, says the Samakoy correspondent of the Journal and Advertiser. The relations between M. Bakhmeteff and Mr. Dickinson are strained to the breaking point. The former, being friendly to Bulgaria, does not want his agent to finish the final transaction on Bulgarian soil. Mr. Barth, a Macedonian student at the American Institute at Samakoy, one of the agents sent to negotiate with the brigands, has returned from Reiong. He reports that the brigands consider Mr. Dickinson's money offer as too small. They say that they do not want to agree to terms that would disgrace them with their brothers.

Discussing the amount of ransom, Missionary Baird, purser of the Samakoy Institute, says:

"If the brigands get a quarter of what they still ask, bands will spring up like mushrooms, Samakoy itself bloodhounds, Miss Stone would not will furnish many and Burgaria will be ruined. The brigands began negotiations with us by asking twice Miss Stone's weight in gold. Even a fourth of this sum is preposterous, if the Bulgarians had either trackers or be spending her sixty first day with the brigands."

IS MISS STONE DEAD?

New York, Nov. 4.—Ivan Raduleff, a student, who was with the American missionary when she was captured by brigands in Turkey, together with Mrs. Tsilka, has written a letter, in which he expresses the opinion that Miss Stone is dead though there is not the slightest ground for believing that such is the case. According to this letter, the snow in the mountains into which Miss Stone and her companion were taken by their captors was three feet deep three weeks ago, at the time the letter was written. Even in the summer time the snow upon the highest summits of these mountains does not melt. The first snowfall usually comes at about the middle of September, and by the middle of October the mountain passes are absolutely closed to travel. It was the conviction among Miss Stone's friends in Samokov, Bulgaria, three weeks ago that she would not possibly have survived the rigors of her captivity until that date.

According to the letter of Ivan Raguleff, Consul-General Dickinson has retarded the release of Miss Stone seriously. It is said that Mr. Dickinson by his criticism of the Bulgarian Government has antagonized the Government. It is understood in Samokov that the brigands who were in immediate charge of the captive were under positive instructions to take her life at the first indication of the probability of a skirmish with the troops.

Great Britain's Hidden Strength.

London, Nov. 4—It is suspected that the Boer war preparations have to some extent concealed formidable military and naval preparations of a general character. The war preparations of the Empire—for they are general—are out of all proportion to the little Boer contest. The latter, however, is a practical school in which some 350,000 men have got experience of the use of modern weapons such as no other country has had. The recent manoeuvres in France and Germany are supposed to have shown that their tactics are by no means up to date. Beyond question, England has at present more soldiers and officers trained to modern conditions of warfare than any other Power. The sudden withdrawal of 150,000 of Kitchener's troops and their appearance on the field of war with a great Power would materially affect military calculations.

A PRINCELY GIFT TO PITTSBURG CITY

Andrew Carnegie Gives Thirty-three Millions to the City

MUNIFICENT GIFT OF THE AGE

There Will be an Endowment of Twenty-Five Millions of Dollars Included

New York, Nov. 5.—The largest educational event of the year will be Andrew Carnegie's gift to Pittsburg of a great polytechnic institute, at a cost of $33,000,000, including an endowment of $25,000,000. This will far exceed the largest endowment of any American university or college excepting only Girard.

Technical education is increasingly demanded by all the industrial nations. Until within a few years Germany and France, particularly the former country, have given more attention to technical instruction than the United States. Even England, though far behind Germany in this respect, has of late shown great activity in this direction. London has established twelve great polytechnics, each giving instruction in special industries and trades, besides a Central School of Arts and Crafts which gives technical training to decorators, stone-carvers, metal-workers and other artisans.

It is true that in the department of mechanical engineering our American technical schools lead the world. Europe is sending her boys to them in considerable numbers. But taking the field of technical education as a whole the United States has need of more schools. There are not a dozen polytechnics in the entire country with endowments exceeding $100,000. The largest of them are the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with an endowment of $4,000,000; the Armour Institute, with one of $3,000,000; the Pratt Institute, the Cooper Union and the Case School of Applied Science, with endowments averaging $2,000,000 apiece.

Pittsburg's institute, with its endowment of $25,000,000, will represent a larger investment of capital in technical education than the combined endowments of all the distinctly technical institutes now existing in the country. It will be a truly splendid contribution to the most practical branch of twentieth century education.

AIRSHIPS IN DEMAND

Orders from Many Quarters Pouring in on Constructor of M. Santos-Dumont's Motor

Paris, Nov. 5.—A competition of aeroplanes is already announced under the patronage of the International Aeronautic Committee and the Aero Club, to take place at the Parc des Princes, Auteuil, on November 12.

The programme, which is very varied, includes flying machines heavier than air, to carry an aeronaut, and machines flying alone; also navigable parachutes.

Two challenge cups are offered by the Auto-Velo, one for aerial toys propelled by mechanism; the other for the best scientific kite on a string.

If any proof were wanted of the activity prevailing in the aeronautic world, it would be found in the orders for machines for airships received by M. Buchet, constructor of M. Santos-Dumont. These include sixteen horse power machines for M. Rose, the Baron Bradsky, M. Lisboa, Ambassador at St. Petersburg, and M. Stevers, a Brazilian Deputy; a twelve horse power machine for the Comte Almare da Schio, a five horse power for M. Bleriot and two twenty-four horse power machines for M. Philippi, of the Vienna Automobile Club.

KILLED IN A RUNAWAY

Silas Jenkins, of Dummer, Meets a Violent Death.

A sad accident occurred in Dummer on Monday last, whereby Mr. Silas Jenkins, an old and respected resident, met his death.

It appears the deceased was driving to Mr. J. Dalton's, where he had a job of plastering to do, and while going along the boundary near the 2nd con. of Dummer some obstacle on the roadside caused his horse to shy; Mr. Jenkins was thrown out, and sustained serious internal injuries. He managed to make his way to John Dalton's residence, about a mile distant from where the accident occurred, where he was given every attention, but his wounds gradually became more agitated, and he died about 4.20 in the afternoon. Mr. C. J. Searight, undertaker, was sent for, and the body was removed to the home of his son Mr. Frank Jenkins, who resides on the 6th concession of Dummer, from whence the funeral took place at two o'clock p.m. Wednesday to the Norwood cemetery. Deceased was nearly 66 years of age.

WILL GREAT BRITAIN AND RUSSIA AGREE

the Proposed Alliance Said to be Feasible

HOW IT CAN BE WORKED.

Such a Compact Would be a Permanent Guarantee of Peace, and Would Settle the Eastern Question for Good.'

London, Nov. 5.—The National Review of London, suggests an Anglo-Russian Alliance with this as a basis of agreement:

1. British control of Egypt guaranteed; Russia's "historic mission" in the Balkans assented to.

2. A trade outlet for Russia by railway to the Persian Gulf; Russian recognition of the British protectorate in Afghanistan.

3. Japan's "influence" in Corea, Russia's in Chinese Manchuria and Britain's in the Yangtse Valley conceded.

If the natives of these countries must in any case be "assimilated," this looks like a reasonable business proposition. There is really no reason why the Bear and the Lion should not amicably divide the prey instead of quarreling over it. The suggestion is made under conditions that stamp it as a semi-Ministerial "feeler" to ascertain in advance of action popular sentiment upon so weighty a matter.

The union of England and Russia would mean a lasting peace. It would settle the Eastern question for good, and remove cause for war.

The Paris Figaro does not regard the matatr complacently, and announces, that a treaty of this kind is not practicable.

The proposed treaty clearly indicates that the purpose of it is to throw a spray of very cold water into Berlin and, at the same time, to remind St. Petersburg that, after all, the British Lion is not so black as he has been painted, largely with a German pot and brush. The growing hostility of the Kaiser's Government to that of Great Britain is reviewed, the statement is made that Germany is already stronger on the sea than either Russia or France, and the rather remarkable suggestion is offered that, after all is said and done, Russia would rather see England mistress of the briny deep than Germany.

It is declared that there is no insuperable difficulty to prevent England and Russia from arriving at a mutual understanding; that the present Czar's father was anxious for one and why should not the son be? On Russia's own terms we have not a doubt that Nicholas would be only too glad to divide things with his uncle; but the terms might be rather high. However, John Bull has become used of late to paying dearly for his whistle and that might not stand in the way. The alliance article proposes a modus vivendi which is richly worth consideration. It is not pitched in the jingo key that we have been wont to hear from British voices when singing songs of defiance to the wild and untamed Muscovite. There is nothing in it like "While we're Britons true the Russians shan't have Constantinople!"

On the contrary, Russia may have a good deal and welcome, in the view of the English writers, and let bygones be bygones. For example, they say that if Russia will abstain from any attempt to dislocate that status quo in Egypt, why should not she have her destined way and sway in the Balkans? If Russia would be good and not bother British interests along the shores off the Persian Gulf, why not co-operate with her to develop railway connection between the Caspian Sea and that Gulf, and why not give her a port? Again, if Russia would consent to give Japan a free hand in Korea, she might be permitted to fix her Manchurian and Mongolian position by direct negotiations with China.

It sounds like a pretty scheme of concession, and has the aroma of retirement from the dictatorial attitude which the Lion has maintained toward the Bear ever since the latter began to get his growth. If the London journal be inspired, as gossip has it, we shall hear more about it. The astute diplomatists of St. Petersburg are always open to business.

A BIG BATTLE FOUGHT IN A HEAVY RAINSTORM

Further Details of the Attack on Benson's Rearguard

THE BOERS LOST OVER FOUR HUNDRED MEN

Was the Hardest Fought of the Later Battles of the War—Ross' Men were Commended.

Pretoria, Nov. 3.—Details received regarding the fight in which Colonel Benson was killed, in the neighborhood of Bethel, indicate that it was one of the hardest fought of the later battles of the war. Colonel Benson, who had been operating with great success, had become an especial object of the attention of Botha, who adroitly concentrated a force of one thousand men to effect, if possible, the capture of Benson's entire force. The entire Boer force attacked Benson's rear guard, mortally wounding the gallant colonel as he directed the defence. Colonel Sampson, who took over the command, continued the defence most skilfully, and superintended the removal of the wagons behind a hill and the deploying of the rear guard in skirmishing order. The Boers charged the British trenches several times during a terrific rainstorm, but the gallant defenders held their place and the enemy retired at the point of the bayonet. At the first charge the Boers captured a couple of guns which were somewhat in advance of the main trenches, but were unable to drag them away, owing to the heavy fire of the British.

The defence of the position was gallantly and successfully maintained throughout the whole of the following day and night, until Colonel Barter, after a night march from Bushman's Kop, arrived with reinforcements. The Boers had already lost nearly four hundred men, and Commandant General Botha, who himself led the attack, apparently averse to further fighting, drew off with his men.

General Kitchener has been notified that the British loss was also greater than at first reported. Three additional officers were killed and two others wounded during the attack.

London, Nov. 4.—Those who were convinced, from a study of Lord Kitchener's despatches, that it was only a matter of a few weeks when Botha and the best of his army would be surrounded and captured by the British, were naturally somewhat surprised when the reports of the fight near Bethel showed the Commandant General to be still capable of concentrating on short notice an army of one thousand men and inflicting such severe losses upon the British arms. One predominant feature displayed by the fight is that artillery is practically worthless in the guerilla warfare now being carried on in South Africa. Heavy guns are simply so much impedimenta to the mobile columns now engaged in the "wearing out" process.

PRAISE FOR ROSS.

Pretoria, Nov. 2.—Much of the success which has met the British arms in the northeastern portion of the Transvaal of late is attributable to the good work of the Colonial troops, including the Canadian Scouts, under Major Ross. About a week ago an advance guard with a 15-pounder and a Colt gun came upon a hidden Boer force in a perilous position for the British. The day was saved by the coolness of Sergt. Selwood, of the Canadians, who with a Colt gun at close quarters swept the firing line of the Boers. The Boers retreated when the gun continued to shell them and lost heavily.

Bloemfontein, Nov. 2.—The Government has purchased a large block of land (100,000 acres) near the railway for the purpose of establishing breeding farms. Notwithstanding the low condition of the animals on account of their inoculation for rinderpest and lung sickness the calves produced are healthy.

TO CROSS THE CHANNEL

French Inventor Proposes Boat to Carry Passengers Under Water

Paris, Nov. 5.—The question of submarine transit of the Channel is occupying the minds of inventors. M. Goubet, inventor of a submarine boat, has made a perfect model of a passenger boat, twenty-five metres long, to run by electricity on a steel wire cable at a uniform depth of fifteen metres.

Passengers can be carried in saloon compartments, with electric light and every convenience. The passage would be as easy as a railway, with no vibration. Perfect safety is insured by an iron weight, which in case of need can be dropped, and the boat will rise to the surface. The estimated speed is twenty knots. Capital is the only thing required says the inventor.

LOST ALL TRACE OF BYGONE DAYS

Woman Released From an Asylum Finds the World a Wonder

ETURNS TO HER OLD HOME

She Only Vaguely Remembers It, However—Physicians Have Declared Her of Sane Mind.

New York, Nov. 4.—Fifteen years in institutions for the feeble-minded have made a psychological marvel of Mary L. Lake, who has returned to the neighborhood of her old home on Staten Island, which she only remembers vaguely.

Treated as one of unsound mind for years, pronounced violently insane two months ago, she rambles about the grounds of the Richmond County Almshouse, still trembling with happiness over her release. Physicians have declared her sane, and added that she shows no traces of having ever been feeble-minded, and kind-hearted men and women have taken her case in hand.

Just what is her condition of mind would require the study of a scientist to discover. She reads eagerly, writes well, uses good English and talks rationally.

Most striking are Mary Lake's eyes. They are unusually large and vividly blue, and search unceasingly for new wonders. Her face is thin and pale. Her hair is flaxen at the temples, shading into light brown in the coils of the braid in which she wears it looped at her neck. Her figure is slight, and even in the coarse blue habit she wears she carries herself well.

But there is something uncanny in the young woman's face. The wide eyes and the peculiarly starved mind behind them seem to reflect her experiences in the New York Custodial Asylum, in Newark, of which she tells straightforwardly, and yet almost without emotion.

Here is a mind apparently healthy and pronounced sound by physicians. It is stored with the knowledge of the rudiments of education. Yet all of the world is strange to it. The commonest things of life are wonders. The names of the flowers, cities, even the towns of Staten Island, where the girl's childhood was spent, are like the reading of a history of a strange land.

Behind her is the shadow of a crime which her father committed in New York, and for which he was sentenced for ten years in Sing Sing prison in 1886. It broke up a family and scattered five children so widely that only two of them know each other.

LIBERTY OF SPEECH

The liberty of speech is so complete in all parts of the British empire that a man can praise the enemies of his country, denounce the conduct of the British army in the field, express sentiments which in any other country, would entitle him to be tried for treason. This is a grand feature about our constitution. The freedom is abused, of course, but the very abuse speaks for the stability of the empire. The Irish Nationalists inveigh against England, and pray for the success of the Boers, and nothing happens. The anarchist burrows in the heart of London, or foams at the mouth in Hyde Park, and no man regards him. The religious orders from France which held up England to scorn, invade the country which they hate, and nobody is disturbed. Mr. Lavergne pours contempt upon British statesmen, denounces the war in South Africa, insists that his countrymen should have neither part nor lot in the common display of the empire, and we smile indulgently. Mr. Lavergne has a perfect right to his opinions. He may disapprove of imperialism; he may object to the Boer war; he may regard Mr. Chamberlain as responsible for the precipitation of that conflict. Perhaps Mr. Lavergne should not, as the Press puts it, be gagged. Perhaps he should not be vituperative. Perhaps he should be dignified. [illegible] responsibility, and a member of the gallery [illegible] [illegible] gentleman. Mr. Lavergne [illegible] [illegible] He [illegible] in regard to the contingents when the whole country demanded that Canada take her part in the defence of the empire. He [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Mr. Lavergne is [illegible] weight. He will not hinder the progress of imperialism. He will not alter the destiny of his compatriots. And he possesses the great privilege—a privilege [illegible] to the subjects of other nations—he can say the thing he will, even though that should be so bad taste, should be untruthful, should be colored by prejudice, should tend to hurt the empire in its cherished plans and ideals.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A special committee of the Ottawa Ministerial association, has discovered a really beautiful solution of the problem of the social precedence of clergymen. Ministers representing the larger bodies of Christians are to take precedence over the Ministers of smaller denominations. This may work all right at dinner, but how it will work in heaven, [illegible] only knows.

The end of the war seems as far off as ever. The Boers are still able to fight, able to elude the vigilance of their enemy—nay, can sweep down upon Cape Colony and give the people of Cape Town a bad half hour now and then. The government is blamed for not giving Kitchener a free hand, but to this the retort is made that Lord Kitchener has been cordially supported by the government in all his demands since he took over the supreme command. The process of attrition is a slow one, but as the remnant of the Boer fighting force will not come out in the open and get smashed, there is nothing for it but to keep on wearing resistance down. The job is a wearing and expensive one. Mr. Gladstone left the British empire a terrible legacy of misfortune when he signed the London convention of 1881.

Some man who has a fancy for arithmetical problems has figured out that the battle of Santiago is proving a pretty costly thing for Admiral Schley. His prize money amounted to $5,000, and he was presented with property in Washington worth $10,000. So he netted $15,000 out of the battle. But his expenses on account of the court of enquiry are said to amount to $30,000.

They have called him the Duke of Pork, the Duke of Cork and the Duke of Work, but it remained for the Citizen's Mergenthalers yesterday to denounce His Royal Highness as the Dupe of Cornwall and York.

OLD PEOPLE

Have a charm of their own when they are not weak and feeble, but hale and hearty, enjoying the sports and pleasures of youth though they cannot participate in them. The whole secret of a sturdy old age is this: Keep the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in perfect order. The young man who does not think of his stomach will be made to think of it as he grows old. It is the "weak" stomach, incapable of supplying the adequate nutrition for the body, which causes the weakness and feebleness of old age.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It makes the "weak" stomach strong, and so enables the body to be fully nourished and strengthened by the food which is eaten.

"I suffered for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed several physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. Popplewell, of Eureka Springs, Carroll Co., Ark. "I felt that there was no help for me, could not retain food on my stomach; had vertigo and would fall helpless to the floor. Two years ago I commenced taking Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets,' and improved from the start. After taking twelve bottles of the 'Discovery' I was able to do light work, and have been improving ever since. I am now in good health for one of my age—60 years. I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's medicines."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I luv a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that air on him to bak up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 95 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallen, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. [illegible] Thornton, [illegible], says the Times is [illegible] in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bastedo thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 30 names. Here are 30 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbutt, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Baptie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he has better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Asphodel, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above and a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.

Ashes on the Hearth.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

The twilight crept in at the windows and filled the large and exquisite apartments with a shadowed sadness like the minor strains in some old, sweet song.

Stealthily the long shadows of evenings stretched across the velvet carpets and up the tapestries and the gilded walls. And the gray-haired man, sitting beside the fireplace, saw them drawing nearer and nearer, like the shadows of death.

He gazed with startled eyes, and clutching the arms of his chair, bent forward in the attitude of listening. But the broad rooms, filled with magnificent paintings, rich furnishings, rare statuary, and all the luxuries that wealth and travel could procure, were silent as the tomb. No sound, save only the whispering of the wind among the leaves on the vine covered portico, reached his ears.

He coughed—coughed violently, and a hectic glow mounted his sallow cheeks. And then he shuddered, for the sound of his coughing echoed hollow and weirdly through the deserted house.

With a mighty effort he aroused himself and raked the coals on the hearth until they showed a glowing edge, and a tiny flame leaped upwards, illumining the deepening gloom.

He piled huge chunks of wood upon the fire, and sat and watched the merry blaze climb higher and higher until the tips of its forked tongues were lost to sight as they roared up the broad chimney. Then he wrapped the folds of his gown about him and sat and shivered—shivered over the flame, although it was early autumn, and the grass was yet green and the geraniums still in bloom on the far-stretching lawn without.

And as he shivered his thoughts ran backward over the vanished years—ran back to the days when the mansion was filled with the music of a baby's prattle and a mother's song.

Then the lisping, infant voice changed to the merry laughter of a little girl and grew stronger and stronger until, almost before he realized the lapse of time, it had changed again—changed into the rich contralto of one who stood upon the threshold of womanhood.

How proud he had been of her; how happy in the smiles of his only child! The beauty of her eyes! How he had likened them to the glow of the woods in October.

He cast his eyes around the room and drew nearer the fire. God! how lonely he was.

Had he been in the wrong? Had what he chose to call his iron will been, after all, only an obstinate stubbornness? He himself had once been poor. He himself had known what it was to pound his fist against the hard rock of adversity until the blood flowed. But he had broken the rock at last and had roamed at will amid the beautiful fields thus opened unto him. Had he been uncharitable; had he been harsh and cruel to those who still were pounding?

He remembered the evening when, under the June skies, Robert Boyd had come to him and manfully asked for his daughter. Perhaps it was because Robert Boyd was only a poor mechanic; perhaps it was because the sudden thought of losing his daughter whom he loved with all the passion of a devoted father had wounded him. Whatever the cause, he had roughly refused the request and had forbidden Robert Boyd to bestow any further attention upon the child of his heart.

And when Grace had come to him—had come timidly and afraid, with a great yearning in her eyes and a blush on her cheek and had placed her arms around his neck and had begged him to withdraw his refusal, he had pushed her aside and had said, "Grace, marry that man, and never again need you call me father."

He had gloried in the power of his will. But she was his daughter; she was of his flesh and his blood and she had inherited his will as well as his name.

Quietly she had left the room, and he had turned away and had not seen the gleam in her eyes or the proud poise of her head. Had he done so, perhaps—No, no; he would never have relented—never.

After her secret marriage to Robert Boyd, Grace had written to him. He had not preserved the note. In anger he had torn it up and cast the particles to the winds. But he remembered she had not asked his forgiveness. She had simply informed him of her marriage and had added, "I love you, but if you ever see me again you must come to me."

How long ago was that? Ten—fifteen years. God! the wasted desolate years! And all the time they had lived in the same great city but he had not seen her since, not once in all that time.

Her mother had died—died of a broken heart, pleading with him to go and fetch their daughter. But he had set his jaws and answered, "Anything you ask, Mary—anything but that; she has broken my heart as well as yours; but I'll die, Mary. I'll die before I'll ever look into her eyes again."

And after the death of the mother he had shut himself up in his mansion—had shut in himself and his misery; had shut out the world and his daughter. How slowly had dragged the years.

He had heard it said that Robert Boyd and his wife were not in good circumstances—that they were actually in want. But he did not care. He contented himself by parcelling out his gold among charitable and educational institutions and smiled when the world called him a great and good man.

Then came the word that Robert Boyd was dead—had died in abject poverty, leaving nothing but an honest name, a tender recollection and much misery to his wife and infant daughter. Something of his old love had come to him then, but he had stubbornly closed the door to his heart and went on dealing out his gold and receiving the plaudits of men.

And then three years had passed—three years in which he knew that while he had basked in luxury and the smiles of the world, Grace Boyd, his child, flesh and blood, had struggled and fought and labored to keep the throb of life in the veins of herself and child.

But she had never complained. Never [illegible] had she played the part of the [illegible]. It was his will against his will, his pride against his pride—a battle to the death.

The flames of the hearth died down to embers and the shadows drifting in through the windows filled every nook and corner of the room.

In silence he gazed upon the dying logs, a great pain in his heart—a yearning for something that had gone out of his life.

Suddenly he started, and leaning forward stared with wide open eyes and throbbing temples at the smoke wreaths, coiling, twisting upward. Up from the hearth he seemed to see a face smiling at him, a woman's face with eyes like the glow of the woods in October, and hair, black as night—misty, silky, glorious hair.

In dumb agony he clasped his hands together until the nails pierced the flesh and cried out. But only the echoes answered him. Then the face in the fire changed. The features grew sad and thin, the hair fell about the shoulders in careless abandon, around the sensitive mouth were marks of hunger and despair, and in the eyes—oh, God! the censure, the deep reproach that lingered in the eyes!

With a groan he turned his head, but the eyes, the dark, sad, deep-set eyes, followed him. He arose and staggered across the room, then paused affrightedly and glanced back. The quiet, remorseless, yet uncomplaining eyes were watching him still—piercing him with their melancholy glimmer.

He shivered as one with a chill; he drew his hand across his forehead and groaned. And still the eyes looked into his—those awful, accusing eyes. Like one who is fever stricken he reeled to his chair and clasped its back with both his hands. He bowed his head and from his lips there came a name he had not uttered for many, many years.

"Grace!" he cried. "My daughter, my child!"

He held out his hands to the face in the fire, but it vanished and left only ashes on the hearth.

How like unto his life! Only ashes and not one gleam in all the darkness.

Suddenly a glimmer of joy came into his face. He threw off his gown and put on his great coat and his hat. Then he grasped his cane in his shaking hand and shambled out into the street. He hailed a cab and was driven swiftly over asphalt and brick and cobblestones for many miles.

At last he alighted in front of a rickety building. A little girl in rags was sitting upon the steps. He stooped and looked keenly into her face, her in his arms and pressed her to his heart.

"I know you, my child," he cried, joyfully. "I know you by those eyes—those eyes! Where's mamma?"

The child looked wonderingly into his face, then seemed to understand. She took him by the hand and led him up a flight of creaking stairs and opened the door.

"Mamma," she said, "the doctor's come."

In a far corner a woman lay upon a bed. A candle sputtered on a box near by. The woman's face was turned toward him, and in the dim light he saw her dark hair falling about her shoulders in careless abandon. Her face was pale and thin. There were marks of hunger and despair around her mouth and in her eyes——

"Oh, God!" he cried, throwing himself upon his knees beside the bed and taking her head in his arms.

For a moment, she looked up into his face, then she locked her arms around his neck.

"Father," she sobbed, "dear, dear father!"

The child stood in the middle of the room and gazed in silent wonder. Then a step was heard upon the stairs and a doctor entered.

The millionaire arose and the physician bent over the woman in silence. Finally the other touched his shoulder.

"Bring her back to health," he said, "and I will give you——" He piled gold and silver and banknotes high upon the floor—"I will give you all this."

The physician turned and looked him squarely in the eyes.

"Sir," he said, "keep your money. Starvation has preceded you and has conquered. She is dead, but she died in peace, for see, a smile is upon her face."

CEBU GIVES UP REBELLION

Washington, Nov. 4.—An important cablegram was received at the war department this afternoon from General Chaffee. It follows, in part:

Manila, Oct. 31.—Adjutant General Washington: The following from Brigadier General Hughes: "Insurgents Cebu island have come in, laid down arms in good faith in obedience to demand of people for peace; 150 rifles, 8 brass pieces, 60 officers, 470 men. Affairs not yet satisfactory Bohol island; may move additional troops there to force settlement."

This settles for present, at least, disturbances here as regarding Cebu. Further disorder that island will be made by deliberate action inhabitants, as peace may easily be preserved if people disposed to do so. Shall [illegible] Hughes waste no time, but move on Bohol immediately. CHAFFEE.

Manila, Nov. 3.—General Hughes reports the complete surrender of the insurgents in the island of Cebu and says the pouring of troops into the island of Samar is believed to have had a good effect on the Cebu insurgents, who have been wavering for some time. The irreconcilables kept up the conflict by saying that a majority of the American troops had left the Philippines.

Advices just received here from Calbayoga, island of Samar, say that twelve men of Company G of the Ninth Infantry under command of Sergeant Williford, who had been sent from Basey to San Antonio to investigate and report in regard to the number of bolomen in the vicinity, were viciously attacked by 100 insurgents, who rushed on them with great violence, killing two of the soldiers and wounding two others. Williford remained cool and collected during the attack and the survivors say he acted splendidly. Fourteen of the insurgents were killed. Captain Bookmiller of company G recommends Williford for a medal of honor and Privates Spencer and Vent for certificates of merit.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Woman's Home Friend.

IT HAS SAVED PRECIOUS LIVES AFTER PHYSICIANS FAILED TO RESTORE HEALTH.

No Other Medicine Can So Well Cope With the Ills Peculiar to Women.

What a blessing it would be to people, more especially to wives and mothers, if they could fully realize just what Paine's Celery Compound is able to do for them in times of sickness. The work that cannot be done for the sick after weeks and months of experimenting with the ordinary medicines of our times, is, at all times, successfully accomplished by Paine's Celery Compound.

If you are run down or despondent over failures with medicines in the past, it will be wisdom on your part to make trial of the remedy that has succored thousands in times of peril. Mrs. F. M. Huff, Salmon Point, Ont., says:

"After receiving so much benefit from Paine's Celery Compound I think it my duty to inform sufferers what this great medicine can do for all who wish to regain health and strength. I have been a sufferer for years from nervousness and weakness, and have had the advice and attendance of doctors with but little benefit. I was induced to use your Paine's Celery Compound some time ago. It is the best medicine I ever used; it has done wonders for me as far as health-building is concerned. I cannot speak strongly enough in favor of Paine's Celery Compound, and you may be assured I will always recommend it."

ALLEGED TO HAVE POISONED FOUR

Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 4.—Miss Jennie Toppan, a trained nurse, 46 years old, is locked up in the Barnstable county jail on a warrant charging her with the murder of Mrs. Mary Gibbs of Cataumet, Mass. The warrant charges not only the murder of Mrs. Gibbs, but three other crimes are hanging over her head, as Mrs. Gibbs' father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Alden P. Davis, and her sister, Mrs. Harry Gordon, wife of the cashier of the Chicago office of an insurance company, died within a few days of her death.

Miss Toppan was arrested yesterday afternoon at Amherst, N.H., where she was visiting Miss Nichols, an intimate friend. She was taken to Nashua, N.H., and in court this morning waived examination and returned to Massachusetts without requisition papers. She arrived in this village in custody of General Joseph Whitney, chief of the state police.

Since her arrest developments have been disclosed concerning the identity of Miss Toppan. She was taken from a foundling home when a child by Mrs. Toppan, a wealthy widow of Lowell, Mass. At that home she was known as Nora Kelly. When she was 18 years old she wanted to become a trained nurse and was placed in the Massachusetts general hospital, where she graduated with high honors.

FOUR DEATHS ARE INVESTIGATED.

The first death attributed to Miss Toppan was that of Mrs. Davis, who died in Cambridge on July 4 and whose body was taken to Cataumet for burial. Miss Toppan was the nurse. The family had a summer home at Cataumet and Mr. Davis with his two daughters, Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Gordon, decided to remain there for the summer. Mrs. Gordon's health was not good and Miss Toppan was asked to remain. About four weeks after Mrs. Davis' death the father died suddenly one morning after having been in excellent health and spirits the day previous. Within two weeks the two daughters died.

Mrs. Gibbs' husband, Captain Irving Gibbs, was absent on a voyage at the time of his wife's death, but immediately upon his return began an investigation. He gathered sufficient evidence to warrant District Attorney Holmes in ordering an autopsy, which was held early in September by Dr. [illegible], the medical examiner.

ANALYSES OF ORGANS.

Portions of the bodies of Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Gordon were sent to Professor Wood of Harvard, who late yesterday notified Attorney Holmes of his findings. No regular report was filed, but Professor Holmes told the district attorney enough to cause an officer to be hurried to New Hampshire after the nurse.

Miss Toppan had not been lost sight of from the time Captain Gibbs first reported his suspicions to Attorney Holmes. When the state police were put on the case Detective John H. Patterson was detailed to watch Miss Toppan and when it came time to make the arrest he was in Amherst.

When seen to-night Attorney Holmes was not inclined to talk much about the case. "Miss Toppan had been under suspicion for some time," he said, "but we kept the facts very closely guarded until we had all the evidence we wanted. Professor Wood analyzed the stomachs and notified me informally of his conclusions. On the strength of these I caused the woman's arrest. I will not go into the details about the government's evidence only to say that Miss Toppan was the nurse in the Davis family during the whole of a remarkable dying period."

THREE MORE SUSPICIOUS MURDERS.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4.—The arrest of Miss Toppan charged with the murder of Mrs. Mary Gibbs caused a tremendous sensation here, where Miss Toppan was well known here and where the Davis family always resided. Since the investigation into the sudden deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Davis and their daughters there have been several stories circulating that may figure to no small extent in the case against Miss Toppan. A close friend of the Davis family has traced what he claims to be three rather strange deaths in which Miss Toppan in a greater or less extent figured as a nurse. The first of these was the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Brigham of Lowell, Mass., a daughter of Mrs. Toppan, the adopted mother of Miss Toppan. Mrs. Brigham died Aug. 28, 1899, at Cataumet, Mass. The second strange death was that of Florence M. Calkins, housekeeper for Mr. Brigham in Lowell, who died suddenly Jan. 15, 1900. The last was Mrs. Edward F. Bannister, of Lowell, who died suddenly Aug. 25, 1901, supposedly of heart trouble.

NURSE A VICTIM OF MORPHINE.

Amherst, N. H., Nov. 4.—Miss Nichols, whom Miss Toppan was visiting in Amherst, in an interview to-night said: "I have known Miss Toppan for years. She came to visit me about a month ago after having been ill in a hospital at Lowell. About a week after she came to our house I discovered that my dear friend was taking morphine—in fact, that she had acquired the morphine habit. I did all I could to break up the habit, but my work counted for little. She would appear rational a great part of the time, but after taking the drug became stupified and sort of rambling. I know that if she did any of these things charged against her the crime can be laid to the effects of that drug.

FRENCH SQUADRON IN TURKISH WATERS

Paris, Nov. 4.—Advices received from Toulon would imply that the French naval demonstration in the Mediterranean has had the desired effect to make Turkey yield to the demands of France. The following despatch was received from Toulon:

"The complete Mediterranean squadron returned to Toulon this evening and anchored in the roadstead."

This would include Admiral Caillard's division, whose departure has thus either been countermanded or postponed. It would imply that the government has received news from Constantinople since morning which has not yet been divulged and which has induced a change of plan.

It was reported that Admiral Caillard had been ordered to cruise within reach of a despatch boat to-day for possible further instructions, and it is significant that the torpedo-boat destroyer Hallebarde left Toulon at full speed during the afternoon to rejoin the squadron.

A despatch from Toulon to the Figaro confirms the report of the entire squadron and adds that Admiral Caillard's division is still held in readiness to sail at a moment's notice.

Editorially the Figaro and other morning papers express surprise at this perplexing and unexplained move after the despatch of Admiral Caillard to the Levant had been officially announced.

The decision to make a naval demonstration against Turkey was taken at a meeting of the Cabinet Tuesday, at which M. Delcasse, the minister of foreign affairs, explained the sultan's procrastination regarding the French demands and the quay disputes.

STRENGTH OF FRENCH SQUADRON.

Admiral Caillard's squadron consists of the armored cruisers Admiral Pothuau, Chanzy and Latouche-Treville; the second-class cruiser Galilee. The crews aggregate 2,200 men, but the vessels will also carry landing parties.

The newspapers approve the government's decision. The Journal des Debats says:

"Everyone at Constantinople and the other capitals must be aware that France and Russia are completely in accord on this matter. Under these circumstances it is difficult to believe that the Ottoman government will not come to its senses, and recognizing its error before it is too late relieve us of the necessity of using other means than those of diplomacy and courteous discussion."

La Liberte remarks that the fact that Admiral Caillard has embarked 2,000 marines is a warning to the porte that France will not stop before a slight show of resistance, but will go to the end, even though war should ensue.

MUTINY IN TURKISH ARMY.

Constantinople, Nov. 4.—A mutinous demonstration was made in front of the admiralty offices Tuesday by 600 officers and non-commissioned bashi-bazouks, which caused dismay among the occupants of the Yildiz palace.

The pay of those who took part in the demonstration is several months in arrears and only a promise of prompt settlement prevented the carrying out of threats of further action.

The pay of all the troops with the exception of the marines comes with fair regularity because they furnish the guard at the weekly selamlik and discontent among them might result in serious consequences to Sultan Abdul Hamid.

POSITION OF OTHER NATIONS.

Washington, Nov. 4.—M. Margerie, the charge d'affaires of the French embassy here, had a short interview with Secretary Hay this afternoon, after which that secretary left at once for the white house. M. Margerie may be considered an expert in matters pertaining to the Levant, having spent several years at Constantinople recently as an attache of the French embassy. He feels confident that there is not the slightest danger of a dissolution of the concordat owing to the action of the French government in sending warships to make a naval demonstration in the Turkish waters and to seize a customs port.

The other nations parties to the concordat understand the situation perfectly and, in fact, most of them have grievances and claims themselves like the French complaints, so they may look with complacency upon the effort to make the porte meet his obligations. There also is precedence for this action, for a few years ago Austria seized a Turkish port in the Gulf of Alexandria and held it until her claims were paid, yet the incident did not cause any protest by the other powers or even attract much attention. It is confidently expected that it will not be necessary for the French admiral to proceed to any great length before the Turks will meet his demands.

KILLED IN ACTION

The Toronto papers of yesterday contained the following despatch from Ottawa—

"The following cablegram from the casualty department, Cape Town, reached the Militia Department to-day:—"Please inform Professor Pemberton, Halifax, that Sergt. J. G. Pemberton, Canadian Scouts, was killed in action at Eerstenfabrieken, 27th October.""

The fate that Sergt. Pemberton met on active service in South Africa will be keenly felt here amongst his friends, for he was known to many persons in Peterborough. He was the second son of Prof. Pemberton, who, for a number of years was bandmaster at Millbrook, and followed the profession of music teaching in that village. About six years ago the family moved to Halifax, where the deceased was very successful in a large wholesale house. He made frequent trips back to his old home at Millbrook, and generally took a run down to Peterborough to renew old acquaintances. John, who would be now about 24 years of age, was of a venturesome nature, and followed the Second Canadian Contingent to South Africa. He did not enlist until some time after arriving at Cape Town. He was a general favorite, a good hearted fellow, and hosts of friends in Millbrook and Peterborough will be grieved to learn of his untimely end.

LATEST NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Tucson Ariz., Nov. 1.—A desperate battle took place on Wednesday between Yaqui Indians and Mexican cavalry. Fifteen Yaquis were killed and a number of troopers were wounded. The charge was led by Lieut.-Col. Quintro with 300 men, all mounted. They left Guaymas after receiving repeated despatches announcing raids made by Indians. The Indians were camped in Latuna Canon when the troops came upon them. A fight at close range began and lasted 20 minutes. The troops rode upon the Indians, killing them with their six-shooters. The Indians fell back, and securing their horses, made for the mountains. The troops are in pursuit and more fighting is expected. Lieut.-Col. Quintro is highly commended for his bravery by the people of Guaymas.

London, Oct. 30.—The streets of London were rendered impassable this evening by the densest and blackest fog known for years. All traffic virtually suspended except in a few main thoroughfares, and Trafalgar Square, the Strand, Whitehall and Piccadilly were blocked with omnibuses unable to make progress. Cabmen led their horses. In the theaters the fog obscured the light.

London, Nov. 2.—A despatch to a news agency from Rome says that the second division of the Italian Mediterranean squadron has started for Turkey with the object of counter-balancing the French naval demonstration.

Cancer Growing Two Years

A Remarkable Case Cured Completely by the New Constitutional Remedy.

Not long ago, we had the pleasure of receiving the following letter: "When I began your treatment there was a hard lump in my breast, which had been growing for two years, and it came to bed at last that it drew the nipple in. I consulted two doctors, and they both pronounced it cancer, and advised me to have my breast cut off. Your remedy, however, was recommended to me by a friend, and I am very thankful to say that it not only saved my life, but did away with the necessity of having to undergo the painful operation, which I so much dreaded."

We do not publish the names of those who give us testimonials for the gratification of the curious, but any sufferer from cancer or tumor may have the name and address of the lady who wrote the above, by sending 2 stamps to Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

A Treat in Store.

St. Andrew's Day is to be celebrated in an appropriate and adequate manner this year. As St. Andrew's Day falls on a Saturday, the celebration will be held on Friday evening, the 29th inst., instead of the 30th. The arrangements are in the hands of an enthusiastic committee, who are determined to have a grand celebration of the anniversary so dear to all Scottish hearts. The "clachan" supper" is to take the form of a Scottish "At Home," for which a patriotic programme of a versatile character is being prepared. It will embrace vocal and instrumental music, addresses and readings, Scotch dancing, etc. A specially interesting feature will be an exhibition by Prof. Short's dancing class, in full Highland and other costumes, similar to the "Kermess" which he gave last April, and which proved such a decided hit. Further particulars will be awaited with interest by all.

A SUCCESSFUL CONCERT

Under the Auspices of the Men's Guild of St. Luke's Church

A most successful concert was held last night in St. Luke's Sunday school, under the auspices of St. Luke's Men's Men's Guild to a large and appreciative audience.

At the conclusion of the program a hearty vote of thanks was tendered those supplying the program for their kindness in turning out, and for the splendid program given.

A Big Undertaking

Mr. Wm. Irwin is superintending the construction of the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Co's. buildings. He arrived home on Saturday evening, and will spend a few days with the hunters in the north. Mr. Irwin says that this mill will be one of the largest on the continent. Two hundred and fifty men are employed in the construction.

Feeling was Mutual

The closing of one of the rooms in the Central school was welcomed by nobody more cordially than a certain bright 14-year-old, who gets as much fun out of education as she does out of everything—and that's saying a great deal. Her love of fun and the trouble she gave her teacher didn't hinder her from being promoted—however unpoetic such justice may seem. "Well, Lucy," observed the teacher, unsmilingly, when it came time to give good bye, "I don't know a girl in the class I'm more glad to get rid of than you." "That's just the way I feel about you, Miss——" smiled the 14-year-old. And yet they say that the youth of the land is deteriorating.

UNREASONABLE REQUESTS

Made by Many People Who Require Items of News Suppressed

There are interested parties ready to throw themselves into the breach at every important occurrence, and importune the newspapers to suppress some news item, and sometimes it happens several times a week. Men will expect an item to be suppressed when the entire community is already talking about it, and its publication would harm no one. If the paper declines to "leave out" the item the applicant becomes very indignant; if it yields, and a contemporary later publishes the news, it never occurs to the gentleman that he has injured the legitimate business of a newspaper, and that he ought to apologize. On the contrary, when a local newspaper "leaves out" an item which appears later in an out-of-town journal, the very men who ask for its suppression are the first to say, "You must read foreign papers to get the news."

Did it ever occur to those who request a newspaper not to publish a report that it would be just as unreasonable to ask a merchant not to make a sale? You are asking the newspaper to omit its most attractive feature, and to become tedious merely for your benefit. Possibly you may have business relations with the right to make exactions.

TAKE THEM OUT

Or Feed Them on Food They Can Study on

When a student begins to break down from lack of the right kind of food, there are only two things to do: either take him out of school or feed him properly on food that will rebuild the brain and nerve cells. That food is Grape-Nuts.

A boy writing from Jamestown, N.Y., saying, "A short time ago I got into a bad condition from overstudy, but Mother having heard about Grape-Nuts Food began to feed me on it. It satisfied my hunger better than any other food, and the results were marvelous. I got fleshy like a good fellow. My usual morning headaches disappeared, and I found I could study for a long period without feeling the effects of it.

After I had been using Grape-Nuts Food for about two months I felt like a new boy altogether. My face had been pale and thin, but is now round and has considerable color. I have gained greatly in strength as well as flesh, and it is a pleasure to study now that I am not bothered with my head. I passed all of my examinations with reasonably good percentage, extra good in some of them, and it was Grape-Nuts that saved me from a year's delay in entering college.

Father and Mother have both been improved by the use of Grape-Nuts Food. Mother was troubled with sleepless nights and got very thin, and looked care worn. She has gained her normal strength and flesh, and sleeps well nights." Don E. Gilpen.

The Pan American

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Being in Buffalo on the closing day of the Pan-American exhibition, and although a stranger, I saw evidences on all sides of an intention on the part of the rougher element of the city to make a raid upon the exhibits at the closing hours of the exhibition, for the purpose of stealing and committing acts of vandalism, and yet the police, whose duty it was to afford the necessary protection were so obtuse as not to take in the situation, so that at the appointed time their force was inadequate to cope with the vandals. It is estimated by some that the damage must have amounted to $100,000, which could have been averted had the police been possessed of that perspicacity which their calling demands. And yet the Buffalo police are but a fair sample of police generally, and goes to prove that no one should be admitted to the force unless submitted to a test showing he possessed the necessary qualifications.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space, I am, etc. J. A. B.

The Most Powerful Citizen

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—At the Trades and Labor meeting the other night, one of the speakers referred to the power of wealth as it was counted now-a-days. At the conclusion of the meeting a discussion arose amongst a few of us as to who is the most powerful citizen in America, and we decided to leave it to you, to answer through The Times Letter Box. MECHANIC.

Reply.—It is hardly necessary to mention his name. By common agreement he who is entitled to the ribbon of this distinction is the redoubtable J. Pierpont Morgan, a living refutation of the theory that a man cannot part his name in the middle and amount to anything. Mr. Morgan bestrides financial, commercial, and industrial America like a Colossus. In the palm of his hand is the material welfare of millions. There is panic in his frown and prosperity in his smile. What is the shadow of power possessed by a titular president compared with the mighty substance of this real thing?—Ed. Times.

The Dead Child

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In Saturday's issue of the Morning Times, Mr. H. M. Dennistoun enters a defence of the "Children's Aid Society" re the child who died for want of proper care.

Mr. Dennistoun says "if the case in question had been reported as one of destitution or desertion the child would have been admitted at once." Now I most emphatically assert what I have stated before, that I did report the case as one of utter destitution, and I defy contradiction to this assertion, for a member of the society's board of directors was present when I made the report. The agent of the Children's Aid stated distinctly, that an illegitimate child could not be admitted to the "Shelter," and that there was a resolution on the books to that effect.

The destitution of this child can hardly be denied. Its unfortunate mother was stretched on a bed of sickness, penniless, there was no one to keep the child, except under protest, and those who kept it admitted frankly to me, that they had not the means which would enable them to give the child proper care, and they implored me to try and get it into the "Shelter." It was under these circumstances that I applied to the Children's Aid.

There is a discrepancy among the officials in reference to a resolution on the books of the society. One party says that the resolution positively prohibits the admission of an illegitimate child to the Shelter, and if I understand Mr. Dennistoun correctly, he all goes in effect, that there is no such resolution on the books. Now how would it do to publish this resolution just as it stands, and then the citizens would know precisely, whether or not the social status of the parents is considered, before a destitute child can be admitted to the "Shelter."

Medical Health Officer.

The Naming of Farms

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see the Times is the progressive paper of the district, and it is the one to begin any new movement. I suggest, therefore, that farms be named.

This is not a mere matter of sentiment, by any means, but it is strictly business. The man whose farm is known by some name is certain to take a greater interest in its products, and conduct all of his operations on a better plan. On every place there is certain to be some peculiarity that will suggest a name. A spring of pure water, a grove of oak or maple trees, or something else of a similar nature will give it a local flavor. Then paint the name on the end of the barn facing the road. Let it be where every passerby can see it. Your farm will then soon become known far and wide, and will aid you in a thousand ways. Besides, how much more dignified it is to be spoken of as the proprietor of Oak Grove Farm than to be always alluded to as Jim Jones. By all means name your farms and it will make you all better farmers.

I hope the farmers of the district will take this matter up at their winter meetings, and discuss it. I am sure good will result from it.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am, etc.,

RICHARD HARDING.

If You Are Battling Physically or Mentally With Life's Work and Responsibilities Use Energy-Producing

MALT BREAKFAST FOOD

Men and women who make Malt Breakfast Food their first dish at the morning meal, avoid the many discomforts that come to those who use oatmeal and other grain foods. Malt Breakfast Food users go forth to the work and duties of the day with a full store of bodily and mental energy so necessary for battling with the worries of business and home responsibilities. The reasons are plain and simple. Malt Breakfast Food is easily digested and quickly assimilated, it is an energy-producer as well as bone, muscle and tissue builder. Oatmeal and other starchy grain foods tax the powers of digestion, use up existing energy, give rise to stomach derangements and skin eruptions, and only a very small percentage of their nutriment can be assimilated. If you are a daily worker depending upon either body or brain power, make Malt Breakfast Food your regular morning dish; health, strength and happiness will be your reward. All Grocers

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION PERILS OF AFRICA

Wonderful Difficulties Overcome by Railway Men.

The Greatest Danger is the Ferocious Wild Beasts.

How the Great African Railway Was Built.

London, Nov. 6.—The building of the great trans-Siberian railway across Russia and Siberia was a gigantic task, but the engineers and builders had little to contend with there save the rigors of the climate at some seasons, the natural formation of the country and the distance from a base of supplies.

But in the Uganda country the men who are running a thin line of steel rails into the trackless jungle, across swamps, deserts and fever-stricken plague spots are obliged to meet and conquer enemies of every kind—beast, savage and insect. Lions are by no means the worst of the attacking force, though they have caused scores of deaths among the coolies brought from India to do the construction work. The naked savages, who object to this intrusion on their lands, who understand little or nothing about the railroad and its uses, persistently attack the workmen from the depths of the jungle, destroy the track after the construction gangs have passed on and make not only miserable but dangerous for everyone connected with the big undertaking. Herds of elephants in playful mood now and then attack the complete [illegible] or the huts of the workmen and in a few minutes destroy work it has taken days of patient labor to accomplish. Lions beset the workmen's paths continually, and now and then a hippopotamus lies down on the track and blocks further progress.

INSECT PESTS ABOUND.

But, as if all this were not enough, Uganda is also the native heath of the tsetse fly, deadly enemy of beasts of burden, horse and ox alike, and also of the "jigger," the [illegible] insatiable insect torturer [illegible]. The activity of the first pest made it necessary to transport all the materials used in building the first 250 miles of the line on the heads of native "carriers," but the attacks of the "jiggers" upon these men were so fierce, especially on the soles of their feet, that hundreds of carriers were incapacitated, and many of them were found to have one or more of their toes amputated. In this part of the country, too, mile after mile stretches away in which no water is to be found, and all that was used by the thousands of men employed in laying the line had to be carried inland from the coast and doled out in rations. At different times fever raged in the construction camp and once 50 per cent. of the men were on the sick list. Rivers suddenly swollen by great rains washed away the track soon after it was laid. Savage tribes descended upon the laborers and had to be driven off.

DRAGS MAN FROM CAR.

Probably, however, if it could have been arranged almost every member of the expedition would have agreed to bear all these hardships if they might have been spared the visitations of lions. The king of beasts has played havoc with the builders of the Uganda railway from the first, and since the work was commenced over thirty men have been killed by these animals, to say nothing of those injured. Two lions in particular bagged so many victims that at one time the whole construction force "struck" work until the pair of man-eaters were killed off. This task was taken in hand by two of the engineers who already had become famed for their prowess as lion slayers. One of them was especially eager for the fray, his favorite servant having fallen a victim to these lions only a few days before. The beast had seized the servant and leaped on him from behind, completely crushing the bones of his right leg and gnawing and carrying him so fiercely that he died soon afterward. A few days later one of the officials of the east African protectorate and a soldier were walking along the line when suddenly a lion pounced on them from the brush beside the track. The officer hastily ducked and escaped with an ugly scratch, but while he was making his escape the beast killed the soldier outright. It was after this that the two hunters vowed vengeance, and after lying in ambush for several nights they bagged both the beasts.

And it is not only on the railroad line itself that the lions attack the men. One of the beasts [illegible] stalked into a railroad coach standing on a sidetrack and attacked one of the officials who was asleep. He yelled and struggled desperately, but the lion dragged him into the woods and literally devoured him alive. This startling attack created consternation in the camp and plans were laid to net the man eater. Yet two nights afterward he returned and sprang upon the roof of the station in which a number of railroad hands were sleeping. He tore fiercely at the sheets of corrugated iron of which the roof was made and in the morning the roof was wet with the blood from the animal's paws. Finding his efforts there fruitless, Leo had [illegible] for the rest of the night outside the station door, where he occupied himself by gnawing into small pieces the signalman's whole stock of red and green flags. It was only a short time ago that still another lion, not satisfied with hunting along the railroad, boarded one of the trains. The train in question had been held up at the station over night and soon after the train hands were sent there to get it ready to go on, yells of unmistakable terror were heard and several of the white men hastily snatched up their guns and started to the rescue. They found the hands drawn up in a little trembling crowd staring at a magnificent looking lion, who squatted calmly on the rear platform of one of the cars that was growling ominously.

It did not take long for a few [illegible] with guns to lay him low, and when it was quite safe to approach him he was [illegible] up on his peculiar resting place and his photograph was taken.

"A few months ago five native workmen [illegible] from the railroad work and [illegible] across country. They were chased by four or five lions and at once climbed along the lower branches of a small tree. The lions camped out just below them [illegible] to wait for a meal which they felt certain would come to them in time. [illegible] the [illegible] hung there without food or water and then began one by one to drop off the tree from weakness, to be promptly devoured by the lions. One of the men managed to hang until after the lions had appeased their hunger and grown tired of waiting and then he escaped and told the story.

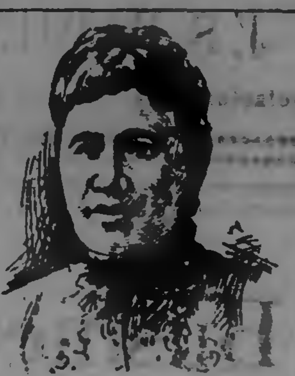
NATIVES REFUSE TO WORK.

The native tribes in the country through which the railway runs [illegible] trouble from the first, and it was necessary that every company of engineers and porters should be accompanied by a strong guard to beat off their attacks. It had been expected that the tribes along the route would be depended upon to furnish men who would be willing to work as porters for pay, but this proved to have been a delusion. The natives declined the proffered employment. Their food, chiefly in the shape of bananas, grew wild about them; they had women to do all that was necessary; why should they work? The engineers found that even in districts where famine prevailed they could get practically no help from the natives. They are [illegible] folk, these natives of Uganda, as [illegible] in their [illegible] than in costume. This generally consists of a breech clout and a short cloak dangling down their backs, while from the slits of their ears depend all sorts of queer and ponderous things, including all sorts of queer and ponderous things, including empty cans and jam pots.

It was because the natives refused to help in building the Uganda road that the British government brought practically all the working force from India. These men, who number about 20,000 are capable of standing the sun's rays, and work cheerfully and hard sixteen hours a day for little more than a handful of rice. It would be difficult to describe the aspect of the work more graphically than does Sir Harry Johnston, commissioner for Uganda. "I wonder," he says in one of his reports, "if the importance of one aspect of the railway's construction has been realized. It means the driving of a wedge of India two miles broad right across [illegible] from Mombasa to the Victoria Nyanza. Fifteen thousand coolies, some hundreds of Indian clerks, draughtsmen, mechanics, surveyors and policemen are implanting the use of the Hindustani language, and carrying the Indian [illegible] postal system, Indian coinage, [illegible] thing right across [illegible] forests and swamps, tenanted hitherto by naked savages and wild beasts."

When the British Government went about building the Uganda railway it was calculated that it would cost about $11,000,000, and parliament voted that amount, but an expert [illegible] inspected the work gives as his opinion that when finished it will have cost $25,000,000. The line will probably be finished some time in 1902; at present about 250 miles are open for business, the passengers being principally [illegible] and coolies, caravan porters and British soldiers and officials. The natives themselves have not yet taken to riding on the railroad.

Despite the great [illegible] it will probably be a success and will be followed by other railroads [illegible] the jungle, and the [illegible] of the future may [illegible] most part of the way—in a palace car.



EX-QUEEN LILIUOKALANI

A DEPOSED MONARCH

EX-QUEEN LILIUOKALANI OF THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

She is a Familiar Figure on the Streets of Washington—A Royal Banquet

Washington, Nov. 6.—Ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii has just celebrated her sixty-third birthday by giving several entertainments at which hundreds of natives and a few whites were present. Three hundred guests breakfasted with the deposed queen, and then came a general reception. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon there was a big luau feast, at which Federal Judge Estee was present and escorted the hostess to a large tent, under which the luau was given. He was seated on a mat at her right hand. The food was served on mats on the ground, and the staple articles were poi and raw fish.

Her Majesty ascended power in January, 1891, upon the death of King Kalakaua, her brother. She had been known as Princess Lydia, or Mrs. Dominis, her husband being an American citizen of that name. The Queen could never have felt herself to be firmly seated on the throne, as doubts were widely felt at the time of her accession of her sincerity in taking the oath to maintain the constitution. Some years ago a revolution broke out and a republic was established, which was followed by annexation.

The Queen came to Washington to intercede for her people [illegible] throne. Her efforts were futile, [illegible] she now has an annuity from Uncle Sam. She is an accomplished [illegible] lady, and active in the work [illegible] American mission.

Another Contingent Likely to Go to South Africa—To be all Mounted Men.

Botha Calls the British Outlaws and Orders Armed Englishmen to be Shot

Prince Arthur off to Africa—Has Been Ordered to Front With the Seventh Hussars

Another Contingent for South Africa?

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—It is understood the Cabinet have had under consideration the question of sending a third contingent to South Africa, and if anything is done it is most likely to take the shape of a reminder to the Imperial Government that the offer previously made on the subject still holds good. In military quarters the hope is strongly expressed that the contingent will be sent, and that it will comprise at least 600 mounted men, 650 horses and two batteries of artillery; increased pay and a bonus for all men who served in previous contingents, the men selected to pass a strict medical examination.

Pretoria, Nov. 5.—The text of Gen. Botha's counter-proclamation to Lord Kitchener's recent proclamation declares:

"Whereas, no official of the Orange Free State or the Transvaal Republic, and no general, commandant, or burgher, intends to obey Lord Kitchener's proclamation or to comply with it,

"And, whereas, the proclamation contains falsehoods habitual to the English,

"And, whereas, Lord Kitchener's proclamation has strengthened the determination of all burghers to resist to the end; now,

"Therefore, I, Louis Botha, commandant-general of the Republican forces, with the consent of the Governments, officers, and burghers of [illegible] Lord Kitchener, his [illegible] and soldiers serving under his orders fighting as [illegible] to be outlaws in South Africa, and all officers and burghers in the two Republics and in Cape Colony are ordered to shoot every armed Englishman whom they meet."

Three hundred burgher police, under Captain Malcolm, in three weeks had four encounters with Boers and killed two in the neighborhood of Dewetsdorp. They brought in a 12-pounder gun belonging to U Battery, which the Boers captured at Vlakfontein. This gun was found hidden under the rocks between Dewetsdorp and Wepener. The police also brought in 22 horses and saddles. They captured 12 Boers, including ten wounded men. Their casualties were two men wounded.

OFF TO AFRICA.

London, Nov. 6.—It does not often happen that two princes are ordered to the front with their regiments at the same time, but this has just happened in the case of Prince Arthur of Connaught and Prince Alexander of Teck, who are both officers in the Seventh Hussars.

The Seventh Hussars are now considered quite as fashionable a regiment as the Tenth regiment, to which the late Duke of Clarence was attached. Prince Arthur is very popular at Aldershot, where there is great excitement among the ladies that he is going at so young an age to fight for his country.

Presents of flowers, it is quite well known, gold cigarette cases, even sweetmeats poured in upon His Royal Highness day after day, mostly anonymously, to such an extent that for a time after was almost unbearable.

With his brother officers, among whom, besides Colonel Lawley, who commands, are Major Poore, brother-in-law of the Duke of Hamilton; Major Carew, brother of Lady Camoys and Lady Sladen, and Major Nicholson, a brother of Lady Bradford. Prince Arthur is glad the Seventh has been ordered out. The men are proud to have the young Prince with them, judging from their enthusiastic cheering for His Royal Highness when the news was announced to them.

MINE HAS FABULOUS RICHES

[illegible] Clark

Phoenix, Ari., Nov. 6.—The American Mining News [illegible] the following article about the great United Verde mine, the property of Senator W. A. Clark, which, if correct, would indicate that it is probably the richest [illegible] tely [illegible] to fight [illegible] of [illegible] taken [illegible] is $70 per [illegible] value [illegible] silver that copper [illegible] values—gold, silver and copper. [illegible] mine, [illegible] developed, including explorations and diamond drilling below the present workings, shows an immense ore chimney, [illegible] feet across, that has been explored by shafts, tunnels and drill holes to a depth of 1,[illegible] feet.

"Just how far it will be possible to work this mine down before the [illegible] the best mining engineers in this country show that the mine to the depth of 1,[illegible] feet contains 336,000,000 cubic feet of ore, and estimating eleven cubic feet to the ton there is practically [illegible] tons in sight.

"If we carry the figures a little further on the present [illegible] values [illegible] value of the ore [illegible] the present owner of the property has refused [illegible] for the mine."

In reference to the applications of Miss Fife and Mr. McPherson, we would recommend that their salaries be increased $50 each dating from September last.

Mr. Langford thought the report very indefinite, in not giving the salaries of each teacher in the towns and cities referred to. It is true that the salaries of the principals are specified, but that of their subordinates are lumped. He did not think that the Board could arrive at a fair comparison of our teachers' salaries with those elsewhere from the report submitted, and favored its being merely received, and left over for further consideration. He claimed that Peterborough pays as high salaries as any town in the country.

In reply to Mr. Langford, Mr. [illegible] said that the salaries paid by other towns for the same work undertaken by Miss Fife and Mr. McPherson (both of whom the report recommended for an increase) range from $600 to $750 a year.

On motion of Mr. J. J. Hartley, the report was adopted as read.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION

Mr. V. Eastwood, Chairman of the Committee appointed to consider the application of the Ministerial Association for the introduction of religious instruction in the schools reported as follows:

Gentlemen,—Your Committee beg leave to recommend that the Ministerial Association of the town be given permission to give religious instruction of a nonsectarian nature, and conjointly with the teachers, in the schools during the last half hour on Friday afternoons, from now until the end of the present term, and if they are still satisfactory, the same to be continued.

The report was adopted as read.

THE VACANCY FILLED.

Miss Ethel Dawson, who is an applicant of long standing, and who comes highly recommended by County School Inspector Brown, was appointed as teacher in place of Miss C. Blanche Brown, resigned.

Mr. Langford, however, protested: he thought this matter was being rushed, and should have been left over till next meeting, when a larger attendance of trustees would undoubtedly be present.

THE INSPECTOR'S SALARY.

Mr. V. Eastwood gave notice that at next meeting he would move that School Inspector Walker's salary be increased $100 a year.

The Board then adjourned.

A LARGE FLEET MENACES TURKEY

Italy Despatches a very Strong Fleet to Turkish Waters

DISPUTE NOT YET ADJUSTED

Italy's Object is to Counterbalance the French Demonstration — Turkey's Unhappy Plight

Paris, Nov. 6.—The Franco-Turkish dispute is far from being settled, as has been reported. The sending of the Mediterranean squadron under Admiral Caillard into Turkish waters has led the Italian Government to make a counterbalancing naval demonstration. The second division of the Italian Mediterranean squadron, which has left for Turkish waters, will join the first division, which has been cruising in the eastern Mediterranean for some time.

It appears also that the Greek warships, Psara, Hydra, Spetsai and Eurotas are now at Smyrna, where is also the Russian Mediterranean squadron. It is believed that the British squadron now at Piraeus, Greece, will be ordered to proceed to Beyroot.

READY TO JOIN CAILLARD.

It is expected that Admiral Caillard will be joined en route by the torpedo cruiser Condor which is stationed in Cretan waters, and may be met by the torpedo destroyer Vautour, which is stationed at Constantinople. It is also probable that the armored cruiser Admiral Charner, which arrived at Port Said Oct. 31 from the far east, is being held there in order to join Admiral Caillard if needed. It is further reported that three other warships are held in readiness at Toulon to reinforce him should their presence be necessary.

According to despatches from Toulon all the officers and men of the garrison now on leave of absence have been ordered to join their respective commands immediately.

The cruisers Du Chayla and Cassard are ready to sail at a moment's notice and the battleships Bouvet and Jaureguiberry will be ready Tuesday. The work of repairing the docks was continued throughout yesterday.

FRENGH WARSHIPS SEIZE CUSTOMS ON MITYLENE

Definite Instructions Given to Admiral Caillard to Enforce Claims Against Sultan

SETTEMENT OF DISPUTE IS EXPECTED SOON

Necessity for Occupying Turkish Territory, in Order to Exercise Pressure on the Sultan, Held to be Urgent.

Paris, Nov. 5.—Admiral Caillard's squadron arrived off the Island of Syra (Grecian Archipelago), yesterday. A despatch boat entered the port of Syra and took from the telegraph station a batch of despatches containing definite instructions from the French Government directing Admiral Caillard to proceed to the Island of Mitylene (a Turkish island of Aegan Sea), where he will seize the customs at Midilly, a port on that island, and at another port. The squadron is now on its way to Mitylene, and will probably arrive at its destination to-morrow.

The Foreign Office here has not yet received the Sultan's reply to the note which M. Bapst, Councillor of the French Legation at Constantinople, presented to the Turkish Government asking how Turkey proposed to pay the Lorando claim and requesting satisfaction regarding France's rights. The correspondent here of the Associated Press is enabled to make the following statement:

"When the French Government decided to send a squadron to Turkish waters it debated whether to seize the customs at Salonica, Beirut or Smyrna, as it was realized that only the receipts of one of these three big ports could produce a sufficient sum to pay off the French claims without a long occupation which was considered inadvisable.

"The choice of M. Delcasse fell on Smyrna, which offers advantages equal to the other ports without it having their political drawbacks. Saturday, however, came the despatch from M. Bapst announcing the issuing of the Sultan's trade accepting the Lorando claim in its entirety, as France demanded.

"The necessity for seizing big customs therefore became less pressing. But the necessity for occupying Turkish territory in order to exercise pressure and compel the Sultan to concede the demands respecting Turkey's disregard of French treaty rights still remained urgent. The Government therefore decided that Admiral Caillard should occupy a couple of ports on the Island of Mitylene, which is conveniently close to Smyrna. The French Government, however, trusts that the whole difficulty will very shortly be arranged to its satisfaction."

This morning M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, telegraphed M. Bapst, councilor of the French embassy in Constantinople, directing him to present to-day to Tewfik Pasha, Ottoman minister of foreign affairs, a note asking how the Turkish government proposes to pay the Lorando claim and demanding the execution of the sultan's irade dealing with that matters.

FRANCE DEMANDS HER RIGHTS.

The note will also request satisfaction regarding the rights of France which are defined in the various capitulations and treaties and which in some cases have not been respected and in others have been encroached upon by Turkey.

This declaration of what has been done bears out the statement cabled yesterday regarding the intentions of the French government.

Admiral Caillard is expected to reach his destination tomorrow. The foreign office has received no news from him since his division left the other divisions of the Mediterranean squadron en route for Turkish waters four days ago.

It is pointed out that the absence of news is not surprising, as the instruction to Admiral Caillard were to steer due south and to avoid passing in sight of Bonifacio, Corsica, or versing the strait of Messina in order to prevent his movements being signaled. The vessels of the division carried only a normal supply of coal, but this would be much more than sufficient to enable them to steam 1,500 miles, the estimated distance they must cover before reaching their destination.

ASIA MINOR ISLE IN REVOLT.

"Serious trouble has arisen in Samos (an island off the west coast of Asia Minor) owing to the enmity felt by a majority of the insular assembly toward the government," says the Constantinople correspondent of the Temps. "The Government, with the assistance of four deputies, is exercising absolute power, and the assembly has appealed to Constantinople to end a state of things menacing to the tranquillity of the island."

YOUNG WOMAN A "GRANDMA."

Mrs. Carleton of Iowa Falls Claims the Record for the Northwest.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 6.—A grandmother at 29 is the record of Mrs. James P. Carleton, of Iowa Falls, Iowa, who claims the distinction of being the youngest grandmother in the entire northwest. She is hoping to be a great grandmother by the time she is forty-five.

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton were married in Ohio eighteen years ago, Mrs. Carleton being only 11 years old when she was wooed, won and led to the altar by her youthful schoolmate. Less than two years later, when only 13 years of age, she became a mother. The tendency toward early marriages in the Carleton family was transmitted to the daughter, and two years ago at the age of 14, she was married. Last week she became a mother.

Until recently James P. Carleton was postmaster at Iowa Falls, but a few months ago he and his wife removed to St. Paul, Minn., where their daughter and grandchild reside.

A Large Family

"Up my way the children seem to swarm like bees," said a Western Ontario traveller to the Times a few days ago: "Coming out of a doctor's office the other day—I think he is one of the Board of Health's vaccine physicians—I met an estimable Irish woman of my acquaintance. She had seven children with her, ranging in age, I should say, from 10 years down. I stopped to talk to her, and she announced that she had just been getting the 'childer' vaccinated. 'Are they all yours?' I asked. 'Ivery wan av them,' she replied, proudly. Then, by way of a joke, I said: 'Are you sure you haven't lost any on the way, or left some at home?' 'Sure, Oi did that,' she answered. 'Oi left th' twins in th' cradle, wid Jamesie, th' oldest b'y, a-mindin' av thim.' You can't beat that, can you?"

You get a very faint idea of the beauty, the appetizing look, of a Cleveland Baking Powder biscuit from the above illustration. But it is the best that can be done in a newspaper.

Hot biscuits made with Cleveland's Baking Powder are most appetizing in appearance, fragrant in odor, delicious to the taste. Light, sweet, wholesome. An ideal breakfast food. No other biscuits are quite so nice, none so easily made, none so healthful.

PETERBOROUGH, NOVEMBER 6 1901

THE SCRAP IRON SCANDAL.

The Toronto Star (Lib.) is a staunch friend of the Ontario Government, but even it cannot swallow the failure of the Government scrap iron amendment, which was to do away with the public scandal of valuing the plant of certain incorporated bodies operating in municipalities, as scrap iron. The Opposition has all along charged that the Ross Government favored corporations at the expense of the people. After a long delay the Administration passed an amendment rectifying the mode of assessing these plants. Now the judges say the amendment means nothing, and that scrap iron assessment stands as before. The Toronto Star admits that this mistake is a rank and careless blunder, and this is a good deal for the Star to admit (issue of Nov. 2), but it is a great triumph for the Opposition, which will now turn to the people and say, "We told you so." But the Star's disappointment means more than it expresses. If the failure of the amendment is so irritating and disappointing, why was the original scrap iron assessment allowed to stand so long on the books? It looks as if the Star, finding that its subscription list depended on a greater show of common sense, had waked up to the fact that its subscribers were its first line of food supply, and not the Ontario Government, and that it would be necessary to speak out even if with some restraint. To call the failure "the scrap iron assessment blunder," is after all, a pretty severe impeachment of the people's representatives. It remarks also that "the end in view was simple and a layman would not be too self-confident, who thought he could accomplish it without difficulty." This is a nice state of affairs, truly, and ought to temper the boasting of the Government orators.

Both parties should understand that the people will no longer tolerate this system of hocus-pocus. Whether A or B retains office is nothing to the farmer and the workingman. What the people want is a nice even of blundering in favor of the people, and not always and forever, on the side of corporations.

We shall be treated, no doubt, to the usual brand of attack by the local Tory organ, and to the usual sample of partisan defence by the Examiner. To a reader who knows, it will read like a description of a burglary on the one side, and of a martyrdom on the other. To the Toronto Star, however, belongs some credit—that it will not swallow even scrap iron. It will be the better for it. Moreover, we want no hypocritical lamentations when the case arrives for a proper amendment, to the effect that the error was unintentional and so forth. If a whole type of political "wonderland" [illegible] to a popular demand so better fashion than is exemplified in "the scrap iron amendment blunder," we shall have to ask somebody else to take the chair.

THE BATTLE OF BETHELL.

Pretoria, Nov. [illegible] received regarding the fight in which Colonel Benson was killed in the neighborhood of [illegible] that it was one of the [illegible] of the [illegible] of the war. Colonel Benson, who had been operating with great success, had become [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] the Boers charged [illegible] the British [illegible] [illegible] the position [illegible] the captured a couple of guns which were [illegible] in advance of the main [illegible], but were unable to drag them away, owing to the heavy fire of the British.

The defence of the position was gallantly and successfully maintained throughout the whole of the following day and night, until Colonel Barter, after a night march from Bushman's Kop, arrived with reinforcements. The Boers had already lost nearly four hundred men, and Commandant General Botha, who himself led the attack, apparently averse to further fighting, drew off with his men.

General Kitchener has been notified that the British loss was also greater than at first reported. Three additional officers were killed and two others wounded during the attack.

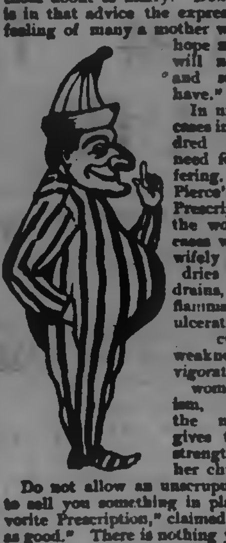
London, Nov. 4.—Those who were convinced, from a study of Lord Kitchener's despatches, that it was only a matter of a few weeks when Botha and the rest of his army would be surrounded and captured by the British, were naturally somewhat surprised when the reports of the fight near Bethel showed the Commandant General to be still capable of concentrating on short notice an army of one thousand men and inflicting such severe losses upon the British arms. One predominant feature displayed by the fight is that artillery is practically worthless in the guerilla warfare now being carried on in South Africa. Heavy guns are simply so much impedimenta to the mobile columns now engaged in the "wearing out" process.

Pretoria, Nov. 4.—Much of the success which has met the British arms in the northeastern portion of the Transvaal of late is attributable to the good work of the Colonial troops, including the Canadian Scouts, under Major Ross. About a week ago an advance guard with a 15-pounder and a Colt gun came upon a hidden Boer force in a perilous position for the British. The day was saved by the coolness of Sergt. [illegible], of the Canadians, who with a Colt gun at close quarters swept the firing line of the Boers. The Boers retreated when the gun continued to shell them and lost heavily.

Bloemfontein, Nov. 3.—The Government has purchased a large block of land (100,000 acres) near the railway for the purpose of establishing breeding farms. Notwithstanding the low condition of the animals on account of their inoculation for rinderpest and lung sickness the calves produced are healthy.

Don't Marry.

Almost everybody remembers the celebrated advice of the London Punch, "To those about to marry. Don't." There is in that advice the expression of the feeling of many a mother who says, "I hope my daughter will never marry and suffer as I have."



In ninety-eight cases in every hundred there's no need for this suffering. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the womanly diseases which cause wifely misery. It dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It invigorates the womanly organism, tranquilizes the nerves and gives the mother strength to give her children.

Do not allow an unscrupulous dealer to sell you something in place of "Favorite Prescription," claimed to be "just as good." There is nothing just as good for women as "Favorite Prescription."

"I am so pleased with your instructions, I hardly know what thanks to give you for your kind favors," writes Mrs. Milo Bryant, of Lota, St. Thomas Co., Ga. "You can publish my few statements to the world, hoping all suffering women will know and be healed. I suffered so much with great pains in my back and the lower part of my stomach and palpitation of the heart, that at times I could hardly lie down, and could hardly get up in the morning, but after using three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, I feel like a new woman."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure sick headache.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES

A Few Pointers That Advertisers Would Do Well to Remember.

Josh Billings: "I luv a rooster for two things—one is the crow that is in him and the other is the spurs that he on him to back up his crow with."

The Times has become a popular paper, not only amongst the people of the town and Ashburnham, but also amongst the residents of the surrounding towns and villages.

Mr. G. H. Hilliard, of Lakefield, says the Times is regarded in Lakefield as the brightest paper that comes to that burg, and is read by very many in the village.

Wm. O'Brien, the genial clerk of Douro, who has long been a subscriber to the daily edition, says that the Times is the popular paper in that township, 75 per cent. of the people being readers. He hopes that it may long keep up its onward pace.

Mr. Wm. Gallon, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, states that the whole back country reads the Times, and regard the paper as one of the very best. He says that it is always full of good things.

Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, says everybody reads the Times in that locality. It is admirably conducted.

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., says the Times is the brightest and best newspaper published in Peterborough.

Commodore Calcutt says he would sooner miss his breakfast than miss getting the Times. It is a famous appetizer only equalled by Calcutt's celebrated ale.

Mr. J. B. Thornton, Omemee, says the Times is very popular in that village and is widely read.

Rev. Mr. Bastedo thinks the Times deserves great credit for its progressive spirit. It is up-to-date, giving all the news up to four o'clock each morning.

Recently Mr. Sage and another of North Smith, brought us in a couple of clubs for the Weekly Times of 50 names. Here are 50 names from one section of Smith, that are constant readers of the Times.

Mr. Harry Garbett, Reeve of Smith, says that the Times is the popular paper in that locality.

Mr. James Bagtie, Springville, gives similar evidence, and says you can hardly go into a house in his locality that the Times is not present.

Mr. Pearson, the great horse buyer, of Montreal, told the Times the other day that he had better results from the advertisement in the Times than from any other paper. He says he finds the Times is read by almost everybody in the district. He knows this, for almost every horse he buys is the product of the Times advertisement.

Mr. T. Donaldson, Cavan, member of the Counties' Council of Northumberland and Durham, says that the Times is very popular in Cavan.

Mr. James Chambers, Manvers, bears similar testimony in regard to Manvers Township.

David Healy says that in Apsley, Hastings and Norwood, everybody literally reads the Times.

Dr. Bingham, the popular city Medical Health Officer, missed his Times the other morning, and came to the office for a copy. He said he was not feeling well, and wondered what was the matter, until he remembered he had not had his Times.

The above are a few of the many evidences we have in our possession of the high regard in which this great family journal is held by the people. Merchants and other advertisers should remember that hundreds upon hundreds of families throughout the town and country cannot be reached by any other way except through the Times.
